

THE

HISTORY OF BENGAL.

FROM THE

FIRST MOHAMMEDAN INVASION

UNTIL THE

VIRTUAL CONQUEST OF THAT COUNTRY

BY THE ENGLISH, A. D. 1757.

BY

CHARLES STEWART, ESQ, M. A. S.

LATE MAJOR ON THE BENGAL ESTABLISHMENT—PROFESSOR OF ORIENTAL LANGUAGES IN THE HONOURABLE EAST INDIA COMPANY'S COLLEGE, HERTS—AUTHOR OF THE DESCRIPTIVE CATALOGUE OF TIPPU SULTAN'S LIBRARY—AND TRANSLATOR OF THE TRAVELS OF MIRZA ABU TALEB KHAN.

(Second Edition)

CALCUTTA:

PUBLISHED BY THE "BANGABASHI" OFFICE, 38-2, Bhawani Charan Dutt's Street.

1910

Price Rs. Five only.

THE OPIC IT ROOM DEPOT.

37/1 A, Shionardin Das Lane, Calcutta.

GAPG BOOK CO JAIPUR.

PRINTED BY N CHARRAVARITY AT THE "BANGABASI PRESS.

TO THE

CHAIRMAN, DEPUTY CHAIRMAN

AND

DIRECTORS

OF

THE HONOURABLE EAST INDIA COMPANY.

THIS HISTORY

OF THE

FINEST PROVINCE UNDER THEIR DOMINION IS RESPECTFULLY INSCRIBED,

BY THEIR MOST OBEDIENT AND FAITHFUL SERVANT

CHARLES STEWART.

Hertvord: May 25th, 1813.

NOTICE.

----0-0----

The present edition of Stewart's HISTORY OF BENGAL, has been published under the immediate superintendence and sanction of the Council of Education, for the use of the Government Colleges and Schools in Bengal. The former edition was an expensive quarto work, out of print and inaccessible.

The original orthography of the Oriental names of persons and places has been retained.

Council of Education, \
June 24th, 1847

FRED. J. MOUAT M. D., Secretary.

PREFACE.

We have much pleasure to place in the hands of the public the best History of Bengal ever written or published. Stewart's History of Bengal is not only the best but is also the first work that was ever written on the subject. Ninety years have passed since this book was first published. A few works of the same kind have no doubt been subsequently compiled, but these, being based chiefly on the present narrative, at least so far as the Muhammadan period is concerned, Major Stewart's History of Bengal still holds the ground as the standard work on the subject

Owing to several causes, this invaluable work was, however, allowed to go out of print, though the spread of English education created in the mind of the people an ardent desire to study the past events of their native country. A demand was thus created for the best and the most interesting History of Bengal, but there was no means for satisfying this demand, unless an exhorbitant price was paid to hawkers of old books for a copy now and then offered for sale as a curiosity

We have now supplied this long-felt want by bringing out a new edition of this rare work, and we venture to hope that the public will appreciate our life-long labour to bring within the reach of the poorest of the poor,—not unoften at a tremendous loss,—firstly, the books comprising the old literature of Bengal, secondly, the ancient Sanskrit books with their translation, chiefly the scriptures that we hold sacred, the divine laws which still regulate our daily life, and the philosophical treatless thought out by our sages, which for their depth and subtlety have now excited the admiration of the world and lastly rare English books of incalculable value to the people of this country

II PRETACE.

It must be a matter of great surprise for thoughtful readers that a History of Bengal written so early as the year 1810 when the British empire in India was still in its infancy, when the knowledge the English possessed of the country was so very limited, and when the field for original research was so extremely narrow could be so accurate and so complete at least for the period which it covers viz. from the Muhammadan to the British conquest of the country Sanskrit literature so far as has been explored ond discovered, after its ruthless destruction by zesious scoooclasts displays o sad deficiency in historical works But not so the Arabic and the Persian The literature of these languages has been enriched by historical narratives, composed oot only by private authors hat also hy Sovereigns of vast empires, who sat down to write their auto biographies migutely recording the most notable incidents of their reign the policy of their administration and even the fallings in their private lives such as the drinking and the opium eating habit which Jahangir contracted and which he so sorrowfully deploted Major Stewart dug into this rich mine ransacked its treasures and embodied them in this work in a handy form and in a very pleasing language

Every one, who has the least love for his country, must cherish in his breast a desire to know all that can be known of his fatherland. The day when the education of a young man was considered complete with the acquirement of a little proficiency in the three Rs, rrs. 'Reading' "Riting and

"Rithmetic," is now past, and the time has dawned when no one can be recognised as a man of culture unless he has stocked his mind with knowledge on various subjects, among which that relating to his own country is pre-eminently the first and most indispensable. The lack of this most important knowledge among our educated men has, however, hitherto been a standing reproach against them, but signs are now visible on all sides to show that they are becoming fully alive to this deficiency, and many of them have now commenced not only to study the works already existing on the subject, but also to throw additional light upon it by careful enquiry and original research. The educated men have also learnt to take a pride in the glory of their ancestors in the past, to weep for the sorrows which it has been the lot of their country to suffer in more recent times, and to entertain the hope of a better destiny in the future, under the auspices of a nation, the most beneficent, the most just, and the most liberal the world has ever seen

It will no doubt be gratifying to many to find, by a careful study of Major Stewart's History, that the condition of e people of Bengal under the Muhammadan rule was not so bad as is generally supposed. No doubt a very large portion of the population of the northern and eastern parts of the Province was converted into Muhammadanism during this time, but this conversion was due not so much to force as to a cause which lies on the surface, and which becomes apparent to every one who pays a little attention to the ethnographical condition of these parts. It is also related by other authorities that the conversion of the people of north Bengal was chiefly effected by an enraged Bengali, named Kalapahar, who was refused readmission into his community, after having been ostracised for some breach of casterules.

Bengal under Muhammadan rule was practically divided into little chiefshipa ruled by semi independent princes, almost all of whom were Hindus. The Rajas of Dinajpur, Rajahahi Nadiya, Bishnupur and Panchet were practicaly little kings, paying tribute to the Nuwabs residing at Gaur Dacca, Rajmahal or Murshldabad, and they ruled over their subjects with almost the arbitrary power of an independent sovereign

As the education of a boy in these days will never be complete unless he be thoroughly conversant with the history of his own country we have no doubt that this book will find a place in every household and that the parents will consider it their paramount duty to recommend its careful perusal to their children. We also hope that the authorities, in whose hands is placed the sacred and the solema duty of looking after the education of our youths will see their way to prescribe its study for some of the University Examinations.

THE BANGABASI OFFICE,

Calcula March 1910

THE PUBLISHER.

LIST OF 'I HE GOVERNORS OF BENGAL.

WITH

THE CONTEMPORARY SOVEREIGNS OF HINDOOS-TAN AND OF ENGLAND.

SECT. I. Early Conquerors of India

A D	AH	Governors of Bengal	Emperors of Hindoostan.	Kings of England.	Page.
1001 1030 1041 1058	391 421 433 450	• • • • • • • • • • • • • • • • • • • •	Sultan Mah- } moodGhazy } Mussaood I. Modood. Ibrahim.	Ethelred Canute, Hardicanute Edward the Con-	23 32 35 37
1098	492 509 511 552 559		Musaood III, Arsilla Bahram Shah, Khusero I, Khusero II,	fessor.) William II. Henry I. Henry II.	39 38 39 41 42
SECT II.
The Ghorian Dynasty.
1189	1 587		[Mohammed]	Richard I.	1 43

SECT III.

Early Conquerors of Bengal

ΛD	A H Governors of Bengal	Emperors of His deosian	Kings of	Pare
12 4 1206 1208 1212	60 Bukhtyar Khuliny C 62 Monamund Sneran . 65 Aly Murdan 60 Ghya Addren A 624 Nasir Addren	 Litumsh,	John	50 70 72
1227 1230 1241 1246	627 Ala Add e	sultana Rizia Iyram II Vas r Adeen Alahmood	Henry III	77 79 81
1253 1 57 1258 1260	651 Nuk Yuzbek 1 655 lel I Add en 657 I s.a. Kha 65) I tre Khan		Ed≠rd I	87 83 89
1277 1252 1325	68f N ir Men	ia n. Iohammed tii		رر ا ا

SECT IV

		In lefter lent.	Lings of Binzal
1340	741	Lakh Millern	M. hammed III Flie red III	10.
1341	741	lly I has		110
1355		Sekun my 5	Lenge III	10
1397	٠()	(b) Alcoll	'	111
13 3 1	7 5	Sultin 1 ste h	,	.11
1343	7.5	ነት mr 1 cm	•	(11/
1355	75	K ja k n	Bi and H	H
13721		I fat Me	Malammel IV	ler
14 1 .	Bij	"M = 1 >r +	Matmo IIII Henry IV	1127
1470	537	N 13 7 5 17	Mubar chill II nry 14	1137
145	7	ites thate	a lot I ady	hei
14.4	٠.,	Note of Shape	I fward IV	itzi
	8 7	ዞ ፣ ዛ ላ ፣		1121

-	A. D	ΑН	Governors of Bengal	Emperors of Hindonstan	Kings of England.	Page.
	1491 1 192 1494 1495 1499 1520	897 899 900 905 927	Sultan Shahzadeh. Feroze Shah. Mahmood Shah. Muzuffir Shah. Hussein Shah Nusserit Shah Mahmood Shah	Sekunder Ibrahim. Humaon.	Henry VII	126 130 131 131 133 138 142
			SEC	Γ. V
			The Shere S	hah Dynasty
	1539 1545 1555 1560 1564 1573	952 962 968 971	Jelal Addeen	Shere Shah, Selim Shah, Mohamed Adil Akbar,	Henry VII Mary Elizabeth	150 169 170 171 171
•	_		SEC	T VI
	Governors under the Moghul Dynasty
	1576 1579 1580 1582 1584 1589 1606 1607 1608 1613 1622 1623 1626 1627 1628	987 988 990 992 997 1010 1016 1017 1022 1028 1033 1035 1035	Muzaffir Khan. Raja Todermul. Khan Aazim Shahbaz Khan. Raja Man Sing. Cuttub Addeen Kokuitash. Jehangire Cooly. Shaikh Islam Khan. Cossim Khan. Ibrahim Khan. Shah Jehan. Khanezad Khan. Mukurrem Khan.		James I Charles I	190 192 196 201 2°4 206 218 231 232 243 248 257 263 264 265 266

		_
A D	ΑН	Government Benga	Emperors of Hindoostan.	Kings of England	Page
	1				-
1632	1012	Aazim Khan	l	1	271
1637	1047	Is am Ahan	ì	1	1
	1	Mushedy	ł	.	373
1639	1019	Sul an Shuja	ì	j	277
1660	1070	Merr Joomla	Au ungzebe	Charles II	312
1664	1074	Shaist Khan]	1	313
1677	1487	Fedai Khan	ł	1	332
16,8	1083	Sultan Moham		ł	Ĺ
1	l	med Aszim		d	333
1680	1090	Shaista Khan			337
1639	1090	Ib ahim Khan II		William III	154 363
1697		Azeem Oosh n		Anne
1704	1116	Moorahud Croly		Geerka II	100
1725	1139	Shujes Addem	Mohammed
}		Khan	Shah.	-	447
1739		Serferaz Klan	ı	₩	46,
1740	1153	Aly Verty Khan	f	-	47,
1750	111,0	Semi-ad Doelah	Agiumperr II	 	>

HISTORY OF BENGAL.

SECTION I.

Of the early Mohammedan Conquerors of India.

INTRODUCTION.

Previous to entering on the History of Bengal, it becomes requisite to revert to the first invasion of the northwest provinces of India by the Mohammedans, and to proceed gradually with a narrative of their conquests, funtil the period from which this History will properly commence but, as this subject has been before amply detailed in the Translation of Ferishtah's History of Hindoostan by Colonel Dow, it is intended merely to give a summary of those events, referring the reader for more particular information on that subject to the above-mentioned valuable work.

^{*} Having had frequent occasion, during the compilation of this work, to compare Colonel Dow's Translation with the original of the History of Hindustan, I conceive it due to the memory of that gentleman, to observe, that few persons could have given a more literal or able translation of his author, and that the suppositions of Mr. Gibbon, and the

STCT 1

18

176, the temporal power of the i Death f Haroun al Rashid. 4. D Soc.

khalifs began gradually to decline most of the governments of provinces by the discord or weakness of the Imperial family became here ditary and their possessors assumed independence they however retained a nominal respect for the successors of Mohammed, and constrained by public opinion inserted the khalif's name in all their official writings, and acknowledged him as their lord paramount, temporal and spiritual

The most powerful of the a princes that became in dependent under the khalifat, was in the 263rd year of the Hejira assumed the toyal titles. He was the first of the dynasty of the Samanlans who reign in the city of Bokhara, over the provinces of Maverulniher Ahoras san and the northern part of Persia, with great reputation for justice and humanity remark of a celebrated Orienalist lately given to the public relative to that History are equally ill founded. It must be acknowledged that Colonel Dow has, in some instances, mistaken the Author a but such errors may ruher be ascribed to the incorrectness of his manuscripts than to a want of knowledge of the Persian language. It will be recollected that the 3rd volume is not a translation but a compilation from different authors.

Samuolae Dynasty Ishmael Samany governor of Mayerulni A. D 870. her (Transoxania) and Khorassan who

The capital of a province of the same name in Usbec Tamany Lat. 39" 15" h Long 61" 15" }...

The family of Samania enjoyed their extensive empire nearly ninety years in much tranquillity and renown, and were celebrated for their justice and the mildness of their government

Abdul Malik Noo, the seventh of that race, dying at Bokhara in the 350th year of the Hejira Abdul Malık Noo left a son, then a youth, called Abdul succeeded by his son, Abdul Munsur Munsur On this occasion the A. D of. and principal officers were divided in their opinion about the succession, some favouring the brother of the late monarch, and others declaring for his To end the dispute, it was agreed to refer the matter to Abistagy, governor of Khorassan, a person distinguished by his integrity and great abilities. Abistagy gave it as his ... opinion, that Munsur from his youth, being incapable of governing so extensive an empire with discretion, it would be advisable to elect his uncle to the throne Abistagy's messengers reached Bokhara, the contending parties had settled their dispute, by unanimously electing Munsur to be their king, and the young monarch offended at Abistagy's opinion, commanded him to relinquish his government, and proceed to Bokhara.

Abistagy, unwilling to trust himself in the power of an irritated prince, who was surrounded by his rivals, sent an excuse to the king, and immediately raised the standard of rebellion, but, finding himself unequal to contend with his adversaries, he quitted Khorassan with a select corps of 3000 cavalry devoted to his service, and, proceeding to the south-east, he took possession of Ghizne,* declaring himself independent of the Samanian authority.

^{*} Ghizne is situated in latitude 33° 25' north, and east

Wheo the king was informed of the departure of Abistagy from Khorassan he appointed Abul Hussen to that govern ment, with orders to drive Abistagy from his usurped domini oo but that chief having reconciled the Afghans of Ghiane to bis usurpatioo was enabled by their assistance to defeat the royal general io two pitched battles; and thus became absolute sovereign of the kingdom of Zabulistan

A. D 975.
over which be reigned nearly fifteen years and died A. H. 365

Abistagy was succeeded by bis son Abu Isaac who died without beirs after a short reign of one year. On this event, Subuctageen, the generalissimo of Abistagy with the concurrence of the chiefs of the army and the principal inhabitants of Ghizne mounted the throne and took to wife the daughter of his pairon Abistagy.

SUBUCTAGEEN

Origin of Subuctageen-Mounts the thron of Chin -Invades Hindoorise-Defeats the Raja of Longh no takes posse u of Paishawar-Returns to Chine-Visits the city of Balkh-Dien.

Stretchark who was originally a Turkith slave mounted the throne of Chline on the original and the strength of Chine on the original and the strength of Chine on the original and the strength of the Christian area and unon this original assumed the time of Nan allows.

the of from the Canada sold to It to the control of authors and was at that per of to posicion of author of Af has named Af of

As soon as Subuctageen found himself firmly established in his government, he resolved to employ his army in making war on the idolaters A.D 977 of India He, in consequence, invaded the frontier provinces of that country in the year 367, and, having acquired much plunder, and brought away a number of the inhabitants as slaves, he returned in triumph to his capital

The Hindoo prince, whose country had been thus invaded was named Jypaal the son of Hypaal of the tribe of Brahmens. His capital was called Bathendeh; and his dominions extended in a north-west direction, from Lahore to Lughman,* and in a south-east line, from Cashmire to Moultan. In order to revenge this insult, Jypaal assembled a numerous army and advanced towards Ghizne. He was met on the frontier by Subuctageen, and some skirmishing took place between the two armies, but, in consequence of a violent storm, attended by a heavy fall of snow, the Hindoos, who could not endure the cold, sued for peace, the Raja agreeing to pay a fine of a million of dirhems, † and to present Subuctageen with fifty elephants. Part of the money was paid immediately, the

^{*,}The district of Lughman probably extended as far as the Hindoo koh * but this circumstance contradicts the current opinion that the Hindoos, were, prohibited crossing the Indus; as we here find that a Hindoo prince possessed countries three degrees west of that river and that many of his subjects were Afghans

[†] Dirhem, a small silver coin, which has varied much in value. It may, however, be averaged at sixpence English remainder was promised to be fliquidated in a short time and hostages were given for the fulfilment of the treny. When the Raja returned to his impiral being excited either by avarior or ashamed of his patillanimous conduct he refused to comply with the stipula ed terms, and ordered that the persons whom Subuctageen had service receive the tribute about the detained until his hostages were telephed. He at the same time, sent embastics to the different Rajas of His forests, imploring them to unite with him in defence of the recurry and of their religion.

^{*} See Rennell's Memoir of the Map of Hindoostan.

When this intelligence was brought to Sobortszeen he re essembled his troops and marched spear is Inthesia. The con ending armies met on the freezist and all hereth the Hindon forces amounted to approve men surprised by a number of elephorts the Mohammerlans as real as easy creatives the videre their advances across the Kink nee enginese the videre their advances on of the charters of Lughman and Paintains. One of the Oracles of the construct of Lughman and Paintains. One of the Oracles has requested to one horse was a serial of Contons of Paintains and the Africa is a ferme all their art. Entered the Oracles of them we are of "All safences is the Archael and the country to his authority is a strong to make a medical the country to his authority."

SULTAN MAHMOOD GHAZY.

Invades Hindoosian-Engages and defeats Raja Jypaal-lakes Bathendeh-Invades Moultan-Conquers the Raja of Bhattea, a id Daoud Khan, an Afghan Chief-Invades Nagorkote-Oppo of fin his progress by Raja Annungapaal—Takes the fort of Bhimp war-Returns to Ghizne-Obtains the title of Sultan-Marches to I hannasar-Takes that forcress, and desirovs the celeberated image-Takes the fortress Nadoune-Invades Kashmire-Repulsed-Again invades Hindoostan-Subdues the Raja of Cannouge-Takes the cities of Merat, Mabin, and Muttra-Returns to Ghizne -lovades Hindoostan a sixth time-Advances to the bank of the river Jumuna-Defeats the Hindu forces-Returns to his own dominions-Invades Kashmire-Again repulsed-Attacks and subdues the Punjab-Advances into Bundelcund, and lays sieze to Callinger-Returns home-Invades Guzerat, and takes the celebrated l'emple of Diu-His army suffer much distress on thuir return to Ghizne-Expedition against the Jats-Returns to Ghizne-Dies.

Sultan Mahmood, the eldest son of Subuctageen, having made a vow, that, if he ever succeeded to the throne, he would wage continual war against the Subuctageen sucidolaters of India, towards the end of the ceeded by his son, Mahmood Ghazy year 391 of the Heira, marched 10,000 chosen horse from Ghizne, and, on the 8th of Mohurrem of the following year, engaged Raja Jypaal, with 12,000 horse, 30,000 infantry, and 300 war elephants, at Paishawur The Mohammedans were again A D 1001, Mahvictorious, having slain 5,000 of the Hininvades Hindoostan. doos, and taken the Raja, with fifteen of his principal adherents, prisoners. The Sultan then advanced, and laid seige to Bathendeh, the capital of the captive prince,

army of Hindoos, under the command of Annungapaal, the son of the late Raja. A severe conflict ensued, in which the Hindoos were again defeated, and their prince obliged to take refuge in Cashmire. The Sultan then advanced to the city of Moultan; and, after a siege of seven days, compelled Daud Khan to pay a tribute of 20,000 dirhems, and to embrace the true faith *

In the year 399, the Sultan again advanced towards

Hindoostan, and Raja Annundpaal having been reinforced by several other Hindoo princes, again opposed him in the plains of Paishawur. The contest had lasted for several days, when the elephant, on which Annungapaal rode, having taken fright, ran off to the rear. This circumstance induced the whole of the Hindoo army to take to flight. They were pursued by their adversaries for two days and two nights, and 20,000 of them fell by the sword. After this victory, the Sultan, whose mind was governed by bigotry and fanaticism, resolved to proceed to the sacred territory of Nagorkote, and to destroy all the temples of the idolaters in that district.

There was, at that time, in the vicinity of Nagorkote, a celebrated fort, called Bhime, or Bheemnagur, in which the Hindoos had collected all the wealth consecrated to the idols of that and the neighbouring territories, for many centuries Mahmood invested this place in the year 400, with such expedition, that the procrastinating Hindoos had not time to reinforce the garrison, which at that time was very weak, and therefore, which place he quickly reduced. After this he satisted his revenge upon some of the Afghans who neglecting their promise to his father had taken part with the Hindoos.

^{*} The Afghams were Mohammedans, but of a different sect from the Sultan.

As it was the custom amongst the Hindoos that whatever Rsja was twice defeated or taken prisoner should be con still a state of the prejndices of his countrymen and hurnt himself on a funeral pile

In the year 395 the Sultan resolved to carry his arms against Raja Bajerao whose territories

The Raja waited the attack in his capital named Bhattea which was well fortified with an exceedingly high wall, and a very broad and deep ditch. For several days the Hindoos defended themselves with great vigour but the Raja s courage falling him he left a strong garrison in the place and retired to the woods on the banks of the Sinde here he was soon after surrounded by a detachment of the Moham medan army and finding further resistance vain fell inpon his own sword. The city was soon after taken by assault, and an immense quantity of plunder fell into the hands of the captors; loaded with which they returned in triumph to their own dominions

The Sultan having discovered that Daud Khan an Afghan beretic, who then possessed the province of Multan and whose predeceasor had taken the oath of allegiance to Sultan Subuctageen had during the siege of Bhattea, sent assistance to Raja Bajerao, resolved to punish the traitor. He therefore in the year 306 again ad

A. D 1005 6 vanced towards Hindoostan, and had proceeded as far as Palshawur when he was opposed by an army of Hindoos, under the command of Annungapaal, the son of the late Raja. A severe conflict ensued, in which the Hindoos were again defeated, and their prince obliged to take refuge in Cashmire. The Sultan then advanced to the city of Moultan; and, after a siege of seven days, compelled Daud Khan to pay a tribute of 20,000 dirhems, and to embrace the true faith *

In the year 399, the Sultan again advanced towards

A D, 1008-9,
Mahmood invades
Hindoostan a princes, again opposed him in the plains second time of Paishawur. The contest had lasted for several days, when the elephant, on which Annungapaal rode, having taken fright, ran off to the rear. This circumstance induced the whole of the Hindoo army to take to flight. They were pursued by their adversaries for two days and two nights, and 20,000 of them fell by the sword. After this victory, the Sultan, whose mind was governed by bigotry and fanaticism, resolved to proceed to the sacred territory of Nagorkote, and to destroy all the temples of the idolaters in that district.

There was, at that time, in the vicinity of Nagorkote, a celebrated fort, called Bhime, or Bheemnagur, in which the Hindoos had collected all the wealth consecrated to the idols of that and the neighbouring territories, for many centuries Mahmood invested this place in the year 400, with such expedition, that the procrastinating Hindoos had not time to reinforce the garrison, which at that time was very weak, and therefore, speedily compelled them to caplinlate, stipulating only for their lives and liberty thus the whole of the immense wealth contained in the fortxess fell into the hands of the Sultan with which he immediately returned to Ghizne, and displayed to his astonished subjects such riches as were never before possessed by any monarch. It was on this necession that he obtained from the Kalif Kader Billah the title of Sultan

^{*} The Afghams were Mohammedans, but of a different sect from the Sultan.

In the year 401, the Sultan again invaded Multan, and, having taken the city by assault, slew or mutilated a great number of the heretical Afghans, and led away their chief, Daud Khan, with many of his followers captives.

In the course of this year the Sultan was informed that in the town of Thannasar not far from Dehly there was an image named Jng Soom which was held in the highest veneration by the Hindoos, and that crowds of people assembled there annually from every part of India, to worship the idol. This intelligence having rekindled the seal of the Sultan he resolved to destroy this object of profane adoration.

tion and in the year 402 marched from A. D 1011 to Ghizne but as his route lay through the country of Raja Annungapazi, with whom he had concluded a treaty of peace he sent an ambassador to that prince, to demand a free passage through his territory assuring him that his troops should not commit the smallest injury on any of his subjects. The Raja endeavoured to persuade the Sultan to relinquish his undertaking offering to pay him annually the amount of the revenues of Thannasar and to send him immediately fifty elephants and various other presents. His entreaties had noeffect on the bigoted follower of Mohammed, who proceeded with such expedition, that he arrived at Thannasar before the Raja of Dehly could receive the assistance which he had solicited from the neighbouring princes. All the inferior images were, by the Sultan's orders, broken to pieces, but the venerated Jug Soom, after naving the head destroyed, was sent to Ghizne, to form one of the steps of the public mosque, that the pious Mohammedans might have the pleasure of trampling on this object of idolatrous superstition. Religious real was not the only passion which the Mohammedans gratified by this expedition; their avarice was also satisted by the rich plunder of the temples.

After this transaction, the Sultan wished to advance to the conquest of Dehly; but his nobles having represented the danger of proceeding further, until he had completely subdued the countries of the Punjab and Multan, he relinquished his intention, and returned to his own dominions, carrying with him 40,000 Hindoos, of both sexes, as slaves.

In the year 404, Sultan Mahmood again invaded the dominions of Pitteraou Jypaal the son of Annungapaal, and took the fort of Nadoune (probably Nadone of our maps). The young prince, finding himself unable to contend with the invaders, fled to Cashinire whither he was pursued by the Sultan; who, after having plundered that province, and forcibly converted a number of the inhabitants to his own religion, returned to Ghizne.

The year 406 was rendered remarkable by the Sultan's unsuccessful attack on Cashmire. He for many months laid siege to the strong fortress of Koh Kote; and was detained so long by this operation, that the winter set in with much violence, and a number of his troops perished in the retreat. This was the first failure this enterprising monarch had ever experienced.

In the spring of the year 409 Snltan Mahmood having resolved upon an expedition against Connouge marched from Ghisne with an army said to have consisted of 130,000 cavalry. He took the route of Cashmire and, after a toilsome and ardurus murch of three months, issued from the mountains which form the northern boundary of the country lying between the rivers jumna and Ganges, called by the natives the Doorb His approach was quite unexpected by Korra, the Raja of Cannonge whose capital was, at that time equal in magnificence to any of the citles in India and who seeing no other remedy than submitted himself and his country to the mercy of the conqueror

The Sultan remained some days in Cannouge while his detachments took the forts of Merat and Mabin the one situated on the Cally Nuddy the other on the banks of the Jumna

From Cannouge the Sultan proceeded to Multra, to this day a celebrated place of Hindoo worship. From the Brah mens he met with no opposition but the plan her he obtain ed was immensel the images are said to have been all composed of gold or after and ornamented with precious stones. The bultan continued in this country for some months plundering the inhabitants and descriping the towns after which he returned to his own dominions, builded with spoil and encumbered with continue.

mustered, and marched towards Hindoostan On the occasion he took his route through the Punjab, by Lahore The prince of that country, Pitteraou Jypaal, not finding himself able to prevent the passage of his invaders, retreated across the river Jumna there he was reinforced by Nunda, Raja of Callinger (the capital of Bundelkand), and several other chiefs. The Sultan having arrived on the banks of the Jumna, found the allied Hindoo army drawn up, ready to oppose his crossing the river, which at that time was not tordable. He therefore encamped opposite to them, till he could form a better judgment of his own and of their situation, but, during the night, some of his troops, having swum across the river without orders, threw the Hindoos into such consternation, that they all took to flight

The Sultan continued to pursue them for several days, but the fugitives, when they had nearly reached the confines of Callinger, again rallied, and drew up in order of battle. Their army is said to have consisted of 36,000 horse, 45,000 infantry, and a great number of war elephants, and so formidable was their appearance, that it caused very serious apprehensions to the Mussulmans, but the Sultan, having reconnoitred their position, resolved to delay the attack only till morning. In this, however, he was disappointed, as during the night, the Hindoos abandoned their camp and retreated in the greatest disorder. The Mohammedans pursued them for several days and took a number of elephants, and a quantity of their baggage, but the Sultan, reflecting on the distance he was from home, and the state of the countries in his rear, thought it prudent to return towards Ghizne.

In the year 413, Sultan Mahmood again entered Cashmire, and laid seige to the strong fortress of Koh Kote; but having been a second time ioiled he proceeded to the Punjab and for several months laid waste that country. Having at length however render ed himself master of the city of Lahore he resolved to annex the Punjab to his own dominions, and commanded his troops to desist from further depredation. The Raja Pitteraou Jypaal unable to contend with his adversaries retired to Ajmire for protection and the Sulian, after appointing one of his Omrahs to the government of the Punjab returned to his capital.

In the year 414 Sultan, having resolved to sub due Nunda the Raja of Callinger, march A D 1023/24 ed from Ghizne with a numerous army He took the route ni Lahore and when he arrived at Gualler agave orders for his troops to invest that forthers but on the chief's sending him a valuable present and several elephants, he coofuned his journey and shortly after entered the province of Bundelcund

The Raja, intimidated by the number and prowess of his enimies retired to the fortress of Callinger† the commanding situation and strong fortifications of which stopped the further progress of the Mohammedan arms, and induced the Sulian, upon receiving a large sum al money and three hundred elephants, to return home

In the year 415 the Sultan led his army over sterile deserts into the povince of Gurerat,

A. D 1024 25 the capital $\frac{1}{2}$ of which he took without ^{*} Twice taken by the English but again ceded to the [†] Callinger has lately been taken by the English but not till after having been repulsed in their first attack

t Nehrwaleh.

opposition. He then proceeded to the Island of Diu, in which was situated the Temple of Som Naat, a celebrated idol, which had been the object of Hindoo worship from time immemorial

The capture of this temple cost the Sultan the lives of many of his troops, but the immense wealth which he found therein amply repaid all his toils, and was equal in value to the whole of the plunder of his former expeditions

The Sultan directed the venerated image of Som Naat, which was five yards in hight, and contained incalculable wealth, to be broken to pieces, and its fragments to be sent to Mecca, Medina, Ghizne, and other Mohammedan cities, as a testimony of his zeal and power.

The troops having suffered much distress, during this journey, in their passage across the desert, the Sultan determined to return home by the way of Moultan, but even in this route his army experienced excessive hardships, both from the opposition of the inhabitants and scarcity of water and provisions, and with much difficulty returned to Ghizne, after an absence of nearly two years

In the year 417, Mahmood resolved to wreak his vengeance on the Jats, a tribe of Hindoos who inhabited the banks of the lower part of the river Sinde. He, therefore, early in the year, proceeded to Moultan, where he collected 1500 large boats, each of which he armed with iron spikes, projecting over the bow and sides.
Some of these boats were fitted up as fire-ships, and the remainder occupied by archers and spearmen.

The fleet launched from Moultan; and, soon after their arrival in the country, of the Jats, were opposed by a fleet said to have consisted of 4000 boats of various sizes; but, as the fleet of the Ghizmans had the advantage of the current,

the boats of the Jats were unable to withstand the shock many of them were sunk a number of them were hurned, and the rest dispersed. After the victory the Mohammedans landed and baving set fire to the villages brought away a great number of the women and children with whom the Sultan returned in triumph to his capital.

Two years after this event, Sulian Mahmood died at Ghizne on the 23rd of the second Rubby (3rd month) in the 419th year of the Helpin and was buried in a magnificent tomb erected near the city which to this day is resorted to by Mohammedau piligrims from various parts of Asia, who consider him as having been glorious champion of their religion, and therefore reverence his memory

MUS 1000 THE FIRST

Mushood succeeds to the throne—Character of that I rince le invades the Persian provinces. I Rut hand Makeran—Inva I se ashmire and tak the cell brates to tell Sor utily—Invades Indoostan and ce pures the cities of Hansi and Sunput—Returns to Gi zne—Deposed and murdere I by his own audjetts.

SLETAX MARKOOD was succeded by his second son Mahammed in the year 421 but as the events of that short and unstable relamate not connected with the affairs of India it has not been thought requisite to insert it in this at ridged history

Musacod at the period of his father's decease was Governor of Hamadan in Persia, and upon his succeeding to the throne for some time made Balkh the rest of his emforHe was a man of lofty spirit, and great personal strength; on which account he was honoured with the title of Rustem the Second His arrow could pierce the strongest coat of mail and pass through the body of an elephant, and his iron mace was so heavy, that no man of his time could raise it with one hand He was, withal, of an obstinate and fierce disposition, contemptuous of authority, and disdaining all obedience This circumstance, in his youth, engaged him in many quarells and greatly disobliged his father, who therefore wished to confer the kingdom on his second son, and, in consequence, detached Musaood to the the most distant part of his empire, previous to his last illness

In the year of the Hejira 422, he quitted Balkh, and repaired to Ghizne, where having settled his authority he employed his armies in reducing the maritime provinces of Persia, Kutch and Makeran.

For two years, the attention of the Sultan was so much engaged by his Persian provinces, that he A. D 1033 had little leisure to molest the Hindoos. but in the year 424, he led his army into Cashmire, and invested the fort of Sursutty, which commanded the passes. The garrison, being intimidated, sent messengers to the king, promising valuable presents, and an annual tribute, if he would desist from his enterprise Musaood was to listen to their proposals, when he received a petition from several Mohammedan merchants, who were captives in the fort, stating that they had come into that country in the laudable and peaceable pursuit of commerce, that the governor of Sursutty had unjustly seized them, plundered them of all their goods, and kept them in severe confinement they added, that the provisions in the fort being nearly expended, if his majesty would persevere in the slege a few days longer it must surrender to his victorious arms. This intelligence at once roused the anger and ambition of the prince. He gave orders for the slege to be prosecuted with redoubled vigour. The ditch was in a few days filled with sugar-canes, from the adjacent plantations, scaling ladders were applied to the walls and the infuriate Musselmans entered the fort, and put the whole garrison to the sword. The king then ordered search to be made for the captive merchants and having liberated them bestowed on them the royal portion of the plunder. This act rendered him beloved by the Moham medans and dreaded by the Hiodoos.

In the year 437 the Sulian entered the mountainous region of Sewalle, and fivested the supposed impregnable fortress of Hansi, which he took by storm on the sixth day In this place he found immense treasures, which he despatched to Ghizoc He then proceeded in person to Sunput, a celebrated place of Hindoo worship situated only forty miles from Dehly bere although he met with no opposition he nevertheless consigned the idols and their temples to destruction. After thus eventual his intolerant zeal he returned to Lahore and having established his son Mujdood as governor of that province he proceeded to Ghizne.

This was the last incursion of Sultan Husaood into Hindoostan and in the year 433 he was deposed and afterwards murdered

hy his own subjects

SULTAN MODOOD.

Proclaimed King at Balkh.—Repairs to Ghizne.—The Empire declines—The Raja of Dehly enters into a confederacy with the other. Hindoo Princes—Takes the fort of Nagorkote.—The Mohammedans nearly driven from Hindoostan.—The Sultan dies.—His Successors.

Sultan Modood, at the time of his father's decease was at Balkh, where he was immediately proclaimed king. He soon afterwards proceeded to Ghizne, but for several years he was so much occupied by an invasion of the Siljokian Tartars, and by civil wars that he had no leisure to pursue the conquests of his predecessors in India

In the year 435, the Raja of Dehly, perceiving the declining state of the Ghiznian empire. The Mohammeresolved to make an effort to dans nearly driven his country from the hands of the out of Hindoostan A. D. 1043 oppressors He therefore entered into an alliance with all the Hindoo princes of the Punjab, to attack the common enemy and, that no means might be omitted to rouse their zeal and animate their spirits, he declared that he had seen in, a vision the deity whose idol had formerly been worshipped in the temple of Nagorkote; and who had informed him, that, having revenged himself on the Ghizmans, by the introduction of civil broils and discord amongst them, if he would advance with his army to Nagorkote he should there find him returned to his temple, and prepared to assist his worshippers divine aid

The story, having been propagated by some Brahmens who were probably in the secret, was eagerly credited by a multitude of zealots, these having joined the army of the Raja, he proceeded at their head towards. Natirilo chaving during his toute recovered from the hands of the Mohammedans the cities of Thannisar. Hansi and several other places. The fort of Nagorko e being situated is the top of a mountain and defended by a determined Mohammedan garrison was not to be taken by assault, the Raja therefore closely invested it with his troops, and patiently waited the slow but certain effects of famine. We the end of four months the garrison finding no hipper of relief capitulated. Previous to the surtender of the first the Raja had taken the precaution of causing an idea to the made of the same, we and form of that which families occupied the temple and having during the highs in once to tracetely into the place, it was displayed soon af either affit wing into the fort of the automath from first.

Hentiest ima e which had been broken in pieces by it of Mohammelan. This work see itself the fame of the lift.

SULTAN IBRAHIM.

Sultan Ibrahim succeeded his brother Ferrokhzad, in the year 450 He was a prince remarkable for his strict morality, and observance of religious duties. For twenty-two years his attention was much occupied by apprehensions from his western neighbours, but in the year 472 he sent a powerful army to invade. Hindoostan. He took and plundered the ancient city of Adjodin, situated on the skirts of the Great Desert, he also captured the celebrated fort of Rupal, and carried away 100,000 of the inhabitants of that vicinity into slavery.

In its consequences, the most important event of this reign was the appointment of a person named Sham Soury to the Government of Ghor, as well hereafter be explained. Ibrahim enjoyed a long and prosperous reign, and quitted this mortal life in year 492

MUSAOOD THE THIRD.

Musaood III the son of Sultan Ibrahim, mounted the throne on the demise of his father. He revised the ancient laws and regulations of the state, and, abrogating such as were deemed unreasonable, substituted other in their place founded upon better principles. He took Mehidi Irac, the daughter of Sinjir, king of the Sijoky, in marriage, which connection cemented the peace between those princes

During the reign of Musacod his general named Tozhan Sien led an expedition into Hindoostan and, having crossed the Ganges carried the Mohammedan conquist farther than those of the celebrated Mahmood Ghazy

The remainder of the reign of Musicood was pain duri A. D 1115.

pea e and he died at Ghirne in the year see after a reign of accentent year

ARSILLA.

governor of Seistan, the troops of Ghizne were put to flight; and Arsilla, unable to renew the engagement, fled towards Hindoostan.

Sinjir entered Ghizne in triumph, where he remained forty days and having placed Bahram on the throne of Ghizne, returned to his own government.

In the year 511, Arsilla made an attempt to recover his dominions, but was defeated, taken prisoner, and put to death

BAHRAM SHAH.

Bahram Shah was possessed of great courage and dignity: the was also a great encourager of learning, and spent much of his time with the Literati, each of whom he rewarded according to merit. During his reign, a great number of books were written and dedicated to him, the most celebrated of which is the Mukhzen al Asrar (Treasury of Secrets), by the famous Shaikh Nizamy.

In the year 512 the Sultan marched to Lahore, which had been seized by Mohammed Bahlim, the general of the late monarch. An engagement took place in the vicinity of that city, in which Bahlim was defeated and made prisoner; but being a person of great plausibility, he not only persuaded the Sultan to release him, but to take him into his service, and to re-appoint him to the government of Lahore. In return for his clemency, Bahlim embraced the first opportunity of rebelling against his master. A second engagement ensued, in which the rebel was deteated, and, in his flight, fell into a quagmire with ten of his sons, and was never more heard of. The

Sultan soon after seized the family and all the wealth of the rebel, which he had deposited in Nazore a celebrated fat in the mountains of Sexalic Some years after this even a young man rame!

Mohammed Hussein a prince of the rotal famile of Char who was married to one of the daughters of the rebel having excited the featousy of the Sultan was put to death, and this act proved in 1 + consequences the ruin of the family 1 Chime Siel Affeen Sours the brother of the decessed raised a grea arms to reven e his deab. He marched directly to Chiene which Bahram e acquied and uratic to appose lim fed towards. Hinfordan, invested that city, and delivered it to be plundered by his troops, and its inhabitants to be massacred, for seven days he then set fire to it in many places, and carried his ravages so far as to destroy every monument of the Ghiznian kings, excepting the tombs of Mahmood, Musaood, and Ibrahim

After his defeat, Bahram fled, with 'the scattered remains of his army, towards Lahore, but he was overwhelmed with his misfortunes, and sunk under the hand of death in' the year 547, after a reign of thirty-five years. He was, upon the whole, an amiable and virtuous prince, and had it not been for his impolitic and cruel conduct to the Prince of Ghor, he might have died with the character of a good man.

The author of the Tabkat Nassery states, that he reigned forty years, and that his death occurred at Ghizne in the year 552 of the Hejira

KHU-ERO THE FIRST.

The son of Bahram succeeded his father (according to the Tabkat Nassery) in the year 552, and, abandoning the western provinces to the power of his enemies, made Lahore the capital of his dominions. He died in that city in the year 559, after having reigned, with no great splendour, for seven years. He however deserved, and attained, the character of a good and peaceable prince.

KHUSERO THE SECOND

Ascended the throre on the death of his faiter a 1 are good the ricen years at Labore with the reportation of a benevolent and just precipition of a benevolent and just precipition. A Distribution of a benevolent and just precipition of a benevolent and just precipition. A Distribution of a benevolent and just precipition of a benevolent and just precipition of the secretary and transferred the secretary of India to the Illium of Other.

SECTION II.

The Ghorian Dynasty.

-00 non-

SULTAN MOHAMMED GHORY.

Origin of the King of Ghor-Sham appointed Governor of Ghor-succeeded by his sons, Mohammed Hussein, Sief Addeen Soury, and Alla Addeen-The succession devolves upon Ghyas Addeen, who appoints his brother Mohammed governor of Ghizne, and Generalissimo of his forces-Mohammed invades and subdues Moultan-Invades Paishawur-Advances to Lahore, and besieges Sultan Khusery in that city—Returns to Ghizne—Again invades Hindoostan-Defeated by the Hindoo Rajas of Ajmire and Dehly-Compelled to return to Ghizne-Being reinforced, returns, and gains a complete victory over the Hindoos-Proceeds towards Dehly-Appoints Cuttub Adden governor of the conquered province, and returns to Ghizné-Again invades Hindoostan-Advances as far as Benaras, and destroys the temples and idols of that city-Returns home-Again enters Hindoostan, and takes the fort of Biana-Sultan Ghyas Addeen dies, and is succeeded by Mohammed, who is three years after assassinated by the tribe of Gickers.

Origin of the Kings of Ghor, according to the most authentic historians, might be traced through thirty-two generations, to the Khalifat of Aly, the son-in-law of the Prophet, who converted one of their progenitors to the Mohammedan faith

Ghys Addeen, being of an unwarlike disposition, appointed

Ghyas Addeen appoints Mohammed Ghory Generalissimo A D 1171 his brother, Mohammed Ghory, to be his general, and in the year 567 promoted him to the government of Ghizne, which, by a reverse of fortune, was now become a dependency upon that state to which it formerly sent governors

In the year 572, Mohammed, in obedience to his brother's command led an army into Moultan, and in a very short time subdued that province

Encouraged by this event, he in the year 574, advanced through the Sandy Desert into Guzerat, but Raja Bim Deo, having collected a numerous army of Hindoos, compelled the Mohammedans, after suffering many hardships, to retire to their own territories

The tollowing year, 575, Mohammed, having recruited his army, invaded the district of Paishawar, bordering on Cashmire, and in a short time brought in under subjection

In 576, he advanced towards Lahore, where he invested

Sultan Khusero, the last of the Ghizman dynasty, whom he compelled to submit to such terms as were unworthy the conqueror and disgraceful to the conquered

In the year 580, Mohammed again invaded Lahore, and was again compelled to retreat, but, in order to secure the final conquest of that country, he built the strong fortress of Sal Kote, between the Ravy and Chunaub, two of the rivers which inclose part of the province called the Punjab.

with an arrow. Mohammed was so much stunned by hi wound, that with the utmost difficulty he could preserve hi seat, which being observed by one of his faithful attendants he immediately vaulted behind him, and bore him off from the field of battle. The Mussulmans seeing their general in this situation, immediately took to flight, and were pursue by their enemies for forty miles.

Upon the retreat of Mohammed, the allied Rajas continue their march to Tiberhind, which they besieged for sixtee months, and were at length obliged to grant a most honour ble capitulation to the garrison

After this unexpected defeat, Mohammed retired to Ghizn whence he proceeded to Ghor, the capital of his brother from whom he received such an addition to his forces, rendered his army one of the most formidable that had eventered Hindoostan

His force is said to have consisted of 120,000 horse complete armour, and a vast number of irregular cavalis. With these he marched, in martial array, first to Ghizne, as thence towards. India. Upon his arrival at Lahore, he do patched a nobleman, named. Humza, with an ostentation declaration of war against the Hindoofprinces. These, having been prepared for the event, advanced with an army consisting of 300,000 horse, 3000 elephants and an immense host infantry. The two armies encamped in sight of each other and on the former field of battle, being only separated by the Tiver Sursutty.

As it is a political maxim of the Hindoos never to use force when any business can be accomplished by stratage or deceit, they endeavoured to enter into an accommodate with Mohammed, who, meeting them in their own way, a clared his readiness to enter into a truce with them.

marched himself with the main body towards the mountains of Sewallic, which form the northen boundary of that part of Hindoostan, plundering and ravaging all the countries in his way to Ghizne.

After the return of Mohammed, his general Cuttub who afterwards became highly distinguished in the annals of India advanced, in the year 589, from Khoram, and took from the son of Candu Rai the imperial city of Dehly 'He thence proceeded to Merat, which he captured in a short time, and having subdued the fortress of Kole, (now called Allyghur), between the Rivers Jumna and Ganges, took up his residence for some time in that place

In the year 591, Mohammed Ghory again advanced into Hindoostan, but met with no opposi-A. D. 1194 tion till he had reached Etaya on the bank of the Jumna, where he was encountered by Roy Joy, prince of Cannouge The Hindoos were, however, defeated by the vanguard under Cuttub, and much plunder was seized by the conquerors After this skirmish, the Mohammedans advanced and took the fort of Assy, in which they found immense treasures Thence they proceeded to Benares, which they easily captured, and either wantonly or zealously broke down and destroyed all the idols and temples of that celebrated seat of Hindu learning Mohammed then returned to Kole, where he again confirmed Cuttab as his viceroy in India, and hence, laden with treasure, he took the route of Ghizne.

Scarcely had Mohammed crossed the Indus, when one of the relations of Pittu Rai, late king of Ajmire whose name was Himraje, rebelled against Gola, the son of his prince, and compelled him to take refuge with Cuttub the Mohammedan

general The latter immediately advanced with a con siderable army to Aimire, where he quickly re-established Gola in his authority

The same year Cutfuh invaded the province of Guzrat, and, having vanquished Raja Bim Dee took ample revenge for the defeat the Mohammedan arms had sustained in the year 574. After plundering that rich country he returned in triumph to Delhy

In the year 500 Mohammed for the last time, entered lnto the Hindustan but after taking the A. D 1202. fort of Biana, he was obliged to return in haste towards Ghizne where upon his arrival he received intelligence of the death of his brother Sultan Ghyas Addeen,

Mohammed succeeds Ghyan Addeen in the soversignty of Ghor

in whose name he had hitherto acted. In recompence for his forbearance so uncommon amongst Mohammedans, he had the pleasure of acquiring the sovereignty of Ghor and all its dependencies with a clear conscience

From this period Mohammed Interfered little with the politics of India, leaving the arrangement of that country to his trust worthy vicercy Cuttuh

Mohammed was assassinated in the year 602 by the tribe of Glokers, after a reign of thirty two years A D 1906. from the commencement of his govern ment over Ghixne, and three from his accession to the empire the titles and honours of which as before mentioned he per mitted his elder brother to enjoy during his life-time. He was esteemed one of the greatest men that ever sat on the throne of India, and though he was in some instances cruel, he possessed many virtues

CUTTUB ADDEEN ABIEK.

Origin of Cuttub—Purchased by Sultan Mohammed Ghory—Promoted by degrees to the rank of Master of the Horse—Taken prisoner by the King of Khuarizm—Retaken—Appointed Governor of the conquered Provinces—Captures the City of Merat—Takes Dehly—His Expedition against the Jats—Crosses the river Jumna, and takes the fort of Kole—Defeats the Raja of Benares—Sultan Mohammed adopts Cuttub as his son—Cuttub succeeds to the Throne of Hindoostan—Dies.

When Mohammed Ghory had departed this life, his nephew Mahmood assumed the imperial titles at Ghor, but sensible of his own want of power, he thought it more prudent to conciliate the friendship of Cuttub, the viceroy of Hindoostan, although originally a slave of his uncle's, than, by asserting his claim to those dominions, to raise up a dangerous rival to his authority. He therefore sent to Cuttub all the ensigns of royalty viz, a throne, an umbrella, standards, drums, and the title of Sultan.

Cuttub received these honours with proper respect and mounted the throne at Lahore, on the 2nd June, of Zykaad of the year 602

As this person makes so conspicuous a figure in the annals of Hindoostan, his history cannot fail of being interesting, although fully detailed in another work

Cuttub was a native of Toorkestan, and in his childhood purchased by a merchant, who brought him to Nishapore,

Origin of Cuttub Addeen. and sold him to Cazy Fakher Addeen, a learned judge, and a person of very ancient family, who sent him to school with his own sons The youth evinced uncommon abilities, and in a few years made great progress in his learning and in acquiring all the politic accomplishments of the age. Upon the death of the judge his heirs sold Cuttin for a large sum of money to a merchant by whom he was carried to Ghizne and presented to Sultan Mohammed Ghory who amply rewarded the merchant for his present.

In a short time Cuttub became a great favourite of the Sultan who in consequence of his having lost a finger gave him the nickname of Ahlek. One evening the Sultan, having made considerable presents to his attoodants and slaver, gave to Cuttub a larger sum than to any other of the boys but as soon as the company broke up Cuttub distributed his present among the inferior servants of the palace, saying that as the Sultan s favour supplied all his wants he had on use for money. This condoct being reported to the Sultan, he was moch pleased and promoted Cuttub to stand at the side of his throne and by degrees raised him to the confidential office of Master of the Horse

In one of the expeditions of Mohammed Ghory against the king of Khuarism Cuttuh being detached with a party of horse to procure forage was, after exhibiting many proofs of valour taken prisoner and carried before the Khuarism monarch who ordered him to be secured with iron chains. A day or two after a general engagement took place between the two armies in which the Khuarismians, being defeated, fled and left their prisoner seated on a camel, fast bound with chains. Io this situation he was retaken by some of his friends, and sent to the Sultan, who on seeing him, was much affected, and as a mark of the highest honour and regard bestowed oo him one of his own dresses.

When, in the year 588, Mohammed Ghory had taken his revenge of the princes of Ajmire and Dehly by the total defeat of their armies on the banks of the river Sursutty, he appointed Cuttub commander-in-chief of his forces in Hindoostan, with orders to prosecute his conquests in that country.

As soon as the Sultan returned to Ghizne, Cuttub commenced his operations, by the capture of Merat, a celebrated fortress in the Dooab, after which he proceeded to Dehly, and laid siege to that city. He was there opposed by a powerful army of Rajepoots but, after a bloody contest, the Hindoos were defeated, and compelled to retire within their walls. Cuttub continued to press the siege, and in a short time compelled the garrison to capitulate; by which he became master of the imperial city, which has ever since been considered as the capital of Hindoostan, although sometimes forsaken by its emperors

In the month of Ramzan, of the year 589, the tribe of Jats who were subject to the Raja of Neherwala, in Guzerat, laid siege to the fort Hansv; but the governor defending himself with great bravery, gave time for Cuttub to march to his assistance Upon the arrival of the Mohammedan army, the Jats hastily retreated, and were pursued to the confines of their own country.

The following year, Cuttub crossed the river Jumna, and took the celebrated fort of Kole (Allyghur,) in which he found 1,000 horses and much plunder. In this place he continued to reside for some time.

In the year 591 Cuttah proceeded from Dehly to meet

A. D 1194. Ghisne with an intention of subduing the countries of Cannouge and Benares Wheo they met, Cuttub presented the Sultan with a hundred Arabian horses, an elephant made of gold, and another of silver and caused his army consisting of 50,000 horse to pass in review hefore him

The Sultan was much pleased with Cuttub a conduct and, having conferred on him a dress of honour appointed him to command the first division of the army

With this division, which consisted of his own troops he totally defeated Jychund the Raja of Benares, who fell in the heat of the battle. The oumber of slain was so great, that for a loog time the body of the prince could oot be found but was at length recognised by his artificial teeth, which were fixed with wedges of gold

After this victory the Sultao proceeded to the city of Benares, and demolished nearly one thousand Hindn temples. He then laid waste this country to the boundaries of Bengal, and after securing all the elephants, treasure, and property belonging to the Raja, (great part of which was found in the fort of Assy) he returned towards Ghirne leaving Cuttub as Viceroy of Hindoostan

After some days march the Sultan sent Cuttub a letter

Saltan Mohammed adopts Cuttub

same time as a proof of his special layour

shis soe.

sent him a white elephant, one of those taken from the prince of Benares. This animal, of so un common a colour io Hindooxian, was rode constantly by Cuttub and died three days after the decease of his master. Upon the death of Mohammed Ghory, in the year 602,

Cuttub succeeds

Mohammed Ghory 'prossession of the Indian provinces,

A. D 1205 and having established Delhy as the capital of his dominions, he may be considered as the first Mohammedan king of Hindoostan.

Cuttub died at Lahore, in the year 607 His reign, properly speaking, was little more than four years, though he enjoyed all the state and dignity of the sovereign for more than twenty.

As it was during the reign of Cuttub Addeen Abiek that Bengal became subject to the Mohammedan arms, we now turn to the affairs of that province.

SECTION III.

Of the early Mohammedan Conquerors of Bengal

MOHAMMED BUKHTYAR KHULIIY

Origin of Bukhtyar Khulijy—His arrival at Dehly—Unsuccess ful application to be admitted into the Imperial aeryico—He obtains employment from one of the provincial Governors—Raises a regiment of his own Clan—Noticed by the Viceroy—Appointed to the command of an army destined to invada the province of Behar—Conquers that country—Returns to Dehly—Re appointed Governor of Behar—History of Luchmunyah the last Raja of Bengal—Bukhtyar invades Bengal—Selects the ancient City of Gour as the Capital of the two Provinces—Attempts the Conquest of Thibet—Compelled to retreat—Returns to Bengal—Despal—Ogo

The first chief who exalted the banners of Mohammed in Origina of B kh tyse Khalliy Bukhtyar Khulliy This person was an inhabitant of Ghor a city in the district of

Gurmseir on the northern boundary of Afghanistan and the tribe of Khulijy * Nature had not heen favourable to Bukb tyar in his formation he was ill favoured and of a mean

Throughout Dows History of Hindoostan this name softened into Ckeligi which renders it unintelligible to a native of the East appearance, and, amongst other deformities of his person, it is stated, that when he stood upright the end of his fingers extended considerably below his knees. When arrived at the age of manhood, he repaired to Ghizne, and offered himself as a volunteer to the officers of Mohammed Ghory, but they disgusted with his appearance, refused to enrol him amongst their levies. Disappointed in his hopes, he proceeded to Dehly, and, on his arrival in that city, made a tender of his services to the officers of Cuttub Addeen, the Viceroy, but the inspector of recruits again rejected him. Finding it impossible to obtain employment in the imperial service, he enlisted as a cavalier with Oughul Beg, one of the provincial governors in this situation, his activity, courage, and abilities, soon recommended him to the notice of his superiors, and he quickly obtained promotion.

When Mohammed Bukhtyar had acquired some celebrity in his new situation, he invited several parties of his own tribe, who were in want of employment, to accept him as their commander, and had the good fortune shortly after to be admitted with his regiment into the service of the Viceroy Having signalized himself on many arduous occasions, he

A. D 1199 was at length (about the year 596) appointed to the command of an army destined to the conquest of Behar.

In this undertaking he was again successful; for after ravaging all the country, and sacking the capital,* he

^{*} Mr Wilford states, in the 9th volume of the Asiatic Researches, that the kings of Behar or Magadha, were for many ages the sovereigns or lords-paramount of India If such was the case, their descendants must have degenerated exceedingly; for at the period of the Mohammedan invasion, the Raja returned at the end of two years loaded with plunder the whole of which he laid at the feet of the Viceroy who was so much pleased with his conduct that he conferred on him such honours as excited the envy of all his contemporaries.

The mode which the courtiers devised to get rid of an envied favourite, would be incredible in a civilized nation but as the circumstance occurred in an assemblage of illiterate soldlers who considered courage as the chief virtue we cannot refuse to give credit to the following extraordinary anecdote which is corroborated by several historians. On a public occasion when the whole court of the Viceroy were assembled, some of the nobles took an opportunity of in troducing the subject of the late conquest of Behar and of extolling the feats of hravery performed by the General they added that, such was their high opinion of his courage they were assured he would single handed, contend with and overcome a fierce elephant this being contradicted by some other person in the secret the question was at length submitted to the Viceroy and hy him proposed to Mohammed Bu...htyar who dreading the imputation of cowardice more than death, foolishly agreed to try the contest.

One of those elephants which are kept for fighting by the princes of the East, and which was then in a state of intoxication was shortly introduced into the area in front of the palace and Mohammed without making any other preparation

instead of heading his army in defence of his country and religion shamefully absconded, leaving his capital, then a celebrated seat of Hindoo learning (whence its name of Boker) so destinute that it was taken by a detachment of two hundred men who put a number of the unopposing Brahmens to the sword and plandered all the inhabitants than merely throwing off his coat and girding up his loins, advanced with a battle-axe in his hand

The elephant, which had been accustomed to contend in that place, either with one of its own species or some more ferocious animal, took little notice of its puny foe, till, urged on by its driver, it made a charge at Bukhtyar, who desterously avoided, and, at the same moment, struck the elephant with his battle-axe with such force on the trunk, that the animal screamed out and ran off. Shouts of wonder and acclamation resounded through the palace, and the Viceroy not only presented the General with large sum of money himself, but ordered all the nobles to present him with an offering of congratulation. The sum collected on this occasion was of considerable value, but the General, scorning to be thus enriched, added a sum of his own, and made a donation of the whole to the inferior servants of the court

Shortly after this transaction, Mohammed was, in the year of the Hejira 599, reappointed Governor of Behar, with orders, to extend his conquest over all the neighbouring territories

The remainder of the year 566, was occupied by Bukhtyar

Khulijy in firmly establishing his authority over the province of Behar, and making such inquiries into the state of Bengal as might facilitate the conquest of that country

Bengal was at that period ruled by a Hindoo prince, named Luchmunyah, who resided at History of Nuddeah, still a celebrated seat of Hindoo Luchmunyah, the learning, and whose history has been thus succinctly narrated by nearly a contemporary historian *

^{*} Abu Omar Menhajaddeen Giorjany, whose history, the

On the death of Luchmun the father of Luchmunyah, this prince was still unborn but as his mother who was of the royal family of the Sovereigns of India, was far advanced in her pregnancy the nobles seated her on the throne, and made their obelsance. When the princess felt the pains of labour approaching she assembled the astrologers and Brahmans, and consulted them on the probable destiny of her child.

The astrologers having attentively considered the position of the heavens declared, that if the child should be born before a particular hour his destiny would be repiete with misery but if after the time specified he should enjoy a very long reign.

The intrepid lady immediately gave positive orders to her attendants, that, without paying any attention to her feelings, or regard to her safety they should use every endeavour to postpone her delivery. The measures they adopted were rude and cruel and although their efforts were attended with success, it was at the expense of the life of the mother.

Takkai Nassers was published in the year of the Hejira 658 corresponding with A. D 1260, only fifty-eight years after the conquest of Bengal. The author had converted with many persons who assisted in the conquest of that country and he himself passed several months at the capital of Bengal.

[•] This circumstance will not be thought improbable by those who are acquainted with the little value the Hindoos set on the life of a woman and the importance of the hirth of a son In proof of the first, see Asiatic Restarches vol 1\chap. s2, and of the latter see Note 6 to Wilkins Translation of the Bhagrat Getta.

As soon as the child was born, he was laid on the throne, and the commencement of his reign dated from that instant. This prince nominally ruled Bengal for eighty years, and was distinguished for his elemency, generosity and justice.

In the 599th year of the Hejira, the Mohammedans having conquered the province of Behar and extended their ravages to the borders of Bengal, the Brahmens and astrologers waited on the Raja, and represented that their ancient books contained a prophecy that the kingdom of Bengal should be subdued by the Toorks, that they were convinced the appointed time was now arrived, and advised him to remove his wealth, family, and seat of government (then at Nuddeah) to more secure and distant part of the country, where they might be safe from any sudden incursion of their enemies.

The Raja, on hearing this representation, asked the Brahmans if their books ave any description of the person who was to be the conqueror of his dominions. They replied in the affirmative, and that the description exactly corresponded with the person of the Mohammedan General, then in Behar

The Raja, being far advanaed in the years, and partial to his capital would not listen to their advice, and took no measure to avoid the danger. But the nobles and principal inhabitants sent away their property and families, either to the province of Jagernaut, situated on the sea side, or to the northeast bank of the Ganges

In the year 600, Mohammed Bukhtyar Khulijy, having acquired sufficient information of the unguarded state of Bengal, secretly assembled his troops, and marching from Behar, proceeded with such expedition towards Nuddeah, that his approach was not even suspected.

On bis arrival in the vicinity of the city he concealed his troops in a wood and accompanied by only seventeen horsemen entered the city On passing the guards, he informed them that he was an envoy going to pay his respects to their master

He was thus permitted to approach the palace and having passed the gates, he and his party drew their swords, and commenced a slaughter of the royal attendants.

The Raja, Luchmunyah who was then seated at dinner alarmed by the cries of his people made his escape from the palace by a private door and getting on board a small hoat, rowed with the utmost expedition down the river

The remainder of the Mohammedan troops now advanced and having slaughtered a number of the Hindoos, took possession of the city and palace. Soon as this intelligence was conveyed to the Raja, he became overwhelmed with affiletion and resolving to dedicate the remainder of his life to religion he continued his journey to Jagernaut, and had the consolation of dying soon after in the vicinity of the sacred temple.

After the flight of the Raja, Bhkhtyar gave up the city to he plundered by the troops reserving for himself only the elephants and public stores He then proceeded without opposi tion to Luknowty and established the ancient city of Gonr *

The following extract from Major Rennell's Memoir of a Map of Hindoostan, gives the best modern account of the city of Gour that is to be found in print

Gour called also Lucknouti, the ancient capital of Bengal and supposed to be the Gengia regia of Ptolemy stood on the left hank of the Ganges about twenty fire miles as the capital of his dominions. As a necessary part of. this ceremony, he destroyed a number of Hindoo temples.

below Rajemal It was the capital of Bengal 730 years before Christ, and was repaired and beautified by Homayoon, who gave it the name of Jennuteabad, which name part of the circar, in which it was situated, still bears. According to Ferishta's account, the unwholesomeness of its air occasioned it to be deserted soon after and the seat of government was removed to Tanda, or Tanrah, a few miles higher up the river.

"No part of the site of ancient Gour is nearer to the present bank of the Ganges than four miles and a half, and some parts of it, which were originally washed by that river. are now twelve miles from it. However, a small stream, that communicates with the Ganges now runs by its west side, and is navigable during the rainy season. On the east side, and in some places within two miles, it has the Mahanada river, which is always navigable, and communicates also with the Ganges.

"Taking the extent of the ruins of Gour at the most, reasonable calculation, it is not less than fifteen miles in length (extending along the old bank of the Ganges), and from two to three in breadth Several villages stand on part of its site, the remainder is either covered with thick forests, the habitations of tigers and other beasts of prey, or become arable land, whose soil is chiefly composed of brick-dust. The principal ruins are, a mosque lined with black marble. elaborately wrought, and two gates of the citadel, which are strickingly grand and lofty. These fabricks, and some few others, appear to owe their duration to the nature of their

and with their materials erected mosques, colleges and

Although elated by success, and absolute master of an extensive dominion he did not assume to himself indepen dominion to attain the coin with the name of the Sultan of Ghnr and sent a great portion of the elephants and treasures to Cuttub Addeen the Viceroy at Deliy

In the course of a year Mohammed Bukhtyar having completely subdued Bengal, and stationed garrivons in all the strong places was solved with the mad ambition of adding the materials, which are less marketable, and more difficult to separate than those of the ordinary brick hulldings, which have been and continue to be, an article of merchandize and are transported to Morshedsbad Maulda, and other places, for the purpose of building. These bricks are of the most solld texture of any I ever saw and have preserved the sharpness of their edges and smoothness of their surfaces, through a series of ages. The situation of Gour was highly convenient for the capital of Bengal and Behar as united under one government being nearly centrical with respect to the populous parts of those provinces and near the function of the principal rivers that compose that extraordinary inland navigation, for which those provinces are famed and moreover secured by the Ganges and other rivers, on the only quarter from which Bengal has any cause for apprehension.

In consequence of this conduct, which was imitated by his successors many Hindoo Figures and Inscriptions are to be found to the rules of these Mesques.

Bhakhtyar attempts the Conquest of Thibet

Bhakhtyar attempts the Conquest of Thibet

Bhakhtyar attempts the Conquest of Conquest of Thibet

Bhakhtyar attempts the Conquest of Conquest o towards the ridge of mountains which separates India from Tartary and China.

These mountains were inhabited by three distinct tribes, called Koonch, Mikeh, and Neharu. These people have all Tartar countenances, and speak a language between Hindy and Thibetan.

Mohammed Bukhtyar had the merit of converting one of the Chiefs of the tribe of Koonch to the Mussulman faith, to whom he gave the name of Aly Miekh. This person undertook to be his guide and director on this expedition. He first led the army to a city named Burdehun, or Murdehun, under the walls of which ran a very large river, called Bungmutty, three times, as broad as the Ganges. This river falls into the Indian Sea, which is called in the Hindy language, Sumundur For ten days they proceeded upward, along the banks of this river, till they entered the narrow defiles of the mountains, and came to a stone bridge consisting of twenty two arches, over which the army crossed.

As the pessession of this bridge was of the utmost consequence, to secure a safe retreat, Mohammed Bukhtyar took the precaution of leaving a strong party to guard it, under the command of two officers, one of whom was of his own tribe, but the other a Toork

When the Raja of Kamroop was informed that the army had crossed the bridge, he sent an envoy to Mohammed Bukhtyar, to solicit his friendship and offering, if he would postpone the expedition for another year, he would, at the expiration of that period join him with all his forces, and lead him hy an easy route, into Thibet.

Mohammed being either anxious to finish his undertaking or giving little credit to the promises of the Rus, declined his offer and proceeded for fifteen days through narrow valleys and over lofty mountains, till at length the army entered an extensive plain of Thibet, well cultivated and inhabited. They shortly after came to a well fortified town the inhabitants of which opposed them courageousiv and billed a comber of the Mussilmans.

The armour of these people was entirely composed of hamboos, sewed or tied together with raw slik. With such materials they very logeniously formed not only shields hreast plates, and cuishes, but even helmets. Their offensive weapons were long spears and large hows and arrows

After a hard day's contest, the Mussulman forces were obliged to retire to their camp without any other fruit of victory than a few prisoners from whom they learned that, or the distance of fifteen miles, there was a very large and atmostly fortified city called Kurmputtun which was inhabited hy Brahmans and Bootaneers that their prince was a Christian but that he had in his service an innomerable army of brave Tartars well versed in the use of the bow and spear that a thousand or tifteen hundred horses were daily sold lo its market and that the species of horse called Tanyan or Tangan, well known in Bengsi was brought from

[.] Menhaisddeen the author of the Tab'at Agrees asserts that, to the year 642 of the Hejira, he visited at Deocote in Bengal Mustmid Addowled one of the officers who attended Bukhtyar oo this ex ed tion and that he learned the facts from him univer

thence—that, on the first appearance of the Mussulmans, an express had been sent off to the city, and that, without doubt, a powerful force would arrive from thence early next morning

This intelligence very much alarmed Mohammed Bukhtyar, whose army was considerably reduced by fatigve and battle. He therefore called a council of war, in which it was resolved that they should immediately retire, and return at a more favourable opportunity, with a greater force

Two hours before day, the Mussulmans silently commenced their retreat, but as soon as the inhabitants of the country were aware of their intentions, they set fire to all the forage and grain which was on their route, and threw various obstacles in their way. At length, after suffering the greatest hardships, the Mussulmans arrived, on the fifteenth day, at the banks of the river which they had crossed but how great was the disappointment of Mohammed Buktyar, to find that the officers, to whom he had entrusted the defence of the bridge, having quarrelled with each other, had abandoned their post, and that the insidious Raja of Kamroop,* now

The boundaries of Kamroop are very indefinitely described The name is applied by Mohammedan writers to all the countries between Bengal and Thibet, from the river Cunduck on the west to the Burhampooter on the east. The crossing of so large a river determines the country invaded to have been South Assam, although the account of the Tanyan horses might lead us to suppose it was Bootan Doctor Wade we learn that Kamroop was formerly a very extensive kingdom, and that its capital was the present town of Rangamutty, in the N. E. corner of Bengal — See Asiatic Annual Register, 1805.

taking advantage of the distresses of the Mussalmans, had combined with the enemies to cut off his retreat, and had in consequence broken down two of the arches of the bridge

In this dilemma, Mnhammed ordered his troops to take possession of a large Hindoo temple, which was in the vicinity and which contained many massy idols of gaid and silver; whilst a party were employed in cutting dnwn wood and bamboos to form ratts for crossing the river During this time the Raja of Kamroop having collected a large army, surrounded the Mussulmans but knowing that his troops could not withstand the close attack of their invaders he ordered them to construct a line of circumvallation, composed of stakes interwoven with bamboos, at a consider able distance round the temple and thus to starve their conemies to death.

When the Mussilmans saw this wall rising on all sides of them they called out to their Commander 'If we remain longer here, we shall all be caught in the net of these infidels. So saying they made a sudden charge upon the Hindoos, and cut their way through the unfinished stockade, they then retreated to the banks of the river and each man employed himself in devising some means of getting over whilst the Hindoos annoyed them from a distance with their arrows

One of the troopers having ridden some way up the banks of the river discovered a place which for discovered, and he as first distance was fordable. The army discovered discovered and supposing that the ford discovered and supposing that the ford rushed after him nor did they discover their mistake till too late. The majority of them were carried away by the rapidity of the current, and found a watery grave whilst the General, and a small number of the best-mounted soldiers. with much difficulty reached the opposite side.

When Mohammed Bukhtyar had reached Koonch (probably Cooch Beyhar) he was hospitably received by the inhabitants and especially the relation of Aly Miekh, who endeavoured to alleviate his wants, and to mitigate his sorrows, but melancholy and disappointment overwhelmed him, and a few days after his arrival at Deocote in Bengal, he sunk under the pressure of his calamities, amidst the execration and durses of the orphans and widows of the soldiers who had fallen a sacrifice to his insatiable tambition.

His remains were carried to Behar, and A. D. 1205-6 there buried. These events happened in the year of the Hejira 602.

Aly Murdan Khuliy, governor of Barsool, who will hereafter be noticed in this history, was suspected of having shortened the days of Mohammed Bukhtyar, by stabbing him while he lay in a state of stupefaction, but as there does not appear to have been sufficient inducement for so foul a deed, story may, with probability, be imputed to the machinations of his rivals, or to the sanguinary character which he afterwards evinced.

MOHAM WED SHERAN AZA ADDEEN

Orgin of Mohammed Sheran—Promoted by Mohammed Bukhtyar to the command of his army—Elected Governor of Luck nowly (Gour) after the death of Bukhtyar under the title of Aza Addeen—Excites the jealousy of the Emperor who sends an army against him—Defeated, and loiled in a queriel of the Khulijy Chlefs.

Mohammed Sheran was a person of good family of the tribe of Khuliiv and had given many proofs of activity and valour It is related that, after the Mussulman forces had staken possession of the city of Nuddeh, and troops were occupied in collecting the spoil from all the neighbouring villages Mohammed Sheran was for three days absent, without any person knowing what was become of him As Mohammed Bukhtyar esteemed him one of his best officers he much regretted his loss and sent a number of people to search for his body. Some of these entering a wood, discovered Mohammed Sheran, mounted on horseback, with his mear in his hand, driving before him a hody of thirty wat elephants belonging to the Raja, the drivers of whom were endeavouring to carry them off but had been compelled by this indefatigable officer to return towards the city. This act of hravery raised him high in the opinion of Mohammed Bukhtyar he promoted him to the command of his army and when he set out on his unfortunate expedition he left Sheran at Lucknowty as his Deputy in the government,

When Mohammed Sherard was informed of the death of his master he marched with the troops under his command to Deocote with an intention of seizing Aly Murdan, who was strongly suspected of having murdered the late Governor, but that Chief, alarmed at his approach fled to his government of Barsool, where he made some resistance he was however at length taken prisoner, and consigned to the charge of Baba Ispahany Cutwall After this event, Mohammed Sheran returned to Lucknowty, where all the Mussulman commanders being assembled, they unanimously elected him to be their Chief, on condition of each receiving a certain district or feod, for the support of their troops. On this occasion Mohammed Sheran assumed the ensigns of royalty, and took the title of Aza Addeen

In the meantime, Aly Murdan, having bribed the Cutwall* in whose charge he had been left, made his escape to Delhy, where he informed Cuttub Addeen, who had just then assumed the title of Emperor of Hindoostan, of the state of affairs in Bengal

The Emperor, jealous of his authority having been thus slighted, ordered Kemar Roumy, Governor of Oude to proceed to Bengal, and to make a new division of the district amongst the Khulijy Chiefs He was also directed to establish in that country an imperial Dewan, to receive the royal proportion of the revenues

On the approach of the Imperial army, one of the Khulijy Chiefs, named Hissan Adden Avuz, to whose lot had fallen the district of Gungowtry, or Kuthoury, joined the royal standard, and was confirmed in the government of Deocote; but the other Chiefs, disdaining submission, opposed Kemar Roumy they were however defeated, and fled towards Cooch Beyhar, where, quarrelling amongst themselves. Mohammed Sheran fell by one of their swords

^{*} An officer somewhat similar to the Mayor or chief magistrate of a town

After this events, Kemar Roumy pardoning the remaining Chiefs, made a new division of the country amongst them sud having appointed au officer to receive the Imperial portion of the revenues returned to bis own government

ALY MURDAN KHULIIY ALA ADDEEN

Aly Murdan graciously received at Dehly—Accompanies Cut tub Addeon in his Excedition to Ghizu—Appointed the Emperor's Viceroy in Bengal—Rejects the authory of the Court of Dehly on the death of the Emperor—Procla med King of Bengal—Becomes vain and capricious—Assassinated by his Nobles.

Aly Murdan Khnllly who was suspected of the murder of Mohammed Bukhtyar was a man of great activity courage and resolution and on making his escape from Bengai was graciously received at the Court of Debiy where he arrived just as the Emperor Cuttub Addeen was setting out for Ghizne. He immediately offered his services to attend the royal stirrup and his request having been complied with, he in a short time instituated himself so much into the good graces of the Sultan that he became one of his greatest favourities.

Although Cuttub Addeen was at first succeasiui in driving away his rival Eldoze, and in gaining possession of the city of Gbizne be was finally obliged to relinquish it, and to

A, D 1210 retire to Lahore where as has been before related, he died in the year of the Heilra 607 During the expedition to Ghizne, Aly Murdan

^{*} See History of Hindoostan, A. H. 602

was taken prisoner, and carried into the presence of Eldoze, who so far gave him his liberty, as to permit him to attend him while hunting. The recompense which he made for this act of condescension, was an offer to imbrue his hands in the blood of that prince, but his overture having been rejected, he was sent back to Cuttub Addeen, with whom he returned to Lahore, and, about the year 605, was appointed to be that Emperor's Viceroy in Bengal. In obedience to the royal mandate, Hissam Addeen Avuz, and the other Khulijy Chiefs, met the new Viceroy on the banks of the river Coosa, thence they carried him to Deocote, and placed him on the Musnud Shortly after, he proceeded to Lucknowty (Gour), and obtained the undisputed control of the kingdom.

Upon the death of Sultan Cuttub Addeen, in 607, Murdan rejected the authority of the Court of Dehly, and, assuming the white umbrella and other ensigns of royalty, caused himself to be proclaimed King of Bengal, under the title of Sultan Ala Addeen

Previous to this event Aly Murdan had been esteemed a vigilant and brave officer, but his head now became turned with vanity. On his public court days he used to talk of the Kings of Persia, Khorassan, and Dehly, as his inferiors, and went so far as to bestow provinces of their dominions on his menial servants

It is related, that one day a merchant complained to the new king, of having lost all his property by shipwreck or some other accident. The king asked of what country he was, and when informed that he was a Persian, he desired his minister immediately to draw out a patent, constituting the merchant Governor of Ispahan. The minister, not daring to say that Ispahan was the property of another monarch, retired to an adjoining apartment, under pretence of preparing the patent, but soon after returned, and represented to his majesty that the merchant was truely grateful for the favour conferred but that, it was requisite he should be attended by a proper escort of troops, and should enter on his government in a dignified style, he begged to be further assisted with a sum of money for the purpose of purchasing horses and equipments. Aly Murdan felt himself outwitted but rather than lower his dignity he ordered a large sum to be given to the fellow ludicrous actions it might have been excused by his subjects though very offensive to the neighbouring monarchs but he extended the hand of rapine and murder not only to the Hindoos but unjustly put several of the Khulijv nobles to death. Their patience heing at length A. D. 1212. exhausted they assassinated him in the second year of his impolite reign and the booth year of the Hejira.

Had the conduct of this king been restricted to such

HISSAM ADDEEN AVUZ GHYAS ADDEEN.

His Origin—Entertains two Derveishes, who predict his future greatness—Accompanies Mohammed Bukhtyar into Bengal, and promoted to the government of Gungowtry—Elected to the Musnud of Bengal—improves the City of Lucknowty—Makes tributary the neighbouring Rajas—Offends the Court of Dehly—Prevents the Emperor's army from passing the Ganges—Makes peace with the Emperor—Drives the Royal troops from Behar—His territory again invaded by the Emperor's army—Slain, after many proofs of valour.

After the assassination at Aly Murdan, the Khulijy Chiefs raised to the throne Hissam Addeen Avuz, a nobleman who had given frequent proofs of his abilities and valour, and who was highly esteemed by all parties

This Chief was descended of a good family, who resided at Ghor in Persia. When he arrived at Origin of Hissam the age of manhood he travelled towards Addeen. Toorkistan, in order to improve his fortune, and one day, having climbed an hill called Pooshteh Afroz he there found two Derveishes, who putting their trust in Providence, travelled through the world without any worldly care, or attention to their own wants. After the customary salutation, the Derveishes asked him if he had any provision with him. He replied that he immediately opening his stores, gave them several cakes of bread, and some savoury meats. While they were eating, he procured them water to drink, and during the continuance of the meal, he respectfully attended them as a servant. When they had finished, they returned him thanks, and told him that he must immediately proceed to India, where there was a kingdom allotted for him.

Hissam Addeen, feeling a confidence in their prediction was much rejniced at this intelligence, and immediately turned his steps towards Hindoostan. On his arrival there he was admitted into the service of his countryman, Minhammed Bukhtyar whom he accompanied into Bengal, where he equickly obtained promitting and, at the time of his master. It death, was Governor of Gungowtry

On his election to the Musmud of Bengal, he assumed the title of Ghyas Addeen, and, having of Lucknowty (Gour) he took much pains, and expended large sums of money in improving that city He hullt there a superh mosque a college, and a caravansery and as the country in the vicinity of Gour was subject to innundations he constructed causeways, extending on one side to Naghore in Beerbhoom and on the other side to Deocote, heling ten days journey which enabled the inhabitants to travel with convenience at all times of the year over a tract which had been considered nearly impassable during the season of the rains.*

^{*} Culonei Colebrook, late Surveyor-general of Bengal was of upinion, that the Ganges formerly ran under the walls of Gour although its present bed is three miles distant from the rnins * hat the fullowing description of that city written on the spot by Menhajadden, author of the 'Tahkat Nassery A D 1243 4 proves that the Ganges ran through the middle of it, and that the city or citadel, was on the western side of the river which confirms Mr Wilfords † supposition respecting

[·] See Ashtic Researches, Val. vil. p 50 8vo edition

⁺ I hid Vol ▼ p 272

This prince was a liberal encourager of the arts and literature. Many of the stately edifices of Gour were erected by him, and he bestowed ample pensions upon the learned and devout. He also distributed justice with great impartiality, making no distinction between the rich and the poor, the Mohammedan and the Hindoo

His time, however, was not occupied solely by these acts of peace. He carried his arms into the territories of the Rajas of Kamroop, Tirhoot, and Jagernaut, which had never been before subdued by the Mohammedan arms, and compelled them to pay him tribute.

For ten years he reigned with great prosperity, but having neglected to send presents to the court of Dehly, the Emperor Altumsh son-in-law of Cuttub Addeen, in the year of the Hejira 622, marched from Dehly, and without opposition, took possession of Behar but Ghyas Addeen, having secured all the boats.

the course of the Ganges. "The writer of this work arrived at Lucknowty in the year 641, and visited all the religious buildings erected by that prince (Hissam Addeen Avuz). Lucknowty consists of two wings, one on each side of the Ganges the western side is called Dal, and the city of Lucknowty is on that side From Lucknowty to Naghore (in Beerbhoom), and, on the other side, to Deocote, a mound or causeway is formed, the distance of ten days' journey, which in the rainy season prevents the waters from overflowing the lands and if this mound did not exist, there would be no other mode of travelling, nor of visiting the edifices in the neighbourhood, but in boats Since his time, in consequence of the construction of the causeway, the road is open to every body."

prevented the royal army from crossing the Ganges, and, by the mediation of some friends, the Emperor at length agreed to make peace, and let him retain the government of Bengal on the following conditions—that the money should in future be stampt, and the Khathe (proclamation) read in the name of Altumsh and that Ghyas Addeen should present the Emperor with thirty-eight elephants and a large sum of money and send annually a tribute to Dehly These terms having been ratified the Emperor returned towards Dehly previously appointing a nobleman, named Mulk Ala Addeen to he Governor of Behar but scarcely had he arrived in his capital before Ghyas Addeen crossed the river dispossessed the new Governor and drove the royal troops out of the district of Behar

The Emperor was highly irritated at this conduct and having assembled a numerous army in Oude under the command of his son Nasir Addeen, he ordered that prince to proceed to and subdue Bengal Nasir

A. D 1227 Addeen marched from Onde in the year 624 at a time when Ghyas Addeen was employed in suhdu lng some of the Raja in the eastern parts of Bengal in consequence of which the young prince obtained possession of Lucknowty without opposition. But as soon as Ghyas Addeen had received intelligence of the invasion he hastened to meet his opponents. He conrageously attacked them in the neigh bourhood of the cupital and, after exhibiting many proofs of valour fell with many of his chiefs either on the field of battle or immediately after by the hands of the executioner.

This prince reigned twelve years and with such reputation that even the Emperor Altumsh always spoke of him with the highest respect, saying that he well deserved the title of Sullan and the epithet of Supporter of the Faith

THE PRINCE NASIR ADDEEN.

On the death of Ghyas Addeen, the young prince took possession of Bengal and Behar, in the name of Emperor, and having sent the family of the deceased and the plunder of Lucknowty to Dehly, was appointed Viceroy of those provinces, with permission to use the red umbrella, and other insignia of royalty. He is said to have ruled with great Justice for nearly five years, and died at Lucknowty in the year 626. Upon this event, the Khulijy Chiefs revolted, and for some time threw the affairs of Bengal into confusion, but the Emperor Altumsh having marched from Dehly on the news of his son's death, entered Bengal early in 627, and, after defeating the rebels, appointed Mulk Ala Addeen to the government

MULK ALA ADDEEN, AND SIEF ADDEEN TOORK.

The former of these Nobles, after having held the government of Bengal for four years, was succeeded by Sief

A D 1237

Addeen Toork, who, at the end of three years, died by poison (A H 634)

AZA ADDEEN FOGHAN KHAN

Origin of Toghan Khan-Promoted to the Government of Bengal-Invades Tirhoct-Sexes the Prevince of Kurah Manik-pore-His unsuccessful attack on Ketasum-The Orissans besirge him in Gour-Timour Khan et to his assistance-Superseded by Timour-Retirea with his property to Debly-Appointed Governor of Oude-Dies.

Toghan Khan was born in the district of Khota in Tartary He was handsome in his person and possessed of every amiable quality Whilst a youth, he was purchased by the Emperor Altumah who for several

- the Emperor Altuman was for several years employed bim in confidential situations in the royal household, and in the year 630 appointed him to the government of Budaon (now Robilcund)
- Having distinguished bimself lo this situation be was promoted to Behar and on the death of Sief Addeen Toork, in 634, was rewarded with the important government of Bengal

When Sultan Rexia, daughter of the Emperor Altumsh ascended the throne of Dehly in the end of the year 634. Toghan khan sent an eloquent agent, with valuable presents to Court, and by these means was not only confirmed in his government, but was also promoted to the highest rank of nobility with permission to use the red umbrella, as the representative of the Empress.

In order to signalize himself in his new situation the Governor led his army into Tirhoot and having compelled the Rsjs to pay him a large sum of money returned in triumph to Gour

During the early part of the impotent reign of the Emperor Musacod, Toghan khan, finding that all the other Omrahs were extending their authority to the annihilation of the Imperial dignity, resolved to add the province of Kurrah Manikpore to his dominions. With this intention he marched from Gour, and having effected his purpose without any opposition, remained in the city of Kurrah for a considerable time During his residence there, in 640, he was joined by Menhaj Serage Addeen Giorjany, author of the Tabkat Nassery, with whom he shortly after returned to Bengal

In the year 641, the Raja of Jagepore (Orissa) having given some cause of offence, Toghan Khan marched, in the month of Shual, to Ketasun, on the frontier of Jagepore, where he found the army of the Raja had thrown up entrenchments to oppose him

On Saturday the 6th of Zykad, the Mohammedans drew up in order of battle, and, having made a vigorous attack on the entrenchments of the enemy, succeeded in taking two of the lines, but there being still a third and the troops fatigued and oppressed with heat, Toghan Khan allowed them to halt and refresh themselves. In the mean time, a small party of the Hindoo cavalry getting into his rear, seized upon the elephants, and began to plunder the camp. On seeing this, the Mohammedans retreated in great disorder, and being warmly pursued by their enemies, numbers of them were slain, and all their baggage and elephants seized by the enemy. Toghan Khan was therefore compelled to return with ignominy to Lucknowty, whence he sent a special messenger to solicit assistance from the Emperor.

The Raja being encouraged by this success, invaded Bengal; and in the month of Shual of the following year, 642, the Orissa army which was accompanied by a number of war elephants, laid siege to the city of Gour, but were vigorously opposed by Toghan Khan Another party of the Orissians made an attack upon Naghore the capital of Beerbboom, the defence of which had been entrusted to Kureem Addeen, who with a great number of his followers fell in the contest, and the town was plundered by the enemy

In the mean-time, the army of Oude under the command of Timour Khan Keran, which had been ordered by the Emperor to the assistance of Toghan Khan, approached Lucknowty, When intelligence of this event reached the Orissians, they were alarmed and retreated with their plunder to their own country.

When Timour Khan arrived at I acknowly being either irritated at the Hindoos having escaped with their plunder or capivated by the appearance of the rich country through which he had passed, be affirmed that his commission from the Court superseded Toghan Khan in the government and demanded possession of the city of Lucknowly. This claim was resisted by the Governor and an appeal to arms was the result. From the dawn of day till the sun had nearly attained the meridian, the inhabitants of Bengal were amused by the view of two Mahomedan armies opposed to each other but by the interference of Menhajaddeen, and other mutual friends of the Chiefs the combatants were at length separanted and encb party returned to their respective camps. That of Toghan khan being close to the gate of the city most of his men went into the town either to their families, or to procure provisions, leaving their Chief nearly alone.

[•] The national varity of Ferisbiah has induced him to convert the attack of the humble Orisslans into an invasion of Tartars, part of the immense host of Jengblez Khan who about that period were approaching India.—See Hintery of Hindesitan pol. 1, p. 179;

Timour Khan The spies of Timour having brought him intelligence of the situation of his rival, he immediately headed his cavalry, and rushed towards the tent of Toghan Khan

The latter had barely time to vault on his horse, and to take refuge within the city walls. This event occurred on Saturday, the 5th of Zykab, 642

After this, by the intervention of Menhajaddeen Giorjany, and some other friends, it was agreed that Toghan should be allowed to take away with him all his treasure, elephants, and other property, and that Timour Khan should continue as Governor of Bengal

Toghan was favourably received at the Court of Dehly, and was soon after appointed Governor of Oude, in which situation he died in the year 644

TIMOUR KHAN KERAN.

Timour Khan was a native of Kipohak (north of the Caspian Sea,) and was purchased by Sultan Altumsh for 50,000 Rytet Being a youth of great calmliness and bravery, he was speedily promoted to various offices of importance, and was at length entrusted with the government of Oude, whence, as has been before related, he proceeded to Bengal, which country he governed with great prudence

A D 1246 for two years, and died at Gour in the year 644, on the same night that his predecessor, Toghan Khan, died in the city of Oude His remains were,

by his own desire carried to Oude and were buried close to those of his rival

SIEF ADDEEN YUGAN THAT

Originally a Torkish slave, succeeded to the government of Bengal, and reigned with considerable reputation for seven years. He died at

A. D 1853.

Gour in the year 651

IKHTYAR ADDEEN TOGHRIL KHAN MULK YUZBEK

His Ongin—Intriguing disposition—Confinement—Raised to the Government of Bengal—Invades Orasa, without success— Invades the Raja of Armurdun and obtains much plunder— Arms at independence—Unsuccessful Expedition against Oude— Invades the Raja of Kamroop and plunders his capital—Defeat ed in his retreat from Kamroop and taken prisoner—Dies.

This Chief was also one of the Tartar slaves of the Emperor Aliumsh and having been by degrees promoted to an important command in the army joined the rebels who, in the year 634 deposed Ferose, the son of his master and exalted the Sultan Rizia to the throne, but three years afterwards he turned his arms against the Princess, and became a favourite with the emperor Byram Shah His intriguing disposition, however having rendered him suspected two months before the tragical death of that emperor which occurred in the end of the year 639, he was select and confined; but upon the accession of the Musacood he obtained his release. Under the reign of that emperor, he obtained first the government of Tiberhind, and subsequently that of Lahore. In this situation he evinced a refractory spirit, and was recalled to Dehly, but was pardoned at the intercession of his friends. He was subsequently intrusted with the government of Caunouge, and after wards with that of Oudh, whence, on the death of Sief-Addeen Yugan Tunt, (A, H 651) he was transferred to

A D 1253

Bengal

The first act of his government was the assembling of an army, to revenge the disgrace which the Unsuccessful expedition against the Orissians Mohammedan arms had sustained, in the year 641, from the Raja of Jagepore (Orissa), as has been before related. He accordingly invaded the dominions of that prince, and was victorious in two battles; but in the third was completely defeated, and lost all his elephants, among which was a white one esteemed a great curiosity.

In the following year he invaded the territories of the Raja of Azmurdan,* and took the capital of that prince, with all his treasure and elephants. After overrunning that country for some months he returned, loaded with plunder and captives, to Lucknowty

The success of his late expedition, and the distracted state of the empire of Dehly, inflamed the Gowernor with the ambition of independence. he accordingly assumed not only the red and black, but the white umbrella and took upon himself the title of Mogies Addeen Shortly after, assembled a numerous

^{*} Probably Silhet in which there is still a large town, called Azmurgunge.

army, and proceeded to Outh Here he was opposed by the Governor of that district and it being rumonred that the Emperor was marching in person against him he made a speedy and disgraceful retreat to Bengal

This rebellion of Mulk Yusbek against his legitimate Sovereign rendered him contemptible in the eyes of all man kind, nor did his all actions go unrequited, as will subsequently appear

In the beginning of the year 655, he assembled his army
Mulk Yuzbek invides Kamroop
A. D 1255-7

Kamroop
That Chief, finding bimself

unable to oppose the Mohammedans retreated into the mountains and his capital was taken possession of by the invaders who found therein immense wealth Mulk Yuzhek ordered a mozque to he built and after the accustomery prayers and thanksgiving for the success of the Mohammedan arms, had been read he was proclaimed Sovereign of the United Kingdoms of Bengal and Kanroop

During this time the Raja sent an ambassador to Mulk Yuzbek offering on condition of his retiring not only to pay him a large tribute of money and elephants but also to stamp the coin in his name. These offers were rejected by Mulk Yuzbek with disdain, but he had shortly occasion to repent his temerity for the Hindoos having taken possession of the roads cut off all the supplies of grain and as soon as the rainy season set in cut the banks of the rivers and overflowed all low country. In this dilemma the invaders attempted to retreat accross the mountains but lost their road and suffered the greatest distress. At length the Hindoos, having completely surrounded them in a defile, galled them severely with their arrows. Mulk Yuzbek who rode upon an elephant, being thereby rendered very conspicuous, was Defeated and mortally wounded; after which the whole of A. D. 1257 the Mohammedan army yielded themselves prisoners to the enemy Mulk Yuzbek was then carried before the Raja; and when introduced to that prince, he requested that his son, who had been with him in the battle, might be sought for, and, if alive, brought to him his request war complied with, and the youth having been found among the prisoner, was brought to his father, who embraced him, and immediately after yielded up his soul to his Maker

JELAL ADDEEN KHANY.

This event occurred in the year 656.

As soon as the death of Mulk Yuzbek was knewn at the Court of the emperor Nasır Addeen Mohammed, the ministers of the empire, judging it a favourable opportunity to recover their influence in Bengal, despatched (in the year 656) a Chief, named Jelal Addeen Khany, to take possession of that province This officer was received by the subordinate Chiefs with every mark of respect due to the Imperial authority, and permitted to assume the reins of government without any opposition. Jalal Addeen, after settling the business in the neighbourhood of Lucknowty, was induced to lead his army into the eastern part of Bengal, to reduce some of the independent Rajas to obedience; but while thus employed, his government was invaded from a quarter whence he could least have suspected it: for Irsilan Khan, the Imperial Governor of Kurrah, having been intrusted with the command of an army to subdue the Raja of Callinger in Bundelcund suddenly turned his footsteps towards Bengal and after a siege of a few days, got possession of Gour in a subsequent engagement he killed Jelal Addeen but in consequence of his sendieg theele phants horses, and other property of the murdered chief, as a bribe to the flagitunus minister the Virier of the contempthale Court of Dehly his conduct was overlooked.

IZA AL MULK, TAJADDEEN, IRSILAN KHAN, SUNJIR KHUARIZMY

This Chief was also one of the slaves of the Emperor Altumash, and was promoted by degrees to the principal offices of the state. He at length in the year 657 obtained the government of Kurrah with orders to subdue the countries of Callinger and Malwa but having made several marches in that direction he suddenly turned his route towards Bengal the Governor of which province being absent on an expedition to the eastward he, after a snege of three days, obtained possession of the city of Lucknowy The Governor Jelal Addeen, returning soon afterwards an engagement took place in the month of Jummad 657 between the two chiefs. The latter was slain in the contest, and the plunder of his property having been remitted to Dehls procured the confirmation of the usurper He continued to rule Bengal for two years, and died at Lucknowly

f A. D 1260.

MOHAMMED TATAR KHAN.

This chieftain was celebrated for his generosity, bravery, and virtue, and so great a favourite with the army, that on the death of his father, the Inte Governor, in 659, he took quiet possession of his office and the attention of the Emperor Nasir Addeen being at that time much occupied in defending his northern frontier against the Moghuls, it

A, D, 1265. Delhy

specie

was thought unadvisable to depose him Tatar Khan sends But when, in the year 664, the reins of rich presents to supreme authority had fallen into the able hands of Balin, the Governor of Bengal drew his neck within the circle of obedience, and despatched to Delhy a rich tribute, consisting of sixty-three elephants, great quantities of silks, muslins, &c, and a large sum in

As this event occurred in the first year of Balin's reign, the Emperor considered it an auspicious omen, and ordered the cavalcade to be introduced into the capital with great pomp The agents were received in public court, and were distinguished by dresses of honour, and a few days after received from the hands of the Emperor a commission. confirming Tatar Khan in government, to which were added several presents as a proof of the royal favour This conduct had such an effect on the mind of Tatar Khan, that he continued thenceforward a faithful vassal A D 1277 of the Court of Dehly, and died at Lucknowty in the year 676.

SULTAN MOGIES ADDEEN TOGHRIL.

Promoted to the Government of Bengal—Enforces tribute from the neighbourne Rejáz—Invades Jagenagur—Alms af modependence and proclaims himself King of Bengal—Obtains two successive victories over the Royal army—The Emperor takes the field in person and Toghril retires towards Jagenagur—Pursued by the Emperors a army—His Camp surprised—Toghril slain while ondeafourneg to escape—His Adherents and Relatives put to death—The Emperor bestows the government on Naur Addeen the youngest of his own sone.

Toghair was originally a Tartar slave, and had the good

His Origin fortune to be purchased by the Emperor Balin, with whom he became so great a favourite that, oo the government of Bengal becoming vacant, he was intrusted with that important command. Being a person of a courageous and active disposition be turned bis arms against the Rajas whose territories adjoined to the north-east of Bengal, and compelled them to pay bim tribute

In the year 678 be assembled a very ounerous army and invaded the country of Jagenagur (Tippera).

After having defeated the Rajs in a gene ral engagement, he plundered the lababitants, and brought away with him immeose wealth and one hundred elephants. At this period the Emperor Bslin was confined to his bed by sickness, and his two sons were employed in defending the northern boundaries of the kingdom

Toghril rebels against the Emperor against the Moghuls * Toghril, fired by ambition, and destitute of every principle of gratitude, deemed this a favourable opportunity to render himself independent, and having caused it to be reported that the Emperor was dead, he assumed the read umbrella and other insignia of royalty, and proclaimed himself King of Bengal, under the title of Sultan Mogies Addeen

When this intelligence reached the Court of Dehly, the Toghril twice over-comes the Royal Army Emperor was much alarmed, and though far from being well, he appeared in public, and caused it to be notified throughout all his dominions that he was perfectly recovered from his indisposition. He also wrote a letter to Toghril, upbraiding him with his ingratitude, and conjuring him to return to his allegiance but this letter not producing any effect on the mind of the traitor, the Emperor appointed Mulk Abektegien, whose title was Ameen Khan, to the government of Bengal, and placed under his command a numerous army, ordering him to proceed and expel the rebel. Abektegien marched from Oude, crossed the river Gogra, and continued his march towards Bengal. He was met on the frontier by Toghril, who having previously corrupted some of the Tartar Chiefs in the royal army, engaged the remainder, and obtained an easy victory

On receiving intelligence of this event, the Emperoe was enraged, and ordered Abektegein to be hanged at the gate of Oude, the seat of his late government. He at the same time

^{*} These were the troops of Zingis or Jenghiez Khan, 'who at the period made several incuisions into Hindoostan despatched another army nnder the command of Turmutty a Turkish officer with orders to extirpate the rebels. But this General was not more successful than his predecessor he was totally routed and lost all his baggage and the public treasure

When the news of this second defest reached the

The Emperor take the field in person against Toghril Emperor be was overwhelmed with affile too but recovering bis former energy he resolved to proceed in person against the rebel, he therefore gave orders to assum

ble a numerous army and having collected an immense fleet of boats in the rivers Jomns and Ganges, he proceeded early in the rainy season accompanied by his younger son, Bagora Khan towards Bengal

Although Toghril would bave boldly defied an army commanded by any of the nobles be durat not openly contend with bis former master and sovereign be therefore collected all his wealth and elephants, and proceeded with a chosen detachment towards Jagenagur resolving to remain there till the Emperor should return to Debly

On the arrival of the Emperor at Gour he appointed Hissam Addeeo governor of Bengal, and having halted there a few days, to make the requisite arrangements be then proceeded in pursuit of the rebel towards Jagenaçur

When the Imperial army arrived at Sunergong

[•] In Dows History Vol. 1 p 203 Jagenagur is said to have been a town in Orissa, oear Cuttack but this passage proves it to have been situated on the eastern side of the Burhampooter The Jagenagur mentioned by Ferishtal should have been written Jagepore still a town of some consequence in Cuttack. See Page 65

93

Dhinuj Rai, the Chief of that district, paid his compliments to the Emperor, and, having taken the test of allegience, undertook to guard the passage of the river against the rebel, should he endeavour to make his escape that way

The Emperor continued his march with great expedition, but for many days could obtain no information respecting Toghril He therefore ordered a detachment of 7000 horse under the command of Mulk Barik, to proceed a day's march in advance of the army and to scour the country for intelligence.

After a lapes of several days, a picquet, consisting of forty horse, belonging to the advanced guard, commanded by Mohammed Shir, fell in with some grain merchants, whose empty sacks evinced that they had lately disposed of their property. Of these Mohammed inquired if they had seen or heard aught of the rebel army. They at first pretended ignorance, but Mohammed having ordered one of them to be beheaded, the others fell on their knees, and acknowledged

Sunergong is thus described in Rennell's Memoir of the Map of Hindoostan :--

"Sunergong or Sunnergaum, was a large city, and the provincial capital of the eastern division of Bengal, before Dacca was built, but it is dwindled to a village—it is situated on one of the branches of the Burhampooter, about thirteen miles south-east from Dacca, and was famous for a manufacture of fine cotton cloths"

That Dacca is a modern city, is evinced by its not being noticed, at least under that name, in the Ayeen Akbery. See Sircer Sunergong, Vol. II. p. 288.

they had on that morning disposed of their grain in the rebel camp, which was only a few miles in front of them

Mohammed immediately despatched the merchants. under an escort, to the officer commanding the advanced guard and proceeded with his forty troopers till he came within sight of the camp and could plainly distinguish the Toghni s camp surprised, tents of Toghril and that the rebels were so completely off their guard as to-have turned their horses loose into the comfields Being fired with the ambition of seizing the rebel himself. Mohammed urged his small perty to make the attempt, they advanced in full speed, and were permitted by the unsuspicious enemy to enter the camp On their arrival at the tent of Toghril, they drew their awords and, crying out Victory to the Emperor Balin I maked forward to the tent of audience and put a number of the persons therein to death.

Toghril, on hearing the alarm supposing he was surprised hy the whole of the royal army fled in the greatest perturbation. He vaulted on a horse without a saddle, and galloped towards the river but was perceived and pursued by Malleck the brother of Mohammed who shot him with an arrow as to escape

his horse was swimming the river Togh-Toghril stain nis noise was assuming the river 10gb while eadeavouring ril immediately fell and Malleck, plung ing into the stream dragged him to the shore and cut off his head

The royal party having in the mean time put to death a. number of Toghril's principal officers, an universal panic seized the rebels and they fled on all sides. The advanced guard soon after came up and secured the encampment.

An express was immediately sent off to the Emperor with an account of the eletery which was corroborated by the head of the rebel Chief On the following day the Emperor, with the whole of the Imperial army, arrived and took possession of all the wealth and elephants. The Emperor, after glutting his avarice with the spoils of the conquered, returned towards. Gour, and on his arrival in that city, ordered a number of the adherents and relations of Toghril, including their wives and children, to be put to a cruel death. This was the first time that any of the Emperors of India had inflicted punishment on the women and children of rebels.

The Emperor some time after bestowed on his younger son the ingdom of Bengal, with the title Nasir Addeen crowned King of of Su ian Nasir Addeen (Defender of the Bengal Faith), * and conferred on him all the insignia of royalty he also admonished him never to contend with the Emperor of Dehly, but whether that throne should be occupied by a brother, a relation, or a stranger, to be always subservient to him, and to avoid opposition, by retiring to a distant part of the Country, if the Imperial standards should ever advance towards Bengal Having added some salutary rules for his conduct and

A, D, 1282 the government of his subjects, he returned towards Dehly, in the year 681

^{*} In Dow's History of Hindoostan he is called Kera, but in my Manuscripts the name is written Bagora.

SULTAN NASIR ADDREY PAGORA KHAN

Attends his Father's commands at Dehly—Returns to his government of Bengal and loves the succession to the throne of Dehly—His Son Khiekobad, made Emperor—Nasir Addeen displeased with his Son a administration proceeds with an army towards Dehly—Affectionate meeting with his Son on the Plain of Oude—Terms of Peace agreed on—The Emperor assarsinated soon after his return to Dehly—Nasir Addeen resigns the government of Bengal—Behadur Khan appointed in his stead—Bahadur's conduct displeases the Court of Dehly—Nasir Addeen re-appointed to the government of Lub, mowty—Dies.

This prince governed Bengal for several years with much reputation but his elder brother Mohammed, having been killed in a battle with the Moghuis in the A. D 1886. vicinity of Moultan, Emperor ordered him in the year 685 to proceed to Dehly and, on his arrival there thus addressed him -The sudden death of thy elder brother has bent down my aged head with sorrow to the grave and al though he has left a soo who is doubtless the legitimate heir to the throne the youth is of too tender an age to wield with effect the weighty aceptre of Hindoostan it must therefore be place ed in more able hand. You are my only prop and support Bear for the short period for which I am destined to remain in this world the yoke of dependence. Send a deputy to govern Bengal and remain near my throne ready to step intn it as soon as Fate shall call me hence "-The prince promised Implicit obedience to the will of his aged parent but several months having elapsed and the Emperor improving in his health Nasir Addeen resolved to return to Bengal and leave the Empire of Dehly for those of whom it might he destined by Providence.

Having taken this resolution, he requested permission of his father to make a short excursion for the purpose of hunting, and under this pretence quitted Dehly and proceeded directly to Gour

This step gave great offence to the Emperor; who thereon sent for Khusero the son of the prince Mohammed and declared him the heir of his kingdoms soon after which event he departed this life in the end of the year 685, and in the eightieth year of his age

Notwithstanding the legitimate claim of Khusero to the will of the deceased Emperor, the Keikobad, son of Nasir Addeen created Emperor nobles raised Kiekobad to the throne, a prince of eighteen years of age, son of Nasir Addeen, the king of Bengal This youth soon fell into all the allurements of pleasure and devoted his whole time to amusement, relinquishing to his minister Nizam Addeen, the government of his dominions

Nasir Addeen was well pleased with the elevation of his son to the throne, but when informed of his unworthy conduct, he wrote to him severely reprehending his behaviour and advising him to discard the unworthy minister. Finding, however, that his advice was of no avail he gave orders for assembling an army resolving to go in person to Dehly, and to effect a revolution. The son, also displeased with the admonition of his father, and goaded by the animosity of the minister, advanced at the head of a great force towards Bengal In the year 687 the two armies approached with in a few miles of each others, the camp of the father being on the banks of the river Sirve and that of the son on the banks of the Gogra, both in the district of Sircar Sarun part of North Behar

Nasir Addeen finding it imposible to reduce his son hy Interview of Nasir Addeen with his force made overtures of reconciliation to him but the prince at the instigation of son. his minister rejected them with disdain Three days were passed in this manner when on the fourth day Nasir Addeen wrote with his own hand the following letter — My beloved son, my desire of seeing you exceeds all bounds nor can I endure to he longer separated from you The patriarch Jacob hid not more anxiously wish to embrace his son Joseph before his death than I do you Grant me his son Joseph before his death than I do you Grant me this request, and I swear never again to disturb your reign, or to oppose your will. —When Kiekobad read his father's letter he was deeply affected and wished immediately to go unattended, to visit him but the artful minister restrained the ardour of the princes affection, by representing that it would be derogating from the dignity of the Emperor of Hindoostan to pay the first visit to an inferior prince although that person was his father

It was at length settled that a suite of the Imperial tents should be pitched in the plain of Oude between the two armies and that the king of Bengal should there pay his respects to the Emperor seated on his throne. This arrangement being made, and the astrologers having determined on an auspicious hour the son first proceeded to the tents, in great state surrounded by his guards after which the father crossed the river Sirva, and when be came in sight of the throne, made his first obeisance as be approached nearer he made a second obeisance and when he arrived at the foot of the throne was about to make the third when the prince being much affected by the humility of his father burst into tears, and, rushing into his arms, continued to embrace him for a considerable time. After this affecting scene, the father attempted to hand his son to the throne but the latter refused, and compelled his father to sit thereon, taking his place in a respectful manner below him. This meeting gave great satisfaction to all the well-disposed subjects, and for several days great rejoicings and illuminations were displayed, and alternate visits passed between the monarchs and the officers of both armies.

The terms of peace were easily agreed on. Nasir Addeen was permitted to retain Bengal, and all its dependencies, as a distinct kingdom, on condition of not interfering with the government of Dehly These events occurred in the year 687

Previous to separating, Nasir Addeen gave his son some salutary advice for the government of his dominions, and concluded by privately admonishing him to beware of his insidious minister, and to get rid of him the first favourable opportunity. Having then affectionately embraced him, they took leave of each other, and returned towards their respective capitals

Nasır Addeen was much affected on this occasion, and told his friends, on returning to his own camp, that he

The Emperor
Kiekobad assassinated, A D. 1289 feared he had on that day parted with his son and the empire of Hindoostan for ever. His fears were soon after realized, for, in the end of the following year, viz. 688, Kiekobad was

^{*} This affecting interview has been well described, in a beautiful Poem called the Keran Assædin, or Auspicious Conjunction, by Amyr Khosrou of Dehly.

assassinated and the throne of Dehly usurped by Feroze a chief of the tribe of Khulliv

Sultan Nasır Addeen was permitted to retain the king dom of Bengal during the whole of the reign of Feroze, and the earlier part of that of the Emperor Alla without molestation but when that able though cruel monarch had attained the height of his power Nasir Addeen of the Court of Bell was permitted to retain in fief the A, D 1299.

Natir Addeen resigns the king dom of Bengal.

A, D 1299.

drawing Addeen said displeasure, voluntarily laid said this umbrella and other insignia of royalty and professing himself a subject of Dehly was permitted to retain in fief the district of Lucknowty (Gour) and the south-west part of Bengal This event

south-west part of Bengal This ever occurred about the year 699

The Emperor at the same time appointed a Chief named Behadur Khan to the government of the eastern districts of Bengal, hoping by thus dividing that province into two governments to render it more subservient to the Court of Dehly than it had hitherto proved. The capital of the new government was fixed at Sunergong.

Behadur Khan retained his situation with humility during the remainder of the reign of Alla but is said after wards to have ruled with great tyranay

When, in the year 717 the dissolute prince Muhanck Shah Succeeded to the throne of Dehly

A. D 1317 Behadur despining the weakness of the Imperial connells arrogated to himself independence assuming the white umbrella, and ordering the coin to be stamped with his own name, changing the title of Behadur Khan to Behadur Shah.

^{*} See Note to p 92

In the year 724, the Emperor Tughlik, jealous of the assumed rank, and wearied by complaints of the oppressions and tyranny of Behadur Shah, marched from Dehly with a numerous army, and, on his arrival at Tirhoot, was met by Nasir Addeen, the deposed king of Bengal, who having presented the Emperor with many valuable jewels, was received with great favour,

Re-appointed Governor of Luckanowty and re-appointed to his government of Luckanowty on condition of holding it in fief from the Court of Dehly This agreement he faithfully complied with, and died in the year 725, being forty-three solar years from his first accession to the throne of Bengal, over which country he may be said to have been the first regularly constituted Mohammedan monarch, having been crowned as such by his father, the Emperor Balin, and confirmed in the possession of his kingdom by his son, the acknowledged Emperor Kiekobad.

Behadur Shah, finding himself unable to oppose the Imperial arms, submitted to the clemency of the Emperor, and was pardoned, 'on condition giving up the public treasure and elephants, and attending the Imperial stirrup to Dehly

The Emperor then appointed Tatar, with the title of Bhiram Khan, to the government of Sunergong, and having subdued Tirhoot, formed it into a distinct government, to which he appointed Ahmed Khan, and then returned to Dehly.

KUDDER KHAN

When intelligence of the death of Nasir Addeen had reached Dehly the Emperor Mohammed Shab who had just then succeeded to the throne appointed kodder Khan in the government of Lucknowty and confirmed Bhiram Khan io the government of Sunergong These two persons are said to have ruled their respective territories, for fourteen years, with much equity and propriety

Io the year 739 Bhiram Khan died at Sunergong at a period when Mohammed Shah having conquered great part of the Dekkan was busily occupied to transferring his capital from Delhy to Dowletabad. This occasioo prevented a favourable opportunity to Fakher Addeen the armour bearer of Bhiram Khan not only to assume the government of Sunergong without permission but also to declare himself an independent monarch, assuming the title of Sulan Sukunder

Wheo intelligence of this event was carried to Court the Emperor ordered Kudder Khan the governor of Lucknowty and the neighbouring Chiefs, to unite their armies and exped the rebei. In obedience to the Imperial commands kudder Khan marched from Lucknowty and in a general engagement, defeated Fakher Addeen who fled and concealed him self to the forests. The Governor took possession of Suner gong and after some time had elapsed and the rainy season had set in he allowed the subordinate Chiefs to return to their homes and dispersed the greater number of his own

^{*} See History of Hiodoostan A. D 1338

at this period a large sum of money in the treasury, which the Governor was preparing to forward to Dehly Fakher Addeen having obtained intelligence of this circumstance, sent proposals to the portion of the army remaining with the Governor, that if they would kill their master, and join him, he would distribute the whole of the treasure amongst them. His emissaries were successful the troops consented to the terms they murdered the Governor, and then proceeded to join the rebel, who immediately advanced to Sunergong, and, having taken possession of the treasure, distributed it

A D 1340. according to his promise This event occurred either in the end of the year 740, or beginning of 741.

SECTION IV

Of the Independent Rings of Bengal

FAKHER ADDEEN SULTAN SEKUNDER

FARBER ADDRESS having as we have stated in the preceding chapter, succeeded in regaining his authority caused himself to be proclaimed Sovereign of Bengal and ordered the coin to be stamped, and all public papers to be issued in his name.

The thrown of Dehly being at that period (A, H 741)

A. D 1340 41 possessed by the weak Mohammed III.

no effect was made to reduce the province to the Imperial sutbority, and as the power of the empire continued to decline Hengal remained for many years afterwards an independent and distinct kingdom in which account historians have considered Fakher Addeen as the first Mohammedan king of Bengal

The new Sultan fixed bis residence at Sunergong and sent an army under the command of his slave Mukhliss Khan to take possession of Lucknowty and the dependent districts but in this expectation he was foiled for Aly Mobarick, one of the efficers of the deceased Governor having collected some troops opposed the invaders, and killed their leader. On this event, Aly Mubarick sent a petition to the Emperor stating his success against the rebel and soliciting that he might be confirmed in the government, but without waiting for the sanction of the Emperor, he took the title of Ala Addeen, and, advancing against Fakher Addeen, in the year 743, took him prisoner, and caused him to be put to death. The reign of Fakher Addeen, if such it may be termed, was only two years and five months.

Aly Mubarick was assassinated, at the expiration of a year and five months, by his foster brother, Ilyas Khaje, or Hajy Elias, who took possession of the kingdom.

ILYAS KHAJE SULTAN SHUMS ADDEEN BHENGARA

Ilyas assumes the government of Bengal—Invades the dominions of the Raja of Jagenagur—Offends the Emperor Ferose, who invades Bengal, and takes the city of Punduq—The Emperor long and unsuccessfully besieges Ilyas in the fort of Akdala—Ilyas obtained access to the Camp of the Emperor, in the disguise of a Fakier—Makes Peace with the Emperor, who afterwards acknowledge the independence of Bengal

After the assassination of Aly Mubarick, his murderer assumed reins of government, under the lofty title of Shums Addeen, and being of a mild and generous disposition, he soon rendered himself popular both with the army and his subjects, who, in his other good qualities shortly forgot the mode by which he ascended the throne

As soon as Ilyas found himself perfectly established in his authority, he invaded the dominions of the Raja of Jagenagur (Tippera), and compelled that prince to pay a great sum of money and to give him a number of valuable elephants, with which he returned in triumph to his capital

For ten years Ilyas Khaje ruled Bengal with absolute authority and without any molestation from the Court of Dehly but in the end of the year 754

A. D 1353. the Emperor Ferose taking offence at his baving made encroachments on the province of Benares invaded Bengal with a numerous army

Lyas, not finding humself able to oppose the Emperor in the field, placed his troops in different garrisons and took post himself in the fort of Akdala * leaving his son to defend the city of Pundua (near Maldah) which for some time past he had made his capital.

The Emperor advanced to a place now called Ferosepore abad, where he pitched his camp and commenced the operations of the siege of Pundua.

The son of Ilyas, led away by the ardour of youth ventured to march out of the city and to engage the royal army but he soon paid the forfeit of his temerity his troops were defeated, and himself made prisoner after which the city surrendered.

From Fundus the Emperor proceeded to Akdala, and invested that fortress, but the place being very strong the Emperor after besleging it for twenty two days, found it requisite to change his ground of encampment for this purpose, he proceeded, with a detachment, to reconnoitre a spot on the banks of the river. Ilyas, seeing this movement, concluded the royal army were retreating, and sallied from the fort with all his garrison, but being vigorously opposed, was, after some hours, obliged to retreat, with the loss of forty-four elephants which he had brought from Jagenagur, his umbrella, and other insignia of royalty

Akdala is placed by Major Renell, in his Bengal Atlas at a short distance to the north of Dacca it is not to be found in the common maps nor have I met with any account of it.

It is related, that, during the siege of Akdala, a celebrated

Saint, named Raja Byabany who resided in that vicinity, and to whom Ilyas was much devoted, died Ilyas, wishing to pay the last duties to so revered a character, dressed himself as a Fakier, and, having come out of the fort, attended the funeral, after which he rode into the camp of the Emperor, to whom he made his obeisance, but, not being known, was allowed to depart, and returned in safety to his garrison. When the circumstance was related to his Majesty, he was very much vexed, though he could not help admiring the boldness of his adversary

The siege having been protracted to a great length and the rainy season, which in Bengal sets in with great violence and inundates the plains, drawing near, the Emperor found it requisite to make peace he therefore, upon a promise from Ilyas of an annual tribute, and some trifling presents, released the prisoners taken at Pundua, and returned to Dehly

In the year 755, Ilyas sent ambassadors, with every valuable presents, to the Emperor, by whom they were most graciously received, and afterwards dismissed with assurances of friendship.

In 757 llyas, being still suspicions of the Emperors intentions, sent other umbassadors to Debiy who, after some negotiation concluded a permanent treaty of peace by which the independence of Bengal was formally independence of Bengal was formally acknowledged, and the respective limits of each kingdom defined

In the year 759 the king of Bengal sent a number of elephants, and other valuable presents by his ambassador Tajaddeen to the Emperor who received the embassy in the most gracious manner, and in seturn ordered Sief Addeen a nobleman of distinction, to proceed as his ambassador to the Court of Bengal and to take with him number of choice Arabian and Tattar horses for the king

The Imperial ambassador proceeded as far as Behar where he received the melaneholy intelligence of the death of the king of Bengal he therefore walted in that city for inther instruction and in consequence of orders received from his Court, he divided the horses amongst the Chiefs of Behar and returned to bis master

Hyas Khaje nnder the title of Shums Addeen ruled A. D 1358.

Bengal for sixteen year and five months and died in the year 760 Amongst a people who could overlook the step by which he mounted the throne he was much respected and beloved. During bis reign, the capital of Bengal was transferred from Conr to Pundua and as he is said to have founded the etty of Hajppore, which has since given its name to a considerable district, it is probable that, previous to or during his reign the boundaries of Bengai were extended to the banks of the river Gunduk including the North Behar

SULTAN SEKUNDER SHAH.

Sekunder Shah raised to the throne—The Kingdom again invaded by the Emperor Ferose, who besieges the Fort of Akdala—The Emperor consents to a Peace, and retires—Sekunder builds a superb Mosque at Pundua—His son Ghyas Addeen excites the jealousy of his step-mother, and engages in open rebellion—Sekunder mortally wounded

Three days after the death of Ilyas Khaje, the Chiefs

Sekunder Shah mounts the throne Sekunder Shah, who commenced his reign of Bengal by a strict administration of justice, and minute attention to the welfare of his subjects.

As soon as the days of mourning were accomplished, the king prepared a splendid embassy, with valuable presents, to be sent to the Court of Delhy But when the Emperor Ferose heard of the death of Ilyas Khaje, he judged it a favourable opportunity to recover the Imperial authority over Bengal, he therefore, early in the year 761, advanced with hostile intentions towards that province, and having proceeded as far as Zufferabad, cantoned his army in that place till the expiration of the rainy season. In the mean time, he sent an ambassador, to Sukunder Shah, with offers of peace, provided he would acknowledge himself the vassal of the Empire. To these humiliating terms the king would not agree, but sent five elephants, and some costly presents, as a peace-offering

As soon as the rains had subsided, the Emperor advanced with his army as far as Pundua, and Sekunder, following the prudent example of his father, took refuge in the strong fortress of Akdala. The Imperial army in a short time surrounded Akdala but after a seige of some weeks the Emperor finding there was no probability of taking the place consented to accept a present of forty-eight elephants and a large sum of money and on the promise of a future annual tribute to withdraw from Bengal

From that period till nearly the cinse of his life, Sekunder

Sakunder orects a supert Mooq out reign and not bein; of a warilke

Ph dus
A D 1351 disposition he cultivated the arts of peace in the year 763 he commenced a superb mosque in the

In the year 763 he commenced a superb mosque in the vicinity of Pundua and judging from the restiges which are still remaining it must have cost an immense sum of money and much labour and time.

Sekunder Shah married two wives. By the first he had seventeen children, and by the second only one son. This youth who was named charged his step-mother disposition, and surpassed all his hrethern in learning and accomplishments on this account the first wife beheld him with the eye of envy and did every thing in her power to injure him in the affection of his father. One day whilst alone with the king she said in a melancholy but respectful tone that she had "something to communicate to his Majesty but, as she was sensible it would give him pain and probably excite his anger she should forbeat mentioning it, unless he would first awear not to divulge it to any person." The curiosity of the king having been thus raised, he complied with her request and commanded her to disclose the secret, though it should rend his heart. The treacherous woman repired "Since it is your positive command, I shall obey and however repugnant to my teelings, must inform your Majesty, that Ghyas Addeen not only plots against the life of my sons, but has even the audacity to talk of deposing his father—Let me advise you, as your sincere friend, to avert the mischief he intends, either by sending him to prison, or by depriving the pupils of his eyes of their visual powers, render him incapable of effecting his flagitious schemes"—It was with difficulty the king could restrain himself during the speech but when finished, he said to her, "Treacherous and subtle woman! are you not ashamed thus to evince your ingratitude to Heaven, for having bestowed on you the blessing of a numerous family," (many of whom are advanced to manhood, and are the pride of their parents,) thus to envy your partner in my bed the consolation of one only son, that thou seekest his destruction Begone! I will not hear thee more"

Although the king did not communicate the conversation he had held with his wife to Ghyas Addeen, the youth was suspicious of the machinations of his step-mother, and one

Ghyas Addeen engages in open rebellion. day, under pretence of going to hunt, he made his escape to Sunergong, and engaged in open rebellion. He was shortly enabled to collect an army, at the head of which he advanced towards Pundua' The first day he encamped at Sunarcote, and on the second day at Gualpareh The king having also advanced to meet the rebels, found them at this place. A general engagement ensued, in which, although Ghyas

^{*} In the East, from the most ancient times, women have been held in high estimation who gave birth to a number of children.

Addeen had given positive orders to the troops not to injure

The king mortally wounded but as soon as the son was informed of this untoward event, he hastened to his father s presence and taking his head in his lap shed tears of repentance and humbly besought the old man's forgiveness. The king then opened bis eyes, and said My business is finished; may your dominion be prosperous atter which his soul took its flight to the other world.

Sekundar Shah reigned somewhat more than nine years, and was killed in the year 769

A, D 1367

SHILTAN GHYAS ADDEEN

Ghyas Addeen ascends the Throns—Commands the eyes of his half brothers to be erad cated—His attention to the dus administration of the Laws—Anecdote of his three favourite accountment—and of the celebrated Poet Hoffs.

The Prince, leaving some officers to attend the hurial of his father hastened to Pundua, where he immediately mnunted the throne The first act of his government was to selze his half brothers whose eyes he ordered to be eradicated and sent to their mother.
A. D 1267

After this cruel act of self preservation (as it is considered Anecdote of the Sultan s attention to the due ad ministration of the Laws. by Oriental politicians,) Ghyas Addeen is said to have ruled with great justice and moderation in proof of which the following anecdote is related of him One day while the king was amusing himself in the practice of archery one of his arrows by chance

wounded a boy, the son of a widow The woman immediately repaired to the tribunal of the 'cazy,' Suraje-Addeen, and demanded justice The judge was confounded, and said to himself, "If I summon the king to my court, I shall run the risk of of being disobeyed, and if I pass over his transgression, I shall be one day summoned before the court of God, to answer for my neglect of duty."-After much reflection, he ordered one of the officers to go and summon the king to answer the complaint of the woman. The officer, dreading to enter abruptly the palace with such an order, considered on some means to get introduced into the presence of the king. At length, he ascended the mineret of the mosque adjoining the palace, and at an improper hour called the people to prayers. The king hearing his xoice, ordered some of his guards to bring before him the man who thus made a mockery of religion

When the officer was introduced into the royal presence, he briefly related the circumstance, , and concluded by summoning his Majesty to the cazy's tribunal. The king instantly arose, and concealing a short sword under his garment, went before the cazy, who, far from paying him any mark of respect, said to him with a tone of authority, "You have wounded the son of this, poor widow, you must therefore ammediately make her an adequate compensation, or suffer the sentence of the law." The king made a bow, and, turning to the woman, gave her such a sum of money as satisfied her after which he said, "Worthy judge, the complainant has forgiven me." The cazy/asked the woman if such was the fact, and if she was satisfied. to which the woman having assented, was dismissed. The cazy then came down from his tribunal, and made his obeisance to the king; who drawing the sword from beneath his garment, said,

"Cary in obedience to your command as the expounder of the Sacred law I came instantly to your tribunal, but if I had found that you deviated in the smallest degree from its ordinances, I swear that with this sworl I would have taken off your head! I return thanks to God that matters have thus happliy terminated, and that I have in my dominions a judge who acknowledges no authority superior to the law —The judge, taking up the scourge, said, 'I also swear by the almighty God, that if you had not complied with the injunctions; of the law this scourge should have made your back black, and hue! It has been a, day of trial for us both."—The king was much, pleased, and handsomely rewarded the upright judge.

Ghyas Addeen was of a gay and convivial disposition but, at one-period of his reign, having for sometime laboured under a severe illness, he despaired of life, and therefore made his will. In it he directed that three of his fivourite concubines, whose names were The Cryptus The Reve and The Tulip should wath his body after his decease. The king soon after recovered but the other women of the seraglio envious of the favourites conferred on these ladles the opprobrious title of Ghossaly (Washers of the dead) in consequence of which the favourites complained to the king who after musting for tometime uttered the following extemporary hemistich of a special messenger to the celebrated

Of the celebrated Poet Hafz

Was also authorized to offer the poet any terms that might induce him to proceed and reside at the court of Bengal It, is said, that, as soon as the messenger arrived in Shiraz, the poet, without having been informed of any of the circumstances, but as if by inspiration, spoke, extemporary, the other hemistich,—the sense of which is,

"Let these joyful tidings be carried to the three, charming Ghossalehs."

After which he finished the ode, still to be found in his Diwan, each verse of which terminates with the words, "My Ruvud" and in the last verse, he says,

"Hafiz! why conceal the desire that possesses you, of visiting Sultan. Ghyas Addeen it as your business to complain of the edgetance that separates you. The edge of the edge of the separates you.

But, as Hasiz was indifferent to all worldly pursuits, and was besides afraid of undertaking so long a voyage, he declined the king's generous offer.*

'Ghyas' Addeen 'was 'a fellow-student of the 'celebrated saint Cuttub ul Aalum, they both studied theology under

Hamidaddeen, the hermit of Nagore (Birbhoom) He reigned with much reputation six years and some months, and died in the year 775

See the Memoif of Hafizhan's p' 94 of the Descriptive Catalogue of Tropod Sultan's Dibrary

brid - 1 / In DEEN SULTAN, ASSULATEEN

When the soul of Ghyas Addeen had taken its flight to the other world, the nobles placed his son' Sief Addeen on the throne, with the lotty rule of king of kings. 'This prince was of a generous, courageous, and homane disposition' he disposed to the courageous, and homane disposition' he disposed to the part of his neighbours by his ambitton hat ruled Bengal peaceably and unmolested for ten years, and died

in the year 785

H n n 'd SHUMS ADDEEN IL

On the death of Sultan Assulateen, the nobles raised to the throne his adopted son, a youth of very inferior talents; who took the title of Shums Addeen the Second For little more than two years he enjoyed a tranqual reign

but at the expiration of that period Kanis the remindar of Bhetourieh, rebelled against him and the youth being unsupported by the Mohammedan Chiefs, was defeated and lost his life in the year 287

RAJA KANIS.

Immediately after the above mentioned event the zemindar, having assumed the title of Raja, advanced to Pundua, where he was greeted by the Hindoos as the restorer of their Religion and Sovereign of Bengal, hut after being seated on the throne, he found that the Mohammedans in his dominions were so numerous, and so much superior in bravery to his natural subjects, that he judged it requisite to treat them with mildness and affability he therefore allowed many of the Afghan Chiefs to retain their estates, and granted

A. D. 1392. pensions to the learned and devout of that religion. By these means he enjoyed a quiet and peaceable reign of seven years, and died in the year 794

Raja Kanis had so well ingratiated himself with the Mohammedans, that, after his death, they claimed him as one of the Faithful, and disputed with the 'Hindoos whether' his body should be buried according to their rites, or be burned on the funeral pile

During the reign of Raja Kanis, the city of Pundua was much extended and celebrated in the East, and the temples of idolatry again raised their heads'

CHIETMUL'SULTAN JELAL ADDEEN.

Some historians have related, that during the lifetime of Raja Kanis, his eldest son named Chiefmul, whilst a boy, was deprived of his caste by the celebrated Mohammedan hermit or saint, named Cuttub-ul-Aalum, throwing the betleleaf which he had chewed into the child's mouth, and bestowing on him the title of Jelal Addeen (Glory of Religion). Other writers have affirmed, that he was converted after his succession to the throne but the probability is, that he was the offspring of a Mohammedan concubine and being the eldest or only son of the Raja, the Hindoos had acquiesced in his elevation to throne, in order to prevent the cyils attending a disputed, succession, in which, success yould have been doubtful, as the prince, would, certainly, have been, aided by sall, the Mohammedans twhere numbers and bravery were very formidable.

bravery were very formidable. "It's to be be be be be be be been the cause of the prince s'abatiffoning the idolatary of the Hindood, he proved himself is bealous 'disciple of the Mossillman faith for having invited the celebrated Shalkh Zahed from Sunergong' he consulted him on all his spiritual affairs, and resigned his conscience to his direction one as much his pill felal. Addren removed again the seat of government from Runding to Gour and expended large sums of money in improving that city. The musque baths reservoir and caravanseir, distinguished by the name of Jeislly were all constructed by him. This prince ruled with great equity.

constructed by him This prince ruled with great equity

A. D 1469. reign nf eighteen years, died at Gour in the year 812

me year ora

To persons unacquainted with the history of India, it may appear extraordinary that the Sovereigns of Bengal should have remained for so many years undisturbed in their possession of that country but upon a reference to the History of, Hindoostan it will be discovered that during the period above mentioned, the empire of Dehly was torn to pieces by an ambitious aristocracy, and that the Emperor retained little more than the name. It was in such a state of affairs that the celebrated Tartar conqueror, Timour, or Tamerlane, in the year 801, invaded India,* and it is rather surprising that he should have met with any opposition, than that he should so easily have defeated the weak Mohammed the third, and his pusillanimous vizier

Company is about in publish an elegent set in Engravings of the Rulas of Gour, which will evince the farmer grandeur of the ancient city and form a valuable accompaniment in this work.

The following extract from that History will fully elucidate the subject —"During the misfortunes and confusion of the empire, the Subahs (Governors) had rendered themselves independent in their governments. Guzerat was seized upon by Azim; Malwa by Dilawer, Kannouge, Oude. Kurrah; and Joanpore, by Khoja Jehan (commonly called king of the East), Lahore, Debalpore, Moultan, by Khizer; Samana by Ghalib, Biana by Shums, Mohaba by Mohammed (the son of Mallik and grandson of the Emperor Ferose), and so on with regard to the other provinces the governors asserting their own independence, and styling themselves (Mulook) kings."

^{*} See Dow's History, commencement of Vol'II

AHMRD SHAH

Ahmod Shah succeeds to the throne. His territory invaded by Sultan Ibrahim of Joanpore—Solicits the protection of the court of Heraat—Buract from Shah Rookh a Letter prohibiting Sultan Ibrahim from molesting the King of Bengal—The Tartar Monarch sends an ambassador to the Court of Gour who is alterwards shipwrecked on the Coast of Malibar

The oldest of Jelal Addeen a sons succeeded in the year

A D 1409.

He walked in the footsteps of his father and administered jostles (to his subjects with impartiality insomuch that the followers of Mohammed and the wor shippers of idol vied in their attachment to his person.

During the reign of this prince, Sultan Ibrahim of Joan pore "1 lavaded Bengal with a numerous army, and after plundering several of the districts carried away many of the inhabitants as slaves Ahmed Shah finding himself timable to contend with so formidable an adversary whose power in fact exceeded that of the feeble representative of monarchy at Dehly sent an ambassador to Shah Rookh, the son of Timour who although residing at Herat (in Persia) was considered as the emperor of Hindoostan to solict his protection and interference.

The ambassador was received by the Tartar monarch with moch honour and on his taking leave was accompanied by Abdul Kereem Haly who was furnished with a letter to

The court of Joanpore, during the forty years reign of Sultan Ibrahim far eclipsed that of Debly and was the resort of all the learned men of the East.

Sultan Ibrahim, threatening thim with the most exemplary vengeance of he did not immediately release all the captives, and peremptorily prohibiting him from ever again molesting the king of Bengal

Sultan Ibrahim received the letter with much respect, and whether from dread of Shah Rookh's vengeance, or being constantly occupied by his contests with the neighbouring Chiefs, never afterwards invaded Bengal—As the Letter is a curious specimen of the pompous style of the East, is here subjoined.

Extract of the Emperor SHAH ROOKH'S Letter to Sultan IBRAHIM SHEREKY of Joanpore

"As soon as this mandate (to which the whole world is-"subject, and the universe obedient) shall arrive, in the space" "of one day, collect all the Mohammedan captives, and other "persons belonging to that country (Bengal), and having "delivered them over to their respective lords procure a "certificate of the fact signed and sealed by the cazies and send "it immediately to the foot of the Imperial throne... And be "assured, that if you use any? delay, or are in the smallest degree "neglectful of this order, We will issue our Imperial mandate." "to our most illustrious son Sultan Mahmood king of Cabul, "and to our Governors of Khotelan, of Ghizne, Kandahar, and "Gurmseir, to proceed (to India), and so severely punish you, "that it shall serve as an example for others. If this shall not "be sufficient, We will issue our orders to our General Ferose "Shah, to march with the armies of Khorassan, and inflict ven-"geance on you And if this shall not suffice, We will send "our mandate to our most noble son Shums Addeen Monam-"med, to advance with the troops to Arhung, Pyrai, Kund-"diz, and Bakelan, to chastise you If this shall have no effect,

"Weinvill-direct our brave and victorious son Bayestegur Behadur to march with the forces of Babul, Sary Maxinderan Tubberistan, Goricke, and Jilan and thus render you sensible of your crimes and impotence. But if you still continue to persevere in your atroctous conduct. We will command our "august son Sultan Ihrahim to move with the armies of Irac "Azerbijan, Bagdad, and the districts of Arabia to separate your "soul from its body And it they shall not be shie to effect this our purpose, We will signify our Royal will to our most beloved and victorious son Ulug Beg Goorgan to proceed "with all the squadrons of Toorkistan, and either tear you 'to pieces or hang op your hody to be caten by the crows. *

In return for this compliment the Tartar monarch despatched Molana Abdn) Rebeem as his ambassodor to the court of Gour After a residence of some months in Bengai the ambassador having been folned by Abdul Kereem Haly from Joanpur proceeded by sea towards Orman, but on their arrival oo the coast of Malibar they were shipwrecked in the vicinity of Calicut, where they were hospitably received and entertaloed by the Zamorin who io coosequence of their representation of the magnificence and power of Shah Rookh was induced to wend an envoy along with them to the court of Herat

It was to repay this compliment, that Shah Rookhi sent in the year of the Helira 846 the celebrated

AD ML Maloians Abdul Rerac to Calicut, whence he was invited to Bijenagur, of which kingdom he has given a minute and entertaining account in the Mulita Assarding †

^{*} N B The Letter is taken from Forishtah but the circumstances of the embary are confirmed in the Nation Assessment a very clogant Persian History of Shah Rookh presented to the Last India Company by General Kirkpatirck † An interesting account of this embassy may be found be to the Assual Asiatic Righter of 1800

Nothing more interesting occurs in the history of the reign of Ahmed Shah, which lasted eighteen years, and was terminated by his death in the year 830. 108 condition of the second to the second to

Ahmed Shah, not having left anyt son to inheri this dominions, one of his slaves named Nasir, seized upon the government, but the other Chiefs, disdaining to submit to his authority, at the end of eight days put him to death, and raised to the throne a youth who was a descendant of Ilyas Khaje Sultan Shums Addeen Bhengara, on whom they conferred the title of Nasir Shah.

On the unexpected elevation of this prince to the sovereignty all the adherents of the Bhengara family and many other zealous Mohammedans, who during the reigns of the Hindoo dynasty had lived in retirement now assembled round the throne, and gave to it such stability, that Nasir Shah enjoyed a long and undisturbed reign.

This prince constructed the fortifications round the city of Gour, the gates of which are still in existence, and the foundations have been traced over its whole circumference to

Nasır_{tı}Shah departed this the in the year 862 (4.5.1)* See p. 95

[†] A correct plan of the city is deposited in the East-India House; and will probably be given to the public by Dr. Wilkins along with the engravings of the Ruins of Gout mentioned in P 109.

17 #

BARBEK SHAH

Nasir Shah was succeeded by his son Barbek Shah who was esteemed a man of great abilities. He was the first prince in Hindoostan who introduced Abyssinian and negro slaves into his service. He at one period had eight thousand of them well mounted and armed in his army and having by experience found them fathful and attacked to blm, he promoted several of them to high rank and important situations. His example was afterwards imitated by the sovereigns of Guzerat and the Dekkan and many of those people, who if they had faillen into the hands of Europeans, would have been condemned to service drudgery, became the associates of princes and governors of provinces.

Barbok Shah died in 879 after a prosperous/reign of soventeen years and was succeeded by his eldest son Yusuf Shah.

YUSUF SHAH

As goon as this prince had taken possession of the the throne, he's established rules for the strict administration of justice throughout his dominion and having summoned the judges and municipal officers to attend him he informed them that the laws were to be administered with impariality to the poor and to the rich, to the weak and to the powerful and if he discovered any of them swayed in their decisions either by interest or affection, he would punish them morn severely. He then ordered them to send him a weekly to not of their proceedings and being himself very learned and well informed in the law, he frequently decided on points which had perplexed the most experienced cazies and moofties. After having reigned with much reputation for

ΠI

A''D. 1482, seven years and six months, the departed this life in the year 887.

Yusuf Shah dying without children, the nobles raised to the throne a youth of the royal family, named Secundar Shah; but after two months, finding him incapable of governing, they deposed him, and placed on the throne his uncle, Futteh Shah.

FUTTEH SHAH.

natural understanding, which he much A.D. 1472 3. improved by study and finding that the Abyssinian slaves, and the eunuchs of the palace, during the reigns of his predecessors, had gained too much influence, and had been guilty of improper practices, he punished some of them severely, and reduced them all to a level with his other servants and subjects. This conduct of the king's gave much offence to the eunuchs—they seduced the corps of guards called Paiks (infantry, armed with swords and spears,) 5,000 of whom daily mounted guard over the palace, and one night murdered their master in the seraglio, or femele apartments, which their confidential situation in the interior of the palace enabled them to effect without immediate discovery.

It was the custom of the Court of Bengal, that the old guard should wait till the king mounted on the throne in the morning; and after having saluted his majesty, to march off and give place to the new grand "The morfiling after the murder the Paiks valled some time for "the hipproach" of the king and either were, or preceded to be much surprised to see the chief either h. Barkek, ascend the throne dressed in the royal robes.

It happened at this period that both 'the 'Vitie' khan Jehan and Mulk Andrel, the Adjashtill Commander frichler were detactifed from the capital to ward ward against some refractory Rajahi 'and there were of troops let in the city but the Palka, the commanders of whom a while being previously bribed, the enauch was proclaimed without opposition, under the title of Sultan

A. D 1490-1 Shahrideh '17his' event happened in the year 896

11

The reign of Futteh Shab was seven years and six months, but to take the transfer of the trans

SULTAN SHAHZADEH

SULTAN SHAHZADEH

Shahradeh promotes; the Bunuchs—Employs the former Viner and Mulk; Andiel; the J. Commander in Chief under, an joath of fidelity—this servants corrupted by the Jajier who, with his companions gains admittance by might into the puyate apartments and after much resistance introduced the University of the Command of the Co

SULTAR Shahadeh-immediately prombted a number, of his companions the eutouchs, to the most A. J. 1491 important commands and filled all, the offices with persons of the lowest description supposing that they would be more suitablied to his government than the:

nobility or persons of good family. But not thinking, himself sufficiently established in his authority without the concurrence of Khan Jehan the Vizier, and Mulk Andiel the Commander-in-chief, he offered to confirm them in their employments if they would take the oath of fealty to him and these officers, thinking it would be better to temporize, and wait for a favourable opportunity of destroying him, than by opposing him openly, returned to court, and were received with much apparent cordiality

During many months, these officers conducted themselves with so much circumspection, that although the teunuch had established a very severe police, and placed spies over their houses, he could receive no intelligence of their harbouring any evil intentions against himipi he therefore admitted them into the greatest degree of favour, and reposed entire confidence in them. This confidence was however misplaced, for Mulk, Andiel, having gained over to his party one of his countrymen, an Abyssinian eunuch, who had charge of the sleeping apartments, was admitted one night into the palace with twenty of his companions when the Sultan having dressed himself in female attire and put on all his jewels had seated, himself on the throne, and indulged freely in the pleasures of music and wine . At a late hour of the night, after the Sultan had fallen asleep in a state of inebriety, and as soon as the, attendants retired, the black eunuch extinguished all the lights except one and admitted Mulk Andlel into the room., 10 310 Mil 2

It appears that when Mulk took, the oath of allegiance, he had sworn that as long as the Sultan should fill the throne he would never be guilty of any aggression against thim but support and defend him when therefore the saw the Sultan sitting on the throne his conscience hupbraided him with the treacherythe was about to commit. He stood for some time with his sword drawn healtating what to'do at feligth the Sultan in a fit of intoxication, fell on the floor and the mental reservation of the assassin being now ratisfied. he struck him with his sword. The blow however only served to rouse the Sultan, who starting up and being a very powerful man. seized. Mulk Andlel in his arms? and threw him on the ground. In this situation, Mulk called to his companions to come to his assistance Yugrish Khan! a Turk and two Abyssinians, immediately entered but during the struggle between the Sultan and Mulk Andiel the light was extinguish ed, and Yugrish knew not whom to simist, or whom he was to strike. At length Mulk Andlel, who had fast bold of the eunuch's flong hair and would not let him escape called out to strike without! fear, as he was undermost, and was well shielded by the corpulence of his adversary. On this in telligence, Yugrish Khan gave the Sultan several cuts which so hurt him that he fell on the ground, and pretended to he dead. Malk Andiel supposing he had effected his purpose retired

118

with his party but after they were gone the black eunuch having entered the apartment with a light and seeing the Solian in that situation called out, in counterfeited score that some traitor had cruelly murdered his lard and master The Sultan who on the entrance of the cunuch had imagined it was Molk Andlel returned to finish his business, was much rejoiced to hear the voice of his supposed faithful servant and making him a signal to be quiet, narrated to him all the circumstances that had occurred, after which he desired him to go to certain officers and to give them positive orders to proceed immediately to the house of Mulk Andlel, and bring with them his head

The eunuch, having promised implicit obedience, went to Mulk Andiel, and informed him that he had left his design unaccomplished, and that if he did not finish it, his own existence would very shortly be terminated.

Mulk Andiel, seeing he had now no hopes of safety but in perpetrating the murder, returned to the Sultan's apartments, and in a few minutes finished the atrocious deed. He then sent for Khan Jehan the Vizier, and consulted with him what further was requisite to be done. The Vizier was of opinion that it would be proper to place on the throne the infant son of Futteh Shah (then only two years of age), and that a person should be nominated to administer the affairs of government during his minority. Mulk Andiel having acquiesced in this proposal, he immediately summoned all the other Chiefs, and on his obtaining their assent, they all repaired to the apartments of the widow of Futteh Shah, where, in a respectful manner, they informed her of their determination, and requested her to nominate a proper person to be the guardian of her child

The widow alarmed at the invidious situation in which the nomination of a regent might place her, and reflecting on the distant prospect of her son succeeding quietly to the throne in so unstable a government, replied, that, on the murder of her husband, she had made a vow to God, that whatever person revenged his death should have her suffrage to be king.

This sentiment was probably expected by the Chiefs, and Mulk Andiel, although an Abyssinian slave, was unanimously elected to be their monarch.

The reign of the eunuch Sultan Shahzadeh was barely eight months.

SULTAN FEROSE SHAH HERSHY

When the Ahyssinian, Mulk Andiel was elected to the soverelginy of Bengal he assumed the title of Feroso Shah, and governed his subjects with attict justice and munificent liberality

As Malk Andiel, doring the long period that he had served in the armies of Barbek Shah and Futteh Shah, had frequently given proofs of his valous and skill in war was well supported by a numerous hody of his own countrymen and beloved for his generosity by the common people and soldiery none of the Afghan or Turkish Chiefs dared to rehel against him

The following anecdote of his liberality is thus related On some public occasion the king having ordered a Lac (100 000) of rupees to be distributed to the poor the ministers thought he was too profuse of the public treasure which might probably arise from his little knowledge of the value of money or the amount he had ordered they therefore piled the money in one of the apartments through which he was to pass to hope that he would notice it and be surprised at the quantity of silver. When the king entered the apartment and saw the heap of money lying there he asked what it was and on helog told it was the sum he had that morning ordered to be given to the poor he said. In this all? It is too tittle give them double the quantity. The mioisters were astionshed at his prodigality, but were obliged to conform to his wishes.

The remains of a mosque a minaret, and a reservoir which Ferose Shah constructed are still to be seen at Gour—He reigned nearly

MAHMOOD SHAH.

When Ferose Shah departed from this transitory world, the nobles raised to the throne his eldest son, with the title of Mahmood Shah; but the Vizier, Hebsh Khan, originally an Abyssinian slave, left to his master nothing but the name of king. This conduct gave much offence to the other Abyssinians, and under pretence of relieving the prince from a galling yoke, one of them, named Siddee Budder Dewaneh, assassinated the Vizier and having thus mounted the first stage of the ladder of ambition, he shortly after murdered the king, and ascended the throne

The period of Mahomood Shah's nominal reign was one year

Hajy Mohammed Candahary has stated, in his History, that Mahmood Shah was not an Abyssinian, but the infant son of Futteh Shah, whose pretensions his mother had resigned in favour of Mulk Andiel, as has been before related.

MUZUFFIR SHAH.

SIDDEE BUDDER DEWANEH mounted the throne in the year 900, and assumed the title of Muzusiir Shah He commenced his reign with the murder of several of the Turkish nobility. He afterwards marched his armies against some of the tributary Hindoo princes and having seized them, put then to death, and plundered their estates. In short, there was no species of cruelty or oppression that this tyrant did, commit till at

A. D. 1497-8 length, in the year 903, all the Chiefs, headed by the Vizier, Syed Hussein-Sherief of Mecca, rebelled against him, and besieged him in this capital but Musuffir Shah, having in his service a corps of 5,000 well mounted Abysinians, and 25,000 Afghan and Bengal troops, defended the city of Gour for four months with great resolution and whenever he made prisoners of any of the rehels, he took pleasure in beheading them himself. The number of persons he is said to have put to death in this manner is incredible.

1

At length thinking bimself able to contend with his adversaries in the field, he marched out of the city and engaged them. A bloody battle ensued in which Mustuffir Saah lost his life and the plains of Gour were strewed with $6,000 of the slain. The reign of this oppressor of the human race was three years and fre months.

Such is the account of this event given by Hajy Mohammed Candahary in his History but Nizam Addeen states, that Muzuffir Shah being universally detested by the nobles, that Vizier Syed Husseln, entered into a conspiracy with them and having gained over to their party the Commandant of the corps of Palks, sixteen of them entered the apartment of the tyrant at night, and put him to death without any opposition One of the mosques still standing at Gour was hullt by this Implous tyrant.

SULTAN ALA ADDEEN HUSSEIN SHAH SHERIEF MECCA.

Ala Addeen elevated to the throne—His origin—Permits Gour to be plundered by his own army—Regulates the troops, and firmly establishes his government—Successfully invades the kingdom of Assam—attempts the conquest of Kamroop and adjoining countries—The Rajas retire to their mounatin-fastnesses till the rainy season, when the Sultan's forces are obliged to retire with immense loss—The Sultan applies himself to the improvement of his kingdom—Erects many public buildings, and encourages the Learned and Devout—The king of Joanpore seeks refuge at the Court of Bengal—The Emperor Sekunder subdues Behar, and prepares for the invasion of Bengal—Ala Addeen sends his son with terms of peace, and treaty is concluded—Dies after a peaceable reign of twenty-four years.

On the death of the Abyssinian, Muzuffir Shah, the Chiefs elected to the throne another foreigner, but of a more noble race. This person was a descendant of the prophet Mohammed and had quitted the sandy desert of Arabia to improve his fortune in the fertile region of Bengal His illustrious descent first introduced him into the Court of Gour, where his superior abilities soon raised him to the high dignity of first subject of the empire. The oppressions and brutal temper of Muzuffir made him a rebel, and fortune made him a king

As Syed Hussein, during the period that he acted as prime minister to his predecessor, had given many proofs of his ability and general benevolence, all the Chiefs, of whatever tribe, concurred in opinion that he was the most worthy person to fill the throne; and he, in return, granted them the extraordinary privilege of plundering the city of Gour for a prescribed period.

On the elevation to the throne, he is said to have taken the title of Ala Addeen Shernef Mecca but the author of the Ryan Arrilates states, that, in all the inscriptions on the motu ments about Gour he is styled Husseln Shah and supposes that his father or some of his ancestors might have been Sherlef of Mecca, and that the son, through family pride may have used the title improperly. It is bowever certain, that, on his first arrival in Bengal he was for some time in a very humble situation, but the casy of Chandpore having been informed of his illustrious descent, gave him his daughter in marriage and introduced him into the service of Muxufir Shah

The privilege of plundering the city having been carried further than the Syed intended he ordered the soldiery after some days, to desist but finding his orders disobeyed he caused twelve thousand of them to put to death, and selzed all fraits of their rapine.

At that period it was customary amongst the rich inhabitants of Bengal, to have a number of golden dishes on their tables, and the degree of respect due to any person was estimated by the quantity of plate he displayed upon public occasions on which account, the quantity of gold and silver regarged by the plunderers, is said to have been immense.

One of the first acts of Ala Addeen s government was to

The rich inhabitants of Gour being principally Hindoos the plous Sped thought they were fair plunder sublough his own subjects. This may be considered as a specimen of a bigoted Mohammedan government.

reduce the corps of Paiks,* who had so frequently assisted in dethroning their sovereigns after which he raised a regiment, denominated Serhungs, to mount guard over his person. He also dismissed the whole of the Abyssinan troops and they, having lost their reputation in Hindoostan by their frequent acts of disloyalty and treachery, could not obtain service either at Joanpore or Dehly, and were therefore compelled to proceed to Guzerat and the Dekkan, where they procured employment, and afterwards became very conspicuous under the appellation of Siddees †

After these arbitrary but salutary acts, Ala Addeen ruled with strict justice, but for the better security of his person, he made the Fort of Akdala the seat of his residence. Being himself of noble descent, he encouraged and patronised persons of good family, and reduced some of the late reigns to their original nothingness. Having by these means introduced a number of Syeds, Moghuls, and Afghans into his service, his government became firmly established; and the tributary Rajas, as far as Orissa, paid implict obedience to his commands; nor was there a single rebellion or insurrection during his reign

^{*} A number of descendants of these Paiks were settled in the Midnapore district and had lands assigned to them, on condition to defending the country against all invaders and marauders but the English Government not requiring their services, and wishing to put them on a footing with their other subjects, they were much dissatisfied for a considerable period and caused frequent disturbances between the years 1790 and 1800

⁺ See Orme's Historical Fragments Index.

The Sultan after regulating his own kingdom began to aspire to foreign conquests. He in consequence assembled a numerous army and invaded the king

Kamroop again unsecessed liy invaded. of Bengal Having overrum that country and acquired much plunder be turned bis arms against the Rajas of Kamroop and the countries iring at the foot of the northern mountains, distinguished by the general name of Turryana and, no taking possession of many of their forts established garristions therein after which, having appointed his son to be governor of the conquered districts he returned to his capital

It has ever been the systematic policy of the princes of Turryana to relinquish the level country to the invaders, and retire with their families and effects to fastnesses in the mountains, until the setting in the rains when, the roads being rendered impassable for an army by hundstion and torrents from the hills, they cut nff all supplies of provisions, and either starve their opponents into a capitulation or force them to retreat under the greatest disadvantages.

This system was now put in practice and the son of the Sultan was compelled to make a humiliating retreat with the loss of half his army

After this unsuccessful attempt, the Sultan built an extensive fort on the banks of the Bettlah River (the Gunduk) to defend his own territories from invasion and occupied himself in promoting the population of his country and in improving the situation of his subjects. He huilt public mosques and hospitals in every district, and settled pensions on the learned and devout. Amongst the numerous instances of his plety he settled a grant of lands for the support of the tomh college and hospital of the celebrated saint. Kuttub-uil

Alum, which are continued to this day; and every year made a pilgrimage on foot, from Akdala to Pundua, to visit the holy shrine of that saint

In the early part of this reign, Shah Hussein, king of Joanpore, who for many years contended for the empire of Hindoostan with Sultan Beloli,* having suffered reiterated defeats, fled before the arms of Sekunder, and sought protection in Bengal. He was most hospitably and honourably received by Ala-Addeen, who assigned him a pension and establishment suitable to his former dignity, which were continued to him during his life. The tomb of this prince is still in good preservation in the vicinity of Gour.

The emperor Sekunder having, in the year 905, subdued the province of Behar, which for several years had been dependant on Joanpore, and was the last of the possessions of the king of the East, advanced the banners of hostility against Bengal, but on his arrival at Tuglickpore (or Cutlickpore) in Behar, he was informed that the prince Daniel, son of Ala Addeen, was on the way to meet him, with overtures of amity from his father. The Emperor, being also desirous of peace, that he might be enabled to return to Dehly, halted at this place, and sent forward two noblemen to meet and confer with the prince.

The plenipotentiaries met in the town of Bar, and in a few days concluded a treaty, the terms of which were, that the emperor should retain Behar, Tirhoot, Sircar Sarun, and all the other countries he had subdued, provided he did not invade Bengal, and that neither party should support, or in any manner assist, the enemies of the other. The treaty having been ratified by both monarchs, the Emperor returned towards Dehly After this event, Ala Addeen enjoyed a peaceable and happy reign, beloved by his subjects, and respected by his neighbours, and died at Gour in the year 927 having reigned twenty four years

^{*} See History of Hindoostan, A D 1478.

NUSSERIT SHAH, COMMONLY CALLED NASEEB SHAH

Nusserit Shah elected to the throno—Humane conduct to his Brothers—Invades Tirhoot and Hajppore—Gives protection to Mahmood Lody and other Afghan Chiefs—Marries the Daughter of the late Sultan Ibrahim—Exertes the jealousy of the Moghal Emperor Raber—Mahmood and the Alghan Chiefs defeated by Baber—On the death of the Moghal Emperor the Afghah Chiefs recover several provinces—Nusserit assassinated—Buildings creeted by him at Gour

The deceased king left eighteen sons the eldest of whom Nusierit Shah being a person of acknowledged bravery and superior talents, was chosen by the Chiefs to be their monarch. As a proof of the benevolence of his disposition it is stated that instead of confining his brethren or depriving them of their sight, as is the common custom of the East, he treated them with the greatest affection, and doubled the allowances granted them by their father

The distracted state of the court of Debly occasioned by the approach of the Moghuls onder the celebrated Baber presenting a favourable opporuoity of recovering some of the districts which had formerly belonged to Bengal Nusserit Shah broke the treaty which his father had contracted with the emperor Sekunder; and having invaded Tirhoot, and put the Raja to death, he apppointed his son-in-law, Ala Addeen, to the government. He then proceeded against Hajy pore and having subdued it, gave it in charge of another son-in-law, named Mukhdoom Alum after which he crossed the Ganges, and took possession of the fort and district of Monghir, which he entrusted to one of his best generals named Cuttub Khan

When, in the year 932, the emperor Baber defeated and slew Sultan Ibrahim, and the empire of Hindoostan was transferred from the Afghan to the Moghul dynasty,* many of the Chiefs of the former nation sought employment and protection in Bengal, even Mahmood Lody, the brother of Sultan Ibrahim, was compelled to seek refuge at the court of Gour All these persons were most hospitably received, and had pensions assigned them, suitable to their rank and former situation.

Mahmood having brought with him one of the daughters of the late Emperor, the king took her in marriage, and made great rejoicings on the occasion. This circumstance, added to the protection afforded to the Afghan Chiefs, excited the jealousy of the Moghul emperor, Baber, who, in the year 935, sent an army under the command of his relation Askary, to invade Bengal, but Nusserit Shah, having obtained timely intelligence of his intentions, sent an ambassador with costly presents, to deprecate the imperial wrath

Early in the year 936, Mahmood (brother of Ibrahim), being previously joined by a number of the Afghan Chiefs, made another attempt to recover his paternal dominious and advanced as far as Hederi on the banks of the Gan es.

^{*} See History of Hindoostan, A D 1525-6

The emperor Baber having about the same time marched from Agra, the conteoding armies met at Hiden hut such was the dread the Afghaos had of Baber's prowess, and the formidable charge of the Moghul cavalry that as soon as the Emperor's advanced guard crossed the river they shamefully took to flight, and over halted till they had re-crossed the river Soane. Mahmood dispirited by his defeat, retreated to Bengal and Nusserit alarmed at the approach of the Moghula, sent an ambassador to implore the Emperor's mercy

As the raloy season was approaching and the affairs of the upper provinces required the presence of Baber who had advanced as far as the town of Moocer (at the month of the Soane) he graciously coodesceeded to make peace on condition that the Afghans should remain quiet, and that the king of Bengal should no longer give any assistance to Mahmood These terms having been

A D 1530-1 raiffed by both monarchs the Emperor returned to Agra, where he died in the month of Jummad of the following year A. H 937

The death of Baber served as n signal to rouse the Aighan Chlefs once more to attempt the recovery of the empire. Mahmood the son of Diria Lohani, took possession of Behar and Mahmood the brokher of the emperor Ibrahim having collected an army of his countrymen, first defeated Joneld Burlass the Moghni governor of Joanpore, and then took possession of that province Sultan Behadur of Guzerat also advanced at the head of a large force and took the fort of Mindu, wheece he detached an army of 40,000 men to plunder the country, even to the vicinity of Agra, then the residence of the new emperor Humayon.

Although the king of Bengal, from the pusillanimity of his disposition, did not take an active part in these scenes, yet, regardless of his treaty with the emperor Baber, he gave every assistance in his power to Mahmood, and in the year 939 sent Mulk Murjan, as his ambassador, to form a treaty of alliance with Sultan Behadur of Guzerat.

Notwithstanding Nusserit Shah was by descent a Syed (descendant of Mohammed), he was naturally of a cruel disposition, and was frequently guilty of such acts of tyranny, as not only to give disgust to his subjects, but to render him hateful to his private servants. At length, having gone one day to pay his devotion at the tomb of his father in the city of Gour, and one of the eunuchs having given him some offence, he threatened severely to punish the fellow on his return to the palace but the other eunuchs, tired out with his brutal behaviour, espoused the cause of their companion, and, before the king could carry his threats into execution, they put a period to his existence.

Nusserit Shah reigned thirteen years, and was assassinated in the year 940. Some historians have assigned him a reign of sixteen years, and say his death occurred in 943, but this statement does not agree with the account of subsequent transactions. Of the buildings erected by him in the city of Gour, there are still two remaining, with the inscriptions perfect, viz the Golden Mosque, called in the Hindoostany language, Soona Musjid, finished in 932, and the Kudum Roosul (footstep of the Prophet), erected in 939.

Ferishtah, in his History of Bengal, styles this prince Nuseeb Shah though, in his History of Dehly he gives him his proper name This circumstance induced the author of the Ryas Austlates to examine several of the inscriptions in the vicinity of Gour from which he ascertained that the title at full length was Sultan Nusserit Shah, hen Sultan Ala Addeen, Hussein Shah The tomb of the saint Hezerut Mukhdoom, at Saad ullapore, was also erected by him and bears the same inscriptions

After Nussert Shah had drunk the sherbe o death the nobles raised to the throne of Bengal his son Ferose Shah but at the end of three months the youth was murdered by his uncle Mahmood Shah who usurped the government.

MAHMOOD SHAH.

Was one of the eighteen sons of Sultan Ala Addeen and during the whole reign of the late king conducted himself in the most exemplary manner but scarcely was his brother deposited in the tomb when be entered into machinations against his nephew and ceased not till be had imbrued his hands in murder. This flagitious conduct did not however pass unreveniged for Mukhdoom Aalum governor of Hajypore raised the standards of rebellion and united himself in the bonds of friend

There is still an annual assemblage of devotees held at this tomb which is also attended by merchants and traders, and a regular fair thereby established ship with the celebrated Shere Khan, who afterwards became emperor of Hindoostan, and who at that time was regent of Behar.

Mahmood Shah, in order to punish Shere for the assistance afforded to the rebel, ordered Cuttub Khan, governor of Monghir, to invade Behar. As the forces of Shere were inferior to those of Bengal, Cuttub Khan flattered himself with an easy conquest he therefore rejected all overtures for peace, and made a spirited attack on the army of Behar But rortune did not tayour his wishes, he was shortly pierced by an arrow, and fell from his elephant. On seeing this accident, his army fled, and the whole of his elephant, artillery, and baggage, became the plunder of his adversary

This defeat was a severe disappointment to the king of Bengal, he however assembled a more numerous army, the command of which he entrusted to Ibrahim Khan, the son of the unfortunate general.

At this time, an event occurred which flattered the vanity of the king of Bengal, and gave him every reason to hope for success Jellal, the young king of Behar, disgusted with the overbearing and insolent conduct of the regent Shere, fled from Behar, attended by a number of his followers, and took refuge in the Bengal camp, whence he sent orders to all his adherents to afford no manner of assistance to Shere

This event having much diminished the force of the regent, he was obliged to shut himself in the fort of Behar, the fortifications of which were only ramparts composed of mud

The Bengal army advanced, and surrounded the fort,

^{*} For the history of Shere Shah, see Dow's Hindoostan, vol II. p. 166. The year inserted in the margin is erroneous.

but the Afghan troops of Shere defended the place with somuch resolution that, after a siege ni several months, Ibrahim was nbilged to apply to the king for a reinforcement. Previous however to its arrival Shere having made a sally from the fort, completely defeated the Bengalese slew their general and seized on all their artillers and baggage com-

A D 1535-6. Pollting the young king Jellal to flee and seek refuge at the court of Gour This event occurred in the end of the year out

From this period may be dated the downfall of the empire of Bengal for in the following year 943 Shere Khan having acquired possession of the strong fortress of Chmar rendered himself completely master of all Behar after which he advanced with a numerous army towards Bengal. The natural strength of the passes of Ternagurry and Sicklygully delayed the fate of Mahmood for a short period but Shere having surmounted these difficulties, the king was compelled to retrest to his capital.

Shere immediately favested Gour but some important affairs requiring his presence at Behar he left an army under the command of his general Ahuas Ahan, to carry on the blockade

During this period Mahotood sent various measengers to the emperor Homayon, to implice his speedy assistance but several months having elapsed without any appearence of the Mogul torces, and provisions becoming very scarce in the city Mahmood Shah embarked no board a last rowing boat, and was conveyed to Hajppore.

The city soon after capitulated and on the 13th of the

A D 1537 5. month Ferrurdy in the year 944 was taken possession of by the Afghan forces who plundered and put to death a number of the unoffending inhabitants *

The king was so closely pursued by a party of Shere's troops, that he was obliged to halt, and defend himself. He was soon wounded, but his friends covering his retreat, he was enabled to continue his flight, and arrived in the Moghul camp during the period that the emperor Homayon was besiezing the fort of Chunar.

Homayon, touched with the misfortunes of the royal fugitive, received him in the most gracious manner, and promised that, as soon as he had taken the fortress, he would proceed to Bengal, and reinstate him in his kingdom

Early in the year 945, the Emperor, having succeeded in taking the fort of Chunar, advanced towards Bengal, and hearing that Shere Khan was busily employed in fortifying the strong passes of Terriagurry and Sicklygully, the Banks of which are covered on one side by the rapid current of the Ganges, and on the other by lofty mountains, he sent forward a considerable force, under the command of Jehangire Cooly Beg, to clear the road, but this officer, upon his arrival at Terriagurry, found that, in addition to formidable entrenchments, he had

^{*} In the history of Fariade, Souza, it is related, that the unfortunate monarch had made application for assistance to Nunode Cuna, the governor-general of the Portuguese settlements in India, who sent a squadron of nine ships to his aid, but they did not arrive in Bengal till after the surrender of the city. This was the first introduction of the Portuguese into Bengal, as a military power, although some of their ships had entered the Ganges as early as A. D. 1517 to contend with a numerous army of Afghans commanded by Jellal, the son of Shere Khan.

Not dispirited by such difficulties, Jehangire made an attack upon the entrenchments but after losing a number of men, he was himself severely wounded and compelled to retreat towards the main army

The Emperor irritated at such unexpected opposition, advanced hastily towards the passes vowing vengeance on the garrison whilst Jellal Khan, alarmed at the approach of the Moghula, abandoned the entrenchments and in a pusillanimous manner retreated with the whole of his army to join his father at Gour

Mahmood the expelled king of Bengal who accompanied the army upon his arrival at Colgong having heard that the Afghans had murdered his two sons, who were taken prisoners, on the capture of his capital was so affected by the in telligence that he died after a few days librers.

The reign of this prince including the period of his expnision, was five years. The inscription on the mosque erected by him and still existing at Saadullapore elearly ascertains that he was the son of Sultan Ala Addeen Husseln Shah although some authors have expressed doubts of his origin. With him terminated the line of independent kings of Bengal, who ruled that country for two hundred and four years for although several of the rulers of Gour afterwards assumed the tille of king they were not masters of the whole of the province nor was their right acknowledged by their contemporaries and consequently they

A. D 1538 9. cannot be considered as absolute sove

[.] Supposed to be the small golden mosque

SECTION V.

THE SHERE SHAH DYNASTY.

--∞0∞--

The emperor Homayon, having secured the important passes which have been always considered as the keys of Bengal, continued his march to Gour, but Shere Khan, fearing to trust either to its fortifications, or to the bravery of his own troops against the Moghuls, collected all the treasure and valuable effects belonging to the kings of Bengal,* and retreated, with the whole of his Afghans, by the way of Jarcund, or south-west range of mountains, to his native district of Sehsaram, where in a short time, by a bold and successful stratagem, he residered himself master of the impregnable and extensive fortress of Rhotas

Upon the arrival of the Emperor at Gour, the gates were thrown open, and he was received by the inhabitants with every testimony of joy and satisfaction. Homayon was also much gratified by his easy conquest of so valuable a province. Orders were immediately issued for the Khutbeh to be read in all the mosques, proclaiming his accessions to the kingdom of Bengal, he also directed the name of the city to be changed to Jennetabad (the city of Paradise), and, to commemorate the event, ordered a new coinage to be struck bearing his own titles, and the new name of that city

^{*} Faria de Souza states the amount at sixty millions of gold

The Emperor was, lo fact, so much infatuated by his oew conquest, that he spect three very important months in luxurious gratifications, during which time his enemies were strengthening themselves to every owners and Shere khan was even making preparations to oppose his return.

Repeated intelligeoce of the machinations of his enemies at length roused the Emperor from his lethargy and although it was the height of the rainy season, when the roads of Bengal were covered with water and the rivers swollen by the torrents from the mountains he perceived the absolute occessity of returning to Agra. He there

A D 1579- fore In the year 946 appointed Jehangire Cooly Beg governor of Beogal with five thousand select Moghol cavalry to support his authority and having with some difficulty crossed the Ganges, proceeded by easy stages towards the western part of his Empire.

The Moghul cavalry unaccustomed to the sultry weather of Bengal and exposed to constant rains and excessive fatigue become languid and perished in great numbers. This circumstance added to the rebellion of the Emperir a brothers, emboldened Shere khan clated by his success against Rhotas, to contend once more for the kingdom of Bengal. He collected the dispersed Afghans from every quarter and baving thrown up entrenchments on the banks of the Currumnassia river at o place called Chowsar opposed the further progress of the Emperor. For nearly three mooths, the Moghul army remained in this situation in a state of inactivity ocither during to storm the Afghao entrenchments, nor possessing the means of re-cross ag the Gaoges by which they might have taken another route. Such a state was ruinous to the Emperor's affairs, he therefore readily accepted an overture made by Shere Khan, of sending an agent to settle terms of peace. The pious dervish Kheleel, preceptor to Shere, became the intermediator. A treaty was drawn out, by which Homayon resigned to Shere Khan the sovereignty of Behar and Bengal, upon condition that he would no longer oppose his march, nor assist his enemies. This treaty having been duly ratified, much rejoicing took place in both camps, but especially among the Moghuls, who were exhausted by continual alarms, and anxious to return to their homes. But the very night on which the treacherous Shere had sworn by the Koran, not to injure the Moghuls, he suddenly attacked their camp, and, having taken them completely by surprise, slew many of them, and compelled the rest to flee in all directions.

The Emperor, with a few of his friends, escaped by swimming their horses across the Ganges; but eight-thousand Moghuls perished in the attempt. This memorable event occurred in the year 946

FERID ADDEEN SOOR SHERE SHAH .

Origin of Shere-He proceeds to Agra-Obtains the royal grant of his patrimony the districts of Sehsaram and Tondah-Joins Mahmood king of Behar-Excites Mahmood's realously-Roters the service of the emperor Baber-Returns to Behar and on Mahmood a death obtains the administration of the government-The young king Jellal suspicious of Shere's intentions, fles for protection to Bengal-Shere increases his power by marriage-Submits to the authority of Mahmood on condition of being allowed to retain part of Beha and of assisting him against the emperor Homayon-Betrays Mahmood by withdrawing his forces previous to the action-Refuses to surrender the fort of Chu ar to the Emperor-Takes the fortress of Rhotas by stratagem-Over throws Humayon, and completes the conquest of Behar and Beng 1 -Appoints Khizer Khan Governor of Bengal-Pursues and total ly deleats the Emperor-Assumes the imperial titles-Returns from Agra to Gour and reduces the increasing power of his deputy Khirer Khan-Subdivides Beneal Into Provinces-His death character and public works.

The original name of Shere was Ferld His father was Hussein, of the Soor tribe of the Afghans of Roh a mountain our country on the confines of India and Persia. When Sultan Beloli placed his foot on the throne of the Indian empire

As the origin and rise of Shere Shah are detailed at considerable length in the History of Hindoostan it will to some persons appear unnecessary to have insented it here and I had determined to omit it but as many of the readera of this work may not have it in their power to refer to that History and may be anxious to know the origin of so celebrated a character it is hoped that, in general, its insention will not be considered as a work of supererogation

the grandfather of Shere. Ibrahim, came to Dehly in quest of military service. The original seat of the Afghans was Roh, which, in their language, signifies a mountainous country. It extended, they say, in length, from Sewad and Bijore, to the town of Sui in the dominions of Bukharast, and in breadth. from Hussian to Kabul This tract, in its fertile valleys, contained many separate tribes, among the number of these was that of Soor, who derive themselves from the princes of Ghor, whose family held the empire after the extinction of the race of Ghizne. One of the sons of the Ghorian family, whose name was Mohammed Soor, having left his native country, placed himself among the Afghans of Roh, and was the father of the tribe of Soor, which was esteemed the noblest among them

Ibrahim, the grandfather of Shere, arriving at Dehly engaged himself in the service of an Amyr of the court of Beloli When the empire fell to Sekunder the son of Beloli, the noble Jemmal, a Chief of high renown, was appointed governor of Joanpore, and he took Hussein, the son of Ibrahim, in his retinue. He found him a youth of parts, and favoured him so much that, in a short time, he gave him the districts of Sehsaram and Tonda, in jagier,* for which he was to maintain five hundred horse. Hussein had eight sons. Ferid and Nizam of one mother, of a Patan tamily, the other sons were born of slaves

Hussein had no great love for his wife, and he therefore neglected her sons. Ferid, upon this, left his father's house, and enlisted himself a soldier in the service of Jemmal, the governor of Joanpore. Hussein wrote to Jemmal upon this

^{*} A grant or tenure of lands for military or other -service

158

accasion, requesting him to send back his son that he might be educated But all that Jemmal could say had no effect upon Ferid Hoanpore he said was a better place for instruction than Sehsaram , and he affirmed that he would attend to letters of his own accord. This he did to so much purpose that he soon could repeat the works of the celebrated poet Sadi and was, besides, a proficient in all the learning of the country. He however employed most of his time in history and poetry being supported by the liberality of Jemmal

After three or four years had elapsed, Husselu came to _Joanpore and, by the mediation of friends, the father and son were reconciled. Husseln gave Ferid the charge of his estate. and remained himself at loanpore Forid when he took leave of his father said. 'That the stability of government depended ou justice and that it would be his greatest care not to 'violate it, either by appressing the weak, or permitting the "strong to infringe the laws with impunity" When he arrived at his asgier he actually put this resolution in practice by rendering justice to the poor, and reducing to order such of his zemindars as opposed his authority. He by this means, had his revenues punctually pald, and his country well cultivated. His reputation grew apace for all his actions discovered uncommon genius and resolution

Hussein coming to visit his estate, was extremely well pleased with the management of his son and therefore continued him in his office. But the father had a favourite concubine by whom he had three sons, Soliman Ahmed and Mudds, and the old man was extremely fund of her She told him that now her son Soliman was grown up he ought to provide for him Day after day she continued to tesse Husseln for the superintendency of the pergunnahs for Soliman This gave the old Amyr great concern, knowing the superior abilities of Ferid The son, hearing that the domestic peace of his father was destroyed, by the importunities of his favourite, made a voluntary resignation of his trust which was accordingly conferred upon Soliman

Ferid, and his brother Nizam, set out immediately for Agra, and entered into the service of Dowlat, one of the principal omrahs of the emperor Ibrahim Ferid, by his good behaviour, soon insinuated himself into his master's affection Dowlat one day desired him to tell him what he was most desirous to obtain, offering to use his interest with the king in his favour Ferid replied, that as his father was now in his dotage, and wholly guided by an artful mistress, who had deprived both him and his brother of their patrimonial inheritance, and had procured their estate for her own spurious offspring, if Dowlat would, therefore, by his interest at court, procure the royal grant of the estate in his name, he would promise to provide for his father, and maintain five hundred good horse for the service of the empire. Dowlat accordingly preferred this request to the emperor Ibrahim, who replied, that he must be a bad man indeed who reviled and undermined the interest of his own father retired in silence, and informed Ferid of the answer he hadreceived, but comforted him with a promise of taking another opportunity to urge his request. In the mean time, the father of Ferid died, and Dowlat obtained the emperor's grant, with which the two brothers set out to Sehsaram with a grand retinue

Soliman, upon the arrival of his brothers, quitted the country, going off to Mohammed, one of the Afghan family of Soor, and his relation, who held the district of Chond, and kept up a force of 1500 horse, to whom he complained of the behaviour of Ferid. Mohammed told him that Rober intend. ing to invade Hindoostan a war between that prince and the emperor Ihrahim was unavoidable that therefore if he should accompany him when called to the imperial army he would endeavour to get him redress. Soliman was too impatient to walt so long in suspense. Mohammed therefore sent a person to Ferid to treat about a reconciliation. Ferid replied that he was willing to give his brother a proper share of his father a inheritance but that he must be excused from parting with any of his power repeating at the same time the old adage that. Two swords could never rest in one scahhard. Soliman would not be satisfied without a share of the government therefore nothing was settled between the brothers irritated Mohammed so much that he resolved to compel Ferid to the measures which he himself had proposed | Ferid being informed of his resolution hegan to provide for his own security hat news arriving of the emperor

A D 1525. Ihrahims defeat and death the whole country was thrown into confusion A H 932

Ferrd resolved not to lie idle in the midst of the troubles which ensued He joined Par Khan the son of Diria Lohau, who had subdued Behar and assumed the Obtains the title of Shere Kasa royal dignity under the name of Sultan

Mohammed or Mahmood As that monarch was one day on a hunting party he roused an enormous tiger which Ferid immediately attacked and killed with one blow of his sabre For this bold action which done in Mahmood's presence he was honoured with the trile of Shere Khan.* Shere rose gradually to great influence and favour in Mahmood's service. He was even appointed permission to go to his estate, and was detained there by business till long after his leave of absence had expired Sultan Mahmood, dissatisfied with this behaviour, reproached him one day, in public, with the breach of promise, and Mohammed of the family of Soor, being present, took that opportunity of accusing him of treasonable designs, and with favouring the interest of Mahmood the son of the emperor Sekunder. The Sultan was by this means so incensed against him, that he intimated, at the time, a design to deprive him of his estate, and to confer it upon his brother Soliman, as a just punishment for his offence, and the only thing that could bring him to a proper sense of his duty

[.] Shere signifies a lion.

Sultan Mahmood however, having a great esteem for Shere, against whom nothing was vet proved, laid aside the violent measure to which he was instigated by Mohammed He nevertheless, by way of alarming Shere, gave orders to his accuser to inquire into his father's estate, and to make an equal division of it among all the brothers. Mohammed, glad of this order, sent one of his servants to Shere, to acquaint him that his brothers, according to the king's commands, were to have their proportionate dividends of the estate, which he had hitherto so unjustly withheld from them

^{*} The accidental occurrece of three persons of the same name renders this part of the history a little obscure. The first was Mahmood Shah, king of Bengal The second, Sultan Mahmood, son of a famous general named Diria Lohani, who, in the revolution occasioned by the invasion of Baber, seized upon the province of Behar The third was of the royal Afghan family of Lody, and brother of the last emperor of that dynasty.

Shere returned for answer, that Mohammed was very much mistaken in this matter that there was no hereditary estates in India, as in Ghor for that all the land belonged to the king which he disposed of at pleasure that as he himself had a personal grant of his estate his brethren were entirely out of the questinn that he, however had already consented in give in his brither Soliman a part of the money and moveshies, according to law

When the messenger returned with this answer Mohamm ed who was then at Chund was enraged at so direct a refusal, and raising all his forces, sent them against Shere, under the command of Shadi his adopted slave accompanied by Shere a brothera Soliman and Ahmed Shadi's ordera were to take possession of the country and to leave a force with Soliman to protect him in the estate. This resolution being quickly taken. Shere had not time to collect his people but, upon the first alarm he wrate to one Malleck, his deputy in the district of Khuaspare Tondah to harass the enemy with what troops he had but in avoid an action till he joined him in person. Maileck, destrous of distinguishing himself gave them battle, and last his life and the victory. The unexpected disaster weakened Shere so much that he was in no condition tn nppose Mnhammed, he therefore abandaned the country and fled in Innied Birlass governor of Currah and Manlekpore nn the part of the emperor Baber. He made Birlass a handsome present, was taken into favour and nhtained a body of troops to recover his estates. With these he defeated Mohammed who fled in the mnuntains of Rhotas on that he not only possessed himself of his own territory but added several other districts to his jagler which he now professed to hold of the Moghul emperor Baher Having rewarded the Moghuls who had assisted him he permitted them to return to their master He, at the same time, levied troops, and was joined by his former friends, who had fled to the hills, which rendered him, very formidable in those parts.

Shere, having thus established himself in his estate, performed an act of generosity, which, if it was not intended to deceive the world, does him much honour. He recalled his enemy Mohammed, who had fled; and put him in possession of his former estate. This generous treatment converted his greatest enemy into one of his best friends. Shere, having settled his affairs, left his brother Nizam in charge of his district, and paid a visit to his benefactor, Juneid Birlass, at Currah Birlass was then going to Agra, and Shere resolved to accordany him thither. He was, upon this occasion, introduced to the emperor Baber, and attended that prince in his expedition to Chinderi.

After Shere had stard some time in the Moghul camp, and observed their manners and policy, he one day told a friend that he thought it would be an easy matter to drive those toreigners out of Hindoostan His friend asked him what reason he had to think so, Shere replied, "Tnat the emperor himself, "though a man of great parts, was but very little acquainted "with the policy of Hindoostan, and that the minister, who "held the reins of government, would be too much biassed in "favour of his own interest, to mind that of the public That "therefore, if the Afghans, who were now at enmity among "themselves, could be brought to mutual concord, the work "was completed and should fortune ever favour him, he "imagined himself equal to the task, however difficult it "might at present appear." His friend burst out into a loud laugh, and began to ridicule this vain opinion. Shere, a few days after, had, at the emperors table, some solid dishes set before him, and only a spoon to eat with. He called for a knife hut the servants had orders not to supply him with one Shere, not to lose his dinner drew his dagger without ceremony and cutting up his meat, made a hearty meal, without minding those who diverted themselves at this odd hebaviour When he had done, the emperor who had been remarking his manner turned to Amyr Khalifa, and said. This Afghan, as not to be disconcerted with trifles and is likely to be a great man."

Shere, perceiving by these words that the emperor had been informed of his private discourse with his friend fled to the camp that night, and went to his own estate. He wrote from thence to his benefactor Juneld Birlass, that as Mohammed had prevailed on Sultan Mohammed ing of Behar to seed troops against his jagler he had in haste left the emperor's camp without while gupon him for leave. He by this means, amused Juneld Birlass prevented his chastising him at the same time mide up matters with Mahmood whom he became a greater favourite than before

Sultan Mahmood of Behar dying a short time after was succeeded by his son Jellal, a minor The young prince a mother the Sultana Dudr, acted as regent, and conferred the principal offices in the government upon Shere The Stere becomes regate of Behar A.D. 1533 4. Sultana dying account fell wholly into the hands of Shpre Mukhdoom Aslum. the governor of Hajippore on the part of the Mahmood Shah king of Bengal being guilty of some misdemeanor threw himself under Shere a protection. Mahmood to revenge this insult, ordered Cuttuh governor of Mongier with a great force against Behar As the forces of Behar were inconsiderable in comparison of those of Bengal, Shere made many overtures for accommodating the differences, but to no effect. Finding no arguments could prevail but the sword, he resolved to stand the unequal encounter, in which his superior skill and bravery

A D 1533 4 acquired him a complete victory Cuttub was slain, and all his treasure, elephants, and camp equipage taken, which greatly advanced the political, design of Shere

After this victory, the Chiefs of the Patan tribe of Lohani, the cousin of Jellal the young king of Behar, envying the fortune of Shere formed the conspiracy to take away his life Shere discovered the plot, and taxed Jellal with it, who was indeed privy to it, being very jealous of the great influence of his minister He told the young prince on this occasion, that there was no necessity for taking such a base method of getting disengaged from his servant, for that if he should but once signify his inclination, he was ready to resign that government which he had lately so successfully protected The prince, either suspecting his sincerity, or being equally suspicious of the other omrahs, would by no means consent to his resignation. This so much disgusted the conspirators, that they took every possible measure to make a breach. between the prince and his minister. Shere, finding that he had no security but in maintaining his power by the unlimited, use he made of it, justly excited the prince's jealously to such a pitch, that one night, the prince, accompanied by his

A D 1535 6 omrahs, fled to Mahmood of Bengal, and, implored his aid to expel Shere, who had, usurped his throne *

Shere, by this event, became lord of all Behar, and grew-

^{*} See reign of Mahmood Shah. p. 142.

daily more and more formidable. One Tajl was at this time governor of the strong fort of Chunar which he had held for himself ever since the death of Ihrabim Lody emperor of Hindoostan. His wife Lodi Melleki who was harren yet for whom he had a very great affection, being envied by his other wives by whom he had children, they instigated their sons to make away with her but one of the sons, who had undertaken the murder missed his blow and only inflicted a slight wound Taji slarmed by her cries came to her assistance, and drew his sword to kill his son The son, seeing no means of escape, assaulted his father and slew him. The sons of Taji were yet too young to be en trusted with the government and Lodi Malleki drew the reins into her own hands by her address among the Chiefs and Zemindars Shere, Informed of these transac tions, set a treaty of marriage on foot with Lodi Malleki which was soon concluded. Shere hy these means obtained possession of Chunar and the dependant districts which was a great acquisition to his power there being a consider able treasure in the place.

Much about this time Mahmood the son of the emperor Sekunder Lody having embraced the protection of Rana Sinha, by his assistance, and that of Hassen of Mewar advanced against emperor Baber and was defeated at Janveh Mahmood flying to Chitor was from thence invited by the Chiefs of the tribe of Lody who were gathered together at Patna, and by them proclaimed king. He soon made himself master of all Behar. Shere perceiving that he could not draw the oursals over from Mahmood's interest and that he had not sufficient force to oppose him submitted to his authority and by that means saved a part of Behar, which the Sultan permitted him to retain. Mahmood told him at the same time, that if he would effectually assist him in recovering Joanpore from the Moghuls, he, in return would make over the province of Behar to him, and a contract to that effect was drawn up and executed between them

Shere, some time after, obtained leave to turn to Sehsaram, to levy troops, and Mahmood, marching with an army against the Mognuls, sent him orders to join. But as Shere delayed for some time, the Sultan persuaded by his omrahs that ne was playing a loose game, marched his army through Shere's estate on his way to Joanpore. Shere came out to meet him, had an elegant entertainment provided for his reception, and then marched with him to Joanagore. The troops of the emperor Homayon quitted the province upon their approach, so that the Afgans, took possession of the country as far as Lucknow.

Homayon lay, at this time, before Callinger, in Bundel-cund, and hearing of the progress of the Afghans, he marched against them Mahinood having, on this occasion, given a superior command to Bein Baezid, Shere, who thought himself ill-used, betrayed his master, and wrote a private letter, the night before the action, to Hindoo Beg, one of the Moghul generals, acquainting him "That he esteemed him-"self a servant of Baber's family, to whom he owed his "advancement, and that he would be the cause of defeating "the Afghans next day" He drew off his troops in the action, which occasioned Mahmoods's defeat, for which service he was greatly favoured by Homayon Mahmood, after this defeat retreated to Patna, retired from the world, and, in the year 949, died in Orissa

Homayon, after this victory, returned to Agra, and sent the noble Hindoo Beg to Shere, to demand possession of the fort of Chunar Shere excused himself, and obliged Hindoo Beg to retreat. Homeron returned immediately with his whole army to besiege Chunar and having invested it, he received a letter from Shere acquainting him "That he esteemed him self one of the servants of the house of Baber, from whom "he first obtained a government and that he had evinced "his fidelity by having been the occasion of the late victory that therefore if the king would permit him to retain the "government of the fort, he was willing to pay him the proper revenues of the lands which he held and would send his son Cuttub, with five hundred horse to be maintained at his own expence, in the emperors Service. As at this functure the affairs of Guzerat, by the conquests of Behadur required the kings presence and considering also the strength of Chunar Homayon consented to these terms and accordingly being joined by Cuttubs the son of Shere with five hundred horse, he marched towards Behadur. The Ling. however had scarcely reached Gnasrat, when Cuttuh deser ted with all his horse, and returned to his father. Shere immediately raised what forces he could and reduced Behar Not satisfied with his success he persued his fortune and penetrated into the heart of Bengal baving fought with the omrahs of that country several sharp battles, before he could make himself master of the passes which were defended a whole month

Mahmood of Bengal shut himself up in Gour the capital which Shere for a long time besteged. One of the zemindars of Behar having raised a disturbance he left khuas Khan to carry on the slege and returned to Behar Provisions be coming at length very scarce in Gour Mahmood field in a boat to Hajppore and Shere having settled affairs in Behar returned and pursued him Mahmood being necessitated to give battle was defeated and being wounded in the engagement fled to his kingdom, which immediately fell into the hands of the conqueror *

It has been before stated, that on the advance of the emperor Homayon towards Gour, Shere Khan had deemed it prudent to retire to his original patrimony at Sehsaram, where he revolved in his mind various schemes for posssessing himself of the important fortress of Rhotas, that he might there lodge in security his family. During the following years he extended his domains the immense wealth which he had brought from Bengal To take Rhotas by open force was an impossible attempt lt was therefore necessary to devise some stratagem, by which success might Stratagem for taking the fortress of be hoped Shere, for this purpose, sent a Rhotas message to Raja Berkis, who was in possession of this impregnable fortress, and told him, "that, "as he himself was going to attempt the recovery of Bengal, "he hoped that, from their former friendship, he would per-" mit him to send his family and treasure into the place, with "a few attendants" Berkis at first rejected this request, but Shere sent an artful ambassador to him a second time, with some handsome presents acquainting him, "that it was only "for his women and treasure he requested his princely pro-"tection that should he be fortunate enough to conquer

"Bengal, he would made proper acknowledgments for the [&]quot; favour on his return, but if he should lose his life in the "contest, he rather chose that his family and wealth should

[&]quot;fall into the hands of Berkis, than into those of the Mog"huls, his inveterate enemies" Berkis, suffering himself to be deluded by his avarice, determined, when once in possession of the treasure, to keep it, and therefore

^{*} See reign of Mahmood, page 144.

treachery, defeated him with great slaughter in the manner which we have already related *

Shere Khan immediately assumed the royal iosignla and titles hut deeming it more advisable to his conquest of Behar establish bimself firmly in the klordom and Bergal of Bengal that to porsue the fugitive emperor, he marched directly towards Goor In the vicinity of that city he was opposed by Jehangire Cooly Beg the Moghul governor but the great superiority in numbers of the Afghans enabled them shortly to annihilate their adversaries and Shere, having takeo possession of the city was on the following day proclaimed sovereign of the united kingdoms of Bengal and Behar under the title of Shere Shah

Shere continued in Goor till the end of the year 946 husily employed to forming arrangements

A. D 1539. for the good government of the country and lu recruiting and equipping his troops. At length having assembled an army of 50 000 Afghans he marched to attack the emperor They met lo the vicinity of Cannouge

A. D 1540. where on the 10th of the month Mohur rem, 947 the empire of Hiodoostao was again transferred from the Moghuls to the Afghans, by the total defeat of the onfortunate Homayon

When Shere Shah found it requisite to proceed against the emperor he cotrusted the government of Bengal to a

| Khizer Khas governor of Gour clies Chres Shrees | Chief named Ahlzer Khan This person, fired by that ambition which seems to torment every Mohammedan bosom shortly after the departure of his patron united himself in marriage with a daughter of Mahmood Shah

^{*} See pp #48 49

the late king of Bengal. By this connexion he conciliated a number of the dependents of the late dynasty, and, flattered by their attention, he assumed a degree of state and consequence which soon aroused the jealousy and vigilance of Shere Shah, who, judging of the sentiments of others by his own conduct, thought it requisite to clip the wings of the ambition of his deputy, he therefore, in the year 948, returned to Bengal, and Khizer Khan, having advanced some days' journey from the capital to meet him, was seized, and all his wealth confiscated.

After this, Shere proceeded to Gour, and subdivided the kingdom of Bengal into several provinces, to each of which he nominated a distinct governor. He then appointed Cazy Fazylet, a person celebrated for his learning, policy, and piety, to superintend the whole, to preserve unanimity amongst the governors, and to report to him on their conduct. Having thus settled the affairs of Bengal to his own satisfaction, Shere Shah returned, at the end of the year 948, to Agra.

The prudent measures established by this monarch kept Bengal in a state of tranquility and happiness during the remainder of his life, which was terminated by the explosion of a shell, as he was besieging the fort of Callinger in Shere's death, A D 1545 Rubby-al-Avul, A. H 952. He spent fifteen years in a military life before he mounted the throne, and he sat upon the musnud five years, as emperor of Hindoostan.

The character of Shere is almost equally divided between virtue and vice. Public justice prevailed in the Kingdom, while private acts of treachery dishonoured the hands of the king. He seemed to have made breach of faith a royal property which he would by no means permit his subjects to share with him. We ought, perhaps to ascribe this vice to the ambition of Shere. Had he been born to the throne he might have been just, as he was valient and politic in war had he confined his mind to his estate be might have merited the character of a virtuous chief but his greatness of mind made him look up to the empire and he cared not by what steps he was to ascend

Shere left many monuments of his magnificence behind him From Sonargaum in Bengal to that branch of the Indus called the Nilab which is fifteen hundred coss.* he huilt caravanserals at every stage and dug a well at the end of every coss. Besides he raised many magnificent mosques for the worship of God on the highway wherein he appointed readers of the Koran and priets. He ordered that at every stage all travellers without distinction of country or religion should be entertained according to their quality at the public expence. He at the same time planted rows of lruittrees along the roads, to preserve travellers from the scorching heat of the sun, as well as to gratify their taste. Horse posts were placed at proper distances for forwarding quick intelligence to government, and for the advantage of trade and correspondence this establishment was new in India Such was the public security during his reign that traveliers and merchants throwing down their goods went without lear to to sleep on the highway

It is said that Shere being told his heard grew white replied "it was true that he had obtained the empire towards the evening. He divided his time into four equal parts —one appropriated to the distribution of public justice one to the regulations of his army, one to worship, and the remainder to rest and recreation. He was buried at Sehsaram, his original estate, in a magnificent sepulchere which he had built in the middle of a great reservoir of water.

[.] About three thousand of our miles.

MOHANMED KHAN SOOR

Soor after the succession of Selim Shah, the second son of Shere Shah, to the throne of Dehly, he had the weakness to abrogate the prudential system of his father, and appointed one of his relations, named Mohammed Khan, to the general government of Bengal This Chief is said to have ruled with strict justice and great propriety during the whole of the reign of Selim, but when, in the year 960, the abandoned Mohammed Adil † had seized the throne, the Governor of Bengal, deeming nimself absolved from-any allegiance to the murderer of the son of his patron,

^{*} This fine monument of the magnificence of Shere still remains entire. The artificial lake, which surrounds it is not much less than a mile in circumference

The following is a poetical description of it

[&]quot;From 'midst a limpid pool, superbly high,
The massy dome obtrudes into the sky
Upon the banks more humble tombs abound,
Of faithful servants, who their chiefs surround
The monarch still seems grandeur to dispense,
And e'en in death maintains pre-eminence"

Asiatic Miscellany

[†] See History of Hindoostan, A D 1552.

-disclaimed the imperial authority and ordered the coin to be stampt in his own name

During the following year he extended his dominions by taking possession of some of the districts of Joanpore but in the year 962 having advanced at the head of a numerous army to Chopper gotta near Calpie be there met his death, in an engagement with Himm the visier of the emperor Mohammed Adii

BEHADUR SHAH

AFTER the defeat at Choppergoua, the troops of Bengul retreated to the village of Joosy in the vicinity of what is most the fort of Alishabad where the Afghan Chiefs raised in the throne Khizer Khan the son of the deceased king under the title of Behadur Shah Although this prince was sunjous to avenge the death of his father he deemed it more prudent to return to Bengul and having arranged the affairs of that province in walt a more favourable opportunity to contend for the empire of Dehiy

Upon the arrival of Behadur Shah at Gour he found that a Chief named Shabax khan had upon intelligence of the defeat of the Bengal army taken possession of that city in the name of the emperor Mohammed Adil. The usurper was however shortly abandoned by his own troops seized and put to death

After this event, Behadur Shah employed himself in tecrolting his army and in the following year 963 marched to meet the emperor Mohammed Adii The contending armies met in the vicinity of Mongier, and after a hard fought battle the emperor was Slain, and his army totally routed. This victory gave to Bahadur Shah the absolute sovereignty of Bengal and part of Behar. He is said to have ruled these territories with reputation for six years, and died at Gour in the year 968.

JELLAL ADDEEN.

Behadur Shah, dying without children, was succeeded by his brother Jellal Khan, who at the end of three years (viz. in 971) also died at Gour, and was succeeded by his son, a youth, who soon after fell by the hands of an assassin named Ghyas Addeen, who for a short time usurped the government

SOLIMAN SHAH KERANY.

Soliman Kerany takes possession of Bengal, but allows his brother, Taj Khan, to act as his deputy—Proceeds to Bengal on the death of his brother, and removes the seat of government, from Gour to Tondah—Sends presents to the emperor Akbar—Invests the fort of Rhotas, the governor of which obtains the assistance of the emperor, whose army causes Soliman; to raise the siege—Invades Orissa, and basely assassinates Sultan Ibrahim—By politic conduct he subsequently enjoys a peaceable reign, and dies much regretied by his subjects.

THE Afghan tribe of Kerany had been peculiarly distinguished by Shere Shah and his son Selim, who conferred on them handsome estates in Boujepore and the vicinity of Khuaspore Tondah Soliman's elder brother, Taj Khan

Aerany was governor of Sumhul during the reign of the emperor Selim Shah, hut on guing to pay his respect at the court of Mohammed Adli be was so disgusted with the conduct of that Infamons monarch and his Vizier that he resolved to abandon the service of so unworthy a master and retire to his paternal estates. In his progress towards Boujepore he seized a hundred elephants belonging to the emperor and a large sum of the public money the former he distributed amongst his brethren and relations and the latter he dishursed in raising troops to oppose Himu, the imperial Vizier who came in pursuit of him. They fought in the vicioity of Chunar but, although the Kernay tribe were worsted they retired with their wealth and plooder to Bouje pore and the imperial army being compelled to match against a more powerful enemy they ramained unmolested

Sollman Kersny the second hrother was appointed by Sollm Shah to the government of Behar and upon the death of that monarch, not only refused in acknowledge the authority of his successor but stimulated bis hrother Taj khan also to qolt the imperial service and to join him with his adherents. The consequence of his advice bas been already related

When, in the year 962 the emperor Molammed Adil
A D 1555 troops to those of the king of Bengal and contributed much to the victory gained over the imperial arms in the vicinity of Mongler. He continued on good terms with Behador Shah and his brother Jellai Addeen hiut when the son of the latter was assistanted by Ghyas Addeen he detached a well appointed army under the command of his brother. Taj. Khen Kerany to take pussession of Bengal

[.] See History of Hindoostan A. D 1552

This measure having been effected with little opposition, he allowed his brother to retain the government as his deputy during his life, which however only lasted one year

On the decease of Taj Kahn in the year 972, Soliman

A D 1554-5 Soliman Shah makes Tondah the capital of Bengal proceeded to Bengal, but conceiving, from the number of kings who had died at Gour, that it was either an unhealthy or an unlucky place, he made Tondah, or Tonra, the capital of his dominions #

Soon after Soliman had taken possession of Bengal, he despatched an intelligent agent with many valuable presents to the court of the emperor Akbar, † with assurances of his great respect and attachment, which conduct highly gratified and flattered the emperor, and contributed to the ease and

This account is not so correct as that generally furnished by Major Rennell, as Tondah is certainly separated from Gour by the Bagamutty river, which Mr Wilford supposes was the old bed of the Ganges See Asiatic Researches, Svo edit Vol v pp 257, 272, 277

 \dagger Akbar ascended the throne in the month of January 1556

^{*} The following is the account given of Tondah in Major Rennell's Memoir "Tondah, Tanra, or Tarrah, is situated very near the site of Gour, on the road leading from it to Rajemahel There is little remaining of this place, save the rampart, nor do we know for certain when it was deserted" It is sometimes called Khuaspore Tondah, from the original name of the district in which it was situated * comfort of the iohabitaots of Bengal, who were at that period very apprehensive of a visit from the imperial arms.

^{*} See Ayeen Akberry, Vol 11. p 177.

Soliman having reodered himself completely master of all Bengal and Behar excepting the strong A. D 1961 G. fort of Rhotas, marched with a numerous army in the year 973 and lovested that fortress. The stere had continued nearly six months, when the emperor Akhar orriving at Joanpore, Futteh Khan the governor of Rhotas implored his assistance promising to deliver up the keys of the garrison to any of his Majesty's servants who might he sent for that purpose. Akbar anxious to get possession of so Important a place, immediately sent off a chosen detachment of Moghuls to raise the sloge. In the mean time, the king of Bengal, fearful of encounteriog the imperial arms retreated to his own country and the emperor desirous to prevent his sidion the rebellious Usbec Chiefs sent an amhasandor named Mohammed Khao Selstaov to cultivate his friendship The emperor at the same period sent an amhassador to the Rain of Orlssa to form a treaty with him and to desire should Soliman jolo the rebels that the Raja would immediately lovade Bengal, and depend upon him for support and assistance

In the year 975 the emperor being engaged in the western provioces Sollman lovaded Orlssa and shortly subdued that province But this conquest was stained by an act of the grossest treachery for having invited to a conference Sultan Ibrahim who for a short period had been emperor of Dehly and after various misfortunces had acquired an establishment to that country he hasely assassinated him.

[.] See History of Hindoostan Vol ii p 197

Soliman, having left a deputy to govern Orissa, returned, in 976, to his capital. In the following year he invaded and plundered the district of Cooch Behar, but was recalled from thence, by intelligence that the people of Orissa had risen and driven away his governor. Upon his return to Tondah, he detached a forceto recover his authority in Orissa, and having effected this point, he afterwards limited his ambition to the security and improvement of his dominions

Although Soliman insisted upon his courtiers addressing him by the title of "Your Majesty," he never assumed the umbrella, or other insignia of royalty, and as he continued from time to time to send presents to the emperor Akbar, and affected to hold his dominions of that monarch, he, by this politic conduct, enjoyed a quiet and peaceable reign, and died at his new capital in the year '981, much regretted by his subjects, and highly respected by all his contemporaries

DAOOD KHAN

Daood Khan assumes independence and proceeds to hostilit es with the empeter Akoar—Trosty concluded with which Daood is dissatisfied and puts his general to death—Si-ge of Patina—Hijy pore taken by assault—Dacod purilianimously fikes from Pa na and its garrison is destroyed—Retrests with his treature to On a an expartial success of the Alghans—Daood concurrates his forces at Cuttack—After a hard fought buttle retreats to the fort of Cuttack—Throws himself on the emperor's elemency—Swears allegance and obtains the province of Orissa—Monaim Khan removes the seat of government from Tondah to Cour—Dre dial Pestil nee at Gour—Daood on the drath of Monaim Khan raises an army of Afghans and recovers Benga.—M de prisoners and put to ceath. Conclusion of the Afghan (commonly called Patan) soverrights

Upon the death of Soilman Kerany his eldest son Bayesid assumed the relus of government but the Afghan Chiefs, being dissatisfied with him in a few months put him to death and raised to the throne Daood Khan the second son.

This prince who was addicted to wine and bad company forsook the prudent measures of his father and assuming all the insignia of royalty ordered the Kbutbeh* to be proclaimed in his own name through all the towns of Bengal and

A D 1573. Behar and directed the coin to be stamped with lis own title, thus completely setting at defiance the authority of the emperor Akbar

[•] A prayer for the reigning monarch permitted only to be used for independent sovereigns

Shortly after Daood Khan's succession, he inspected the public treasure, which he found to be immense. He also ordered a general muster to be taken of his arm, and war establishment, which is said to have consisted of 40,000 well-mounted cavalry, 140,000 infantry of different descrip-

Daood proceeds to hos thities with the emperor Albar tions, 20,000 pieces of cannon of various calibres, 3,600 elephants; and several hundred warboats. With such a force he thought himself equal to contend with the emperor Akbar, and, upon some slight pretence, ordered a force to march into the Moghul territories, and to take possession of the fort of Zemanich, situated on the southern bank of the Ganges, a little above Ghazypore, which a few years before had been erected by Khan Zeman, the imperial captain-general, as a frontier garrison.

When intelligence of this event reached the emperor, who was at that time in Guzerat, he determined upon annexing Bengal to the imperial dominions, and sent immediate orders to Monaim Khan, his general, commanding in the province of Joanpore, to assemble an army and invade Behar. This mandate was quickly carried into execution, and a powerful Moghul army advanced to the vicinity of Patna. There they were opposed by Lody Khan, the generalissimo and primeminister of Daood Khan, and after some skirmishing, a truce was concluded, the articles of which were, that, upon condition of the Moghuls retiring from Behar, the king of Bengal should pay the sum of two lacs (200,000), of rupees, in ready money, to the imperial treasury, and should present the emperor with silks, muslins, and other productions of Bengal to the amount of 100,000 rupees more

Daood Khan, when freed from the apprehension of the invading foe, affected to find fault with Lody Khan's conduct

The Moghuls pursued the remainder of the fugitives as far as Derrispore nearly fifty miles from Pains, and seized upon 400 elephants and many other valuable articles

The emperor remained six days at Derriapore and previous to his leaving it, to return to Agra, appointed Monaim Khan who also bore the lofty title nf Khan Khanan (Inrd of lords) to the government of Behar and Bengal and in addition to the troops which that nnhleman had previously with him he ordered 10 000 chosen cavalry under the command of Raja Todermul to join him He also presented him with all the boats and stores which were brought from Agra, and ordered him to pursue and extingate Daood Khan and his adherents from those provinces.

Upon the arrival of Daood Khan at the pass of Terriagurry he stopt to examine the state of the fortifications with which he was so well contended that he told the garrison he depended upon their stopping the progress of his enemies for a year and that at all events he expected they would defend themselves to the last extremity after which he proceeded with a more tranqual mind in Tondah, his capital

The hopes of the king were however much disappointed, for on the approach of the imperial general, the Afghans terrified by the horrid example made of the garrison of Haypore could not he brought to stand the assault, hut shamefully took to flight and Monalm khan obtained possession of that important pass the key of Bengal, without the loss of a man.

When intelligence, of this unexpected event reached Daood Khan, despairing of being able to contend with his adversaries, he loaded his treasure and valuable effects upon elephants, and took the route of Orissa.

Monalm Khan, not aware of the Intentions of the king-of Bengal, proceeded towards Tondah with much circumspection. but when his spies informed him that Daood Khan

A D 1547 had again retreated, he advanced rapidly with his cavalry, and on the 4th of Jummad Assany (5th month), 982, took possession of the capital of Bengal without opposition

Some days after this event, the imperial general despatched Raja Todermul, with a well-appointed army, in pursuit of the fugitive king, and at the same time detached Mujenun Khan Kakeshelan with a considerable force, to take possession of Ghoragot, the jagier or estate of Soliman Mongely, an Afghan Chief of considerable consequence. But this measure was not so easily effected, for the Afghans, fighting in defence of their property and families, behaved with great courage, and slew a multitude of their enemies. At length, overpowered by numbers, they were nearly all extirpated, and their wives and children made captives.

Mujenun Khan confiscated all the Afghan estates, and divided them amongst his own dependents of the tribe of Kakeshelan, but encouraged his soldiers to unite themselves in marriage with the Afghan females, and took for his son the daughter of Soliman Mungely, the deceased Chief

The Raja Todermul having advanced to Medarun, (Bheerbhoom), there received intelligence that Daood Khan had halted at Ryn Kesary, and, instead of continuing his retreat, was collecting his dispersed troops, with an intention of again opposing the imperial arms. This news compelled the Raja to halt, and to send off an express to Monaim Khan at Tondah. The imperial governor, immediately on receiving this unexpected intelligence, detached a second army, under the command of Mahmood Cooly Khan, to the assistance of the Raja, who, after the arrival of the reinforcement, proceeded to Gualior which was twenty miles from Ryn Kesary. He there learned that Joneid a cousin of the king of Bengal, who was celebrated for his courage and intrepldity had arrived with a nomber of his followers at that place on his way to join the king. The Raja, setting too little consequence on his coemy ordered two brigades under the command of Abul Cossim, to attack Joneid but they were repulsed with much disgrace and slaughter and the Raja was compelled to march with all his force to their assistance "The Afghaus unable to oppose such a oumber of enemies dispersed themselves in the woods and on the following day effected their juection with the king

Immediately after this event, the pusilianimous Drood Khan again retreated and the Moghul Chiefs advanced to Midnapore a town which has since giveo its name to the district formerly called Jellasir At this place the imperial army halted for some days during which time Mohammed Cooly Khan died, and dissentions breaking out immediately after amongst the Moghol Chiefs the Raja Todermul, who was in fact an alien amongst them and was always dubious of his own authority having called a council of the principal officers of the army determined to return to Burdwan and there to walt for further instructions from the governor general

When this disagreeshle intelligence was communicated to Monaim Khan he ordered a second reinforcement under the command of some cefebrated officers to foin the Raja and made proparations to follow with all the Moghul forces that could possibly be spared from the defence and protection of the newly-conquered dominions

The Raja, having been joined by the confederate forcer again advanced to Midnapore and thence to Bukhtore At the latter place he received information that the king of Bengal had retired with the whole of his forces to Cuttack Benaras, where he was resolved to defend himself to the last extremity.

This event caused the Raja again to halt, and wait the junction of the governor-general, who proceeding from Tondah by rapid marches, shortly united his forces with those of the Raja; and the whole of the imperial army then advanced towards Cuttack

On the 20th of the month Zykad (11th month) 982, the Moghuls came in sight of the Afghan camp, which was covered in front by strong entrenchments, but as Daood Khan had resolved to 11sk the fate of another battle, he drew out his army in front of the camp, and waited with great determination the attack of the enemy. The numbers on both sides were nearly equal, but the Afghans had two hundred furious elephants placed along their line, by whose strength they hoped to break through the squadrons of their opponents, and to clear a road for the more active operations of their cavalry.

On the other side, Monaim Khan had brought with him a number of swivels and small guns mounted upon carriages, much more dreadful in their effect than the charge of the huge animals

This battle was contended with greater obstinacy than had ever occurred between the two nations for although the guns succeeded in putting the elephants to the route, and driving them back on their own line, yet the Afghan cavalry charged with such resolution, that the Moghul line was thrown into great confusion, their commander-in-chief was wounded, and his horse becoming unmanageable, he narrowly escaped being captured.

At length, Gujer Khan* and several of the best Aighan officers having fallen, Dacod Khan was alarmed and fied to the fort of Cuttack, leaving his camp to be plun dered by the enemy

The Moghuls, although victors, had suffered so much in this engagement, that they did not pursue the fugitives but halted five days on the field of battle to bury their dead and to arrange plans for sending away their wounded. They afterwards proceeded, by easy stages, till they reached the banks of the Mahanuddy one mile from Cuttack where they encamped and commenced making preparations for the siege of the fort.

Daood Khan, now driven to the extensity of his dominions, and aware that Cottack was his last stake was much alarmed for the consequence, and, by the advice of his counsellors, resolved to throw himself upon the elementy of the victors. He therefore sent an ambassador to the imperial general whn represented that it was contrary to every principle of the religion of the followers of Mohammed to exturpate their brethren, and that it would well accord with the emperor a liberality to allow his master to retain a small portion of his former dominions, in which he and his adherents might pass their lives in peace and quietness, and be numbered amongst the imperial servants

The eloquence of the ambassador and the justness of his representation, together with a wish of terminating the war induced Monaim Khan to accede to the proposal and he

There is a tradition that one of the Alghan emperors ennobled all this countrymen in Hindustan in consequence of which, every person of that nation now assumes the title of Khan (Lord)

agreed, that if Daood Khan would in person make the request the would comply with his wishes, and strongly recommend his case to the consideration of the emperor

On the following day, Daood Khan, attended by several of his Chiefs, left the fort, and was received in the Moghul camp with every mark of respect and attention. The troops were drawn out to salute him; and all the Chiefs, seated, according to their rank, in the tent of audience, waited his approach. When he arrived at the bounds of the camp, he was met by several officers, and as he approached the place of interview, Monaim Khan advanced a considerable distance to embrace him

Daood Khan was highly gratified by these marks of kindness, and unbuckling his sword, gave it to the general, saying, "as my opposition has been the cause of such a "friend being wounded, I henceforward relinquish the title "of a soldier." Monaimi Khan took his hand, and led him to the seat of honour. After a short time, an elegant entertainment was brought in, and the king having feasted, the subject of the treaty was introduced

The king swore by every thing that was sacred, if the emperor would make a proper provision based to the emperor life, one of his most faithful subjects and would never, in any manner, aid or abet his enemies.

This declaration having been committed to writing, was signed and sealed by the king after which the general rose from his seat, and, presenting him with a rich and valuable scimitar, said, "as you are now become one of the servants of the illustrious emperor of Hindustan, in his name I present you with this sword, which I request you will use in this service and defence and in order that you may wear it.

with proper dignity and effect, I bestow on you in his Ma-"jesty's name, the province of Orista in free gift not doubting but that you will benceforward prove yourself a faithful and loyal subject.

After this conversation, many costly presents were brought in by the attendants, and laid before the king who having signified his acceptance in the usual manner took his leave and was attended to the bounds of the camp with the same ceremonies as he entered it.

Monaim Rhan being anxions to return to the seat of government, marched on the following day and on the 18th of the month Suffer (and month) 983 A D 1575 triumphantly entered Tondah. During his absence, the Afghans of Ghorsgot had risen and having driven away their new governor Mujenun Ahan had ex tended their depredation as far as Gour hut on the approach of the imperal army they dispered and concealed themselves in the woods to wait for a more favourable opportunity Monaim Khan having heard much of the ancient and from Tondah to desolate city of Gour went to view it The seat of go-vernment removed and was so much delighted with the situation and its many princely edifices that he resolved again to render it the seat of government. To effect this plan although it was then the season of the rains, he ordered the troops and all the public officers to remove from Tondah to Gour Whether owing to the dampness of the soil the Dreadful pesti badness of the water or corrupted state of lence at Goor the air a peatllence very shortly broke ou amongst the troops and inhabitants. Thousands died every day and the living tired with burying the dead threw them into the river without distinction of Hindoo or Mohammedan. The governor became sensible of his error, but it was too late. He was himself seized with the contagion, and at the end of ten days bade adieu to this transitory world This event occurred in the month Rugib, 7th month A H 683

Monaim Khan was a nobleman highly respected and held the titles of Army-al-Omarh and Sepah Salar for fourteen years. During his government of Joanpore, he expended much money on public buildings, and the celebrated bridge at that city still stands a monument of his magnificence, and of the skill of the architect. As he died without heirs, his immense wealth became the property of the crown

The death of Monaim Khan served as a signal for a general

The Afghans, under Daood Khan, recover Bengal insurrection of the Afghans They assembled from all quarters, and Daood Khan, the deposed king, forgetting his oath of allegiance to the emperor, placing himself again at their head, quickly compelled the Moghuls, then commanded by Shahem Khan Jellair, to retire from Bengal, and to take refuge in Hajypore and Patna

As soon as intelligence of death of Monaim Khan reached the imperial court, the emperor appointed Hussein Cooly Khan, then governor of the Punjab, to the government of Bengal, with the title of Khan Jehan but the principal part of

In the year 1773, a brigade of British troops, under the command of Sir R Barker, in their return from Oudh, having embarked on the river Goompty, at Sultanpore, in the height of the rainy season, sailed over this bridge, which suffered no damage from the violence of the current, although the bottom of the river is, in other places, covered with shifting sands that Chief's forces being in the district of Lahore, several months elapsed before be could reach Bengal, during which period the Afghans increased in number and strength. Thus Daood Khan found bimself again at the bead of a formidable army of 50,000 borse and had these troops been possessed of that bravery which has been often evinced by the Afghan nation the emperor Akbar would have found it one of his most ardnous undertakings to extirpste them from a country possessing such natural advantages.

Early io the year 984 the new governor who during his march had been joind by all the expelled Moghuls came in front of the pass of Terriagury which be found was garrisoned by 3.000 chosen Afghans. He hesitated oot to attack the entrenchments, and by superiority of courage and oumbers, succeeded in getting possession of them at the expense of the lives of many of bis men, for on this occasion the Afghans fought with great spirit, and the major proportion of the garrison fell in the conquest.

The king of Bengal had taken post, with the greater part of his army, in the strong situation of Agmshel (now called Rajemahel) protected on one flank by the mountains, and on the other by the river Ganges In this position be defended himself for several months till the Moghul governor baving been reinforced by the imperial troops of Patna, Tirboot, and other places, on the 10th of Rubby sl Akbir (4th month) 984 made a general assault upon the Afghan lines and by the assistance of some artillery sent by water from Agra succeeded to forcing them Joneid herany the consin of Daood haban upon whom the Afghans had great dependence and several other generals were killed or wounded by cannon balls, and the troops, terrified by the dreadful effects of these Made prisoner, and put to death weapons, took to flight, and left their king a prisoner in the hands of his enemies

When Daood Khan was brought before the Moghul governor, he was upbraided with his perfid; to the emperor, and having little to say in his defence, he was condemned as rebel, and his head sent by an express messenger to

A D $_{1576}$ Agra This event occurred in the year $_{984}$, being the 20th year of the reign of the emperor Akbar.

With Daood Khan terminated the line of the Bengal kings who had reigned in succession over that country for 236 years, and with him was brought to a conclusion the sovereignty of the Afghan* nation over that province, of which they had held the uncontrolled possession for nearly four centuries

The government of the Afghans in Bengal cannot be said to have been monarchical, but nearly resembled the feudal system introduced by the Goths and Vandals into Europe Bukthyar Khulijy and the succeeding conquerors made choice of a certain district as their own domain—the other districts were assigned to the inferior chiefs, who subdivided the lands amongst their petty commanders, each of whom maintained a certain number of soldiers, composed principally of their relations or dependants—These persons however did not cultivate the soil themselves, but each officer was the landlord of a small estate, having under him a certain number of Hindoo tenants, to whom from the principle of self-interest, he conducted himself with justice and moderation and had it not been for the frequent change of masters, and constant scenes of rebellion and iovasion in which private property was little regarded the cultiva tors of the soll would have been placed in a state of comparitive happiness and agriculture would have flourished as it subsequently did in another part of India under the government of their countrymen, the Robillas.

^{*} The Afghan is generally called the Patan empire, but the latter word is unknown to the present Afghans, and is not, I believe, used by any of the ancient historians

The condition of the upper classes of Hindoos must doubtless have been much deteriorated but it is probable that many of the Afghan officers, averse to business or frequently called away from their homes to attend their Chiefs farmed out their estates to the opuleot Hiodoos, who were also permitted to retain the advantages of manufactures and commerce.

The authority of the Afghan kings of Bengal depended much upon their personal ability and cooduet. We have seen them, on some occasions, acting as despotic sovereigns at other times possesing little or no influence beyond the town or city in which they resided,—often insulted, and even murdered by their menial servants.

SECTION VI.

~~0*~*~~

GOVERNORS UNDER THE MOGHUL DYNASTY*

HUSSEIN COOLY KHAN, KHAN JEHAN.

After the victory at Agmahel (Rajmahel), Khan

Jehan collected all the plunder and elephants of the Afghan camp, and sent them under the charge of Raja Todermul, to the presence of the emperor Akbar He then detached a large force, under Muzuffir Khan, to pursue the fugitives, who had taken refuge in the hilly districts of Behar, with orders, after having extirpated them, to lay siege to the fort of Rhotas

These services were ably performed by Muzussir Khan, and in the year 986, after a blockade of many months, that impregnable fortress was delivered up, by capitulation, to the imperial arms. The governor also sent a considerable force into Orissa, to seize the family and remaining property of Daood Khan, which being effected, he, in the same year, compelled the Raja of

^{*} For the history of the Moghuls, the reader is referred to the Life of Baber, in Dow's Hindoostan, and if he wishes for further information, to Gibbon's, Roman Empire, under the article Zingis Khan.

Cooch Behar to pay a tribute and to acknowledge himself a vascal of the empire

Khan Jehan employed himself with much perseverance and fidelity to regulate his government, and before his death which happened in the vicinity of Tondah in the end of the year 986 the whole of the provinces of Behar Bengal and Orissa, including Cuttack, were again annexed to the empire of Hindussan.

MUZUFFIR KHAN TIRBUTTY

Muzuffir Khan appointed governor of Bengaj—In consequenceof regulations in the financial system the Moghul Chiefs of Bengal rebel and take possersion of Gour—The Chiefs of Benga alterwards mutmy for the same reason and, uniting with those of Bengal lay siege to Tondah, which they take, and murder the governor

When intelligence of the death of khan Jehan reached the emperor he was much affected and sent letters of condolence and honorary dresses to the brother and relations of the deceased. But as it was requisite that an officer of known courage and tried abilities should be immediately appointed to that important government to prevent any

A. D 1579. insurrection of the Afghans, an express was sent, early in the year 987 to Muzuffir Khan the conqueror of Rhotas nominating him governor-general of the three provinces; but in order to give him more leisure to attend to his military and political duties, his majesty was graciously pleased to appoint Ral Patter Doss and Meer Adhum to be joint superintendents of the revenue, Rizvy Khan to be pay master-general, and Abul Futteh to be supreme judge. The effects of this arrangement were shortly evinced, for although no revenue had been remitted from Bengal by the former governor under pretence that the great military establishment had absorbed the whole, Muzusiir Khan, in the first year, sent to court five lacs of rupees in specie, a number of elephants and a large collection of the valuable manufactures and natural productions of that country.

It has been before stated, that when in the year 982, Monaim Khan had taken possession of the capital of Bengal he detached Mujenun Khan Kakeshelan to take possession of Ghoragot, and that the said Chief, having performed the service immediately divided the jagiers or estates of the Afghans amongst his own followers

This system of military service was perfectly congenial to the wishes of the Moghuls, and every Chief, in succession, established himself and his dependents in the district to which he had been first appointed, and the late governor Khan Jehan, being only solicitous about extirpating the Afghans, allowed them to continue in undisturbed possession. But when the new system of finance was introduced by the Emperor Akbar, the governor was directed to call upon these officers for the muster-returns of their brigades, and to demand from them balance of revenue exceeding the amount required for the regular payment of the army. He was further ordered frequently to change the jagiers, to prevent the troop establishing themselves in any one place

The first persons to whom these orders were communicated were, Khaledy Khan, who had obtained possession of Jellasore, and Baba Khan, who had succeeded to the command of the clan of Kakeshelan in Ghoragot These Chiefs remonstrated strongly against the orders, but the governor continuing unmoved by their solicitations, they shaved their heads and having put on mourning, declared they would part with their jagiers only with their lives.

They then crossed the river and having taken possession of the city of Gour sent expresses to their adherents to join them with all possible despatch and to seize upon any of the limperial treasure which they might find in the districts through which they passed

The governor much slarmed at these proceedings secured all the boats on the western side of the river and endeavour ed to collect a body of troops on which he might depend. In the mean time the emperor having been informed of the muliny and apprehensive lest it might become general thoughout the army sent an order to the governor reprimanding blin for the barahness of his conduct, panegyrising the former fidelity and attachment of the tribe of Kakeshelan, and assuring the mulineers of the imperial forgiveness if they would return to their allegiance and duty

However hart the feelings of the governor might be at the receipt of this order he immediately forwarded it to the rebels, who pretending implicit obedience to the imperial mandate, only requested that the governor would send to them Livy khan the paymaster general and Putter Dors, the superintendent of the rerenue to assure them of his forgiveness and reconcillation but no sooner had these officers crossed the river than they were thrown into confinement, and the rebels became more unreasonable in their demands

At the same time that the alteration had taken place in the financial system of Bengal a separate paymaster-general and superintendent of revenue had been appointed to the province of Behar and these officers, having also endeavoured to carry into execution the orders of the court, gave moch offence to the military commanders; the troops in Behar rose in arms, and, placing Masoom Cabooly at their head, put the superintendent of the revenue to death, and caused the paymaster to flee. They afterwards advanced to Terriagurry, and, having forced the pass, effected a junction with the mutineers of Bengal

The rebels then laid siege to Tondah; the fortifications of which being very weak, and the garrison every day deserting to the enemy the governor was compelled to yield without any conditions. He was immediately murdered, and all his wealth plundered by the insurgents. Having discovered, amongst the state prisoners a nobleman, named Sief Addeen Hussein, who had been banished to Bengal by the emperor, the insurgents released him, and dignified him with the title of generalissimo.

By this unexpected and strange event, the provinces of Behar and Bengal were again torn from the hands of the emperor, and Akbar had now to contend against 30,000 cavalry of his own nation and subjects, and for a cause in which he could not hope for the cordial co-operation of his army. This event occurred in the year 988. The historians of Akbar have endeavoured to throw the blame of this rebellion upon the governor, who, in fact, appears merely to have obeyed the orders of his court.

RAIA TODERMUL

The emperor appoints Raja Todermul to the Comm ind of an army against the rebol Chiefs—Great influence of the Raja over the Hindoss—Prevalls on the zemindars not to supply the rebol army with provisions by which its leaders are obliged to separate—Restores Behar to the imperial authority—Complains to the emperor of the misconduct of the Vizier who is in consequence deposed—Socceeds in quelling a rebollion in Oudh—The emperor supersedes in him in his command, and appoints Aszim Khan governor of Behar to the united government of the provinces of Bengal Behar and Orrissa.

Write intelligence of these unitoward occurrences reached Agra, the emperor fearing to trust any of his Moghnl A. D 15%.

A. D 15%. officers assigned the command of a numerons army to the Hindoo Raja Toder mul and gave him a commission, authorising him to call upon all the governors jagierdars zemindars &c. upon his route to join him and co-operate with him in subduing the rebels.

When the Raja arrived at Joanpore the governor Moham med Masoom Ferunjudy a Moghol officer came out to meet him and displayed to him a corps of 3,000 chosen cavalry all in complete armont with which he offered to join the imperial troops. Although the Raja perceived that he was a vain young man full of his own consequence and upon whom little dependence could be placed he nevertheless thought it better to take with him so anspected a character than to leave him with such a force in the rear of his army he therefore accepted his offer and by flattery and attention, endeavoured to attach him to the royal cause

The political conduct of Akbar, in employing the Hindoo Chiefs, was attended with the most salutary effects—they were always accompanied by a large—body either of their own clan, for of Rajepoots (the military tribe), who into only served to support the Moghul troops, now inadequate to retain in subjection so extended an empire, but were also useful as a check upon the latter, when refractory or dissatisfied.

The Raja continued his march without opposition till he reached Mongier in the month of Jemmad-A D 1580 al-Akher, 988. Here he learned that the rebel army, consisting of 30,000 cavalry, were encamped at Bhagalpore, thirty-eight miles to the southward of Mongier, waiting to give him battle. As it is a system of the Hindoos never to risk the fate of a general engagement except in cases of extreme necessity, the Raja took possession of Mongier, and employed his troops in constructing additional lines, extending to the hills, which, with the fort, completely covered the front of his army. This precaution was not unnecessary. for in a few days two of his Moghul chiefs with their corps, deserted to the enemy. Both armies remained in this situation for several months, and frequent skirmishes took place between their light troops At length the Raja, by his influence amongst the Hindoo zemindars prevailed upon them no longer to supply the rebels with provisions, promising to pay them ready-money for every thing they brought to his camp this he was enabled to do by the attention of the emperor, who sent him 500,000 rupees in specie, by post. The combined effects of similarity of religion and readymoney payments worked so effectually on the zemindars, that famine shortly found its way into, the rebel camp, and compelled the Chiefs to separate, in order to obtain food. The distress of the rebels was further increased at this time by the death of Babe Khan the Chief of the Kakeshelans.

Masoom Cabuly proceeded to Behar Jehhahurdy whu had succeeded to the command of the Kakeshelans, returned to Khuaspore Tondah, and Arab Behadur made a sudden march by a circuitous route on Paina, in hopes of surprising that city which was only garrisoned by a small party of loyalists.

The Raja having ubtained accurate lutelligence of their proceedings sent a chosen detachment to reinforce Patna, and proceeded with the main body of his army towards Behar When arrived within one march of that city the rebels made an attack by night upon his army in hopes of taking him by surprise hut they met with so warm a reception that, after losing a number of their men, they were compelled to retreat and as the fortifications of Behar could afford them no security they abandoned that province and continued their route to Bengal Thus by the prudent and political measures of the Raja, the province of Behar was, in the first campaign, restored to the Imperial authority

The Raja cantoned his army during the rainy season of A. D 1580.

A. D 1580.

Munsoor had caused a great defection in his army by calling on several of the chiefs who necompanied him to account four balances due by them in their former commands that such conduct, at a time when defection was so general amongst the troops, was in the highest degree impolitie and if persevered in, must, by disunting the army tend to the ruin of the imperial affairs he further added that in consequence of the demand made on Masoom Ferunjudy he had been obliged to allow him to return with his troops to his government.

of Joanpore, not without suspicions that his intentions were disloyal.

The representations of the Raja were so sensibly felt by the emperor that he immediately deposed the Vizier and, as the throne of Akbar was at no period so shaken as by the rebellion here described, the emperor found himself under the necessity of begging the services of old omrahs who were in disgrace, or had retired from the court in disgust Aazim Khan Mirza Koke, a nobleman of great repute, was requested to take the command of 5,000 horse, and to proceed, as governor, to Behar. The emperor went himself to the house of Shereif Khan Atke, and having conferred on him an honorary dress, invited him to return to court, and assist him with his counsels.

In order to reconcile Masoom Ferunjudy, he was promoted to the government of Oudh, and Tersoom Khan, another of the dissatisfied generals in Raja Todermul's army, was appointed to Joanpore. The former accepted the appointment, but, soon after his arrival in Oudh, raised the standards of rebellion. The governor of Joosy and Priag, now called Allahadad, having also rebelled, Raja Todermul was obliged to detach part of his army, under the command of Shahbaz Khan, to assist in quelling the disturbances in Oudh. This important service was effected in the

A D 1581 last month of the year 988, by the complete overthrow of Masoom Ferunjudy, and the capture of his family and all his wealth.

It may appear extraordinary, that a prince possessed of so much bravery and activity as the emperor Akbar, should not have placed himself at the head of the army, to put down so serious a rebellion, but, upon a reference to the History of Hindoostan, it will be found, that his attention was at the same time distracted by disturbances in Malwait and Guzerat, and that his own brother Mirza Mohammed Hakeem an investor of Hindoosten from Colini Assim Khan having arrived with his army at Behar endeavoured more by reconciliation than by force to bring the rebels back to their duty but, falling

A D 1592 to success he proceeded in the year ooo, to Agra to meet the emperor after bis rejulni from Cabul and there laid before his majesty a full and melancholy statement of the exitera provinces.

The emperor baving taken into mature deliberation the dangerous state of Bengal and the evil consequences of divid ed authority superseded Raja Todermul, and appointed Assim Khan whose title was now changed to Khan Aazim to the united government of Bengal, Bobar and Orlssa 'He at the same time commanded all the troops at the capital which had not been on the expedition to Cabul to attend the new governor and firmly to re-establish the Imperial authority in those provinces

KHAN AAZIM MIRZA KOKÉ.

Khan Aazim, by sowing dissension among the rebel Chiefs, succeeds in re-establishing the royal authority in Bengal, and takes quiet possession of Tondah—Solicits the emperor's permission to resign his government—The Afghans hader Cuttulu Khan having extended themselves in considerable force over Orissa, Khan Aazim deputes Fereed Addeen Bokhary to conclude a truce with them—Fereed gives offence to one of the Afghan commanders, and hastily retires, losing several of his people on his return—The imperial troops advancing to resent the insult offerred to their ambassador, the Afghans, retreat to their forests—Khan Aazim returns to Agra, and resigns his employment.

It would be tedious to narrate the various, encounters between the rebels and the loyal troops or to detail the numerous stratagems and intrigues by which the new governor attempted to recover the royal authority it may suffice to say, that the success of Khan-Aazim was greater than the apparent means he possessed. Having, by bribery and skilful agents, sown dissension among the rebel Chief, the tribe of Kakeshelan submitted to his authority * and the followers of

^{*} It is probable that Khan Aazim restored to them, their lands on certain condition, as Dr F Buchanan, who has been lately employed by the Bengal government in taking a statistical survey of the country on the north-east of the river. Ganges, was surprised at the number of Mohammedans which he found in those districts These are, in all likelihood, the descendants of the Afghans and Kakeshelans, softened, in the course of two centuries, by intermixture with the Hindoos, for, besides the children which they had by Hindoo, women, they used to purchase a number of boys during a scarcity, and educate

Masoom Cabuly formking him he was obliged to seek refuge with some of the zemindars, who had taken pity on

A D 1582, his deplorable situation In short, Khan Azim before the end of the year 990 obtained quiet possession of the city of Tondah, the capital of Bengal, and one? Inore re established the imperial anthority over that couldity but being sfraid of the unhealthiness of the climate, and desirous of returning to his family be requested that a successor might be immediately appointed.

During the revolt of the Moghul troops, the scattered Afghans had again collected in Orissa, under the command of a Chief named Cottuin Khan and having taken complete, possession of that province, they extended their dominion over the districts of Midaspore and Rissumtpore, leaving the river Dummoods as the barrier between them and the Mothulis.

As soon as Khan Aszim had takeo possession of Bengal his attention was directed towards those troublesome neighbours and lo the year 991 be seot

A. D 1583.

a considerable army to expel them from those districts but the chief to whom he cotrusted the comm

those districts but the chief to whom he cotrusted the comm and of the expedition, not feeling himself sufficiently powerful to repel the Lightans by force deputed the celebrated Fereed Addeen Bokhary author of the History of the emperor Jehangire who held a considerable command in the Imperial army to conclude a truce with Cuttula Khan

Fereed proceeded from Burdwan with an escort of three them in the Mossulman religion. These boys and all other converts, were allowed to take the Arabian title of Shaikh and the posterity of those are, perhaps now mora numerous then the genulse descendants of the stock to which they all ascribe their origin hundred chosen horse, and was met at the distance of four miles from Khoram by Cuttulu Khan. Both parties alighted from their horses, and having embraced, again mounted, and proceeded towards the fort, on the outside of which Cuttulu Khan had pitched a suit of tents, and prepared a grand entertainment for the ambassador

Previous to the commencement of the feast, the Afghan Chief introduced one of his commanders, named Behadur Khan, to the ambassador, but the latter, who prided himself on being a descendant of the Arabian prophet, did not receive him with sufficient respect, on which the revengeful Afghan retired, in disgust from the company, and gave orders to his adherents to be prepared to retaliate the insult. This was overheard by some of the followers of the ambassador, who communicated their suspicions to their master that treachery was intended. Fereed immediately took the hint, and, under pretence of sudden indisposition, requested leave to return to his own camp

He was permitted to depart by Cuttulu Khan, who, being probably ignorant of the circumstances, had no intention of injuring him but shortly afterwards he was attacked by Behadur Khan, and many of his people killed

This transaction threw a great stigma on the Afghan and, incensed the Moghul general, who immediately advanced from Burdwan, and compelled Cuttulu Khan to take refuge in the forests. But as Khan Aazim was at that period preparing to leave Bengal, and several of the Chiefs who had come with him from Agra were anxious to accompany him back they refused to pursue the Afghans into Orissa, and the whole army returned to Tondah

Khan Aazım having settled the affairs of Bengal and Behar resigned bis, employment, and arrived at Agra in the month of Rubby-4 Avul (3rd month of the year of 992), and was most graciously recieved by the emperor who personally thanked bim for his services.

ORIVIN VARY SARHARS

This eblef bad taken a very active part in the war of Beogal and upon the rebellion of Masoom Ferunjudy he was detached by Raja Todermul in pursuit of their rebel. He cogaged him in the city of Oode and having entirely routed him, compelled him to seek refoge with the the Rajas of the mountains, whose territories border on Oude. After this signal service, he rejoined the Rajas army at Hajypore where he was agalo usefully employed.

After Khan Assim had assumed the command of the imperial army Shahbaz Khan was detached with several other Chiefs, to ravage the estates of the kakesbelans in Ghoragot; which having effected, he subdued the country as far as the banks of the Burhampooter

In reward for these services, the emperor was pleased to appoint him to succeed to the government of Behar and Bengal upon the resignation of Khan Aazim but so invidious was that office now held that Shabbaz Khan declined the honour and had actually proceeded as far as Joanpore on his way to Agra, when he was met by a special messenger commanding him to return and assume the government, under the pain of his Majesty's displeasure

Shahbaz Aban, having returned to Bengal, experienced much difficulty to adjusting the affairs of that kingdom the tribe of Kakeshelan, and the adherents of other rebels, were still possessed of so much influence, that he found it impossible or at least dangerous, to reassume their jagiers. He therefore permitted them to retain quiet possession: and from the same motives was induced to enter into a treaty with Cuttulu Khan, the Chief of the Afghans, relinquishing to them the province of Orissa, on condition that they should retire from Bengal, and refrain from further invasion.

These acts of the new governor were not approved of at court, he was suspected of having received large sums of money for these concessions. He was therefore ordered, in the year 995, to deliver over the government to Vizier Khan Herevy, and to repair to Agra, where, upon his arrival, he was put into close imprisonment, and was not liberated for three years

Vizier Khan Herevy appointed governor, A D 1587,

Vizier Khan Herevy did not long enjoy his new dignity. He died the same year, at Tondah, without having effected any alteration in the system of his predecessor

RAJA KENORE MAN SING, OF ABNYR,

Man Sing appointed governor of Behar and Bengal-Subdues the remindar of Halvoore-Unsuccessful attempt to recover Orssa -Hrs son Jugut Sing taken prisoner by the Afghans-Makes a temporary peace with them. The Afghans seize on the temple of Tagernaut-The Raia obtains a decrave victory over them and annexes Orism to the imperial dominions-Fixes on A. mai el (Rajemahel) for his capital of the three provinces-The Afghans again rebel, and enter Bengal-Peace restored-Sultan Khusero appointed nominal governor of Orissa-The raja of Cooch Behnr maks Bengal-The governor accompanies the emperor in an expedulon against the Dekkan I on which the Alghana again invade Bengal and obtain passession of great part of the kingdom-Man Sing returns and defeats the Afghans in a desperate battle -Renons his government-Cause of his renonation-Attempts to raise his son to law the emperor's grandson, to the imperial throne-His condoct forgiven-Re-appointed governor of Bengal but soon afterwards re-called to court.

When intelligence of the death of Virler khan reached the imperial court, which at that period was in the Punjab the emperor Akbar was pleased to bestow the government of lichar and Bengal on Raja Man Sing whose sister was mirried to the prince Selim (afterwards emperor under the title of Jehangire) but as the Raja was then employed against the Afghans of Palshawur orders were sent to Styld Khin who commanded as Patna, to assume the government till kalarival of the Saja, to whom instructions were also given to proceed to cagal with all possible despatch

Man Sing arrived at Patna in year 997 Here he learned A, D 1589 that Pooruh Mull Khedurye zeminder of His/ppore had taken advantage of the disturbances in that country, in order to amass considerable wealth, and that having collected a numerous army, he had assumed a degree of influence incompatible with his situation. On this account, the Raja, being resolved to subdue the spirit of insurrection which had so long disturbed the quiet of the eastern provinces, immediately marched his army into the territories of the zemindar, and compelled him to take refuge in his fort, whence Poorun Mull, intimidated by the number of the imperial forces, sent a most humble message, offering to disband his army, to pay a large sum of money, and to give up all his elephants, provided the Raja would pardon him and allow him to retain his zemindary.

These terms were acceded to by the Raja, who immediately forwarded the elephants and money by one of his agents to court. This event was considered as an auspicious omen by the emperor who for a considerable time had received only mortifying intelligence from Bengal, and an honorary dress and congratulatory letter were sent to the Raja

Some of the Moghul officers in Ghoragot, having extended the hand of rapine over the district of Jessore, the Raja sent his son, Juggut Sing, to punish them. The Moghul Chiefs, unable to oppose the imperial army, dispersed, and concealed themselves in the woods, but Juggut Sing seized their granaries, and fifty-four elephants, the latter of which were immediately forwarded to court

Man Sing having an unfavourable opinion of the climate of Bengal, continued to reside in Behar, and allowed Sayid Khan to remain as his deputy at Tondah

About this period, the Raja caused the important fortress of Rhotas to be put into complete repair, and added to the fortifications a loft; stone gateway, part of which is still standing. He also erected a house for his own occasional residence deepened and repaired the reservoirs of water and hald out a handsome garden in the Persian style

In the year 998 the Rajz planned an expedition for the recovery of Orisms out of the hands of the A. D. r 80-00. Afghans. Having assembled the troops of Behar at Bhagulpore, he marched through the western hills to Burdwan but, previous to his setting out, he had ordered Savid Khan to march with the troops of Bengal by the route of Cutwa, and to form a innetion with him at Burdwan. Upon his arrival at this place he received an apology from his deputy stating that he had experienced so much difficulty and delay in equipping his army he was afraid the rainy season would set in before any thing could be effected against the Afghans and therefore strongly advised the Rain to canton his army till the conclusion of the rains. when he would immediately join him. The Raja was much disappointed at this intelligence hut seeing no remedy he directed cantonments to he built for the army at Jehsnahad, on the banks of the Dalkisor river not many miles distant from the present Calcutta.

Whilst the royal army was in this situation waiting the junction of the deputy-governor of Bengai Cattulu Khan ordered a division of his troops to advance to Dherpore which was within fifty miles of Jehanabad and to plunder the country in that vicinity To put a stop to the ravages of the Afghans, the Raja detached his son, Juggut Sing who compelled them to retire and to take refuge under the guns of a four a number of which had been constructed in different parts of that country. At this place they pretended to enter into a negotiation whilst they were in daily expectation of a reinforce ment from Cuttniu Khan. The young Raja was deceived by their artifices, and as soon as the additional force arrived the Afghans made an attack upon him by night, surprised his camp, took him prisoner, killed a great number of his people, and compelled the remainder to seek their safety in flight. The victory raised the spirits of the Afgans to the highest pitch of exultation whilst the Raja was overwhelmed with confusion at the disgrace, and with sorrow on occount of his son who was carried prisoner to Bissuntpore, and, according to report which prevailed for some days, had been put to death.

Fortunately for the royal cause, Cuttula Khan, who had been for sometime much indisposed, died a few days after this event, and as his children were not arrived at the age of manhood, the Afghan Chiefs released the son of the Raja, and through him, sued for peace. As the rainy season was not yet terminated, and the Raja found himself unable to undertake any active measures, he readily listened to their proposals, in consequence of which the sons of Cuttulu Khan, attended by Khuaje Issa, their minister, visited the Raja, and presented him with one hundred and fifty elephants, and many other costly articles. They then agreed, if allowed to retain quiet possession of Orissa, to stamp the coin in the name of the emperor, and to prefix his name to all public edicts. further, in complement to the Raja, they agreed to give up to him the temple of Jagernaut and its domain, held sacred by all Hindoos. The latter article highly flattered the Raja and his Brahmin counsellors and the young Afghans, after being treated with every mark of respect and attention, were clothed in dresses of honour, and permitted to return to Orissa, soon after which the Raja broke up his cantonments. and returned to Behar.

Although the emperor was displeased at the want of energy evinced by the Raja on this occasion, he would not dissolve the treaty and as long as Khuaje Issa, the prime minister of the Afghans, lived, the peace was preserved inviolate on both sides but at the end of two years that able mun quitted this transitory world, and the covetous Afghans selzed upon the rich and sacred territory of lagernaut.

This proceeding was considered as sacrilege by the pious Raja, and he requested the emperor's permission to exter muste the Afghans from that province.

Having obtained the royal sanction, Raja Man Sing in the year roce, ordered all the troops of Behar to proceed by the western road called the Jarcund route to Midnapore whilst he himself embarked with a chosen detachment, in boats and proceed log down the Ganges compelled Sayld Khan his deputy to Beneal to unite his forces on this expedition

The Afghans alarmed at these preparations assembled all their forces and having retreated across the Subaoreeka river, walted there the approach of their enemies. The con tending armies contioued for some time encamped opposite each other and daily skirmishes took place between their light troops. At length the natural impatience of the Afghans overcame their prudence they re-crossed the river and placing too much dependence upon their elephants, rushed with violence and precipitation upon the toyal array, which being drawn up with much skill in battle array having a number of guns posted along the front, waited with coolness the advance of the enemy

The fire from the royal artillery soon threw the elephants into conclusion and drove them back with terror and dismay on the Afghan line the squadroms of which having opened and allowed the elephants to pass made a desperate charge upon the Moghuls but the latter being superior in numbers resisted them with vigour. The contest lasted nearly the whole day at length the Afghans gav. way, and sought their safety in fight

The Raja pursued the enemy, and next day took possession of the city of Jellasore At this place, Sayid Khan, deputy-governor of Bengal, tired of the campaign, and envious of the reputation of his superior officer, left the army without permission, and returned to Tondah.

Notwithstanding this defection, the Raja continued to pursue the fugitives and compelled them to take refuge in Cuttack, a strong fortress, which was then in possession of Ramchund, the zemindar of the country, who had restored or changed its name to Saringghur

The Raja having invested the fortress on all sides, left his army to carry on the siege, and embraced that opportunity of going to pay his devotions at the holy temple of Jagernaut.

Whilst engaged in these solemn duties, he received several overtures from Ramchund and the Afghans in Cuttack and upon his return to that place, finding little progress had been made in the seige, he consented to grant them peace, upon condition, that the Afghans should give up all their elephants, and promise to conduct themselves, in future, as faithful subjects of the emperor; and that the zemindar should pay the revenues of the district into the royal treasury in return for which, jagiers were assigned to the Afghan Chiefs in the district of Khaleefabad, and the zemindar was allowed to retain possession of Cuttack and its dependencies. Thus the province of Orissa was again annexed to the imperial dominions, and the Raja obtained much credit for his exertions.

After this splendid conquest, the Raja returned in triumph to Behar, whence he despatched 120 elephants, taken from the Afghans to the imperial presence. He then determined upon taking charge of both the governments of Behar and Bengal and fixed upon the city of Agmahel, the name of which he changed to Rajemahel (palace of sovereignty) as the capital of the three provinces.* In this place he built a palace, and constructed a rampart of brick, strengthened with hastions, all round the town the situation of which has been before described in the reign of Daood Khan Kerany. As the city increased in size and celebrity the Mahnmmedans, as a compliment to the emperor dignified it with the title of Akbarnagur.

When the Raja returned towards Behar he left a considerable force under the command of his son Juggut Sing upon the frontier of Orissa and in the year toot the zemindar Ramchund having falled in his engagements the Moghul army again entered his country and took the forts of Jorwe Suihal, Khareghur and several other places. In the mean time some exactions having heen made from the Afghans who by the treaty of peace had been allowed to retain their jaglers they again rebelled, and having ndvaoced into Bengal plundered the royal port of Sastgong In the vicinity of the town now called Hoogly

These events again called the Raja into the field but finding it was impolitic to render the Afghans desperate he allowed them in return in their jagiers the zemindar ni Orissa, having made an apology for his past conduct, was also forgiven and peace was once more restored to that unhappy province the inhabitants ni which had been so often

This place in ancient times under the Hindoo government, was called Raje Girbe

plundered, and their fields destroyed, by the contending armies

In the year 1002, Sultan Khusero, then a child, the grandson of the emperor, was appointed nominal governor of Orissa, and a portion of its revenue assigned for his jagier and for the payment of 5,000 troops supposed to be under his command. The Raja Man Sing was confirmed as the young prince's deputy and Sayid Khan removed from Bengal, and appointed commandant of the troops in Behar. During this year, Raja Man Sing paid a visit to the emperor, and returned to his government loaded with honours.

In the year 1004, Luchmen Narain, the Raja of Cooch

Behar, whose territorry bounded on the east by the river Burhampooter, on the South by Ghoragot, on the west by Tirhoot, and on the north by the mountains of Thibet and Assam, and who is said to have possessed an army of 100,000 infantry, 4000 cavalry, 700 elephants, and 1000 war boats, came to visit the Raja Man Sing, and professed himself a vassal of the emperor This conduct gave offence to his relations and neighbouring princes, they united against him, and compelled him to take refuge in his fort, whence he wrote to the governor of Bengal, requesting him to send a force to his relief.

This event gave the Moghuls the first opportunity of entering Cooch Behar. A considerable detachment was sent, under the command of Jehaz Khan, who quickly dispersed the rebels, released the Raja, and returned to Bengal loaded with plunder.

In the year 1007, the emperor having determined on the conquest of the Dekkan, ordered Raja Man Sing to join him with as many troops as

When Rais Man Sing signified his desire of resigning his government, a nobleman, named Abdul Man Sing regions his Mnjeed Aguf Khan, was appointed to that important trust, and took charge of his office in the year 1013

government, A D 1604. Succeeded by Abdul Mujeed As (Khan-

The cause of Rais Man Sing's resignation of so valuable a government, in which he was considered as established for life, will be elucidated by the following extract from the-History of Hindoostan.

"When indisposition of the emperor Akbar rendered him incapable of attending to public business the whole weight of government fell on Khan Aszim the Vizier Selim Akbar s only surviving son notwithstanding the disputes which he formerly had with his father was still fooked upon as the heir of the empire but the Virier's daughter being married to Khusero the eldest son of Selim that minister was desirous of placing the reins of government in the hands of his son He was supported in this scheme by many of the nobles the most enterprising and powerful of whom was Rais Man Sing whose sister was mother of Lhusero. The Rais, from the antiquity of his family and his own address. commanded all the Hindoo interest in the empire and he bad, at that very time twenty thousand of his native subjects of the Rajepoot tribe in and near the environs of the capital. prepared to execute his orders. Sellm being apprised of the powerful confederacy against him walted upon his father two days before his death, and laid before bim all their schemes The emperor summoned Man Sing and the Viller to his presence reprimanded them severely and having publicly acknowledged Selim his fawful successor in the empire obliged the confederate lords to pay him homage, and to promise to support his title."*

The emperor Akbar died on the 16th of Jemmad-al-Akhir (the 6th month) of the year 1014, and October, A. D 1605 immediately upon this event, the Vizier and Raja Man Sing formed a conspiracy to place Khusero, the son of Selim, on the throne, in preference to his father. Their scheme was not successful, and the Raja and the young prince were compelled to make their escape on board a boat from Agra.

The new emperor, Jehangire, shortly forgave his son, and deemed it prudent policy to overlook the conduct of the Raja, but in order to remove the latter to a distance from the scene of intrigue, he again appointed him to the government of Bengal, with orders to proceed thither immediately, and keep in check the rebellious spirit of the Afghans

In obedience to the royal orders, Raja Man Sing returned to Bengal, but at the end of eight months, that is to say, early in the year 1015, he was re-called to court † As it frequently happens, that great events arise from apparently inadequate

^{*} See Dow's History of Hindoostan, Vol. iii

[†] Raja Man Sing was allowed to enjoy a life of ease for some years, on his paternal estates, but was afterwards appointed to the command of an army in the Dekkan, and died there A H 1023 (A. D. 1615). It is related, that sixty women were burnt on his funeral pile, and that his seraglio consisted of fifteen hundred women, by each of whom he had two or three children, all of whom died before their father, except his successor, Raja Bhao Sing him and turned his face to a foreign country. His all consisted of one sorry horse and a very small sum of money which had proceeded from the sale of his other effects. Placing his wife upon the horse he walked by her side. She happened to be with child and could ill endure the fatigue of so great a journey. Their scanty pittance of money was soon expended they had even subsisted for some days upon charity when they arrived on the skirts of the great solitudes which separate Tartary from the family of Timmr in India. No house was there to cover them from the inclemency of the weather no hand to relieve their wants. To return, was certain misery; to proceed spparent destruction

They had fasted three days to complete their misfortune the wife of Aires was taken in labour. She began to reproachher husband for leaving his native country at an unfortunate hour for exchanging a quiet, though poor life for the ideal prospect of wealth in a distant country. In this distressed situation she brought forth a daughter. They remained in the place for some hours with a vain hope that travellers might pass that way. They were disappointed human feet seldom tread these deserts. The aun declined apace they feared the approach of night the place was the baunt of wild beasts and should they escape their hunger they must fall by their own Chaja Alass in this extremity having placed his wife on the horse found himself so much exhausted that he could scarcely move To carry the child was impossible the mother could not even hold herself fast on the horse. A long contest began between humanity and necessity the latter prevailed and they arreed to expose the child on the highway. The infant covered with leaves was placed under a tree she disconsolate parents proceeded in tears.

When they had advanced about a mile from the place and the eyes of the mother could no longer distinguish the solitary tree under which she had left her daughter, she gave way to grief, and throwing herself from the horse on the ground, exclaimed, "My child!" She endeavoured to raise herself, but she had no strength to return Alass was pierced to the heart He prevailed upon his wife to sit down he promised to bring her the infant. He arrived at the place. No sooner had his eyes reached the child than he was almost struck dead with horror A black snake. it is said, was coiled around it and Aiass believed he beheld him extending his fatal jaws to devour the infant. The father rushed forward the serpent, alarmed at his vociferation, retired into the hollow tree He took up his daughter unhurt, and returned to the mother He gave her child into her arms and as he was informing her of the wonderful escape of the infant, some travellers appeared and soon relieved them of all their wants. They proceeded gradually and came to Lahore

The emperor Akbar at this time kept his court at Lahore Asuf Khan, one of that monarch's principal omrahs, attended then the presence He was a distant relation to Aiass*, and he received him with attention and friendship To employ him, he made him his own secretary Aiass soon recommended himself to Asuf in that station, and, by some accident, his diligence and ability attracted the notice of the emperor, who raised him to the command of a thousand horse He became in process of time, master of the household, and his genius being still greater than even his good fortune, he raised himself to the office and title of Actimad-ul-Dowla, or high treasurer of the empire Thus he, who had almost perished through mere want in the desert, became in the space of a few years the first subject in Todie

^{*} In the Tarikh Khafy Khan, he is called Ghyas Beg.

111

The daughter who had been horn to Alass in the desert. received soon after his arrival at Lahore, the name of Mher ul Nissa, or the Soo of women. She had some right to the appellation for in beauty she excelled all the ladies of the east. She was educated with the utmost care and attention In music, to dancing to poetry in painting she had no equal among her sex. Her disposition was volatile, her wit lively and satirical her spirit lofty and uncontrolled. Sellim the prince royal visited one day her father. When the public entertaloment was over when all except the principal guests, were withdrawn and wice was brought on the table the ladies according to custom were introduced in their vella. The ambition of Mher of Nissa aspired to a cooquest of the prioce She sung-he was in raptures she danced-he could hardly be resummed by the rules of decency to his place. Her stature her shape her gait, had raised his ideas of her heauty to the highest pitch. When his ever seemed to devour her she as hy accident, dropt her veil and shone upon him at once with all her charms. The confusion which she coold well feign on the occasion heightened the beauty of her face lier timid eye hy stealth fell upon the prince and kindled all his soul into love. He was allent for the remaining part of the evening She endea voured to coofirm by her wit the conquest which the charms of her person had made Selim distracted with his passion knew not what course Mher of Nissa had been betrothed by her father to Aly Cooly Shere Afgun a Turkomanian nohleman of great renown Selim applied to his father Akhar who sternly refused to commit a piece of injustice though in favour of the heir of his throne The prince retired abashed, and Mher-ul-Nissa became the wife of Shere Afgun. The latter, however, suffered in his prospects of life, for not having made a voluntary resignation of the lady to the enamoured prince Though Selim durst make no open attack upon his fortunate rival, during the life of Akbar, men in office worshipped the rising sun, and threw accumulated disgrace on Shere Afgun He became disgusted, and left the court of Agra He retired into the province of Bengal and obtained, from the Subahdar of that country, the superintendency of the district of Burdwan.

The passion for Mher-ul-Nissa, which Selim had repressed from a respect and fear of his father, returned with redoubled violence when he himself mounted the throne of India He was now absolute, no subject could thwart his will and pleasure He recalled Shere Afgun from the retreat He was afraid, however, to go so much against the current of the public opinion as to deprive that amyr of his wife Shere was inflexible, no man of honour in India can part with his spouse, and retain his life. His incredible strength and bravery had rendered Shere extremely popular. He was naturally high-spirited and proud, and it was not to be expected that he would yield to indignity and public shame His family, and his former reputation were high Born of noble parents in Turkomania, he had spent his youth in Persia, and had served, with uncommon renown, Shaw Ismael, the third of the Sufviye line His original name was Asta Jillo, but having killed a lion, he was dignified with the title of Shere Afgun, or the overthrower of the lion Under the latter name he became famous in India In the wars of Akbar, he had served with great reputation He had distinguished himself in a particular manner under Khan Khanan, at the taking of Sind by exhibiting prodigies of personal strength and valour.

324

Preferments had been heaped upon him and he was highly esteemed at court during the life of Akbar who loved in others that daring intrepidity for which he himself was renowned

Jehangire kept his court at Dehiv when he called Shere Afgun to the presence He received him graciously and conferred new honours upon him Shere Afgun, naturally open and generous, suspected not the emperor a intentions Time he thought, had erased the memory of Mher-ul Nissa from Jehangire's mind. He was deceived the monarch was resolved to remove his rival but the means he used were at once ungenerous and disgraceful. He appointed a day for huoting and ordered the hunt of an enormous tiger to be explored. News was 2000 brought that a tiger of an extraordinary size was discovered in the for est of Nidarbari. This savage, it was sald had carried off many of the largest oxen from the neighbouring villages. The emperor directed thither his march attended by Shere Afgun and all his principal officers with their trale of dependants. Having according to the custom of the Moghol Tartars, surrounded the ground for many miles, they begao to move toward the centre on all sides. The tiger was roused his rouring was heard in all quarters and the emperor hastened to the place The nobility being assembled Jehangire called aloud

'who among you will advance singly and attack this tiger? They looked on one another in slience then all turned their eres on Shere Afgun. He seemed not to understand their meaning. At length three Omrahs started forth from the cle and, sacrificing fear to shame fell at the emperors fact, and begged permission to try singly their strength against the formidable animal. The pride of Shere Afgun arose. He had imagined that mone durst attempt a deed so dangerous. He hoped that after the refusal of the nobles, the honour of the enterprise would devolve in course on his hands. But three had offerred themselvs for the combat, and they were bound in honour to insist on their prior right. Afraid of losing his fromer renown. Shere Afgun began thus in the presence "to attack an animal with weapons is both unmanly and unfair. God has given to man limbs and sinews, as well as to tigers he has added reason to the former, to conduct his strength." The other omrahs objected in vain, "that all men inferior to the tiger in strength, and that he could be overcome only with steel." "I will convince you of your mistakes," Shere Afgun replied, and, throwing down his sword and shield, prepared to advance unarmed.

Though the emperor was, in secret, pleased with a proposal full of danger to Shere, he made a show of dissuading him from the enterprise Shere was determined The monarch, with feigned reluctance, yielded Men knew not whether they ought most to admire the courage of the man, or to exclaim against the folly of the deed Astonishment was painted in every face, every tongue was silent Writers give a particular but incredible detail of the battle between Shere Afgun and the tiger This much is certain, that after a long and obstinate struggle, the astonishing warrior prevailed, and, though mangled with wounds himself, laid at last the savage dead at his feet. The thousands who were evewitnesses of the action were even almost afraid to youch for the truth of the exploit, with their concurring testimony The fame of Shere was increased, and the designs of the emperor failed But the determined cruelty of the latter stopt not here other means of death were contrived against the unfortunate Shere

He had scarcely recovered from his wounds, when he came to pay his respects at court. He was caressed by the emperor and he suspected no gulle. A snare however was prepared for him Jehangire had meanly condescended to give private orders to the rider of one of his largest elephants. to waylay his rival in one of the parrow streets, when he next should return to court, and there to tread him to death. As accidents of that kind sometimes happen from the rare of those animals in the rutting season, the thiog might have passed without suspicion. Shere was carried in his palanky He saw the elephant in bis way. He gave orders to the bearers to return back the elephant came forward they threw the palanky with their master lo the street, and fled to save their lives. Shere saw his danger. He had jost time to rise He drew a short sword, which always hoog by his side with this weapon he struck the elephant across the root of the truck, which he cut off with one blow. The animal roared turned from him, felf down and expired The emperor was looking out at a window he retired with amasement and shame. Shere cootinued his way to the palace. Without any suspicion of treachery he related the particulars to Jehangire The latter disguised his sentiments, but relioquished out his designs. He praised the strength and valour of Shere who retired satisfied, and unsuspecting from the presence retired satished, and unsuspecting from the presence Whether the emperor endeavoured to conquer his passion for Mher ul Nissa, or felt remorae from his own behaviour is uncertain but, for the space of six months no further attempts were made against the life of Shere, who now retired to Bengal. The former designs of Jehanglie were no secret they were the subject of common conversation little to the advantage of the character of a great prince Absolute monarchs, however are never without men who fistier their worst passions and administer to their most pernicious pleasures Cuttub, Subahdar of Bengal, was one of these convenient sycophants. To ingratiate himself with the emperor, though perhaps not by his express commands, hired forty rullians to attack and murder Shere, when an opportunity should offer Shere was apprized of the intentions of Cuitab He continued within doors, but such was his confidence in his own strength and valour, that' at night he would not permit his servants to remain in his house They according to custom, retired each to his own home An old porter only remained, of the men-servants. under the same roof with Shere The assassins were no strangers to a circumstance common in India. They made their observations upon the house they found that there was a room on the right hand within the principal door, which Shere used as a writing chamber This room communicated, by a narrow passage, with the sleeping apartments. When it was dark, they took advantage of the old porter's absence, and conveved themselves, without discovery, into the house

The principal door being bolted at the usual hour, Shere and his family went to bed. Some of the assassins, when they thought he was fallen asleep, stole silently into his apartment. They prepared to plunge their daggers into his body, when one of them, who was an old man, being touched with remorse, cried out with a loud voice, "hold! have we not "the emperor's orders? Let us behave like men. Shall "forty fall upon one, and that one asleep!" "Boldly spoken!" said Shere, starting that instant from his bed. Seizing his sword, he placed himself in a corner of the room there he was attacked by the assassins. In a few minutes, many of the villains lay, weltering in their blood, at his feet. Scarce one-half escaped without a wound. The old man, who had given warning, did not attempt to fly. Shere took him.

by the hand praised, and thanked him fur his behaviour and having inquired about those who hired the assassins, dismissed him with handsome presents to relate the particulars abroad

The fame at this gallant explait resounded through the whole empire. Shere could not stir abroad for the mah, who pressed around him. He, however thought proper to retire from the capital of Bengal to his old residence at Burdwan He haped to live there in obscurity and safety with his be loved Mher-ul Nissa. He was deceived the Subadar of Bengal had received his government for the pupose of remny ing the unfurtunate Shere and he was not ungrateful. After deliberating with himself about the means he at last fell upon an effectual expedient. Settling the affair of his government at Rajemahel which was at that time the capital of Benral he resolved with a great retione, to make the tour of the dependant provinces. In his route he came to Burdwan He made no secret to his principal officers that he had the emperor's orders for dispatching Shere. That devoted amyr hearing that the Subahdar was entering the town in which he resided, mounted his horse and with twn servants only went to pay his respects. The Subahdar received Shere, with affected politeness. They rode far sometime side by side and their conversation turned upon indifferent affairs. The Subahdar suddenly stopped he urdered his elephant of state to he brought which he mounted under a pretence of appearing with becoming pump in the city of Burdwan. Shere stood still when the Subahdar was asceeding and one of the nikemen pretending that Shere was in the way struck his hurse and began to drive him before him. Shere was enraged at the affront he knew that the pikeman durst out have used that freedom without his master a orders he saw plainly that there was a design laid against his life. Turning therefore round upon the pikeman, he threatened him with instant death The man fell on the ground and begged for mercy. Swords were drawn. Shere had no time to lose he spurred his horse up to the elephant, on which the Subahdar was mounted, and, having broken down the ambhary or castle, cut him in two, and thus the unfortunate Cuttub became the victim of his own zeal to please the emperor. Shere did not rest here he turned his sword on the other officers. The first that fell by his hands was Aba Khan, a native of Cashmire, who was an amyr of five thousand horse. Four other nobles shared the same fate: a death attended every blow from the hand of Shere The remaining Chiefs were at once astonished and frightened they fled to a distance and formed a circle around him. Some began to gall him with arrows, others to fire with their musquets. His horse, at length, being shot with a ball in the forehead, fell under him The unfortunate Shere, reduced to the last extremity, began to upbraid them with cowardice Herlinvited them severally to single combat, but he begged in vain. He had already received some wounds he plainly saw his approaching fate Turning his face towards Mecca, he took up some dust with his hand, and for want of water, threw it, by way of ablution, upon his head. He then stood-up, seemingly unconcerned Six ball entered his body in different places, before he fell. His enemies had scarcely courage to come near, till they saw him in the last agonies of death. They praised his valour to the skies; but, in adding to his reputation, they took away from their own

The officer, who succeeded the deceased Subahdar in the command of the troops, hastened to the house of Shere. He was afraid that Mher-ul-Nissa, in the first paroxysms of grief, might make away with herself. That lady however here her misfortness with more fortinde and resignation. She was unwilling to adopt the manners of her country upon such tragical occasions, she even pretended in vindication of her apparent insensibility to follow the injunctions of ber deceased ford. She alleged that Shere foresceing his own fall by Jehangire, has conjured her to yield to the desires of that monarch without hesitation. The reason which she said he gave were as feeble as the fact liself was improbable—he was afraid that his own exploits would sink into oblivion, without they were connected with the remarkable event of giving an empress to India.

When intelligence of the death of Critiab Addeen khan reached the emperor he was much afflicted as he was ever found him a falthful and devoted servant and it is said that on this occasion Jehaugire made a vow he would never see the lady who had been though ninconsciously the cause of his favourites death but the beanty and attractions of that accomplished female made him change his revolution, and many years ahe conjointly with him ruled the empire of India. A circumstance so nincommon in an Allatic government is thus recorded on the coln of that period

बहुत्ता प्राप्ट पर्याकीर यावत मह त्रेयर । बनामे भूरवर्षा बादशहे भेगम भर ॥

By order of the emperor Jehangtre gold sequired a hundred times additional value by the the mime of the empress Noor Jehan (Light of the Word)—Khafy Khan s Hutery

JEHANGIRE COOLY KHAN CABULY.

Early in the year 1016, Jehangire Cooly Khan, who was then governor of Behar, was, upon the death of Cuttub Addeen, ordered to take charge of Bengal This was an officer of highly distinguished courage he had gained great celebrity by the overthrow and death of Sunkeram, Raja of Gorackpore, who had frequently been guilty of disobedience to the royal authority.

In his disposition were blended the opposite qualities of piety and cruelty, he constantly retained in his service a hundred persons who could repeat the Koran by heart, and who at the end of every repetition, bestowed on him the merit arising therefrom * He also attended prayers five times daily, and was much employed in religious offices but, as a judge, he was inexorable While engaged in prayers he frequently, by a motion of his hand, gave the signal for the flogging, hanging, or beheading a culprit. He was at all times at ended by a hundred trumpeters, who, whenever the villager disputed with him respecting their rents, used to make so dreadful a noise as terrified the rustics into submission He was also constantly accompanied by a hundred Cashmirian archers, who could bring down the smallest bird in its flight, and who were ready to pierce with their carrows any person pointed out in the crowd in short.

The English reader may perhaps be surprised at this circumstance, but if he will recollect that his own ancestors frequently bequeathed large sums of money for masses to be paid for their souls? he will perceive that the governor only anticipated events.

he was detested by the inhabitants of Behar, hut, fortunately for those of Bengal, he died in little more than a year after he had assumed that government, and before he had time to make them feel effects of his cruelty

SHAIKH ALA ADDEEN BLAN KHAN

Islam Khan appointed to the government-Makes Dacca the Capital of the province-Account of the Portuguese pirates-Sebastian Gonzales takes possession of Sundeep and several other islands at the mouth of the Ganges, and attains to great power-Anaporam brother of the long of Arracan takes refuseat Sundeen- Gives his sister in marriage to Gonzales-Dies-The king of Arracan enters into a confederacy with the nirates-Their united forces invade Bengal-Defeated-The Afghans under Osman Khan rebel-The governor sends an ambassador to them-Tie Afghans, refuse to submit-The governor sends an army under Shujaet Khan against them-A general engagement ensures, which aft r a hard fought contest, terminates in favour of the Meghuls-Osman Khan having been killed his brother and son supplicate for peace-The governor sends his own son Hoshung with the prisoners and elephants to Agra-The governor of Behar being absent, an impostor assumes the title of Sultan Khusero and takes possession of Patna-The governor returns, and puts the imposter to death-Islam Khan dies

In the year of the Hezira 1087 the Government of Bensal being vacant by the death of the late occupant, the emperor was pleased to promote Islam Khan to that office he at the same time appointed Afrul Khan to the charge of Behar

The first act of Islam Khan's authority was the removal

Of the seat of government from Rajemahel to the city of Dacca made the capital of Bengal to the reigning emperor, he changed to Jehangirenagur He built there a palace, and a brick fort, some remains of which are still standing

Although the oriental historians have not assigned any reason for Islam Khan's changing the seat of government, his motives are satisfactorily accounted for in the annals of Portuguese Asia

It appears, that at the conclusion of the 16th century, a number of Portuguese were settled on the coast of Arracan and Chittagong, many of these had entered into the service of the instive princes, and, from their knowledge of maritime affairs, and by their desperate bravery, had reason to considerable commands, and had obtained extensive grants of land, both on the continent and in the adjacent islands

The treacherous or turbulent conduct of these adventurers having given offence to the Raja of Arracan, he, early in the year 1016, determined to extirpate them from his dominions, many were in consequence put to death, but a number of them escaped, in nine or ten small vessels, to the islands at the mouth of the river-Ganges, where, for sometime, they lived by piracy *

A. D. 1607

This conduct having attracted the notice of Futteh Khan, the Moghul commander of the island of Sundeep, he ordered all the Portuguese inhabitants and other Christians (on the island to be seized and put to death. He then embarked, with 600 soldiers on hoard forty vestels, and went in pursuit of the pirates. He found them at anchor off the island of Deccan Shabaspore, and attacked them with great vigour hut the superior akill of the Portugese in the management of their shipa and the use of their cannon counter-balanced the advantage of numbers and after a hard fought contest which lasted the whole night, Futteh Khan, with the greater part of his troops, was killed and the whole of his fleet captured

^{*} See translation of Faria de Souza's History, Vol 111
P 154

This nnexpected victory raised the fame of the pirates and in consequence their countrymen and Christian converts joined them from all quarters. They elected for their Chief a common suitor oamed Sebastian Gonzales and determined to secure for themselves a permanent settlement, by taking possession of the Island of Sundeep

In the year 1018 the whole Portuguese force consisting of 400 men, landed at Sundeep upon March which the hoother of Futteh Khan with A D icoa. the Mohammedan troops took refuge in a small fort, while the Hindoo inhabitants remained ocutral spectators of the contest but as the garrison expected no quarter they defended themselves with great resolution, and the slege was protracted for a considerable time at length, a Spanish ship having east anchor at the Island the captain of her agreed to assist the Portnaueseand having at night, landed fifty of his men he marched with lighted torches and drums beating and being joined by the Portuguese they attacked the fort, entered it, and put the whole of the garrison to the sword. The natives of the islands immediately submitted and were granted security of their lives and property on condition of delivering up all the Mahommedans of these 1000 were brought to the fort, and in revenge for the Portuguese families that had been put to death by Futteh Khan, were butchered in cold blood

Thus Sebastian Gonzales became absolute master of the island of Sundeep, and was obesed by the natives and Portuguese as an independent prince. In the course of a short time, his force consisted of 1000 Portuguese, 2000 Indian soldiers, 2000 cavalry, and eighty sail of vessels, of various sizes and well mounted with cannon, and as his government was conducted with equity, many merchants resorted to the island, and, by their commerce contributed much to increase his revenue

The neighbouring Chiefs, astonished at the prodigious success of Gonzales, sought his friendship, and deprecated his wrath, but, as he was of an intractable and covetous disposition, he listened not to their friendly overtures, and although he was under great obligations to the Raja of Batecala, who had first given refuge to the Portuguese in their distress, he ungratefully seized upon the islands of Shahbazpore and Patelbanga, which belonged to that Chief, by which means his territories became as extensive as those of some independent princes, and, consisting entirely of islands, were secure from the attacks of an enemy, so long as the Portuguese were masters of the sea *

About this period, an event occurred which contributed much to the fame and riches of the pirates. Anaporam, a brother of the king of Arracan, who was governor of one of ^{*} These islands, which are all situate at the mouth of the eastern branch of the Ganges, are at present but thinly unhabited, their only productions being rice and salt, and their climate is supposed to be very unfavourable to European constitutions.

the districts in that country having been guilty of some misdemeanour fied and took refuge at Sundeep where he prevailed upon Sebastian Gonzales, by the promise of a large sum of money and his sister in marriage to espouse his cause, and to assist him in the receivery of his government. Gonzalea, in consequence sent a detachment of troops, and several ships with Anaporam to the coast of Arracan but they were so vigorously opposed that they were obliged to return without effecting any thing more than bringing off the wealth and family of Anaporm, who in compliance with his promise, paid Gonzales a large sum of money and permitted his sister to turn Christian and to become the wife of the pirate. The prince shortly after this event, died not without suspicion of having been poisoned and all his wealth fell into the hands of Gonzales

The following year the Raja of Arracan having determin A, D 1616.

A, D 1616.

Sundeep to conclude a treaty of peace with the pirates and to request their co operation against the Moghul forces he was also authorised to demand the wife and children of the deceased prince The latter request was immediately complied with and the lady having been carried to Children was married to the governor of that place

A league was shortly after concluded between the Raja and the Portuguese by which it was stipulated that the Raja should invade Bengal with a large army by land and that the Portuguese should co-operate by sea and with their small vessels protect and guard the passage of the nvers. The Raja also agreed to place his own fleet under the command of Gonzales provided the fatter gave his nephew as a hostage for its safe return. It was further stipulated that whatever conquests were made, should be equally divided between the contracting parties. Every thing having been settled to their mutual satisfaction, the combined forces proceeded towards Bengal, and, without opposition, took possession of the country in the vicinity of Luckipore and Bulloah on the eastern side of the river Megna, but a numerous army of the Moghul troops soon after arriving, the Arracanners were defeated with great slaughter, and the Portuguese, having neglected to occupy the rivers with their gunboats, the former were pursued nearly as far as Chittagong, and the Raja, with great difficulty, effected his escape upon an elephant

Such were, probably, the circumstances which induced Islam Khan to change the seat of government, and to fix his residence at Dacca, where, by his alertness in opposing the invaders upon all occasions, he so much recommended himself to the emperor, that he was promoted to the rank of commander of 5,000 horse. Fortunate, indeed, it was for the inhabitants of Bengal, that they at that time possessed so active and enterprising a governor, for scarcely were their minds freed from the incursions of the Mughs, when they were threatened by an enemy from the opposite quarter

In the year 1020, the Afghan Chief, Osman Khan, son of

A D 1611

Cuttulu Khan,* evinced signs of his turbulent and unbroken spirit. In order to bring him to a proper sense of his duty, the governor had the moderation to send to him an ambassador, who, in an eloquent speech, attempted to convince the Afghans of the folly of drawing on themselves the imperial arms, and the little chance there was of again shaking off the Moghul

^{*} See page 208.

yoke which he asserted pressed lighter on them than any other class of his majesty's subjects that united in the faith of Mohammed it was their duty as the inferior power to bend to, and endeavour to assimilate with the conquerors that nations rise and fall by dertiny that for six hundred years the Afghans had ruled Hindoostan with despotic sway, but that fate had now consigned the sceptre to the hands of the they ought, therefore to hear their lot with humility and resignation, and bend down in submission to the Divioe decree Had this address been made to any other oxtloo it is possible it might have been attended with effect but as to the present day, the Afghans have never heen able to "convert their swords luto plough shares, and of the descendants of the numerous bands of that tribe who formerly overran Bengal not a man is to be found who will condescend to cultivate the ground the rhetoric of the ambassador was thrown to the winds. The haughty Osman khao, at the head of 20,000 Afghans, considered himself as a second Alexander and breathed nothing but war and independence

The governor having been thus folled in amicable overtures, lost not another moment in making preparations to subdue this haughty spirit he fitted out a numerous and well appointed army the command of which he corrusted to Shujaet Khan a brave and experienced officer with orders to expel the whole of the turbulent Afghans from Orissa.

Upon the approach of the royal army, Osman Khan advanced to the banks of the Snbanreeka river the nelgh hourhood of which abounded with swamps and quagmires, and was consequently onfavourable for the operations of the Moghul cavalry The imperial general, however advanced in battle array, and found the Afgbans drawn out ready to receive him Osman had placed his war-elephants in front of the columns destined for the attack, and, upon the signal being given, these furious animals advanced, and bore down every thing before them Syed Adam and Iftikhar Khan, who commanded the right and left wings of the imperial army, with a number of other Chiefs of note, were soon extended on the plain. Notwithstanding great number of the rebels had become the food of the blood thirty sword, and were fallen in the dust of destruction,* Osman, elated by the death of so many of the royal Chiefs, and regardless of the number of his own people who were slain, being preceded by a celebrated elephant named Bukhteh, advanced in person into the heat of the action, but being exceedingly corpulent, he rode a quiet elephant, carrying an ambhary, or covered seat, from which he discharged his arrows with great execution Having at length, reached the post of Shujaet Khan, the imperial commander-in-chief, he ordered the driver of the war-elephant to trample that officer, and the small party which surrounded him, under foot Shujaet Khan, perceiving his intention, spurred on his horse, and wounded the elephant with his spear, he then drew his sword, and inflicted four other wounds on the animal, but the furious beast, only more irritated by his wounds, made a desperate charge, and overthrew the general's horse Shujaet, however, extricated himself from his steed, and, bravely standing his ground, wounded the elephant twice on the fore-leg, which brought him upon his knees the Chief then plunged his dagger ioto the animal a trunk, which completely disabled him.

^{*} A literal translation of the whole of this passage may be found in the Appendix to the Descriptive Catalogue of Tippoo Sultan's Library, No. 36.

Shuiget Khan, having thus narrowly escaped from so unequal a contest remounted his horse, and shewed himself to his troops, who were much dispirited and begioning to retire. At this crisis, wheo a number of the royal generals having been killed and many more disabled by wounds a universal panic pervaded the army by chance a Moghul hall from some uoknown hand struck Osman in the forehead, but the wound not proving immediately mortal he contioned while he had any strength remaining to stimulate his troops to fight at length hecoming faint, he was obliged to retire and the Afghans seeing their Chief's elephant moving to the rear fled to their camp. Osman reached his teot oearly exhausted and expired during the night. Early the oext rooming Vely and Mumriez the brother and soo of the deceased fled with the body to their fortress and the Afghans dispersed themselves in various directions.

The state of the Moghul army was such that they could not pursue the fugutives, till a reinforcement of 300 fresh cavalry and 400 infantry foloed them Shujaet Khan then placed himself at their head and followed the Afghans

The son and hrother of Osmao, seeing the perseverance of the imperial general found there was no alternative but to throw themselves on his clemency—they therefore sent an envoy to him to request he would pardon their errors and to state that if he would assure them of personal safety—they would proceed to court, and become his majesty a most fauthful dependants and adherents

Shujaet khan having strictly complied with these propositions the cext day vely and Mumries with a number of the deceased Chief's relations, waited on the imperial general, and presented him with forty-nine elephants and some jewels, being the only remaining property of the Afghan Chief With these proofs of his success, Shujaet Khan immediately proceeded to Dacca, and presented them and his prisoners to the governor.

As this was the expiring effort of the Afghans to recover their authority in Bengal, the news was received at court with great satisfaction. Shujaet Khan was honoured with the title of Rustemi Zeman (the Hercules of the age), and the governor was promoted to the command of 6000 horse.

On the twenty-second of Mohurrem, A H 1022,

Hoshung, son of the governor, arrived at

Agra with his prisoners and the elephants of the Afghan Chief, and was most graciously received, he also presented to the emperor several of the Mughs, natives of the countries of Pegu and Arracan, who had been made prisoners during the war with those nations. The customs of these people seemed to his majesty very reprehensible, as he was informed that they are animals of every kind, and married their half-sisters, and that their religion was of the grossest idolatry.*

During the period the troops of Bengal we're employed against the Afghans, an imposter, calling himself the prince Khusero, eldest son of Jehangire, who nad been long confined in consequence of his rebellion, made his appearance in the province of Behar The misfortunes of Khusero had rendered him popular, and as India has always abounded

^{*} The inhabitants of the greater part of the Eastern Peninsula of India are Boodhists, or worshippers of Goutama—See Symcs' Embassy to Ava.

with numerous adventurers and soldiers of fortune, ready to follow the standard of any one who will pay them or hold ont to them a prospect of plunder, in less than a week the lm poster had collected a body of 7000 men with these he advanced against the city of Patna and Afrul Khan the governor being then absent with most of the troops the bandittl easily stormed the ramparts and the imposter having given up the town to be plundered by his followers reserved for himself the palace and poperty of the governor He then caused himself to be proclaimed emperor under the title of Khusero Shah and sent orders to the Zemindars and other public officers to come and pay their respects Many of these persons waited on him and, from the plansibility of his story were convinced that he was the prince

Afral Khan, the governor was at Gazypore when he received intelligence of the insurrection, and as he had been one of Khnseros adherents during the rebellion, and still bis well wisher he was at a loss how to act but before his arrival at Patna, he was convinced of the deception and took the regulate measures for quelling the disturbance

The imposter whose real name was Cuttuh was not deficient in personal bravery. He laid his troops some miles from Patna, to oppose the approach of the governor; but at the first onset he was abandoned by all but a few frends and compelled to flee and take refuge in the palace there he defended himself for sometime with much resolution but was at length killed by a brick thrown at him from the roof of an adjoining building. His accompliese were then seized and they acknowledged that he was a young Rohilla Afghan who having visited Dehly had been there informed he bore a strong resemblance to the unfortunate. Prince Khusero whose hard fate was deplored by thousands, and that these circumstances had induced him to assume the name of the prince, and to try to better his fortune.

Improbable as was the success of this enterprise, it has been frequently imitated in Hindoostan, and has caused considerable commotions

Islam Khan continued to govern Bengal with great reputation, and died at Dacca in the year 1022

COSSIM KHAN.

Cossim Khan appointed to the government—Dispute with the son of the deceased governor respecting his brother's property—Affairs of the Portuguese continued—Sebastian Gonzales treacherously seizes the Arracan fleet—Ravages the cost of Arracan—Repulsed—Applies to the viceroy of Goa for assistance—The viceroy sends a fleet to invade Arracan—The Raja, assisted by the Dutch, opposes and defeats the Portuguese—Gonzales retires to Sundeep, and is pursued by the Arracanees, who defeat him, and take possession of that island, whence they make frequent incursions into Bengal—The emperor, irritated thereat, censures the governor, and supersedes him.

The emperor Jehangire was much distressed when he heard of the death of Islam Khan, and, as a proof of his regard, appointed Cossim Khan, the brother of the deceased, to the government. This officer proceeded immediately to Bengal, and meeting with Kereem Khan, the illegitimate or adopted son of his brother, at Rajemahel, disputed with him regarding the inheritance, and, by force, took from him a considerable part of the effects, and several elephahts, which the young man contended were the property of the emperor By this conduct the governor incurred the royal displeasure and although no ootice was immediately taken of the circumstance, it probably accelerated his recall

As, during the period of this officer's government, his attention was principally occupied in opposing the incursions of the piratical Portngoese and the Minghs it now becomes requisite to revert to their blatory

After the retreat of the army of Arracan Gonzales treacherously invited the captains of the Affairs of the Portuguese convessels belonging to that nation on board tin ed. his ship and put them all to death after which he took possession of the whole Arracan fleet and returned with it to Sondeep but in order to complete the measure of his villany he immediately fixed out an expedition to plooder the coast of Arracan which in consequence of the victory gained by the Moghuls and his seiznre of the fleet was left totally noprotected. He therefore plundered and burnt many of the towns on the coast and had even the andacity to go op the Arracan river and to selze upon all the merchant vessels in that harbour he was repulsed however in his attack on the city and compelled to retreat but. previous to his departure he had the mortification to see his nephew whom he had given as a hostage impaled upon a lofty hill by order of the Raja in revenge for his treachery This sight did not awaken in the breast of the wretch any sentiments of remorse for his own infamous conduct but served only to stimplate him to seek revenge even at the expense of his independence

During the whole period of Gonzales success, he had never taken any notice of nor submired himself to the authority of the viceroy of the Portuguese s tilements in India but upon his return to Sundeep, he despatched one of his ships, with an intelligent agent, to Goa, to make an offer of his obedience to the viceroy. Don Hierome de Azvedo, and to urge him to the conquest of Arracan, which he described as a rich and fruitful country, and capable of making very little resistance. On his part, he engaged to co-operate with all his forces, and to send to Goa an annual tribute of a ship-load of rice he further urged, that his conduct against the king of Arracan had proceeded entirely from his desire of revenging the murder of his countrymen who had been unjustly put to death by that prince

The viceroy, ambitious of extending the conquest of his nation to a country which had not yet submitted to the Portuguese yoke, fitted out an expedition, consisting of fourteen large galliots, one fly-boat, and a pink, and gave the command of it to Don Francis de Meneses, who had been for several years governor of Ceylon, but, in his instructions to that officer, he did not sufficiently appreciate the value of the assistance to be expected from the pirates, and even commanded that the attack should be made without waiting for their junction

On the third of October, 1615, the expedition entered the river of Arracan* whence Don Francis despatched a galliot, to inform Gonzales of his arrival, and resolved to wait at the mouth of the river till his messenger returned from Sundeep

^{*} Since the year 1783, when the Birmans conquered Arracan, European vessels are not allowed to enter that river, but is said to have six fathom water on the Bar, and to be capable of containing a very large fleet. Its source, however, is not above seventy miles from the sea, although it was

In the mean time the Raja, having learnt the hostile preparations that were making against him prevailed upon the masters of some Dutch vessels, which were in the harbour to join him against the Portuguese and on the 15th of October attacked the latter with a numerous fleet, led on by a Dutch ship. The fight lasted the whole day but nothing decisive took place and in the evening the Arracaneers returned up the river. In this situation, things remained till nearly the middle of the month of November when Gonzales made his appearance with fifty sail of ressels, of various sires. He was much irritated at the conduct of the viceroy in not having sent him timely notice and severely censured Don Francis for having entered the river provious to his junction as the enomy had thereby been apprized of their intentious and were doubtless well prepared for the anack.

On the 15th of November Don Francis, dividing his flect into two aquadrons, took the command of one himself and gave the other to Gonzales. He soon after got under weight and at some distance from the city discovered the Arracan and Dutch fleet drawn up ready to receive him. With his own squadron he attacked the right of the enemy while Ganzales vigorously opposed the left. The fight continued till sun set when Don Francis, being killed by a musquet ball, and above atoo more of the Portuguese having also fallen Gonzales found it requisite to retire and with the ebb tide returned to the mouth of the river where after butying the dead and consulting with the captains respecting their further proceed ings it was agreed to abandon the enterprise and to return to Sundeep.

formerly supposed to have is rise in China -Sie Simu

This defeat ruined the affairs of Gonzales the Portuguese officers returned to Goa, and induced many of the pirates to accompany them. His followers also, disgusted by his brutal behaviour, abandoned him, and, in the following year, the Raja of Arracan invaded Sundeep, defeated Gonzales, and took possession of the other island, whence, under the denomination of Mughs, the Arracanees frequently invaded and plunder the lower parts of Bengal, carrying off with them the inhabitants as slaves *

As Cossim Khan did not evince sufficient energy in repelling these invaders, the emperor severely censured him for his conduct, and, in the year 1027, recalled him to court, to answer for his negligence.

^{*} In Major Rennell's Bengal Atlas a considerable districts are marked as "Lands depopulated by the Mughs"

IBRAHIM KHAN FUTTEH JUNG

Ibrahim Khan [appointed to the government encourages agriculture and manufactures—The agents of the English East India Company arrive, overland, at Patna and establish a factory in that city—The prince Shah Jehan rebels—Alarches to Dehly—Defeated by the emperor—Flees to the Dekkan—Resolved to invade Bengal—Obtains possession of the province of Orisa—Iddvances into Bengal and takes Burdwan—The governor marches from Dacca and takes post with his army in the vicinity of Rajemahel—The prince endeavours to bribe the governor but, failing in success advances against him—Crosses the river Ganges—Defeats and kills the governor

This officer who was matried to a sister of empress. Noor Jehan had frequently distinguished himself in military enterprises by which he had obtained the title of 'victorioua lin war was chosen by the court as a person well-qualified to defend the country against all invaders. His commission, however did not include Behar which was still continued to Afzol Khao hut he had permission to mominate his own deputy for the management of Orissa to which station he appointed his nephew Ahmed Beg. He was also allowed to appoint his son Syf Allah then only twelve years of age to be superintendent of Burdwan.*

For nearly five years the provinces of Bengal and Orissa enjoyed, under the able government of Ibrahim Khan a state of tranquillity and security which tended much to the happlness of the lohabitants Agriculture and commerce

See the interesting fate of this youth in the History of Hiodoostan, Vol. lii. p 105

were encouraged, and the manufactures were carried to a degree of perfection that had never before attained. The delicate muslins of Dacca, and the silks of Maldah, constituted, the chief part of the dress of the imperial court, whether male or female, and the fineness of its texture was such as cannot now be imitated.*

It was during the period that Afzul Khan governed Behar,

The English
East-India ComPany establish a factory at Patna
A D 1620

and Ibrahim Khan, Bengal, that the English first visited these provinces Some years previous to this time, agents had sent, overland, from Surat to Agra, where they had established a factory, and on their representation, two persons were sent (A D 1620) to Patna, to purchase cloths, and to establish a house of business in that city, but the great expense of land-carriage, first to Agra, and then to Surat, so enhanced the price of the articles, that in the following year the trade was abandoned †

The spirit of the Afghans was completely subdued, the Assamians were 'repelled, and the incursions of the Arracanees strictly watched by a fleet of war-boats. Thus situated, Bengal had every prospect of enjoying an undisturbed state of felicity, but the ill-timed ambition of a prince of the royal family, who subsequently succeeded to the kingdom, lighted up the firebrand of war in these peaceful regions.

The empress Noor Jehan is said to have entirely changed the fashion of the ladies' dresses, to have invented a number of new ornaments to decorate their persons, and to have given great encouragement to the artisans and manufactures—Tarikh Khafy Khan.

[†] See Messrs Hughes and Parker's Letter Vol 1. of India Records, A D 1620

IBRAHIM KHAN FUTTEH JUNG

Ibrahim Khan (appointed to the government encourages agriculture and manufactures—The agents of the English East India Company arrive, overland, at Patna and establish a factory in that city—The prince Tah Jehan rebels—Marches to Dehly—Defeated by the emperor—Fises to the Dekkan—Resolved to in vide Bengal—Obtains possession of the province of Orissa—
Advances into Bengal and takes Burdwan—The governor marches from Dacca and takes post with his army in the vicinity of Rajemahel—The prince endeavours to bribe the governor but, fa'ling in success advances against him—Crosses the niver Ganges
—Defeats and kills the governor

This officer who was married to a sister of empress. Noor Jehan, had frequeotly distinguished himself in military enterprises by which he had obtained the title of "victorious in war" was chosen by the court as a person well qualified to defend the country against all lovaders. His commission, however did not include Behar which was still continued to Aizul Khan but he had permission to nominate his own deputy for the managemen of Orissa to which statton he appointed his nephew Ahmed Beg. He was also allowed to appoint his son Syf Allah then only twelve years of age to be superintendent of Burdwan.

For nearly five years the provinces of Bengal and Orissa enjoyed, under the able government of Ihrahim khan a state of tranquillity and security which tended much to the happiness of the inhabitants. Agriculture and commerce

[.] See the interesting face of this youth in the History of Hindoostan, Vol. iii p 105

IBRAHIM KHAN FUTTEH JUNG

Ibrahim hhan appointed to the government encourages agriculture and manufactures—The agents of the English East India Company arrive, overland, at Patna and establish a factory in that city—The prince Shah Jehan rebeli—Marches to Dehly—Defeated by the emperor—Fites to the Drikkan—Resolved to in
vide Bengal—Obtains possession of the province of Orissa—
Advances into Bengal and takes Burdwan—The governor
marches from Dacca and takes post with his army in the vicinity of Rajemahel—The prince endeavours to bribe the governor but, failing in success, advances against him—Crosses the river Ganges—
Defeats and kills the governor

This officer who was married to a sister of empress. Noor Jehan, had frequently distinguished himself in military enterprises by which he had obtained the title of victorious in war was chosen by the court as a person well qualified to defend the country against all invaders. His commission however did not include Behar which was still continued to Afzul Khan but he had permission to nominate his own deputy for the managemen. Of Orissa to which station ho appointed his nephew Ahmed Beg. He was also allowed to appoint his son. Syf Allah then only twelve years of age to be superintendent of Burdwan.*

For nearly five years the provinces of Bengal and Orissa enjoyed under the able government of Ibrahim khan a state of tranquillity and security which tended much to the happiness of the inhabitants. Agriculture and commerce

See the interesting fate of this youth in the History of Hindooxan, Vol. in. p. 105

were encouraged, and the manufactures were carried to a degree of perfection that had never before attained. The delicate muslins of Dacca, and the silks of Maldah, constituted, the chief part of the dress of the imperial court, whether male or female, and the fineness of its texture was such as cannot now be imitated *

It was during the period that Afzul Khan governed Behar,

The English
East-India ComPany establish a factory at Patna
A D 1620

and Ibrahim Khan, Bengal, that the English first visited these provinces Some years previous to this time, agents had sent, overland, from Surat to Agra, where they had established a factory, and on their representation, two persons were sent (A D 1620) to Patna, to purchase cloths, and to establish a house of business in that city, but the great expense of land-carriage, first to Agra, and then to Surat, so enhanced the price of the articles, that in the following year the trade was abandoned †

The spirit of the Afghans was completely subdued, the Assamians were 'repelled, and the incursions of the Arracanees strictly watched by a fleet of war-boats. Thus situated, Bengal had every prospect of enjoying an undisturbed state of felicity, but the ill-timed ambition of a prince of the royal family, who subsequently succeeded to the kingdom, lighted up the firebrand of war in these peaceful regions.

The empress Noor Jehan is said to have entirely changed the fashion of the ladies' dresses, to have invented a number of new ornaments to decorate their persons, and to have given great encouragement to the artisans and manufactures—Tarikh Khafy Khan.

[†] See Messrs Hughes and Parker's Letter Vol 1 of India Records, A D 1620.

In order to elucidate this event, it becomes requisite to recur to the History of Hindoostao • in which it will be found that, so the year of the Hejra 1025 the emperor Jehangire appointed his third son Khoorum to command the army destoced for the conquest of the Dekkan and on this occasion conferred on the prince the lofty title of Shah Jehan (king of the world)

The prince was successful the Chiefs of the Dekkan sued for peace, and agreed to pay an annual tribute and Shah Jehan, to the following year returned trinmphaot to court.

In the year 1029 whilst the emperor was amusing himself to the delightful valley of Cashmire the tribotary priocest of the Dekhan threw off their allegiaoce, and supported their rehellion by an army of 60,000 horse

Shah Jehan was agaio detached to the Dekkao with an army of 40,000 horse and in the space of a few months without any considerable action he reduced the insurgeots to their former ohedience forcing them to pay the arrears of their tribute which was now settled at the annual sum of fifty five lacs of rupees.

In the year 1031 Shah Jehan being again at the head of Rebellio (t a numerous army devoted to his service Prace Shah Jase and convinced that, as long as his elder

A D 621 hrother Sultan Pursez lived he had no chance of succeeding to the throoe resolved to anticipate hy force that which was ordaloed him hy destiny

[.] See Life of Jehangire Vol ili

[†] Nixam Shah, Adil Shah and Cuttub Shah See Scott s History of the Dekkan.

The author of the History of Shah Jehan ascribes his rebellion to the violence and ambition of the Sultana Noor Jehan "That woman," says the writer, "finding that the health of the emperor declined, was apprehensive that the crown would devolve on Shah Jehan, who had for sometime been the determined enemy of her influence and power, she therefore resolved to ruin the affairs of that prince, and to fix the succession in the person of Shariar the fourth son of Jehangire, who was married to her own daughter, by her former husband Shere Afgun" A sudden invasion of the Persians, and the capture of Cuandahar, was deemed by this unnatural son as a fit opportunity to strike the blow. On receipt of the imperial orders to march his army from Burhanpore, and to repel the invaders, he threw off the mask, and on the twenty-seventh of Jemmand-al-Akhir, A H 1031, proclaimed himself emperor of Hindooston

His next step was to proceed to Dehly, if not with the intention of deposing his father, at least with a resolution to assume the powers of government

On his arrival in the vicinity of the capital, he wrote the emperor a letter, in which he stated the grounds of his complaints, and proposed to return to his duty on the following conditions—

That the command of all the imperial army should be given to him without reserve

That the governors of provinces should receive their orders from him

That he should have the free control and command of all the arsenals and royal magazines.

That the impregnable fort of Rentimpore should be placed to his hands as a place of security for his family during his campaigns against the Persians

The emperor, previously displeased at his conduct, was enriged at these insolent proposals. He issued an edict proclaiming his son a rebel and confiscating all his estates and property he further commanded all his loyal subjects immediately to join the Imperial army to assist him in defence of his throne. By these spirited measures the emperor soon found himself at the head of 40 000 horse with which he advanced to meet his rebellious soon

The emperor was impatient to come to an action hut Asui Jab the Vizier opposed this measure by affirming that it was imprudent to a defeat with so small a force, while reinforce ments were daily expected In fact, the army of the lunjab onder the command of a distinguished officer named Mohabet Khan, joined the imperial camp the next day after which the ardour of the emperor was no longer to be restrained he attacked the rebels oear Tugliickabad, defeated them and compelled his son to flee to the Dekkan.

them and compelled his son to flee to the Dekkan.

Shah Jehan was pursued by the armies of his elder brother Sultan Purver and Mohabet. When he arrived on the banks of the river Nerbudda, he endeavoured to make a stand against them but being again defeated he fled to Golcondah. At this place he formed the hold resolution of setzing upon Bengal. Having given his fugitive troops time to join him he took the route of Orista and hefore Ahmed Beg the deputy governor that province had any intelligence of his approach he entered that territory Ahmed Beg spotte unprepared to resist so sudden an attack, retreated with his troops and left Orista to the quiet possession of the prince.

Shah Jehan, after refreshing his army at Cuttuck, appointed Cooly Khan governor of the Shah Jehan in vades Bengal. province, he then advanced to Burdwan, and laid seige to that city, which after some days capitulated During the time he was encamped before Burdwan, he recruited his army, by taking several of the Afghan Chiefs, with their followers, into his service he also wrote letters to all the Moghul officers, of whom he had any knowledge, inviting them to join his standard, and assuring them of every favour his gratitude could bestow

It was immediately after the capture of Burdwan that Michael Rodriguez, the governor of Hoogly, apprehensive of an attack upon his settlement, went to pay his respects to the prince, as at that period the Portuguese had acquired great power in India, and had, at Hoogly, a good corps of European artillery. The prince was exceedingly anxious to attack them to his cause he received the governor with the greatest condescension, and promised him very great rewards, if he would assist him with some pieces of cannon, and a detachment of Europeans

Rodriguez understood sufficient of the polotics of Hindoostan, to see that the prince's project was a desperate one, and very unlikely to be attended with success. He therefore prudently declined the offer of Shah Jehan, but did it in such terms that were considered as an insult, and, after the prince's succession to throne, drew on the unfortunate inhabitants of Hoohgly the vengeance of that monarch

When intelligence of this unlooked-for invasion reached the governor, Ibrahim Khan, he was exceedingly perplexed; part of his army was employed in Chittagong against the Mughs and other divisions of it were dispersed over the country, to enforce the collection of the revenues He, however immediately marehed from Dacca with what forces he could collect, and took post at Rajemahel where ordered all his troops to rendezvous.

Shah Jehan convinced that, in his situation delays were dangerous and that his success depended entirely upon the prompt and vigorous measures, advanced by rapid marches towards the governor who finding that the city of Rajemahel was incapable of standing a salge retreated to the fortifications of Terriagurry upon which were mounted a number of cannon served by vagabond Europeans of different nations whom he had encouraged to enter his service but not considering this place sufficiently secure he entrusted the defence of it to one of his heat officers, and encamped with his army on the opposite bank to the Ganges

Whilst the contending armies were thus situated Shah lehan wrote the governor a fetter replate with compliments for his fidelity and attachment to the emperor and some excutes for his own conduct, to which, he said he was doubtless impelled by fate that he considered the province of Bengal as beneath his notices but that, as it lay in his route he was obliged to pass through it which he hoped to do without opposition -that if Ihrahim khan was partial to Bengal he might make choice of any district in it he preferred and retire thither with his wealth and family where he should he permitted to continue in the enjoyment of every thing he desired but if he preferred returning to Dehly he was at liberty to depart taking with him all his family and property for which a safe-conduct should be granted and the prince's honour pledged for their security To this insidious proposal Ihrahim Khan replied that his mate if had entrusted to him the care of that country, and the protection of its inhabitants that he was grown old in the imperial service, and in all probability had not many years longer to live, that he was willing to sacrifice those years to the performance of his duty, and if he died a martyr in the royal cause, it would be a subject of fame to himself, and honour to his family but that as long as he retained a spark of life, Bengal should acknowledge no master but his sovereign

Ibrahim Khan having taken the precaution to secure all the boast he could collect on his side the river, the army of Shah Jehan was prevented crossing, neither could they advance further on the southern bank, on account of the pass being in possession of the royalists

In this dilemma, Deriaw Khan, one of the Afghan Chiefs whom the prince had taken into his service, being known to some of the zemindars in the district of Boglipore, prevailed upon them to produce some boats, which they had sunk, and otherwise concealed from the governor. The boats were, during the night, collected at a place some miles down the river, in the vicinity of Sooty. At the break of day, Deriaw Khan, with his Afghan cavalry, crossed the Ganges, and was immediately followed by Abdullah Khan, who had deserted to the prince at the battle of Toglickpore, and had ever since been his principal counsellor.

When Ibrahim Khan found that the enemy had crossed the river, he withdrew as many of his troops as could be spared from the defence of Terriagurry,* and, being thus reinforced, advanced to meet the rebel Chiefs The number of forces on each side were nearly equal, but the troops of Shah Jeban were better mounted. The governor entrusted the command of the first line to bis nephew Abmed Beg who charged the enemy with great vigour bit his nephew being repulsed the governor advanced with the second line and though requested by his friends not to risk bis person in the heat of the engagement be replied my life is of no consequence. I will devote it to the service of his majesty and either conquer or die. Having said this, he rusheds with his corps of reserve into the thickest of the enemy; he was shortly surrounded and fell covered with wounds his death served as an excuse to bis troops to quit the field

^{*} In order to conform to the orthography of Major Rennell's map, I have written the names of the passes as he has done, but in the Persian character, they are written Telyagurhy, and Sankrygully.

they fled towards Dacca and left their camp to be plundered by the enemy

During the period that Shah Jahen had been contriving means to cross the river bis engineer Roumy khan had pressed forward the siege of Terriagurry and at the time that the battle was raging on the opposite bank, he set fire to to a mine which blew up twenty yards of the fortifications and opened a breach through which the rabels rushed with impetuosity and put the greater part of the garrison to the sword.

The capture of Terriagurry and the death of the governor decided the fate of Bengal the authority of the prince was everywhere acknowledged and the zemindars and public officers hastened to make their terms with the conductor fn the Jehangire Nameh, the fortress is said to have been merely an enclosed burying ground but the long defence it made does not coincide with that statement.

SHAH JEHAN,

Shah Jehan, after he proceeds to Dacca—Fakes possession of the public treasure and the governor's property Advances to Patha, and obtains possession of that city—Prevails upon the governor of Rhotas to give up the fort, to which he sends his family—Advances to Benares—Hearing of the approach of the imperial army, he re crosses the Ganges, and takes post, with his army, on the banks of the Tonse river—A battle is fought between the two armies—The rebels are defeated, and the prince retires to Rhotas—Proceeds to Patha—Orders Darab, whom he had left as governor of Bengal, to join him—The governor refuses—The imperial army advances towards Patha—The prince quits Bengal, writes a pentential letter to the emperor, and is forgiven

The prince, whom we must now consider as the ruler of the province, lost no time in pursuing the few remaining royalists. He seized upon all the boats that had been collected by both parties, and having embarked the select part of his army, proceeded, with all possible despatch, down the river, to Dacca Upon his arrival there, the gates of the fort were thrown open; and Ahmed Beg, the nephew of the late governor, finding it in vain to contend further, waited on the prince and delivered to him all the elephants, horses, and other property of his uncle, also 4,000,000 rupees in specie, belonging to government

After this event, the prince gave audience to the zemindars and public officers of government. He received them graciously and having confirmed most of them in their appointments, he nominated a young nobleman named Darab, the son of Khan Khanan, to the government of

Bengal, but, as a security for his fidelity obliged him to send his son along with the army as a hostage

After remaining a short time at Dacca, Shah Jehan marched towards Patna, which, at that period, was the jagier of the prince Purrer who had entrusted the care and defence of it to Mukhliss Khan, but that officer, terrified at the approach of the rebels abandoned his post, and fled to Allahabad

Shah Jehan, having without opposition, ohtsined possession of the capital of Behar occupied the Sonbahdar's palace and summoned all the zeminders and public officers to attend his court, and make a declaration of their allegiance. As he was now completely master of the three provinces, he found no difficulty in enforcing his wishes, and even Syed Mobarick. the governor of Rhotas came and delivered to him the keys of that impregnable fortress. This event he considered of the greatest importance as it afforded a secure asylum for his family and the wives of his followers during the uncertain issue of the approaching campaign. He therefore sent off his Agram, and allihis children under charge of a careful officer to Rhotas, with orders to remain there, either till his return or till he should send a confidential person to bring them to him. During the time this branch of the royal family resided in Rhotas, the prince Morad Bukhsh was born

Having refreshed and recruited his forces at Patna, the prince appointed Byram Beg governor of Behar, and having formed his army into three divisions, ordered Abdullah khan, with the left, to proceed and conquer Allahabad. The right division he entrusted to Deriaw Khan, the Afghan with durections to take possession of Oude whilst the centre division under his own command, was destined to secure Josephore and Benares.

Hitherto fortune had favoured the audacious schemes of Shah Jehan. he was puffed up with success and, on his route, assumed all the state and authority of the sovereign. He advanced by short marches, listening to appeals from the decision of former governors, and settling the government of the country.

In the mean time, the prince Purvez, and Mohabet Khan, who had lost sight of Shah Jehan for a considerable period after his flight from the river Nerbudda, having heard of his success in Bengal, marched through Malwa and Berar, with an intention of driving him from that province; but on their approaching the vicinity of Allahabad, they learnt that he was already in their neighbourhood, and on his route towards Dehly.

Upon the arrival of the rebel forces, under Abdullah, at Joosy, on the bank of the river opposite to Allahabad, he found that Rustem Beg, the governor, had secured all the boats, and was prepared to oppose his crossing. Abdullah was therefore compelled to wait the arrival of some large boats, which accompanied the army from Bengal. In the mean time, he employed his engineers in constructing batteries, on which he mounted several heavy cannon, that completely commanded the passage: the boats having joined him in a few days, he succeeded in crossing his troops, and took possession of the city of Allahabad.

During these operations of the left wing, Deriaw Khan advanced, with the right, to Joanpore, and obtained undisputed possession of that district, whilst the prince, with equal facility, became master of Benares. After the conquest of Joanpore, Deriaw Khan continued his route to Manickpore, but at that place, having received intelligence of the approach of the royal army, under Sultan Purvez, he deemed it prudent to retreat towards Benares, Abdullah Khan also abandoned Allahabad, and both wings having formed a junction with the main body, Shah Jehan re-crossed the river and encamped on the banks of the Tonse which falls into the Ganges, some miles below Allahabad where he waited the approach of the royal forces. This possession was naturally strong, and in case of a defeat, secured his safe retreat to Rhotas and Bengal, without having to cross the Ganges—a measure replies with danger when pursued by a victorious enemy he also secured all the boats that could be collected under his own encampment.

Having taken these prudent precautions the prince called a council of war id which it was the opinion of his most experienced officers that he should not risk a general engagement, but remain entirely on the defensite. This opinion was, however controverted by Raja Bhime, who declared that in such a cause procrastination was ruin and that, if the Moghuls and Afghans would not fight for their prince, he himself would attack the enemy with his Rajepoots Shah Jehan who possessed the greatest bravery and could not brook delay coincided in opinion with the Raja, and orders were given to prepare for battle.

In the meantime the toyal army having arrived at Allaha bad crossed the Jumna, and advanced against the rebels. The engagement commenced by a distant cannonade but Mohabet, the imperial general, finding that, by his numbers he far out flanked his adversaries, fordered a division of his army to make a circuit to the right, and, crossing the Tonse

Defeat of Sain to get in the tear of the tebels this Jeans mannuary was dexternusly performed, and Shah Jehan found himself surrounded on all sides despair added resolution to his courage with five hundred chosen horse, he rushed into the thickest of the enemy, but his army, with the exception of Raja Bhime, who was slain, not following his example and his own horse having been shot under him, he was prevailed upon, by the entreaties of his friends, to quit the field, and retire to Rhotas.

As the imperialists had suffered severely in the engagement, and their horses were much fatigued by long and continued marching, Sultan Purvez did not think proper immediately to pursue his brother, and in three days Shah Jehan had the pleasure of embracing his family in their secure and quiet retreat.* At Rhotas the prince was joined by a number of his troops, who had escaped from the battle; and having again formed these into regular squadrons, he withdrew part of his family from the fort, and marched towards Patna he at the same time sent orders to Darab Khan, whom he had left at Dacca, as governor of Bengal, to advance to his assistance, but that ungrateful wretch, hoping to make his peace with the royalists, abandoned his patron in the hour of distress, and wrote to the prince, that the zemindars had risen in arms on all sides of him, and totally prevented his quitting Dacca.

His treachery was too apparent; and the stern Abdullah Khan, in opposition to the will of the prince, condemned to death the innocent son of Darab, who had been placed as a hostage in his hands.

The royal army, having halted some days to refresh themselves in the vicinity of Benares, continued their route towards Bengal on their approaching Patna, Shah Jehan, finding that city untenable against so superior a force, abandoned it, and retired to Rajemahel bence be was again driven, and compelled to retreat to the Dekkan, by the same route he had-catered Bengal. Darab Khan, the governor trusting to the clemency of prince Purves and the loterest of his father who beld the dignified title of Khan Khanan (Chief of the Nobility) in the imperial court, and was the soo of the celebrated Byram Khan the preceptor of Akbar came to the royal camp and gave blmself up as a prisoner the prince recommended him for forgiveness but the empetor who had cruelly punished all the adherents of his son Khasero, after that prince a rebellion, refused to spare the favourite of Shah Jehan, and commanded that his head should be sent to court, to serve as an example to all other traitors, however high their rank and connections.

^{*} Rhotas is situated in the mountains, far from the high road.

Sametime after this event, Shah Jehan, being reduced to the greatest distress, wrote a peoitential letter to his father he was forgiveo on condition of sending orders to his adherents to deliver up all the forts to their possession. By these means Rhotas became again subject to the royal authority and not a trace was left of Shah Jehan s having been for two years the possessor of these provinces.

Were we to judge of Shah Jehan's cooduct by the rules of Christian morality, or by European policy we should coodemn it as unpriocipled and unnatural if we but refer to the events which took place on his accession to the empire and events which took place which have sloce occurred, it will be manifest, that had his elder brother Purvez lived Shah Jehan would bave had og alternative, but the throne or the grave. If therefore he could have secured to himself even during his tather's life time the kiegdom of Bleogal, he would have been held excused, to the opinion of all his countrymen and had be limited his ambition to that object, as he was favounte of his father, there is little doubt but he might have gained the emperor's consent to the measure. But he verified the Persian proverb, "ten dervishes will sleep on one blanket, but two kings will not sleep in the same climate,"* for, on his accession to the throne, he destroyed every male (excepting his own children) of the posterity of Sultan Baber

KHANEZAD KHAN.

When the emperor was informed of the flight of his son from Bengal, he nominated Mohabet Khan to the government of that province, but as he was anxious that so experienced an officer should still conduct the war against Shah Jehan, he commanded him to continue the pursuit, and to place his son, Khanezad Khan, as his deputy in the government. We are unacquainted with any part of the conduct of this nobleman, further than that, when his father had seized upon the emperor, and governed the empire with absolute sway, he remitted to court the large sum of 22,000,000 of rupees in specie, being the surplus revenue of that province; but before its arrival at Dehly, Mohabet Khan had generously relinquished his power, and the money fell into the hands of his enemies. Khanezad Khan imitated the example of his father, and, to avoid the disgrace of being superseded, resigned his appointment, in the year 1035, and was afterwards most graciously received at court.

A. D. 1626.

^{*} Keleem signifies a blanket; and Akleem, the fourteen climates, into which the world was divided by ancient geographers The rhyme cannot be preserved in the translation.

MUKURREM KHAN ,

On the removal of Khanezad the emperor appointed Mukurrem Khan to the government of Bengal and bestowed Behar on Mirza Rustem, a Persian prince of the Sofy family

Mukurrem Khan took up his residence at Dacca, and as the eastern parts of Bengal are intersected by rivers and creeks, navigable at all seasons of the year and as during the four months of the rains great part of the country is inundated usually the mode of travelling is by water on which account the governors of Bengal bave always kept up a large establishment of boats of every description whether for state war or pleasure ; and the veneration of the inhabitants for the tutelary deities who are supposed to preside over the rivery and waters, is carried to an extreme both by Hindoos and Mohammedans, bordering close upon idolatry; even the present governors are obliged to comply with the sufersuiton of their subjects by making at Dacca, an annual offering to Khuaje Khizer (supposed to be the prophet Ellus) to propidate his good officers in protecting their inland commerce.

Mulsurrem Khan took great pleasure in equatic excursions

[•] This offering consists of a boat, or ship constructed of hamboos and coloured paper ornamented with flags, lamps &c. It is placed upon inverted earthen pots and being carried in procession to the river side, launched into the river amidst the acclamations of the populace and the discordant sounds of every kind of music and floats down the current with majestic pomp. It is called the offering of the Biers.

and frequently went on the river, attended by his courtiers, seraglio, &c About six months after his appointment to the government, he received intelligence that a letter of much importance from the emperor, was on its way to him. To evince his loyalty and respect to his sovereign, he ordered the state boats to be prepared and set out from Dacca to meet the bearer of the letter. After sailing for sometime up the river, and the hour of prayer drawing nigh, the governor gave orders for the fleet to put on shore. It happened that the boat which his excellency had made choice of on this occasion was exceedingly long and narrow, and much better adapted for rowing than for sailing: in attempting to gain the shore, the broad side of the vessel was brought to the current, a sudden squall at the same moment took the sail, and overset her the servants and people who were on the 'deck escaped; but the governor, and several of his courtiers who were in the state-room, could not extricate themselves, and were drowned

FEDAI KHAN.

When the unfortunate fate of the late governor was known at court, his majesty was pleased to nominate, in the year 1036, the Nuwab Fedar Khan to the government; and as, for a number of years, except the twenty-two lacks of rupees remitted by Khanezad Khan, no revenue had been sent from Bengal, the emperor stipulated with the new governor, that, in addition to the usual presents of elephants, silks, muslins, ambergris amber, &c., he should annually remit to the exchequer present of 500,000 rupees for the royal use, and an equal sum for theuse of the empress Noor Jehan.

Fedai Khan governed Bengal during the remainder of the reign of Jehangire but soon after the death of that monarch and the succession of Shah Jehan to the throne which happened early in the year 1037 he was superseded by Cossim Khan, a favourite of the new emperor

A. D 1628, throne w

COSSIM KHAN JOBUNY

The generic takes offence at the Portuguese in Bengal—Represents their conduct to the imperor who orders them to be expelled from his dominions—The governor makes preparations to attack Hoogh—The armies advance and surround the town—The beneged defend themselves with great bravery—By the explosion of a mine one of the histians is destroyed—The Moghuls storm the fort—Many of the inhabitants retire on board their ships, and are there attacked by another division of the army—The Puttuguese set fire to several of their own ships, but the greater part are taken by the enemy—Hoogly established as the royal port of tengal and the public officers withdrawn from Sastgong—Cossim khan dies.

Some years after the arrival of Cossim khan in Bengal, he took offence at the conduct of the Portuguese many of whom had established themselves in various parts of the province and assumed a degree of authority to which they were not entitled he therefore wrote to the emperor that he was very much disturbed in the duties of his office by some huropean idolators, who had been permitted to establish themselves at Hoogly on the western bank of the Bagarutty river, for the purpose of trade; that, instead of confining their attention to the business of merchants, they had fortified themselves in that place, and were become so insolent that they committed many acts of violence upon the subjects of the empire, and presumed to exact duties from all the boats and vessels which passed their factory, and had completely drawn away all the commerce from the ancient port of Saatgong. The governor also represented, that the Portuguese were in the habit of kidnapping or purchasing poor children, and of sending them as slaves to other parts of India, and that their pirates, in consort with the Mughs, committed innumerable aggressions on the inhabitants of the districts on the eastern branch of the Ganges. This report re-called to the emperor's mind the refusal of Michael Rodriguez, the Portuguese governor, to afford him any assistance when engaged in the rebellion against his father and the offensive manner in which that refusal had been given, he therefore resolved to satiate his revenge, and ordered the governor to expel the idolatrous Portuguese from his dominions.

In obedience to these orders, Cossim Khan, in the year 1041, commenced preparations to attack Hoogly, but took his measures with such caution, that he completely concealed his intentions from the Portuguese Having made the requisite arrangements, he gave out that he was about to subdue the refractory zeminders of the districts of Mukhsoosabad, and Hijelle. To effect his purpose, he directed a force, under Behadur Kumbu, to proceed from Dacca to Mukhsoosabad, and a second army, under the orders of his own son, Inayet Allah, to march to Burdwan; whilst a third detachment under the command of Khuaje Shere, proceeded by water, to take possession of the river below Hoogly and by constructing a bridge of boats at Seerpore,* to cut off the retrest of the Portuguese

Khuaje Sbere having arrived at his post, sent intelligence

Siege of Hoogly
A. D 1132

A. D 1132

(12th month) of the year 1041 the royal

army invested the town on all sides. Parties were immediately sent to plunder the district belonging to the Portuguese, and to destroy every person of that nation they could find and as Hoogly had been for many years a considerable port, a number of mariners and boatmen were settled in the vicinity, all these were selzed and compelled to assist in erecting batteries, and to work the artillery of use of which the Mogbuls were very ignorant.

The siege was continued for three months and a half during which time the Portoguese made frequent offer of submission, and sgreed to pay a tribute of 100 000 supers but as they were in daily hopes of wixeour from Europe or Gos, they did not relax in their defence, and, by their continuit showers of musquet balls, apaciped the besiegers to a great degree. The Moghul generals finding all other effects in vin, were obliged to have recourse to the miners who by carrying a sap to that part of most near the church, which was both narrower and shallower than any other place by means of drains drew off the water. Some of the officers while advancing their galleries in other places, discovered mines of the besieged, which they destroyed the the centre mine, which was carried on by Behadur Kumbu, was conducted under a lofty bastion, upon which a great number. of the besieged daily assembled On the 14th of the month of Rubby-al-Avul (3rd Hon rly taken, October. month) of the year 1042, the mine being A, D. 1632. ready was loaded The troops were then, drawn out, and a column advanced towards the bastion, whilst the besieged, supposing it was to be attacked. collected there in great numbers. For sometime a continued discharge of cannon and musquetry was kept up when at length, the mine being fired, the whole of the bastion, with the persons thereon was blown into the air. Mohammedans, on beholding this event, made a general assault The slaughter of the Portuguese was very great! many in attempting to escape to their boats, were drowned : a few of them got to their ships in safety, but there they were immediately attacked by Khuaje Shere and his division captain of the largest vessel, on which were embarked 2,000 men, women, and children, with all their wealth, rather than yield to the Mohammedans, set fire to the magazine, and blew them up many other ships followed his example Out of sixty-four large vessels, fifty-seven grabs, and two hundred sloops which were anchored opposite the town, only one grab and two sloops, belonging to Goa, made their escape. and these owed their safety to the bridge having been broken, by Whatever property, either affoat or on shore, escaped the fury of the elements was taken possession of by the conquerors; and all the pictures and images which ornamented the churches, the worship of which had given great offence to Taje Mahel, the empress of Shah Jehan, while in Bengal were torn down and destroyed.

Probably Sentampore, commonly called Serbampore now belonging to the Daner.

some of the boats taking fire from the flames of the ships

From the commencement of the seige, till its conclusion, not iess than 1000 of the Portuguese were destroyed and 4400 men, women and children were taken prisosers of these some of the priests (against whom Shah Jehan or his queen had taken a great aversioe) and 500 of the best looking young persons, were seet to Agra. The girls were distributed among the harams of the emperor and the nobility and the boys were circumcised and made Mussulmans the Jesuits and other finars were threatened with severe punishmeet if they did not abandon their religon and become Mohammedans, but, after some months confinement were liberated, and sent to Goa.*

The best account of the origie of Hoogly which I have seen may be found in the Appendix to the Descriptive catalogue of Tippoo Sultan's Library No 37, but as that account does eot define the period at which it was founded it is reasonable to suppose that V P De Samprayo the commander of it nine vessels which entered the Ganges in 1537 8 did not neglect so favourable an opportuoity of establishing a settlement in Bengal (an object for which the Portuguese had been long anxious) during the time that Shere Shah was engaged in his contest with the emperor Illumayon.—See the Note lo page 145

[•] It is a circumstance worthy of remark, that the name of Hoogly is never mentioned to Faria De Seeva s History of the Portuguese (the English translation of which was published in 1695) although he acknowledges that they lost a large town to Beegal is the year 1633 but which he calls Golie Messrs Hughes and Farler also in their Letter from Paina dated Dec. 1620 state that the Portuguese are possessed of two forts in the bottom of Beegal one called Pirpuliye (probably Pipiey) the other Gollyr

Hoogly having thus come into the possession of the Mighuls, was established as the royal port of Bengal A regular Foujeder was appointed from court, who, in the process of time, was made independent of the governor, and all the public officers were withdrawn from Saatgong,* which soon declined into a mean village, now scarcely known to Europeans

Shortly after this event, Cossim Khan, the governor, died at Dacca He was much regretted by all the Mohammedans, being a zealous in his religion, an encourager of literature, and himself an eminent poet.

AAZIM KHAN.

THE emperor was much distressed on receiving intelligence of the death of his favourite, the governor of Bengal;

A. D. 1632-3. and, in the year 1042, appointed a nobleman, named Azim Khan, to fill that important office.

It was during the government of Aazim Khan, and in consequence of a firmant from Shah Jehan, that is to say in the year 1043, that the English first obtained permission to trade with their?

^{*} Saatgong was known to the Romans, by the name of Ganges Regia It is a famous place of worship, and was formerly the residence of the kings of the country, and said to have been of an immense size.—See Asiatic Researches, 8vo edit Vol. v. p 278—See also Rennell's Memoir of the Map of Hindoostan, p. 45.

[†] The firman is dated Feb. 2,1634

ships to Bengal but as the Mogbul government had felt the danger of allowing Europeans to enter the river Ganges and to establish themselves as the Portuguese had done at Hoogly the vessels were restricted form entering any other port than Pipley in Balasore and it was at that place the English established their first factory in Bengal.*

The abilities of Aazim Khan were, however not found equal to the arduous task of governing so extensive a province. He allowed his dominious to be invaded with impunny both by the Maghs and people of Assam who carned

A. D 1637 away much plunder and many of the inhabitants into slavery. For this conduct he was, in the year 1047 re-called to court and severely censured by the emperor but being a person of very illustrious descent, he was shortly forgiven, and appointed to the government of Allahabad. His daughter was a few months afterwards married to the prince Shujaa.

[.] See Bruces fanals of the East India Company 1, D. 1633 4

ISLAM KHAN MUSHHEDY.

Character of this officer—The Mugh Chief of Chittagong acknowledges himself a vassal of the Moghul emperor—The governor changes the name of Chittagong to Islamabad—The Assamese invade Bengal—Opposed and defeated by the governor, who pursues them into their own country—Returns to Dacca—Is appointed Vizier—Account of the rebellion of the Raja of Boujepore.

This was an old and experienced statesman and soldier, who had acquired much celebrity during the late reign, but as the times required all the exertion of the latter character, he is accused of neglecting the civil and judicial duties, and of devoting all his time to military pursuits

It was during his government, that Makat Ray, one of the Mugh Chiefs, who held Chittagong on the part of the Raja of Arracan, having incurred the displeasure of that prince, and being apprehensive of an invasion by his sovereign, sought, in the year 1048, the protection of the emperor of Hindoostan. He paid his respects to Islam Khan at Dacca, acknowledged himself a vassal of the empire and made over the sovereignty of his territory. This is the first account we have of the conquest by, or surrender of Chittagong to the Moghuls, although it is included as part of the imperial dominions in the Ayeen Akberry.* Its present

^{*} Chittangong originally belonged to the once independent extensive kingdom of Tipperah, but being a frontier province, frequently changed its masters, and was sometimes governed by the followers of Brahma, and at other periods ruled by the worshippers of Boodh. From the latter it was probably taken

Mohammedan name of Islamabad corroborates the circumstance above related though some historians have doubted whether it obtained that name previous to its conquest, twenty-cigb years subsequent to this event.

Whilst Islam Khan was thus extending the boundaries of the empire the inhabitants of Assam, eccouraged by the access of their former depredations.

and embarking on the river Burbampooter in five hundred large houts reached like a torrent on the plains of Bengal. They

by ooc of the Afghan king of Beogal as it is stated by Farla de Soura, that, in the year 1539 the viceroy of Gos sent an agent with presents to Mahmood Shab, that the mission landed at Chittagoog and proceeded thence to Gonr but that the king being suspicious of their intentions, seized on the same day thirteen persons at Gour and thirty of the ship a company at Chittagoog lo revenge for which the Portuguese some months after burged the town of Chittagoog (See Faria De Soura p 418). It was probably taken possession of by the prince of Arracan during the cootest between the Afghans and Mozbuls and was not axin annexed to the ampire till the government of Shalsta Ahan as will be reafter be related. Abul hazal bas in the same manner included several of the provinces in the Dekkan in his Tutteen Tumma which were not conquered till the reign of Aurungzebe (See Isen Abberry Vol IL)

The march of a British detachment, in the year 1704 to repel the Birmant, accertained that the boundary of Chitta goog was cooliderably further south that marked in the maps. The siter haaf is now the lice of demarcation between the two countries.—See Symt 1 Endagr 17 At 2 p. 119

plundered all the towns and villages on the banks of the Burhampooter, and had marched the capital of the proince, when they were met by the governor with a fleet of war-boats, many of which were armed with cannon against these weapous, the vessels of the Assamese could make little resistance, they were shortly in flames; and the crews compelled to take to the shore were attacked by the Moghul cavalry, and 400 of them put to the sword

Islam Khan followed up his victory, by pursuing the fugitives into their own country he entered Assam and took fifteen of their forts, in which he found much spoil. He afterwards subjected the whole district of Cooch Behar, in which there were several strong fortresses, but as the the rainy season was approaching and as he found much difficulty in procuring grain for his troops, he deemed it prudent to retire, before the roads should be rendered impassable by the overflowing of the river

He commenced his retreat, and, although much harrassed by the enemy and the want of supplies, he brought the greater part of his army safe back to Bengal but, upon his arrival, at Dacca, he found an order to deliver over his government to the Nuwab Syf Khan, the deputy of the prince Shujaa, second son of the emperor, and to return to court, to take on himself the office of the Vizier This situation he held for some years, and died as Subhadar of the Dekkan, in the year 1058.

During the period that Islam Khan was employed in Assam, the Raja of Boujepore took advantage of the temporary absence of the governor tof Behar, and extended the hand of usurpation over great part of that province. Abdullah Khan, the favourite general of Shah Jehan, and who had served him zealously during his rebellion, was immediately proceed and punish the semindar. He proceeded by rapid marches, and having on his first arrival attacked and defeat ed the Rais compelled him to take refuge in his fort of Boulepore, then considered a place of considerable strength. Abdulla regularly invested the fortress and after some weeks, succeeded in making a practicable breach, when orders were given for the troops to prepare for the assault but before they advanced, the Raja throw open the gate and with his wife and children proceeded to the camp of the conqueror Abdulla was inclined to have pardoned the Raja, but on the approach of the unfortunate family some of his minions whispered to him that the lady was celebrated for her beauty. This circumstance decided the fate of the prince the bead of the rebel was sent to court and his wife was kept to adorn the seraglio of the Mohammedan officer . · If the Hindoos would take the trouble to read the history how ought they to rejoice in their change of masters but, slaves to the system of fatalism they look with apathy on the vicissitudes of this world and consider every event as pre-ordained

SULTAN MOHAMMED SHUJAA.

Sultan Shujaa appointed governor-Again transfers the seat of government to Rajemahel-Appoints his father-in-law to be his deputy at Dacca-Account of Mr Boughton, an English surgeon who obtains considerable privileges for his nation-The prince recalled to court-Appointed governor of Cabul-Re-appointed to Bengal-His character-State of Bengal under his government-Indisposition of the emperor Shah Jehan-Shujaa asserts his claim to the throne-Advances to Benares-Dara, the eldest son of Shah Jehan, marches from Dehly-Detaches his son Soliman with a numerous army to oppose Shujaa-The contending armies encamp on opposite sides of the Ganges-Raja Joy Sing endeavours to negotiate a peace between them-Shujaa agrees to retire, but Soliman, anxious for an opportunity of displaying his military talents, crosses the Ganges, and surprises the Bengal camp -Shujaa, compelled to fise, takes refuge in Mongier-Receives, information of the defeat of Dara by his brother Aurungzebe, and of the latter having usurped the throne-Dubious what line of conduct to pursue-Writes a letter of congratulation, and sends an & envoy to Aurungzebe-Shujao again takes the field-Advances to Allahabad-Proceeds to Kudgwa-The army of Aurungzebe arrives at the same place-A battle ensues, in which Shujaa had the advantage, but neglecting to secure the ground in front of his encampment, is attacked the following day, and after a hard-fought contest, completely defeated-Reflection on his conduct-Shujaa retires to Patna-Is pursued by the prince Mohammed and Meer Jumla-Shujaa retreats to Mongier-Fortifies that post, and the passes of Terriagurry and Sicklygully-Mohammed takes-Patna-Joined by Meer Jumla-The latter obtains information of another road into Bengal-Monammed advances, by easy stages, towards Mongier, whilst his co-adjutor enters the western hills, and gains possession of the district of Bissuntpore -Shujaa again compelled to retreat, proceeds to Rajemahel-The royal army invests that city-Shirjan flees to Tondah-The setting-in of the rains and swelling of the river stop any further pursuit-The royal army cantons in the vicinity of Rajemahel-Shujas recruits his army and harasses the imperial camp-The Prince Mohammed having been betrothed to one of his cousins deserts to Shujaa-Conduct of Meer Jumla on this occasion-The marriage between the prince Mohammed and the daughter of Shujaa criebrated at Tondah-Great rejoicings thereon-The imperialists prepare to cross the Ganges-Shujas encamps his army-Assigns a conspicuous post to his new son in law-The Impenalists cross the river-A battle ensues-Shujaa is defeated, and slees towards Dacea-Jumla takes possession of Tondah-Conduct of the emperor Aurungzebe upon receiving intelligence of the desertion of his son. Mohammed -Stratagem to break the connection between Mohammed and Shujaa-The plan succeeds-Shujaa dismisses his son-in law and daughter-Arrives at Dacea-Forsaken by his troops-Resolved to seek refuge at Chittagong, or Arracan-Enters the country of Tipperah-Arrives at Chittagong -Disappointed at not finding any ship there-Continues his journey to Arracan-At first favourably received by the Raia-The Raia altera his conduct-Sends an insolent message to the prince-Orders him to quit his territories-Magnanipious conduct of Shujaa on this occasion-The Raia accuses the prince to his courcil of having formed a plot to sless the kingdom-The Arracan troops surround the proce and his small party-A combat ensura-Greater part of the Moghuls killed -Shujaa taken pruoner-Drowned-The property stabs herself in despair-The daughters setzed and one of them formbly married to the Raja-The sons put to death.

Early in the year 1049 Sultan Shujaa, the second son of the empetor Shah Jahan then twenty four years of age, took possession of the government of Bengal but his father fearing to trust him with too much power conferred the government of Behar on Shaista Khan, the son of the Vizier Asuf Jah, and nephew of Noor Jehan.

Shujaa again transferred the seat of government to Rajemahel (termed, in the records of that The seat of government transferred to Rajemahal. time, Akbarnagur), and built there an elegant palace, some of the rooms of which are yet standing. He also strengthened the foitifications which had been erected by Raja Man Sing, and expended large sums of money in rendering the city worthy of his residence, but the following year, nearly the whole of the city, and the principal part of palace, were destroyed by a dreadful conflagration, in which many lives were lost, and the family of the prince with difficulty escaped.

About the same time, the current of the Ganges changed its bed and poured its torrents against the walls of the new capital, washing away many of the stately edifices.

Previous to that time, the course of the Ganges was along the northern bank, running under the walls of Gour, but since that period, it pours its torrents against the rocks of Rajemahel, forming eddies and whirlpools, dangerous to the incautious or impatient traveller.*

In consequence of the youth and inexperience of Shujaa, the emperor took the precaution of sending with him Aazim Khan, who had been governor of Bengal for nearly five years, and to whose daughter the prince was lately married, as his chief counsellor and adviser but Shujaa, either wishing to make him a handsome provision, or to be freed from the superintendence of his father-in-law, appointed that nobleman to reside as his deputy at Dacca, but he being shortly disgusted with that situation, was, by his own request, removed to the government of Allahabad whence he was transferred to Joanpore, and died there in the year 1059 aged seventy six years. He was burled in his own gardeo in the vicinity of that city where bls tomb is still shewn.

^{*} See Asiatic Researches, Vol v. p. 271, 8vo. edit.

The early part of Sultan Shujaa s government was distinguished by his condescension to the English and by hisgranting them permission to establish factories, both at Ballasore and at Hoogly but their ships were not yet permitted to enter the Ganges.

The cause of this partiality to a nation which was destined to become the rival power and ultimately the support of the descendants of Timour is thus satisfactorily accounted for

In the year of the Hejira 1046 a daughter of the emperor

Shah Jehan having been dreadfully burnt A. D 1618. by her clothes extehlug fire an express was seet to Surat, through the recommendation of the Vizier Assud hhan to desire the assistance of an European surgeon For this service the council at Surat cominated Mr Gabriel Boughton surgeon of the Mr Boughton as ship Hopewell, who immediately proceed English surrece ed to the emperor's camp then in the obts spritileges ier his nation. Dekkan, and had the good fortune to cure the young princess of the effects of her accident, Mr Boughton, in consequence became a great favourite at court. and having been desired to name his reward, he with that liberality which characterizes Britons sought not any private emolument but solicited that his nation might have liberts to trade free of all duties, to Bengal, and to establish factories in that country. His request was complied with, and he was furnished with the means of travelling across the country to Bengal. Upon his arrival in that province, hoproceeded to Pipple, and in the year 1048, an English ship happening to arrive in that port, he, in virtue of the emperor's firman,* and the privileges granted to him, negotiated the whole of the concerns of that vessel without the payment of any duties

In the following year, the prince Shujaa, having taken possession of the government, Mr. Boughton proceeded to Rajemahel, to pay his respects to his royal highness he was most graciously received, and one of the ladies of the haram being then indisposed with a complaint in her side, the English surgeon was again employed, and had the good fortune to accelerate her recovery. Owing to this event, Mr. Boughton was held in high estimation at the court of Rajemahel, -and, by his influence with the prince, was enabled to carry into effect the orders of the emperor, which might otherwise have been caviled at or, by some underhandmethod, have been rendered nugatory

In the year 1050, the same ship returned from England, and brought out a Mr Bridgeman, and some other persons, for the purpose of establishing factories in Bengal Mr Boughton, having represented the circumstance to the prince, was ordered to send for Mr. Bridgeman that gentleman, in consequence, went to Rajemahel, was introduced to the prince, and, obtained an order to establish, in addition to that at Pipley, factories at Ballasore and Hoogly, Hoogly † Sometime after this event, Mr.

^{*} I was not able to find a copy of this firman among the Indian records, but Mr. Bruce mentions that it is in the State-paper Office, and is dated Feb. 2,1633-4.

[†] See East-India Records, Vol xiv. p. 22

Boughton died but the prince still continued his into the ilberality and kindness to the English.

For eight years Shajas ruled Bengal with great justice and propriety but as Shah Jehan made it a practice to change his governors frequently and was jdalous of the power and authority he had himself conferred on his

A. D. 1647 sons, he in the year 1057 sent an order to the prince, to deliver over the government to the Nuwab Aitcad Khan, and to repair to court, as he was auxious again to have the pleasure of seeing him after so long an absence.

Upon the arrival of Shojaa at Lahore, where the emperor then beld his court, be was received to the most affectionate manner, but in a few months was appointed to the govern ment of Cahui This was a severe mortification to the prince who, in common with his hrothers disliked the northern provinces whose snowy mountains, and uncount inhabitants suited not the habits and inclinations of young men accustomed to the fuxuries and doclie manners of the natives of the south

For two years however Shujaa was compelled to do penance in Cabull, but, at the expiration of that period, he was allowed to return to Bengal, and received the province in the same state he had left it. Altead Khau, the governor expecting that the prince would shortly return considered himself merely as a lower teams and neither altered nor abrogated any of his laws or regulations.

Aisead Khan was the younger brother of Shaista khan and son of Asuf khan brother of the empress Noor Jehan being a man of pleasure and possessing a handsome fostune he did not wish for any public employment, but spent his

The following account of Sultan Shujaa, taken from the History of Hindoostan, will enable the reader to form a judgment of his character "Shujaa was humane in his disposition, averse to cruelty, an enemy Character of Shujaa. to oppression ın the execution justice he had no respect of persons, except when the natural tenderness of his disposition gave his mind a bias towards the unfortunate Though honest, like his brother Dara, he was not so open and free He never told a falsehood, but he did not always tell the whole of the truth He was more tranquil, more close and reserved, than Dara, and he was more fitted for the intrigues of party, and that management which is necessary to direct the various passions of men to one point. He was generous to his friends, and did not disdain to hear their advice, though he for the most part, followed his own judgment of things. He was fond of pomp and magnificence, and much addicted to the pleasures of the haram. Graceful and active in his own person, he loved in women that complete symmetry of limbs which rendered him the favourite of the sex, and he spared no expense in filling his seraglio with ladies remarkable for their beauty and accomplishments In their society he spent too much of his time; but the warmth of his constitution did not make him neglect the necessary affairs of life During his long government of Bengal, he won the affections of the people by the softness of his manners, and his exact and rigorous execution of justice; and the country flourished in commerce and time either at the capital, or in visiting his brother, and other excursions of pleasure "Muasir al Omrah In this instance, he appears to have taken charge of Bengal merely to oblige the emperor, with whom he was a great favourite agriculture under the protection which he invariably gave to industry. In hattle he was hrave nor was he destitute of the talents necessary for a general and we must attribute his misfortunes in the field to the effeminacy of his troops more than to his own want of conduct.

It such was the real character of Shujaa, we may suppose that the court of Rajemahel rivalled that of Dehly in splendour and luxury and that the opulent citizens and persons in office imitating the example of their governor imparted a taste for pleasure and expense to the inhabitants of the province in general who secured from all fears of foreign invasion by the affinity of their prince with the imperial throne and protected by his impartial administration of justice from domestic oppression prohably enjoyed more happiness under Shujaa than they had experienced under any former Mohammedan governor

During this p riod it appears that the European nations had every facility given to their commerce and that the English in coosequence of Shah Jehans firman and the privileges obtained by Mr. Boughton enjoyed a free trade with Bengal, they were also at liberty to export any quantity of salipetre they pleased, the value of which, in coosequence of the chill war then raging in England, was very much enhanced.* He also granted the English his special number or order for freedom of trade.

For nine years after Shujaa's return to the government,

A D 1657----the inhabitants of Bengel enjoyed an uninterrupted state of prosperity, that when, in the year to63 the indisposition of the emperor

See Ermes (invals A. D. 1651 s. Also Appendix, No. 3.

threw all Hindoostan into a state of convulsion, by the contentions of his four sons for the throne, the eastern provinces felt the shock, and the melody of the flageolet and tambourine was changed for the shrill notes of the trumpet, and martial sounds of the kettledrum

Sultan Shujaa was the first, who upon hearing of the dangerous illness of his father, took the field He excused his precipitation to his followers, by avowing his conviction, that if his elder brother, Dara, succeeded to the throne, he had no prospect but death, or perpetual imprisonment.

The resources which he possessed were considerable, his treasury was well-filled, his army numerous, and, to appearance, effective he was also supported by the good wishes and affections of his subjects

When Shujaa first hoisted the banner of hostility, he issued a manifesto, stating, that the emperor was dead, and not without suspicion of treachery, and although he received letters from his father, announcing his recovery, he alleged that they were forged by Dara, to deceive him, and to gain time, he therefore continued his? march to the vicinity of Benaras, and gave orders to construct a bridge of boats across the Ganges In the meantime, he received intelligence that his youngest brother, Morad, had assumed the imperial titles in Guzerat, and was on his march to Dehly, to assert his claim to the throne. This information afforded him at once pleasure and chagrin He was gratified to think the attention and force of Dara would be divided, when assailed both from the east and the west but if vexed him to find, that, after conquering Dara, he would still have another rival to subdue. Dara had the earliest intelligence of the designs of this brother in Bengal; and under pretence of a change of air being recommended to the emperor he removed him, and the whole court, from Dehly to Agra. He had previously-sent his son Soliman, with a chosen detachment of ten thousand horse, to se ore Allahabad and as soon as he received intelligence of Shujaa having commenced his march he sent off Raja Jy Sing and Dilere khan with a large reinforcement, to join his son.

The orders of the prince were to attack Shujaa with the utmost vigour and compel him either to retreat or to destroy him hut previous to the Rajaa departue from Agra, the emperor sent for him in private and requested him if possible to negotiate a peace between the hrothers; and to persuade Shujaa to return quietly to Beogal

Whilst Shujaa was husify employed in preparing his bridge at Behadurpore in the vicioity of Benares, the army of Soliman appeared on the opposite hank. But, previous to the commeocement of hostilistics, the Raja Jy Sing in obedience to the directions of the emperor opeoed a negotiation with the prince in which he pointed out to him the evils of a civil war and the impolicy of opposing Dara, who supported by the name and authority of his father could command all the resources of the empire Shujaa, convinced by his reasoning and finding it impossible to conceal from his army the recovery of the emperor agreed to return to his government, and to disband his army

The active spirit of the young Soliman however did out brook this ne obtains which Raja Jy Sing was carrying on without his participation are endeavoured to heak it off; and when concluded he refused his assect but, to the mean time he had employed several persons to earch for a ford or to discover the narrowest part of the river which, it helps then the dry season of the year, was uncommonly low. On the day the truce was concluded, his spies brought him information, that, a few miles up the Ganges, his cavalry might cross with little difficulty. He communicated not his intentions to the Raja, but, under pretence of changing the ground of his encampment, he, in middle of the night, marched off, and before break of day, had crossed the river with his own troops and those of Dilere Khan. He then sent orders to the Raja to follow him; and, moving on with rapidity, he completely surprised the Bengal camp

Shujaa, who had secured all the boats previous to the arrival of his adversaries, considered the Ganges insuperable barrier to their attacking him, and, lulled into further security by the negotiation he had concluded, was taken totally unprepared He was roused from his sleep by the clashing of arms, and the shouts of the enemy started up, seized his arms, and, to render himself conspicuous to his troops, mounted an elephant; but all his efforts to stop their flight was in vain a few of his officers gathered round him, and fought bravely, but they were compelled, by superior numbers, to retreat to the river side, where they embarked on board the swift-rowing boats of Bengal, and were quickly conveyed to Patna The capture of Shujaa's elephants, horses, and rich camp equipage, gratified the avarice and vanity of Soliman, and for a time stopped the pursuit But the imperial army soon followed the fugitives, and Shujaa, upon their approach, abandoned Patna, and retreated to Mongier. The fortifications of Mongier stopt Soliman, till he received orders from his father to return with all haste to Agra, to assist him in opposing his brothers Aurungzebe and Morad, who had united their forces, and combined against him.

The retreat of Soliman roused the drooping spirits of-

Shujaa, and he hastened to lovy a new army but when he received intelligence of the defeat of Dara, the captivity of the emperor and the usurpation of the throne hy his younger brother Aurungsebe, he was confounded and knew not what to do After much consideration and advice of his counsellors in order to gain time he wrote to Aurungsebe, congratulating him on his success and soliciting n confirmation of his government

The new emperor judging of others hy his own feelings, was not to be deceived by such apparent moderation he however treated the envoy of Shujaa with much attention and was very particular in his inquiries respecting his master s family and the state of his health he concluded, by desiring the envoy to inform his brother that, in the present state of affairs the granting him a new commission for his govern ment was unnecessary and in fact, improper as he only considered himself the vicesegent of his father whose infirmities although they disabled him from welding the sceptre with effect did not annul his former appointments This answer though not satisfactory was perhaps as much as Shara expected and afforded him time to complete his preparations but, in the meanwhile it allowed Aurungzebe an opportunity of crushing the power of Dara of subduing all his other enemies and firmly establishing himself on the throne

Shujaa at length threw off the mask and from a subject to Aurungzebe became his competitor for the empire. In the A. D. 1652. pear 1057 he marched from Bengal with a numerous and well appointed army but which, being principally composed of new levies he was under the necessity of instructing in their duties, whilst advancing to the attack of an army of veterans. He arrived at Allanabad, and crossed the Ganges, without opposition. He halted there for some days, and afterwards proceeded thirty miles, to Kudgwa, at that place the advanced troops of Aurungzebe, under the command of his son Mohammed, came in sight, and orders were given to the Bengal army to throw up entrenchments in their front and left flank, the right being protected by the river

[.] See His ory of Hindoostan A. D 1658

The imperial standards made their appearance the following day. Aurungzebe encamped his army opposite his brother's, leaving an extensive plain between the two camps, for a field of battle. On the morning of the 15th, both armies were drawn out in battle array, and, about noon, the cannonade commenced Shujaa had placed his artillery on a rising ground, in front of his line; and his batteries being well served, the shot plunged into the thickest part of Aurungzebe's line, and, after destroying a number of his people, compelled him to retire

At this time, Moharaja Jeswint Sing, who commanded the Rajepoot and other Hindoo troops in the service of Aurungzebe, not only deserted his post, but attacked and plundered the royal camp, which had been left standing some miles in the rear of the army. They seized upon the treasure, cattle, and baggage of the principal officers, and retreated with them towards Agra. This event threw the army of Aurungzebe into great confusion; and had Shujaa been aware of the Raja's intention, and taken advantage of it, he might have obtained an easy victory.*

^{*} Khafy Khan, author of the Manleshub al Lebab, says the Raja did inform Shujar of his intention; but the result of the contest is a strong evidence of the contrary.

hy the advice of Aliverdy Khan (who is said to have heenbribed hy Aurungzehe), in an unlucky moment quitted the elephant, and mounted his horse. This action could have heen seen by only a few of his men who were near his person; but the greater part of the army perceiving the ambkary (seat with a canopy) empty fled with precipitation Aurungzebe was not in a situation immediately to pursue, and night coming on, gave the fugitives leisure to effect their retreat though at the expense of their artillery, stores, and campeounpage.

Suitan Shujea defeat ed by Aurungsebe.

concluded their master was slain and

The circumstances which took place both in this battle and that of Benaras, by no means entitle Shujan to the panegyric passed on him by the author of the history of Hindoostan in neither instance did he evince any skill or foresight as a general. He allowed himself to be shame fully surprised on both occasions and sacrificed his troops hy his negligence and want of circumspection lit was also a circumstance well known that his brother Dara had lost the victory by alighting from his elephant. Shujaa should therefore have taken warning by his example, and have kept his seat, though surrounded with danger and difficulty As a politician, his talents must appear despicable doubt less he should have had agents in the enemy's camp to inform him of the dispositions of the Chief. The event proved that one-third of Aurungzebe's army headed by the Maharaja, were disaffected to his cause, and had the attack of Shujaa been combined with the retreat of the Hindoos, there can be little doubt that the contest would have terminated differently. So strongly were his contemporaries convinced that he jost the battle from his want of prudence, that it is since become a proverbial saying in Hindoostan,

"Sujaa jeet bazy, apna haat hara."

"Shujaa having won the game, threw it up with his own hands."

'Terror and disgrace were thecompanions of Shujaa's fight; he changed his clothes; he threw off every mark of distinction; and hurried back to Patna as a private man. He not only feared his enemies, but those who had hitherto been his friends: he apprehended that the bribes of Aurungzebe would turn the swords of his own soldiers against him; and he feared to put confidence in any man. At length, arrived at Patna, he felt re-assured, and announced to his family and subjects his safe return.

The morning after the battle, Aurungzebe detached his son Mohammed, with ten thousand chosen horse, to pursue the unfortunate Shujaa His orders were, not to relinquish the pursuit, till he had captured the fugitive, or reached the gates of Patna. The young man literally obeyed his instructions, and arrived at that city a very short time after his uncle, who, alarmed at the sudden appearance of the enemy, continued his retreat to Mongier

In the mean time, the anxiety of Aurungzebe being quitted with respect to the consequences of Maharaja Jeswint Sing's revolt, he ordered Meer Jumla, who then bore the stitle of Khan Khanan, with a numerous and well-appointed sarmy, to follow the footsteps of the prince Mohammed, and to assist him in driving Shujaa from Bengal.

Soon after the arrival of Shujaa at Mongier, he was joined by a number of his dispersed followers, and, having received some reinforcements from Bengal he strengthened the fortifications of Mongier by deepening the ditch; and threw up entrenchements from the fort to the hills, which formed a complete harrier against the enemys advancing on that side of the river. He also sent orders to streogthen the works of Terriagurry and Sicklygully and to place garrisons of his best troops therein

The prince Mohammed having with little difficulty made himself master of the city of Patna, waited there for the arrival of his coadjutor Meer Jumla, and the maio body of the army

After the arrival of that experienced officer at Patna, he sent intelligent spics to procure him exact information of Shnjaa's position and having learnt that it was such as would require much time and difficulty to force, he summoned the remindars of the oelghbourhood of Patna to stiend him and from them he forced the confession that there was another road by which he might eoter Bengal but that it was circuitous, narrow and steep and little used, on account of the difficulties it presented, and the savage manners of the mountaineers. This information was sufficient for Jumla he selected twelve thousand of his best horse and noen cumbered with any haggage, he took the route Sheregotty * which is situated in the mountains of Jaccund. In the mean time the young prince Mohammed with remainder of the royal army proceeded by easy marches, towards Mongier and encamped withlo a few miles of the fort. For several days taker skirmishing parties advanced from the camp and made a show as if they intended to assault the entreachments by there means the attention of Shujaa

I military high road was made about thirty years ago by this route from Benaras to Calcutta, which is one-third shorter than the old total was occupied, till his couriers brought him inormation that the enemy had entered the Bissuntpore city from his rear, and were advancing against this capital. This intelligence overwhelmed Shujaa with grief and astonishment, he immediately withdrew this troops from the trenches and retreated to Rajemahel, in which were lodged his family and treasures.

The road being thus left open, the royal army advanced; and having stormed the passes of Terriagurry and Sicklygully, invested Rajemahel on one side, while Meer Jumla occupied the other a communication between the armies was speedily effected, and in a few days the batteries opened against the walls of the city.

For six days, Shujaa resisted all the attacks of the enemy; but was then convinced that the place was no longer tenable. He embarked his family and all his valuables on board boats; and during a dark and stormy night, crossed over the river to Tondah, the fortifications of which he immediately ordered to be repaired. Fortunately for the fugitive prince, on the very night that he made his escape, rainy season set in with great violence, the rivers were swollen by torrents from the mountains, and the royal camp was laid under water. Meer Jumla, seeing it impossible to pursue Shujaa, and that there was no remedy, was obliged to canton his army, for four months, in the vicinity of Rajemahel

This respite afforded to the unfortune Shujaa an opportunity of collecting all his troops from the lower part of Bengal. He also drew from thence a great train of artillery, which was well served by Portuguese and other Europeans, who willingly entered his service, for that prince, being of a generous disposition, and free from bigotry gave encouragement to people of all nations and religions; and, it is said, promised the monks, who since the destruction of Hoogly were dispersed in different parts of the country that if he was successfol he would rehulld their chorches, and restore them the privileges they enjoyed under the emperors Jehaogire and Akbar The affairs of that prince began now to assume a more favourable aspect his troops finding themselves supported by a good train of artillery and regularly paid reaumed their confidence and the eastern parts of Bengal heling intersected by rivets still sflorded many oppolunities of prolonging the war and of exhausting the patience and perseverance of his coemics.

During the time the armies lay to this position, the war boats of Shujaa frequently crossed the river and cannonaded the enemys camp and by night attacks, kept them in such a constant state of alarm that Jumla found it advisable to abandon the city of Rajemahel and to encamp his army at some distance from the riverside

At this juncture an event occurred which, for a time rejoiced and animated the frieods of Shujas, and caused great alarm and anxiety to the new emperor and his generals.

The prince Mohammed who in conjunction with Jumla, commanded the imperial army had he Love of princes. Healanmed for the fore the hreaking out of the civil war heen destatured for the betrothed to his cousin the daughter of Shujaa the animosity between the hrothers prevented the consummation of the marriage and the friends of both parties supposed it was irrerocably broken off even Mohammed in the tumult of the camp seemed to have forgotten the extolled charms of his cousin hut the princess moved by compassion for her father wrote to him an affecting fetter with her own hand. She lamented, in the most pathetic terms, the hardoess of her fatte, which had compelled her to see the man whom she had long considered as her husband waging releatless war against her beloved parent and pursuing him and his family to destruction. This condescension, on the part of an amiable girl, rekindled the latent spark of affection and love in the breast of Mohammed he resolved to relinquish all his prospects of the empire, to forfeit his father's favour and to abandon "all the world for love". He, however, flattered himself, that a great portion of the army, who were strongly attached to him for his bravery and liberality, would follow him and espouse the cause of Shujaa.

Sometime after the commencement of the correspondence the general, Meer Jumla, having removed his camp at some distance from Rajemahel, the prince considered it a fovourable opportunity to sound the disposition of his troops. He accordingly invited a number of the officers whom he considered as his best friends, to his quarters; and laid open to them his disgust at the cruelty and tyranny of his father, his resolution to espouse the cause of Shujaa, and his intention of immediately going over to Tondah, whither he hoped he should soon be followed by all his friends, and a considerable part of the army, whom he considered as devoted to his interest.

For some time the assembly remained mute with astonishment, but, instead of opposing the measure, and pointing out to the prince the folly of his conduct, they, with that hypocrisy and flattery which are so disgraceful to Indian manners, said, "whatever your royal highness does, must be right and there can be no doubt,

Prince Mohammed deserts evening, one-half of the army will join your standard by sun-rise." On these vague assurances the prince quitted Rajemahel that evening the embarked in a pleasure-boat, attended by a few of his confidential servants, as If going to recreate himself on the Ganges and in a very short time was landed at a small distance from Tondah, where he was met by Balund Akhter the son, and several officers of Shujaa.

In the mean time, the prince's quondam friends returned to their tents and each man solicitious of gaining favour with the imperial general sent off an express, to inform Meer Jumla of the folly of Mohammed, and the necessity of his immediate return to the army

When Jumla received this intelligence he was struck with astonishment at the madness of the prince hut supposed it impossible that without having secured the allegiance of a large portion of the army he could have been guilly of such an act of folly he was therefore doubtful whether he might vanture to return to Rajemshel fearing that the troops only waited to secure his person before they went over to Mohammed. He at length resolved to do his duty as a faithful officer and hastened back to Rajemahel Here he found every thing in the greatest confusion, some of the troops disposed to plunder the quarters of those Chiefs who retained their loyalty and others desirous of solating the property of the prince and the whole in a mutinous state and wavering in their intentions.

The appearance of the general for a time silenced the storm he mounted his elephant, and rode into the midst of the samy he then harangued them and pointed nut the folly of Mohammed, whom he sugmailed as a weak young man, governed only hy his passion that the cause he had expouted was desperate, and should any of the troops be rash enough to follow him, they might be assured they were devoting themselves to destruction. He concluded by saying he should march against the enemy as soon as the rainy season was over, and trusted, that before the end of that campaign he should be completely master of all Bengal. This speech had the desired effect, the majority were convinced by his reasoning, and the few who were inclined to support Mohammed were afraid to avow their sentiments, on account of the paucity of their numbers every man returned quietly to his home; and the general in order to put a stop to further cabal, and to give employment to their minds, sent out parties to seize all the boats they could collect, and to make every preparation for the construction of a bridge over the river, as soon as the season would permit

^{*} See hote page 173

Whilst such was the state of affairs at Rajemahel, the city of Tondah was a scene of festivity and rejoicing the arrival of Mohammed communicated hope and delight to every heart. Shujaa received him with raptures, and the females hastaned the preparations for the wedding. No thoughts of danger, or anticipation of future events, were allowed to damp the joys of the present moment. The nuptuals were celebrated with great pomp and rejoicings, but, alas I the festivities were scarcely concluded, when they were awoke from their dream of happiness, by intelligence of the approach of the imperial forces.

Shujaa, disdaining or fearing to trust to the fortifications of Tondah, encamped his army on the plain, some miles distant from the city, and resolved once more to try his fortune in a pitched battle. He had great confidence in his own troops, and was led to believe, from the assertions of Mohammed that part of the imperial army would join him the first opportunity; on which account he assigned to that prince a conspicuous post in the centre of the first line.

whence his standard could be easily distinguished by his friends, as they advanced

The imperial general having completed his bridge of boats, or discovered a ford crossed the river near Sooty and convinced of the superiority of his hardy veterans of the north over the newly raised levies of Shuisa, he was delighted to find the enemy in the field. He advanced with impatience and when he heheld, from a distance the standard of Moham med he selected one of his most trust worthy officer to attack that post, with directions, if possible, to secure the prince. The hattle commenced by a distant cannonade in which, probably the army of Shujaa had the advantage Meer Jumla, therefore directed his cavalry to advance, and, when sufficiently near ordered his select corps to make a charge upon Mohammed his orders were rapidly obeyed, and the misguided prince supposing it was a body of his friends coming to join him directed his artillery to cease firing The mode of their attack convinced him of his error but it was too late the first line was thrown into confusion , they fled, and communicated their panic to the second line when the route became general The eldest son of Shujaa was screely wounded and an immense number of the Bengal troops were slaughtered by the Moghul cavalry

Shuisas army defeated.

Shujaa, and his unfortunate son in-law effected their escape to the city but fearing to trust to its strength embark ed that night, with their families and treasures, on board swift rowing boats, and made the best of their way to Dacca. whilst the troops dispersed themselves in all quarters.

Jumia was surprised at his own success, and the follow ing morning ignorant of the flight of the princes, advanced against Tondah. Upon his arrival, the gates were thrown open, and he took quiet possession of the Sultan's place

He was now convinced that the hopes and resources of Shujaa were annihilated, and that he had nothing to apprehend from him. he therefore did not immediately pursue him, but spent some time in settling the country, of which he had, at that time, the commission of governor from the emperor.

When the first intelligence of Mohammed's desertion reached Aurungzebe, he was overwhelmed with rage and astonishment, and concluded that the whole army would follow the example of the prince he feared, not only that Bengal was lost, but that Shujaa would again be enabled to contend with him for the empire

But as, notwithstanding his numerous faults, that monarch possessed the quality of bravery in a superior degree, he gave, instant orders for his army to take the field, and had actually marched several days on the route to Bengal, when he received the agreeable news of the success of his arms at Tondah. This event satisfied him that he had little to fear from his brother—he therefore returned to Dehly; where, reflecting on the strange conduct of his son, to whom he partly owed the crown,* he devised the following stratagem to breakthat connection the youth had so hastily formed. He wrote a letter as if addressed secretly to Mahommed; and sent it by a special messenger, with directions to throw himself in the way of Shujaa's spies, so that he should be discovered, and the letter taken from him. The contents were as follow:

"To our beloved son Mohammed, whose happiness and safety are joined with our life. It was with regret and sorrow that we parted with our son, when his valour became necessary to carry on the war against Shojaa. We hoped from the love we bear to our first-born to be gratified soon with his return and that he would have brought the enemy captive to our presence to the space of a month to relieve our mind from anxiety and fear. But seven months passed away without the completion of the wishes of Aurungzebe. Instead of adhering to your duty Mohammed you betrayed your father and threw a hlot on your own fame. The smiles of a woman have overcomn fillal plety. Honour is forgotten in the brightness of her beauty and he who was destined to rule the empire of the Moghula has himself become a slave But as Mohammed seems to repeat of his folly we forget his crimes. He has invoked the name of God to vouch for his sincerity and our parental affection returns he has already our forgiveness hut the execution of what he proposes is the only means to regain our favour The letter made an impression on the miod of Shujaz. which all the protestations of Mohammed could not remove he hecame silent and discontented. He had an affection for the prince and hn was more enraged at being disappointed In the judgment which he had formed than at the supposed treachery Havlog continued three days in this agitation of mind, he at last seot for the prioce he told him in thn presence of his council, that, after all struggles of affection with suspicion the latter had prevailed that he could no longer behold Mohammed with an eye of frieodship should he even swear to his innocence in the holy temple of Mecca that the bond of union and confidence which had lately subsisted between them was broken and that, instead of a son and a frieod, he behold him in the Shulan diaminara light of an enemy "It is thereforn necessary for the peace of both continued Shulas, "that Mohammed should depart Let him take away his wife, with all the wealth and jewels which belong to her rank. The treasures of Shujaa are open, he may take whatever he pleases. Go.—Aurungzebe should thank me for sending away his son, before he has committed a crime."

^{- *} See History of Hindoostan, Vol. in. p. 251.

304

Mohammed, on this solemn occasion, could not refrain from tears. He felt the injustice of the reproach, he admired the magnanimity of Shujaa, he pitied his misfortunes; but his own condition was equally deplorable. He knew the stern rigour of his father, who never trusted any man twice: he knew that his difficulty of forgiving was equal to his caution. The prospect was gloomy on either side distrust and misery were with Shujaa, and a prison was the least punishment to be expected from Aurungzebe. He took leave, the next day, of his father-in-law; that prince presented his daughter with jewels, plate, and money, to a great amount; and the unfortunate pair pursued their journey to the imperial camp.

Mohammed, accompanied by his spouse, the daughter of Shujaa, I moved slowly towards the camp of Jumla His melancholy increased as he advanced but whither could he fly? No part of the vast empire of India was impervious to the arms of Aurungzebe; and he was not possessed of the means of escaping beyond the limits of his father's power: he was even ashamed to shew himself among troops whom he had deserted Regret succeeded to folly; and he scarce could reflect with patience on the past, though the fair cause of his misfortunes still kept her dominion over his mind Having approached within a few miles of the imperialist he sent to announce his arrival to the Vizier. That minister hastened to receive him with all the honours due to his rank: a squadron with drawn swords formed around his tent; but they were his keepers rather than guards. Jumla, the very next day received a packet from court, which contained orders to send Mohammed, should he fall into his hands, under a strong escort to Dehly The officer who command ed the pasty was ordered to obey the commands of the prince but he at the same time received instructions to watch his motions, and to prevent his escape.

Mohammed though hrave and enterprising like his father was destitute of his policy and art. Precipitate full of fire, and inconsiderate he was more fitted for acting as a partisan than as a general and was therefore less adapted for war thanfor battle. Hanghty in his temper yet easy in his address, and an enemy to cruelty. An absolute stranger to fear he was daring and active on occasions of danger but he knew his own ment and his self concell induced him to ascribe to his own descisive valour the whole success of his father. He had been often known to say that he placed Aurungzehe on the throne when he might have possessed it himself Naturally open and generous he despised the duplicity of his father and disdained power that must he preserved by art. His free conversations upon these subjects estrangedfrom him the affection of his father who seems to have confessed his merit by his own fears. Had Mohammed accepted of the offer of Shah Jehan," when he seized that prince, he had courage and activity sufficleat to have kept possession of the throne of the Moghula, but he neglected the golden opportunity, and shewed his love of sway when he was not possessed of any rational means to acquire the empire. His misfortunes, however were greater than his folly he passed seven years ina melaccholy prison at Gualior, till death put a period to his misery.*

See Don's History of Hindoostan Vol. iii, p 251

* As the above statement is erroneous, and as it may be interesting to many of the readers of this work, to know the fate of this gallant young man, some extracts from the Muasir Alumgiery (History of Aurungzebe), respecting him, are subjoined —

"Upon his arrival at Dehly, he was confined in the Castle of Selimghur he was thence sent to Gualior, where he remained till A, D 1673, and was then brought back to Selimghur, and an allowance of 1000 rupees per month assigned him for his private expenses.

"In the following year the prince was allowed to take the air upon an elephant, and to visit the tombs and shrines in the vicinity of Delhy.

"In the year 1674, the emperor marched towards Hussein Abdal, and was accompanied by the prince Mohammed still under confinement

"In the following year, Sultan Mohammed was promoted to the rank of commander of 20,000, and presented with a lac of rupees

"In the year 1676, the prince Mohammed was married to the daughter of the Raja of Kistavur The following year, jewels, to the amount of seven lacs of rupees, were presented to the prince The same year a son was born to the prince, and named Musaud Bukht

"In the year 1678, the prince Mohammed died, and was buried close to the tomb of the celebrated saint Cuttub Addeen, near Dehly

"It is therefore probable, that if he had survived his father, he might have succeeded to, or at all events, would have been one of the competitors of the throne" Such is the account given of this transaction to the History of Hindoottan, which varies considerably from the authorities I have had an opportunity of consulting It is stated, both in the Albantekhab all Lebab and the Muattr all Omrah that Mohammed ashamed of his own coodoct, or distalished with his uncle returned of his own accord, to the imperial army previous to the battle of Toodsh, after an absence of ocarly nine mooths. This

t. D. 166a. event occurred to the year 1070

Meer Jumla, having settled the affairs of the western Bengal marched with his forces towards Dacca and the unfortunate Shojaa, whose treasures were now nearly exhausted and his army reduced to fifteen hundred horse finding opposition vain resolved in order to spare the further effusion of hiood to abandon his country—by emharkung on board a ship at the port of Chitagong* and proceeding from thence to the sacred shrines of Arahia where he might spend the remainder of his life to acts of devotion either at the temple of Mecca, or in the vicinity of the tomh of his propiet. If this measure failed him he still had the alternative of proceeding to Arracan and of solicting the protection of the prince of that country.

Having thus reconciled himself to his adverse fate be placed his family and valuables upon elephants and attended by a small body of cavalry and a few of his friends who generously refused to leave him to his distress he crossed the siver Burhampooter and having entered the wild mountains

Changong at that period had out been taken possessoo of by the Maghuls, but was dependent on Arracan and was frequently Portuguese Arabian and Malab rishipa. It was called by the former Porto Grando of Tippèrah, after a long and wearisome journey, he reached Chittagong. At this place, he had the mortification to learn, that there was not a ship in the port; and that, as the monsoon was raging with violence, no vessel could have attempted the voyage to Arabia at that season of the year. He had now no option left, but of proceeding to Arracan, or falling into the hands of his pursuers, of whose approach he received too well-grounded intelligence. He therefore discharged all his troops, and, accompanied only by his family, and forty domestics or friends, he continued his journey along the Shujaa seeks Naaf, which separates Arracan from Bengal As he had taken the precaution of sending forward an envoy, to explain to the Raja his situation, and to solicit his hospitality and protection, he was met on the frontier by an officer from that prince, with assurances of his protection and friendship.

These were the first consolatory words Shujaa had heard for a long time. He and his family were delighted to think their wanderings were now at an end, and, as they had still a considerable quantity of gold and jewels with them, they hoped to pass their lives in comfort in that retired part of the world, or that some revolution in the politics of Hindoostan might enable them to return thither as their ancestor Homayon had done from Persia

The royal fugitives were met, at some distance from the city of Arracan by a cavalcade, and escorted to a house prepared for their reception. There the assurances of the Raja were again repeated, and, as a proof of his hospitality, a large supply of provisions, fruit, &c was presented, as as a welcome offering

For some time the conduct of the Raja was unexceptionable but, whether alarmed by the threats, or won by the bribes of the governor of Bengal his behaviour suddenly changed be became cold and reserved and his servants no longer attended to the rites of hospitality. At length he sent Shuisa a verbal message, that he must either give him his daughter in marriage or immediately quit his kingdom The first of these demands was an insult the unfortunate prince did not expect. He replied in haughty terms that the race of Timour would never submit to dishonour them selves by so inferior a connection that as soon as the monsoon changed and a ship could be procured he would quit the country and recompense him liberally for the trouble he had given him , but that the Raja must be well convinced it was Impossible for him to depart at that season of the year The Raja was highly offended at the haughtiness of this answer and repeated his order for Shujaa Immediately to quit his territory. The unfortunate prince was then convinced that the mind of the Raja was actuated by the combined passions of lust and avarice and that certain death awaited him and his sons but, as there was yet a possibility of saving the lives of his domestics and friends he summoned them to his presence and having faid open to them his situation, conjured them to leave him to his fate and to throw themselves on the mercy of Aurungzehe who he doubted not would forgive their attachment to him when assured that he no longer existed. His speech was beard with melancholy attention and silence but, when con luded the whole assembly declared their only ambition was to shed their blood in his defence

In the mean time the Raja, having assembled his council alarmed them by the circumstantial detail of a plot, which he pretended Shujaa had laid, to assassinate him, and to take possession of the throne of Arracan. Notwithstanding the story was in the highest degree improbable, some of the council affected to believe it, and gave it as their opinion, that the foreigners should be immediately sent out of the country but as the followers of Boodh are prohibited from shedding blood, except in battle, the council would not authorize the Raja to touch the life of his prisoner, and although the princes of Arracan were despotic in their power, they wished to have all their acts sanctioned by the council, which consisted of a certain number of their principal officers and ministers.*

The Raja was therefore obliged to limit his orders to his troops, to remove the Moghuls from their present residence, and compel them to take the route of Chittagong but if, in so doing, the life of one of his subjects should be lost, the officer commanding was at liberty to satiate his revenge Such a subterfuge was unworthy even of an eastern despot, who in his own mind had fully determined the fate of his devoted captives

The spot on which was situated the temporary house fitted up for Shujaa, was a narrow bank, with the river in the front, and stupendous cliffs behind the only approach was, therefore, by one or other flank, these Shujaa had taken care to barricade in the best manner he could, and placed his son, with twenty of his friends, at one end of the pass, while he, with the remainder of his adherents, defended the other

^{} For a description of Arracan, and an account of the manners of the inhabitants of the Eastern Peninsula, See Symes' Embassy to Ava

The favourite arms of the Arracanners were a short sword and huckler, with these they advanced with horrible shouls towards the residence of Shulas, but without discharging any missile weapons it whilst the Moghuls, Ignorant of their prejudices and instructions received them with a volley of arrows, which laid many of the assailants, level with the ground. The object of the Raja was accomplished people now sought revenge and terrible as assailants, they clambered to the top of the precipice and hurled down huge stones on the heads of Shulaa and his friends, whose attention was occupied in defending the flanks of their position. The contest was no longer equal the Arracanners supported every moment by fresh troops, were incessant in their attacks whilst the Moghuls, wearled by the slaughter of their enemies, were at length overpowered, and the greater number of them hewn to pieces.

Shujaa was one of the last who fell he was stunned by a large stone throne from the precipice. He was instantly selzed disarmed and bound and was afterward placed in a small cance, with two of his attendants who instated upon accompanying him. They were carried into the middle of the stream when the boatmen having pulled out some plugs from the bottom of the vessel jumped overboard and were soon picked up hy another boar. The prince being fast bound sunk without a struggle but his two friends made a vain effort to save themselves hy saimming the hreadth of the liver or the opposition of their enemies prevented their reaching the shore and they obtained that death which according to the regulations of Arracan, was the exclusive provinces of the royal family.

See Symes Embassy to Ava.

The wife and daughters of Shujaa, in a fit of despair, threw themselves into the river, they were not, however, permitted to escape so easily, they were seized, and carried, with all the other females, to the Raja's palace

When the Raja had the insolence to wait upon Piaree Banu (the beloved princess), who was celebrated in Bengal for her wit and beauty, she drew a dagger, and attempted to stab the wretch, but failing in her design, she turned it against herself, and fell by her own hand. Of the three daughters, two are said to have put an end to their misfortunes by poison, the third was forcibly married to the Raja, but did not long survive her disgrace

Of the sons of Shujaa, the eldest, sixteen years of age, was wounded severely in the battle, the other was still an infant they were kept as prisoners for a short time, and then committed to a watery grave Such was the melancholy end of Shujaa, and his family a prince deserving a milder fate, but his virtues were better adapted for private than for public life. He might have filled with credit the throne of a well-regulated and established kingdom, but he had not energy or ability to contend with such a rival as Aurungzebe, nor prudence to remain content with a province, while he thought himself entitled to the empire No prince was ever more beloved than Shujaa misfortune, and even death itself, -could not deprive him of his friends and though his fate. was not known in Hindoostan for some years after his death, yetat filled every eye with tears and when the melancholy intelligence was communicated to Shah Jehan, he exclaimed, "could not the cursed infidel have left one

A, D, 1661. son of Shujaa alive to avenge the wrongs of his grandfather?" These events occurred in the year 1071.

MOHAMMED SAYID MEER JOOMLA NUW VB MUAZIN KHAN, KHAN KHANAN, SEPAH SELAR.

Ong n of Meer Jumla-He arrives at Golcondah-Obtains the command of an army-Subdues Camatic Bala Ghaut and amasses great wealth-Suspected of treacherous intentions-Makes overtures to the Moghul prince Aurunggabe-1 he emperor Shah Jehan demands his release from Sultan Abdallah-The Sultan refuges compliance-An army of Moghuls under the command of Mohammed the son of Aurungzebe enters Tellingana and compels the Sukan to comply with their demands-Meer Jumla proceeds to Dehly and is most graciously received-Obtains the title of Museum Khan-Appointed Visier-In the civil war takes part with Aurungzebe-louis that prince at Kudiwa-Appointed to carry on the war against Shujaa with the title of Khan Khanan -Preceeds to Daces, and re establishes it as the capital of Bengal -lavades Cooch Behar and changes the name of its capital to Alumgeernagur-Political conduct of Meet Junia-The son of the Rus becomes a convert to the Mohammedan fanh-Meer Jumla proceeds towards Assam-Difficulties of the march described-Defeats the ileet of the enems and takes the fort of Semyle - Pakes possession of Ghergong the capital of Assam without opposition-Cantons his army for the rainy sea on-Writes to the emperor that he had opened a road to China and hope I to arrive there in another campage-Th rains set in with great s clence and overflow the whole country-The Rejesu rounds the Moghuls with his army and cuts off all their supplies-A pestilerce Lie ks out among the troop - Meer Jumla in the greatest dure. He rairs abate and the Mouhul again enabled to act compel the Raja to return to the mountains whence he sends an envey to solud peace to which Joomla consents-The officer who had be n felt in charge of Cooch Behar having given id agust to the nitness the later rebel and expel the Moghule who take post at Ghowhatty—Meer Joomla commences his retreat—Arrives at Ghowhatty—Detaches an army to reconquer Cooch Behar—Proceeds towards Dacca—Dies—His character.

As this officer has made, and will still make, a 'conspicious figure in this history, it is thought requisite to give some account of his origin, and rise in life.

Mohammed, generally called Meer Joomla, was born in the vicinity of Ispahan, a city for many years the capital of Persia When arrived at the age of manhood, he imitated the example of a number of his successful countrymen, and went to seek his fortune in India His pro-A, D 1650. pitious stars led him to Golcondah, where, about the year A H 1060, he obtained an employment, in the service of the Sultan Abdallah Koottub Shah sovereigns of Telingana, and, by degrees rose to the command of the army Whilst in this situation, he subdued the country called Carnatic Bala Ghaut, which yielded a revenue of forty lacks-(4,000,000) of rupees per annum, and comprehended the strong fortresses of Gunjy Kotta and Sudhoot As thisdistrict is very rich, and contains several aiamond mines. Meer Joomla was supposed to have collected great wealth for himself in proof of this fact, he raised a select corps of 5000 cavalry, which he maintained at his own expense This circumstance shortly roused the envy and jealousy of all the courtiers, and caused suspicion in the mind of the Sultan

During the period that Meer Joomla was employed in the Carnatic he left his son, Meer Mohammed Ameen, to be his agei at court but the youth, puffed up with pride at the success of his father, conducted himself in a very dissolute and disrespectful manner and had the audacity to come to court

one day to a state of intextication and to fall asiespon the princes mushed. such behaviour could not pass unemiced he was severely reprimanded and forhidden to appear in the presence of the Sultan.

When this intelligence reached Meer Joomla, he was coordined that his enemies were plotting his ruin and that it would be unsafe for him to reture to Golcoedah. He the efore made overtures to the prince Aurung zebe who then commanded the imperial army in the Dekkan which were favourably received, and the prioce having recommended him to the emperor

A. D 1655. Shah Jeban, an envoy was (A H 1066) sent from Dehly to the court of Koottob Shah to demand the discharge of both father and son for the former of whom the envoy carried a commission of commander of 5000 horse, and for the son the rank of Colonel of 2000 in the Imperial service.

Before the arrival of the envoy Kootub Shah having learnt the object of his mussion confided. Mohammed Ameed and seized all the property of the father that he could discover. This cooduct drew on the Sultan the vengeacet of Aurungaebe an army under the command of his soo. Mohammed cottered Telingana, and havle, laid waste the country and plundered the cuty of Hyderabad compelled the Sultan to deliver up. Meer Joomla and his son, with all their wealth, and to purchase his own pardon hy a present of one million sterling and hy glving his daughter in martiage to Mohammed §

On the 12th of the mosth Jummad al Adhir A H 1067

As inferior kind of throne.

f See History of Hiodoostan and Scoals History of the Mohammed, and were most graciously received they thence proceeded to join Aurungzebe, by whom they were treated with great respect, and an intimacy was cemented between the parties. On the 25th of Ramzan they reached Delhy, and had the honour of being introduced to the emperor. On this occasion Meer Joomla presented his majesty with a large diamond, worth two lacs and sixteen thousand rupees, also sixty elephants, and other valuable commodities, amounting, in all to the value of fifteen class of rupees.

In return, Joomla was honoured with the title of Muazim Khan, the rank of commander of 6000 horse, with the insignia of standards and kettle-drums, the office of Dewan, and a present of five lacs of rupees in specie. The knowledge and abilities of Joomla recommended him in a high degree, to the emperor, and the place of Vizier having soon after become vacant, by the death of Saadulla Khan, notwithstanding all the opposition of the prince Dara, who was averse to Joomla, from his connection with Aurungzebe, that officer was appointed to the highest office in the empire

In the civil wars between the brothers, for the throne, Joomla took part with his patron, Aurungzebe, joined his camp near Kudjwa, the day preceding the battle with Shujaa, and, by his abilities and courage, contributed much to the success of that day. The high opinion entertained of him by Aurungzebe is evinced by his having been selected to carry on the war against Shujaa, and his conduct on that occasion gained for him the applause and esteem of his sovereign. He was promoted to the rank of generalissimo of the armies, and the high title of Khan Khanan (chief of the nobles)

It has been before mentioned that Meer Joomla, having settled the affairs of the western Meer Joemla makes Dacca the part of Bengal pursued the unfortunate capital of Bengal. Shujaa to Dacca. In that city he fixed and again rendered it the captial of the his residence

During the period that the army of Meer Joomla had occupied Rajemahel he had stopped the boats laden with saltnetre belonging to the English and

The English selze Total a A D 166a.

province

much injured their trade at Patna consequence of which the English had the audachy, in the year 1071 to selze one of bis vessels, for which he threatened to expel them from the country but early in the following year on their making an apology and restoring the vessel, he forgave them and during the remainder of his government, treated them with lealty. He however insisted upon their continuing to pay the prublush or annual A. D 1650 offering of 3000 rupees which had been established by the Foundar of Hooghly during the late civil WAF

Whilst the empire of Hindonstan was consulted by the contentions of Aurungzehe and bls brothers for the throne several of the hordering zemindars and tributary Rajas with drew their necks from the collar of obedience and not only ne lected to send any part of their recenues to the imperial treasury but even invaded the provinces. Amongst the most prominent of these was Beemnarain, the Raja of Cooch Behar whose country although frequently plundered by the Moham medans, and compelled to pay tribute was never absolutely subdued. This chi f taking advantage of the absence of the Moghul army, seized upon Kamroop, and several other of the imperial districts which adjoined his territories

To the north-east of Bengal is situated the extensive and the once powerful kingdom of Assam. This country is generally speaking a valley, 700 miles in length by 80 in breadth, through the middle of which runs the great river Burhampooter which after entering Bengal, joins the Ganges these rivers pour their united streams into the ocean near Deccan Shabazpore *

The prince of this country, named Jydej Sing had, during the civil wars, sent an army down the Burhampootr, which had plundered and laid waste the country as far as Dacca, and carried away with them a number of the inhabitants as slaves

To avenge these insults, and to re-establish the fame of the Moghul government, was an object of great solicitude to Meer Joomla, who as soon as he was satisfied with regard to the prince Shujaa, in the year 1071, collected, in the neighbourhood of Dacce, a numerous army, well equipped with artillery and warlike stores, and accompanied by a strong fleet of war-boats

Meer Joomla, having previously obtained the sanction of the emperor, early in the year 1072, Invades Cooch Behar marched, at the head of his forces, from Dacca As he had embarked his heavy artillery and stores on board the fleet, he directed his march along the bank of the Burhampooter but as there was no regular road by this route he was frequently obliged to cut

^{*} For a further description of this country, See Mr Vansittart's Transalation of part of the History of Aurungzebe, published in the Asiatic Researches for 1800, also Doctor Wade's account of Assam, in the above work for 1805

his way through woods, and to form causeways over the swamps. Although this measure delayed his progress, it, in the end facilitated his conquest for the Raja of Cooch-Behar not expecting the invasion from that quarter haddirected all his attention to fortify and defend the two other roads which led to his capital. Such were the difficulties that occurred in this route, that the general was himself obliged to set an example to his troops by taking the axe in his own hands and cutting down a tree. On seeing thisaction, the proud Moghuls, who previous to that time had considered fighting as their only duty alighted from their horses, and exerted themselves in clearing the way. By, their endeavours, and the co-operation of a number of elephants, a road was at length formed which enabled Meer Joomla to approach with little opposition, the city of Behar and the Raja, sensible of his inability to oppose so formidable an enemy took to flight and concealed himself in the woods

December A. D. 1661 and hills. On the 27th of Rubhy al Avul (third month) Meer Joomla took pos session of the capital of Cooch Behar and in compliment to the reigning emperor changed its name to Alumgeernagur

As it was the intention of Meer Joomla to retain possession of that district, he appointed Sped Mohammed Sadue to be chief Judge with directions to destroy all the idolatious temples and to errect mosques in their stead. He however issued orders to his troops not to plunder or injure any of the inhabitants but to seize upon all the property of the Raja wherever it could be found. To evince his zeal for religion the general himself with a battle kxe broks the celebrated image of varsin (the principal object of worship of the Hindoos of that province) and afterwards ascending to the roof of the temple, proclaimed the Mohammedan call to prayers. With this exception on the article of religion, Meer Joomla would not permit his troops to be guilty of any injustice to his new subjects, and instituted a court for the express punishment of plunderers, or other offenders

By these means, the inhabitants of Cooch Behar became reconciled to their invaders, and many of them, who had fled from the city, returned to their habitations. At length, Bishen Narain, the son of the Raja, who was on bad terms with his father, came in at the instance of Meer Joomla, he was converted to the Mohammedan faith, and on the promise of being raised immediately to the Raja, undertook to seize his father

To effect this impious undertaking, a considerable force, under the command of Isfundiar Beg, was sent with Bishen-Narain, who entered the woods, and having pursued the Raja for some time, compelled him to take refuge in a hill fort of Bootan, the only entrance to which was by a bridge composed of iron chains, and which was easily taken to pieces on the approach of an enemy. Although disappointed in seizing the Raja, they captured his principal minister, with all his family and wealth they also found, in the wood, 250 guns, great and small, and much other property all of which was forwarded to Dacca Meer Joomla, having settled the revenues of Cooch Behar at ten lacs of Narain rupees, and made his arrangements, left fourteen hundred horse, and two thousand musqueteers, under the command of Isfundiar Beg, to support the new government, and proceeded to the conquest of Assam.

As Meer Joomla was resolved not to quit sight of his fleet, on which were embarked his stores and depot of provisions he regained the banks of the Burhampooter and having crossed that river near Rangamutty at the expense of great labour and much delay he formed a road

A. D 1662. which enabled him to proceed by short stages. During this march as the imperial army was obliged to drag the boats against strong current, and the troops were necessitated to cross rivers and to clamber over precipices, it frequently happened that their day is journey did not exceed one or two miles, during which time although not opposed by the enemy in front, they were often annoyed on their flanks, hy small parties of the Assamese firing on them, from behind trees, or wherever the nature of the ground permitted them to approach unseen but as the general shared in all the faligues and danger frequently walking the whole way their rest was often broken after a most faliguing day, journey by the night attacks of enemy

After a most wearfsome march the Moghul army came in sight of the fort of Semyle * built upon a hill which commanded the river and was garrisoned by 20000 men supported by a feet of war boats, anchored across the stream Meer Joomla immediately gave orders for his boats to attack those of the enemy while be invested the fortress by land this cannon which were probably served by Europeans quickly dispersed the Assamese fleet and the garrison disputed by their retreat abandoned the post during the night.

The Moghul general, having taken possession of the fortress, which he named Anta Allah (the gift of God), placed a garrison therein: he shen proceeded on his route; and, after capturing a number of other places, on the sixth of Shaban (5th month) tooks possession of Ghergong, the capital of the kingdom.

As the Moghul army required some rest after their harassing journey, and the rainy season was approaching, Meer Joomla cantoned his troops in the vicinity of the river extending from Ghergong to Muttenpore, a distance of seven miles, and, as the Raja had fled at his appearance, and taken shelter in the mountains, he was under no apprehension of any molestation from the inhabitants of the country, to the principal of whom he had granted protection, and taken their promise of allegiance. Misled by this confidence, Meer Joomla despatched couriers to the emperor, informing him, that he had opened a road to China, and hoped, next campaign, to display the Moghul standards in that rich country.

This intelligence afforded much pleasure to Aurungzebe, who flattered himself that his victorious banners would meet, in the distant region of China, those of his Tartar relations, the descendants of Jengiez Khan. He, in consequence, gave orders for a numerous levy of troops to be assembled at Dehly, for the purpose of supporting. Meer Joomla, and maintaining his conquests. The emperor also conferred on Mohammed Ameen the son of Joomla an honorary dress, as a testimony of respect for his father. he also wrote to the general a letter, with his own hand congratulating him on his success, and encouraging him to proceed, but alas! these hopes were of a short-lived duration.

The rainy season of the year 1072 set in with uncommonviolence, the livers overflowed their banks, and laid the proof of the valley of Assam under water forage was nowher procurable, and the Mogbuli cavalry of whom the Assamese were so much afraid that hundreds of them often fled before tee horsemen could no longer act.

The Raja returned at the bead of his troops, from the mountains and having surrounded the Moghuls on every side cut off all supplies from the country Provisions became scarce and the dampness of the climate, or maligoily of the air occasioned a pestilectial disorder which swept off a number of the troops distress in every form attacked the Moghuls het, as it was impossible either to advance or retreat there was no other remedy for them but patience.

During the period that the Moghul army was thus surrounded with misfortunes the Assamese were incessant in their night attacks and succeeded in cutting off several of the detached parties they also, with polsoned arrows severely wounded many of the principal officers and killed a number of the mee and horses.

At length, in the month of Rubby al Avul (3rd month) of the year 1073, the rains began to subside and the dry ground to appear Meer Joomla lost not a moment in retallisting on his entered and wherever an opportunity offerred for the cavalry to act, they drove the Assamese before them like sheep before the wolf. The Raja a, ain ided to the mountains and sect an envoy to solicit peace. Meer Joomla either was, or pretended to be averse to any other terms than absolute submission but being attacked by a volent dynamically, and the troops mutinous to return to Bengal, he at length listened to the solicitations of Dilere Khan and other officers and agreed to withdraw his troops from Assam, on condition of the Raja paying a large sum of money, presenting a number of elephants, yielding up his daughter to be married to one of the princes, and promising an annual tribute

These terms having been accepted by the Raja, an envoy arrived in the Moghul camp on the 6th of the second Jemmad (6th month), and presented to Meer Joomla 20,000 tolahs of gold,* 1,008,000 tolahs in silver, forty elephants and two young ladies; one said to be the daughter of the Raja and the other the daughter of a powerful chief whose territories adjoined Assam, he also brought four young men, of good family, to remain as hostages for the payment of the annual tribute.

While Meer Joomla thus successfully conducted the war in Assam, Isfundiar Beg and the other officers whom he had left in charge of Cooch Behar, by their oppressions and tyrannical conduct, so disgusted the inhabitants of that province, that they rose in a body, and solicited their expelled Raja, Beemnarain, to return among them, and again to assume the reins of government

As soon as the Raja found himself sufficiently powerful he sent a polite message to Isfundiar Beg, and Mohammed Saleh, the governor and commander of the troops, that if they would retire peaceably and quietly from his dominions, they might do so unmolested, but if they persisted in remaining, they should have reason to repent their obstinacy

The Moghul Chiefs at first disregarded this menace, but after several skirmishes, in which they lost a number of men and officers they found it advisable to retire to Ghow hatty there to await the return of the army from Assam

^{*} A Tolah weighs about 400 grains

In the middle of Jemmad Assany (6th month) Meer Joomla commenced his return to Bengal. At this period his army was so much reduced by famine and sickness that nine mee out of ten were with difficulty transported and many of them idaily perished on the march, while the general himself was nearly exhausted by his disorder

In the end of Shaban (8th month) the army arrived at Ghowhatty on the confiders of Cooch Behar and notwith standing the weak state of Meer Joomla, he selected all the efficient part of the army and sent them under the command of Rasheed Khae and Asghur Khau, to reconquer that province. He then proceeded, with the remainder of his forces towards Dacca; but on his arrival at Khizerpore his constitution belog exhausted by falloue and disease be resigned his soul to the angel of death, on the and of Ramzao (oth

A. D 1653 4, month) of the year 1073

Meer Jumla was one of those characters who have risco more to consequence of their own abilities than by any peculiar instance of good fortune. He possessed are excellent under standing great coolness of miod and undaunted courage life was calculated for the intrigues of the cabinet, as well as for the stratagems of the nick. He private hide he was mabble and just. He disdained to use ungenerous means against his adversaries, and even expressed his joy on the escape of bultan Shujan from his arms. Till his death he retained the unie of Vizier though the duties of the office were performed by his deputy Raja Rangonath. His death was even regretted by the Europeans, who had formerly complained of his exactions.

When the emperor was informed of the death of Meer Joomla, and the unsuccessful termination of the expedition to Assam, he was greatly distressed; and sent the prince Mohammed Muazim to condole with the family of the deceased Chief, and to assure his son, Ameen Khan, of the imperial favour and support but the enemies of Aurungzebe were of opinion that he was much pleased with the event, as he was excessively jealous of the abilities, and much feared the ambition of that great man.

NUWAB SHAISTA KHAN AMMER AL OMRAH.

The Nuwab Shaista Khan appointed governor, but permitted to manage the business, for some time, by deputy-Arrives at Dacca-Prepares to retaliate on the Raja of Arracan-Detaches a fleet of war boats, with 3,000 men, under Hussen Beg, to recover the islands in the mouth of the Ganges-Sends the remainder of the army, under the command of his son, by land to Chittagong-The fleet retakes Jugdea and Alumgeernagar-Invades Sundeep. and regains possession of that island-Hussen Beg writes to the Portugese in the service of the Raja, offering them considerable advantages if they would desert to him-The Portuguese accede-The plot discovered-The Portuguese escape in their boats to Sundeep-The army arrives at the boundary of Chittagong-The Arracannels retreat to the city-An engagement takes place between the fleets, in which the Moghuls are worsted, but gain some advantage the following day-The united forces lay siege to Chittagong-The garrison endeavour to make their escape-Pursued, taken and sold as slaves-Shaista Khan, 'at his own request recalled to court-His character-The Danes and French establish factories in Bengal.

AFTER the death of Meer Joomla, the government of Bengal was conferred on Shaista Khan, the Ameeral-Omrah, son of the celebrated Vizier Asuf Jah and nephew of the empress Noor Jahan but as that officer had not then recovered from the wounds he had received at Poons in the Daccan from the assassins of the Mahratta Chief Soragee, he was permitted to govern the province by his deputy Daoud Khan, and did not proceed thither until the

A. D 1663 4. and did not proceed thither until the

The affairs of the province at that period required the presence of an able governor, for the Raja of Arracan finding that no notice was taken of his conduct to Sultan Shujan concluded that the Moghuls were afraid of his power, and when he heard of the death of Meer Joomla, he directed his troops to passess themselves of all the eastern coast, to the mouth of the Ganges. He also again took into his employ ment a number of the Portuguese adventurers, whose know ledge in maritime affairs enabled him to construct and narigate ressels of a sufficient size to carry cannon with these and his own swift rowing war boats, he extended his ravages to all the islands not in his possession, and soized a number of boats, richly laden, in different parts of the Ganges. Such was the extent of their depredations that the inhabitants ol Dacca trembled when they beard the name of Mughs whose general practice was to kill the men, and to carry off the women and children as slaves.

One of the first acts of Shalsta hhan sauthority was to assemble in the year 1075 at Daces, a cumerous fleet of boats and an army of Three thousand of these he immediately

A. D 1164-5.

[·] See Hutery of Hundrestan Vol. iii. page 370.

[†] On this occasion he demanded the assistance of some European gunners, from the Datch and English factories embarked on board the boats, unde the command of an officer, named Hussen Beg, with orders to clear the river of the pirates, and to drive them from the islands of which they had taken possession. The remainder is the army he placed under the command of his own son, Buzurg Omeid Khan, whom he instructed to proceed by land, and co-operate with the fleet in punishing the Mughs.

The fleets sailed from Dacca, and entering the great river Megna, which is formed by the junction of the Burham-pooter and Ganges, Hussen Beg took by storm the forts of Jugdea and Alumgeernagur, which were situated at the mouth of the river, and had been for some time in possession of the Raja Hence he sailed to the island of Sundeep, of which the enemy had been for many years in possession, and where they had erected several strong stockades in various places. The Moghuls were fortunate in surprising, in that place, a part of the Arracan fleet, which they took with little trouble, but the capture of the stockades was not so easily effected and several weeks were required to expel, or seize the whole of the Mughs, who are celebrated for their dexterity, both in the construction and defence of such fortification

Hussen Beg, having thus completed the object of his instructions, waited for the arrival of the army, which had proceeded by land in the mean time he wrote, with the sanction and in the name of the governor, both to the Portuguese who were settled at Chittagong, and to those who were in the employment of the Raja, offering them, if they would enter his service, to give them more advantageous terms and upon their pleading inability, he threatened to stop their raffic in saltpetre Indian' Records, Vol. 111. A. D. 1664.

than they had from that hide and a grant of lands for the scalement of their families in Bengal. He at the same time threatened if they still adhered to the cause of the Raja, that he would on the capture of Chitagong destroy every person of their nation whom he found? This letter had the desired effect on the Portuguese, they were terrified at the power of the Moghuls, and calling to mind the severe punishment inflicted on them at Hooghly they agreed to his proposals and promised to desert, with their vessels, the first opportunity

The following harrible account of these people is given by Bernier in his travels- Rakan had been the refuge of all the runaway Portugueso from Gos Cochla Malacca, and other places which they had in the Indies as well as of their slaves, and other Europeans. They consisted of such as had abandoned their monasteries had been twice or thrice married murderers, and the like. The king of Rakan kept them as a guard of his frontier against the Mogol in the port called Chategon which he had taken from Bengal giving them lands and liberry to live as they pleased. Their usual trade was robbery and piracy they not only scoured the sex-coasts but entered the rivers specially the Ganges and often penetrating forty or fifty leagues up the country sur prised and curied away whole towns and villages of people with great cruelly and burning all which they could not carry away They ransomed the old people, but the young once they made towers of and such Christians as they were them selves bossung that they made more converts in one year than the missionaries, through the Indies, did in ten"-See Malen Universal Hitter Vol. vi

The negotiation was scarcely concluded, when one of the party communicated it to the Raja, who was much irritated, and resolved to take ample vengeance, by putting them all to the sword . the Portuguese were therefore under the necessity of abandoning their property, and of hurrying on board their boats during the night In the morning

they set sail, and arrived safe at Sundeep, where they were most graciously received by the imperial general, who, having selected the most efficient of them to assist in the expedition against Arracan, sent the remainder to the governor, who assigned for their residence a place twelve miles below Dacca, still called Fringy Bazar, or European town, where many of their descendants yet reside.

The army under Omeid Khan, having advanced by short marches on account of the badness of the roads, at length reached the river Phenny, which formerly constituted the south-east boundary of Bengal here they found an army of Arracanners prepared to oppose their crossing but the appearance of the Moghul cavalry, an object they had never before seen, alarmed them to such a degree, that they fled with precipitation to Chittagong

In the mean time, Hussen Beg, having obtained intelligence that the army was arrived, set sail from Sundeep, and endeavoured to form a junction with it, but, opposite a place called Commorea, he was attacked by the Arracan fleet, consisting of three hundred armed vessels, of different sizes, and although, owing principally to the assistance of the Portuguese, he was enabled to repulse the enemy, and take or sink several of their vessels, yet he was so much alarmed by this new species of warfare, to which the Moghuls had not been accustomed, that he ran the fleet close to the shore, and sought protection from the army Omeid khan loumediately detached to his assistance all the artillery and musqueteers and when the Arracanners, early next murning renewed the attack in shallow water the guns opened a heavy and unexpected fire on them and compelled them to retreat.

The united forces then proceeded to the city of Chittagong takes and though it was well furtified, and defended by a number of cannon, the garrision alarmed at the retreat of their fleet, endeavoured during the night, to make their escape. They were pursued by the Maghul cavalry and 2000 of them selzed and sold as slaves. Twelve bundred and twenty three pieces of cannon, different calibres and a number of stores were found in the place but the captors were disappointed in the quantity of wealth they expected to have shared. Omeld khan chanced the name

A. D 1664, A D 1676, of the city to Islamabad* (the residence of the faithful) and annexed it to the province of Bengal leaving a considerable force to defend it from the incursions of the Mughs.

Shaista khan governed Bengal, with great prudence and vigour till the end of the year 1987 when at his own request, he was re-called to court. On his arrival he presented the emperor with thirty lacs of rupees (nearly 3 o ocol) in specie same elephants and a number of curloities. He was must graciously received and soon after appointed governor of the province of Agra.

It is exceedingly difficult to do justice to the character of this officer By the Minhammedan historians he is described as "the pattern of excellence, but by the English he is vilified as the oppressor of the human race The following facts are, however, strong presumptive proofs in favour of the veracity of the former During the government of Shaista Khan, the commerce of the English, notwithstanding the alleged oppressions of the governor, continued to flourish besides their factories at Ballasore and Hoogly, they had established agents at Patna Cossimbazar, and Dacca, their exportation of saltpetre alone in some years, amounted to 1,000 tons, and their importation of bullion, in a single year, to 110,000/ further, although no English vessels were allowed to sail up the Ganges before his time, viz. A D 1664, yet it appears that, in the year 1669, the East-India Company had, by his permission, formed a regular establishment of pilots, for conducting their ships up and down the river He also, in the year 1672, granted them an order for freedom of trade throughout the province, without the payment of any duties *

On the other hand, the company's agents complained, that he frequently stopped their trade, and seized upon their saltpetre, that, instead of the annual present of 3,000 rupees, settled in 1658, he exacted from the same duties that were paid by the Hindoos, and that his officers were guilty of a thousand exactions † That, in Hoogly, the officers of government compelled the Hindoo merchants to take their money at 25 per cent. interest, and frequently called on them to repay the principal at the end of nine months, charging the full year's interest. That, in consequence of various confiscations, the public officers had frequently a quantity of goods oo their hands, which they obliged the Hindoomerchants to take at a high price and dispose of as they could and that he compelled the English and Dutch soldiers to attend him in the war sgainst Arracan. There is still extant a public letter from the governor of Madras to Shalstakhan dated May 7th 1677 threateoing that if the English are not better treated, they will entirely withdraw from Bengal.*

See Appendix.

[†] See Messrs Blake's and Clavel's Reports, dated October 1668, and December 1676.

It was during the government of Shalsta khan that is to say about the year 1676, that the Freoch and Danes established themselves in Bengal. The precise period of the lotteduction of the Dutch is not recorded † but the agents of these nations prudently obtained ground, on which to e.ect their factories at some distance below Hoogly where the present towns of Chinsura, Chandernagore and Serampore, now stand The English agent on the contrary built his factory in the middle of the town of Hoogly which was the cause of frequent disputes with the inhabitants, and terminated by their belog expelled from the country

NUWAB FEDAI KHAN AAZIM KHAN

Oo the resignation of Shaista Khan, the emperor Aurung zebe was pleased to appoint his one faster brother, Fedai Khan to be governor of Bengal, with the lofty title of Aazim Khan.

A, D 1677

This officer arrived at Dacca in the year 1087 but died in that city early in the [.] Indian Re erds 4th and 6th Vols.

^{† &#}x27;Ir Orme 23/2, the Dutch settled in Bengal about the year 1625

This person is described by the English agents, of a covetous and tyrannical disposition—they further state, that he had quarrelled with Hajy Shuffy Khan, the emperor's Dewan, that he gave much molestation to their commerce; and that his conduct made them regret the resignation of his predecessor—that, in consequence of such behaviour, an order had been received from court for him to quit Dacca, and reside at Kidder-pore, but that his death, which occurred on the 25th of May, 1678 had saved him that mortification +

Upon the death of the Nuwab, the emperor's Dewan Hajy Shuffy, seized all his property, and took charge of the government, and being inimical to the English, he gave orders that they should pay three and a half per cent. duties upon their commerce, being the sum they paid at Surat †

SULTAN MOHAMMED AAZIM.

When intelligence of the death of Fedai Khan reached the court, the prince Mohammed Azzim, third son of Aurungzebe, who then governed Behar, was ordered to take charge of Bengal. He arrived at Dacca on the 19th of Jummad-al-Akhir of the year 1088, and towards the end of that year, detached an army to repel the Assamese, who had been for some time troublesome on the frontier

Upon this occasion, the prince sent for the agents of the English and Dutch factories at Dacca, and having received them in the most gracious manner he requested them toassist him with some Enropeans, who understood the management of srtillery but, upon their pleading their inability he did not enforce the demand however as he was in want the money he accepted the sum of 21,000 rupees from the English for which he granted them his Nishan or order, for a free trade without the payment of any duties.*

^{*} See India Records Vol. ix., 1677-8.

[†] Ibid, Vol. xiv., p. 250.

Upon the approach of the Imperial forces, the Assamese retired and the Moghuls took peasession of Ghowhatty and the villages depending thereon. This transaction was magnified at court into a new conquest and an honorary dress, with a diamond necklace, valued at two lacs of rupees, was for warded to the prince, as a testimony of the royal favour. This circumstance so flattered the vanity of the prince that he resolved on subjugating the kingdom of Arracan and had commenced his preparations, when an event occurred which put a stop to all his projects.

In the year 1089 the empeter Aurungzebe having given great offence to all his Ilindoo subjects, by the imposition of a capitation tax by the destruction of their temples and by bis wanton attempt to despoil the orphan children of Raja Jeswont Sing of their inheritance of Joudpore all the Rajepoot princes had recourse to arms and so powerful were they in reputation and force that Aurungzebe who was then engaged in a war against the alabratia Chief Sesagee found it requisite to order all his most confidential troops and distinguished officers to join him. I ^{*} See Appendix.

[†] See Orme's Historical Fragments - Transactions of the year 16,3

In consequence of this event, Sultan Aazim quitted Dacca on the 7th of Ramjan 1090, and proceeded on his route with an expedition never before evinced by any of the princes of Hindoostan, unless by the emperor Akbar, in his celebrated march from Agra to Guzerat in nine days.

The prince's mode of travelling is thus described by one of his attendants. At midnight, he, and his son Bedar Bukht, then not nine years of age, got into their palanqueens, and were carried by relays of bearers, till daylight—they then got out, performed their ablutions, and said their morning prayers, after which they mounted on horseback, and rode till midday. In this manner they arrived at Benares in twenty-five days' but of a corps of 1,000 chosen horse, which left Dacca with the princes, very few persons were able to keep up with them

From Benares they arrived in the imperial camp, then between Ajmere and Joudpore, in twelve days during this part of the journey, fresh horses were provided at every stage by the public officers, for the prince and his party, who on the last day rode seventy coss *

One day during the journey, the princes having outridden their attendants, and Bedar Bukht being overcome with thirst, they stopped at a well, and desired a villager to draw them some water After they had drunk, the prince gave the man two ashrufies (gold mohrs), which so much excited the fellow's cupidity, that, ignorant of the rank of the travellers, he demanded all their money, and refused to let them proceed The prince bore his insolence for some time, but,

^{*} The coss are from a mile and a half to two miles long, but vary in different parts of the country.

being at length irritated he drew an arrow and lodged it in the iil fated wretch's breast he them rode on, but one of the officers who arrived at the spot soon after recognising the arrow, cut off the man's head and then hastening after the prince presected him with the arrow and addressed him in an extemporary verse purporting that his highness sorders would one day penetrate the four quaters of the clobe with as much facility as that arrow had plerced the breast this enemy

The prince was, bowever sensible of his own rashness and impru lence and during the remainder of the journey was always provided with small coin, both of gold and silver and even of copper to pay for any trifling service he might require on the road

As the expedition with which the royal party proceeded would not permit them to have regular victuals dressed they lived almost all the time on bread and dried fruits but Bedar Bukht being at length disgusted with that kind of food requested to have some keckerry* dressed. One of the attendants went into the caravanseral and having procured some brought it to the princes in a large wooden bowl although they were both very bungry neither of them could bring them selves to taste it out of such a versel and the father comforted the son by saying, picase God the bestower of all gifts in a few days more we shall participate in the luxuites of the imperial table!

In short Sultan Assim, baying joined the emperor was appeared to an important command in the army then marching against the Rajepoot princes.

I mixture of peas, rice and butter, seasoned with pepper and solt.

NUWAB SHAISTA KHAN A LEER AL OMRA.

SECOND TIME.

Shaista Khan re-appointed to the government-Enforces the Jizia, or poll-tax-Destroys several Hindoo temples-The English obtain an imperial Firman, or order for trade-The factories in Bengal made independent of Madras-Mr Hedges appointed governor of the Company's settlements in Bengal-The royal firman proves defective-Account of the rebellion of the zemindar of Behar-The Company's governor applies to the Nuwab for permission to erect a fort on the bank of the Ganges-The Nuwab refuses, and insists upon the English paying the same duties they did at Surat-Disputes in consequence-The East India Company obtained the sanction of King James II to make war on the Nuwab of Bengal and the emperor of Hindoostan-An expedition is fitted out in England, to attack Chittagong-Instructions to the admiral-Failure of the expedition-Causes explained-An affray between the English and Moghul troops at Hoogly-The admiral cannonades and sets fire to the town-The Foujedar requests a suspension of hostilities, and enters into a convention-The Nuwab refuses to ratify the convention-Orders all the English factories to be confiscated, and sends an army to expel them from the country -The English retreat to Chuttanutty-The Dutch and French take advantage of the dispute-The English anxious to make peace -The Nuwab sends three commissioners from Dacca to settle terms, but at the same time reinforces the army at Hoogly-The English retreat to Intelee-Description of that place-Consequences of that retreat—The Nuwab offers to make peace—Treaty signed— The English return to Chuttanutty-The company disapprove of the treaty, and resolved to prosecute the war-A line of battleship and a frigate depatched to India under the command of Captain Heath-The Nuwab renews his oppression of the English-The reinforcement arrives from England-Captain Heath resolves, in opposition to the wishes of Mr. Charnock, to recommence the war—Orders all the Company's servants to embark on board the fleet—Sets sail and one set at Ballasore—Attacks and plunders that town—Sets sail for Chattagong—Finds that place too strong to be attacked—Agrees to enter into a negociation again with the Nuwab but before an answer could arrive proceeds to Arracan and offers proposals to the Raja—Without waiting for an answer sails to Madras—The emperor orders the English to the expelled from his dominions—The Nuwab Shasta Khan requests permission to resign his government—Quita Bengal—Dies.

On the same day that orders were despatched to re call Sultan Mohammed Assim to court, the Nuwab Shaista Khan
A. D 16,380. Was re appointed to the government of Bengal and arrived at Dacca about the end of the year 1090.

Immediately after Shalsta Khan's return to Bengal he was compelled in obedience to the regulations of Aurung zebe to enforce the Jissa or poll tax, from the Hindoos which circumstance rendered both him and the emperor very unpopular throughout the province. At Hoogly his officers demanded payment of this tax by all Europeans and other Christians but the Dutch and English refusing to pay it the demand was modified into a present of Persian borses for the Nuwab's use

About the same period a number of the Hindoo temples were destroyed and Roy Mullick Chand a Hindoo of rank, who was accured of having committed some frauds in the testine accuration was confined in irons and threatened to be sent in that state to the emperor, unless he consented to return Mohammedan The object of this threat was merely to extort money, but the parsimonious and persevering Hindoo remained long in confinement, without complying with their wishes, and was at length liberated, at the intercession of prince Mahommed Aazim, to whom he was known

The June was 6) per thousand on all property. The area, I me and blind were expused. Christians paid 1' per cental duty on their commerce.

The factors of the English Company, having found it exceedingly troublesome and expensive to procure a fresh order for freedom of trade from every succeeding governor, had, upon the removal of Shaista Khan, sent an agent with him to the emperor's camp, to solicit an imperial firman, to settle this business for ever and the agent, after much expense and perseverance, succeeded in procuring the emperor's order, with which he returned to Hoogly, on the 8th of July 1680 The English factors, wishing to

India Company obtain make a great display of their success an imperial firmen caused the firman to be received much ceremony, and to be saluted with

A, D 1679-80 three hundred guns, from the factory and the ships anchored opposite the town

The great increase of the Bengal investments, and the procuring of the imperial firman, induced the Company to render Bengal independent of Madras. and, in consequence, they appointed Mr Hedges, one of their Directors, to the chief agent, or governor, of all their affairs in the Bay of Bengal, and all other factories His residence was subordinate thereto fixed at Hooghly, and, in order to give dignity to the office, a guard of a corporal and twenty European soldiers .was . sent from Fort St George, for his protection This was the first military establishment of the Company in Bengal, and the foundation of the English power in that country. But as the imperial firmaco was purposely drawn out to a vague and obscure style it soon gave rise to disputes, and involved their affairs in difficulty.

Mr, Hedges ap pointed governor of the English settlements Bengal A D 16812

A few days after this ovent, Gangaram the zemiodar of Behar rebelled and having collected a number of followers plundered the city of Behar Immediately after he advanced to Patna, giving out that the prince Akbar who in the preceding year had rebelled against his father had taken refuge with him and exorting all those who were dissatisfied with the present Government to join the standard of the young prince. The Nuwah, who was detested for his tyrannical disposition and who had neglected to keep up a proper establishment of troops was so much alarmed that he had not the courage to meet the rebels but shut himself up in the city the fortineations of which being very deficient, the

To avoid a repetition of references the reader is in formed, that nearly the whole of this chapter is taken from Orner India as Bruces Annals of the East India Company and India Re rds inhabitants were excessively alarmed, and the merchants sent off all their most valuable property. The siege continued for some time, but owing more to the awkwardness of the assailants than to the courage of the garrison, the former failed in their attempt, and were obliged to content themselves with the plunder of the adjacent villages. Some of the soldiers of the garrison, however, commiserating the situation of the pretended son of Shujaa, struck off his irons, and permitted him to escape to the rebels, which added strength to their party, and increased the suspicions and alarm of the governor At length, reinforcements arriving from Benares and Dacca, the rebels dispersed, and the gates of the city were again opened.

f See Aprendix

During the period of this disturbance, Mr Peacock, and the other English gentlemen, continued to reside unmolested at their factory at Singee, distant ten or twelve miles from Patna, among the saltpetre grounds, which circumstance inducing the Nuwab to suspect they were in league with the rebels, he not only forbade them purchasing any more saltpetre that year, but threw Mr Peacock into prison; whence it was with much difficulty and intercession that he was released.

The affairs of the Company had also, for several years, been much annoyed by the interference of other British subjects, in consequence of which, the governor at Hoogly, Mr. Gyfford, in the year 1097, made an application, in the name of the Company, to the Nuwab Shaista Khan. A, D, 1685, for permission to erect a fortification in the mouth, or on the banks of the Ganges—to prevent the ships of those persons, whom they denominated interlopers, from entering the river, and for the better protection of their own property But the Nuwab was too experienced a statesman to trust foreigners with such power he not only refused the request, but insisted notwithstanding the emperors firman upon the English paying three and a half per cent duties upon all their imports, instead of the annual sum of 3000 rupees which they had formerly paid

This circumstance aggravated by the oppressions of the Foujedare of Cossimhazar brought on a dispute between the Numab and the English, which so injured the trade of the latter that their ships were obliged to leave Bengal without obtaining cargoes The Nuwab nevertheless, stated the affair in such a light to the emperor as much excited his anger against the English

Whilst the minds of each party were thus exasperated there seemed to be no other remedy for the English thanelther to relinguish the trade to Bengal entirely or by hav ing recourse to arms to effect by force what they could not obtain by entreaty

The East India Company censured their agent in Bengal for having been too submissive to the despot, and directed the governor of Fort St. George to make stronuous application to the emperor for a firman, or order permitting the English to occupy one of the uninhabited Islands in the Ganges also to fortify the port of Injelee on the western bank of that river that their agents in future might not be subjected to the im positions of the Nuwab or his inferior officers.

But as it was highly Improbable that such a proposition would be acceded to the Company] mes IL salacobtained the sanction of king James II riers the East I dis Company to to retaliate the injuries they had sustained and to reimburse bemselves for the loss of their privileges in Bengal by hostilities caling the humab and his master the great Aurungsche

A D KAGG

Military Boyernor

To effect this object, an expedition was fitted out in England, consisting of ten ships of war, carrying from twelve to seventy guns each, under the command of Vice-admiral Nicholson, and on board these ships was embarked a regiment of six hundred soldiers, which, on its arrival at Madras, was to be augmented, from that garrison, to one thousand men.

Admiral Nicholson was instructed, first to proceed to Balasore, and having brought away the Company's agents from thence, he was then to continue his voyage to Chittagong, on the eastern side of the Bay of Bengal, and having taken possession of that port to fortify it in the best possible manner, for which purpose two hundred pieces of cannon were sent on board the fleet and in order to facilitate this enterprise, and to forward the future views of the Company, the admiral was directed to enter into a treaty of alliance with the Raja of Arracan, who, it was supposed, would readily co-operate with the English, from his animosity to the Moghul government, with whom he had been frequently engaged in war, and who had recently wrested from him that part of his dominions *

The admiral was further instructed to enter into terms with the Hindoo Chiefs, or zemindars, in that neighbourhood; to establish a mint, to collect a revenue, and, in short, to render Chittagong a place of arms for the English on the eastern side of the Bay of Bengal, as Fort St George was on the western shore

As soon as this object should be accomplished, the troops, and smallest vessels, were to proceed against Dacca, and, as was presumed, the Nuwab and his army would abandon that city peace was then to be offerred to him on the following conductions that he should cede the city and territory of Chittagong to the Company and pay the debts due to then by his subjects. That he should allow the rupees coined at Chittagong to pass current in Bengal and restore to the English all the privileges they were entitled to from the firmans of former emperors. That each party should bear their respective losses and expenses in the war and that this treaty should be ratified by the emperor and the president (of the English nature) at Surat.

^{*} See the year 1665 of this History.

But as it might be considered ungenerous to make such an attack without some previous notice the admiral was fur nished with letters from the Company addressed to the Nuwab and to the emperor explaining the grievances the English had sustained, by the breach of the firmans under which they had so long acted by the sairure of their property and by the repeated extortions made from their agents.

This spirited if not rash, enterprise was defeated by the several unforescen accidents the fleet was long detained by contrary winds it was dispersed during the vnyage and several of the ablps instead of proceeding to Chiluagung entered the western branch of the Ganges and anchored at Hoogly

In the mean time the Madras government had sent round too soldiers and had directed Mr. Charnock to raise a second company of Portuguese infantry in he officered by the Company's servants.

The arrival of such a force in the Ganges immediately roused the suspicions and fears of Shaha. Khan. He offered to comprimite the differences with the English and to submit the whole of their dispute to arbitrators appointed in both sides but in order to be prepared against any acts of hostility, he ordered a considerable body of troops to encamp in the vicinity of Hoogly. These overtures and precautions were, however, rendered nugatory, and the intentions of the Company completely frustrated, by a petty affray between the troops of the opposite parties for, after Mr Charnock, the governor, had been fully informed of the company's designs, and after a considerable part of the fleet had arrived in the river, hostilities were brought on, in a premature manner, by the following unexpected circumstance

On the 28th of October, three English soldiers quarrelled, in the market, with some of the Nuwab's troops, and were severely beaten a company of soldiers were, in consequence, called out for their defence, afterwards a second company, and then the whole of the English troops and as, upon the first alarm, the Nuwab's forces, who were encamped outside the town, also joined their countrymen, a general action took place. Sixty of the Moghul troops were killed, and a considerable number of them wounded During the conflict, Admiral Nicholson opened a cannonade on the town, and burnt five hundred houses, amongst which was the the Company's factory, valued, with the goods therein, at 300,000 l, and a party of his seamen having landed, spiked all the guns in the batteries

The Foujedar, much alarmed by these events, solicited a suspension of hostilities, which was granted, on condition of his giving assistance to convey the saltpetre, and other goods that might be saved from the conflagration, on board the ships—with this stipulation he immediately acquiesced, and, at a conference held-between him and Mr Charnock, agreed to restore to the English all their privileges of trade, until they could obtain a new firman from the emperor,

It is probable that this act of condescension on the part of the Foujedar was forced from him by his fears, or that he sought merely to gain time for as soon as the circumstances were made known to the Nuwab Shaista khan, he directed the English factories at Patna Malda Dacca, and Cossimbazar to be confiscated and ordered a very considerable body both of infantry and cavalry to proceed immediately to Hoogly and to expel the English from the country

During this interval, the agent and council at Hoogly considering that they were likely to be overpowered if they remained in that situation, retired, on the 20th of December to Chutanuty (part of the present Calcula) as heing a stronger and safer post where, being under the protection of their ships they might remain in security till matters could be accommodated with the Nuwab

In this situation of the English affairs the Dutch and French took advantage of the dipute particularly the former who having cleven ships in the river obtained valuable invest ments of goods and re-established their factories, which, in consequence of the various oppressions they had sustained they had previously determined to abandon

As that part of the English shipping which had conveyed the expedition to Bengal required considerable repairs and as many apprehensions were entertained for the safety of the remainder of the fleet on board of which was embarded the greater part of the treops it was the opinion of both Admiral Nicholson, and the council of Hoogly that instead of carrying into effect the Company's designs upon Chittagong they might consider themselves extremely fortunate if they should be able to restore matters to the same fobling they had been on, previous to the sommencement of hostilities and so strongly was Iresident Gyford and the government of

Madras, persuaded of the untoward termination of the expedition, that they sent a petition to the emperor, praying for forgiveness of what had passed, and soliciting a confirmation of their former firmans.

In the end of December, three of the Nuwab's ministers came from Dacca to Hoogly, where, having been met by Mr Charnock and the members of his council, a preliminary treaty, ceding particular advantages to the English, was agreed upon but this measure seems to have been adopted by the Nuwab merely to give him an opportunity of assembling his troops, for early in the month of February, a numerous army, consisting principally of cavalry, arrived A D. 1687 at Hooghly, with the avowed intention of driving the English out of the country

As soon as Mr Charnock was informed of the circumsstance, he judged it imprudent to remain longer at Chuttanutty, and immediately commenced a retreat to Injelee On their route to that place the troops stormed and plundered the fort of Tanna ten miles below Chuttanutty, on the western bank of the river, and burned down several magazines of salt and granaries of rice belonging to the Moghul subjects. They also took several Moghul ships, which they found in the giver.

Injelee is an island in the mouth of the river Ganges but separated from the western bank only by a narrow stream the greater part of it is covered with long grass the habitation of tigers nor does it produce a drop of good water. spot, perhaps the unhealthiest of the whole province, Mr. Charnock pitched his camp, and erected batteries on the most accessible parts of the island, whilst the ships, which he had caused to be anchored in the middle of the stream completely commanded the passage of the river.

In this situation Abdul Sumud Khan the Moghul general, very prudently allowed them to remain with little molestation well convinced that the pestilential air and blackish water of Injelee would prove to them a more formidable enemy than any force he could bring against them. His conjectures were completely verified for in three months more than half of the European troops died and the remainder were only fit subjects for an hospital

At this critical period overtures of peace were made hy the Nuwab and were toyfully accepted by Mr Charnock and his council hostilities ceas-A D 1637 ed and on the 16th of August, a treaty was signed by which the Leglish were permitted to return to all their factories in different parts of the province the duty of after cent was abrocated and they were allowed to erect magazines and to construct docks for their shipping at Olupherea a populous village situated on the western bank about eighty miles from the mouth of the river and twenty below Calcutta. The only stipulation made on the part of the Nuwab was, that the English should restore the Moghul vessels they had taken and that their ships of war should not again approach Hoogly. In order to account for this favour able change in the sentiments of the Nuwab Shaista Khao it is requisite to state that, at the same period Admiral Nicholson a fleet was fitted out in England for the attack on Chattaneng orders had been sent to the governor at Bombay to withdraw the Company's factories from Surat, and the other Moghul ports on the western side of India, and to commence hostilines a single the emperor Aurungzebe.

direcing the English cruizers to seize upon all the ships and vessels of the Moghul subjects wherever they hould be found. In compliance with these orders, Sir John Child and the principal factors, left Surat on the 25th of April, and the English cruizers having in a short time captured a number of the Moghul vessels, the emporor became solicitous for peace, and authorized the governor of Surat to depute an envoy to Bombay, to learn on what terms it might be obtained. He also, sent orders to Shaista Khan, to compromise matters with the English in Bengal, and to permit them to re-occupy all their factories. It was in consequence of these orders that Mr. Charnock obtained such favourable and unexpected terms.

In virtue of treaty, Mr Charnock, not wishing to return to Hoogly without the ships of war, took possession of Oulaberea, and commenced making docks for careening the vessels but after a residence of three months, he took a dislike to the place, and obtained permission to return to Chuttanutty, where the factors and troops lived in huts, till proper habitations could be erected.

When intelligence of the total failure of the expedition, and the disastrous consequences which ensued, reached England, the Company were much dissatisfied with the conduct of their servants abroad, and resolved, that unless a fortification, with a district round it, in Bengal, to be held as an indenpedent sovereignty, should be ceded to them by the emperor of Hindustan, with permission to coin money which should be current throughout all his dominions, they would no longer carry on any commerce with that country, but annoy him and his subjects by every means in their power

To effect this determination, a reinforcement of a line-of-battleship and a frigate, on which were embarked one hundred and sixty soldiers, were despatched, under the command of Captain Heath, to Bengal, either to prosecute the war with vigour or to bring away all the Company's servants with whatever property might be saved from the general wreck and to land them at Madras.

In the mean time, the emperor's elemency to the English in Bengal not having put a stop to their hostilities on the coast of Malabar the Nuwab found himself at liberty to recom mence his oppressions on the agents of the Company He ordered them to return and settle at Hoogly and not to build, with either stone or brick, at Chuttanntty He also granted free permission to his troops to plunder all their property and demanded from Mr Charnock a large sum of money as a recompense for the damage his country had sustained by the late hostilities. The agent, being neither in a coodition to oppose him by arms nor to appease him with money sent two members of his council to Dacca, to try if he might be softened by submission. They were directed to represent to him that the object of settling at Chuttanutty was to avoid the frequent disputes which had arisen from the factory hening situated in the town of Hooshly and that the part of the river opposite the town alloted for the English vessels was choked up with sand so as to be unfit for the purpose. They therefore requested permission to remain at Chuttanutty and to be allowed to purchase from the zemindar ground sufficient for their factors

Such was the state of affairs in the month of October

V D 1622 when Captain Heath arrived with his reinforcements but being a person of a vers waimed outton he was enraged at the duplicity of the unabhoard, in tauth tanding the remonstrances of Mr Changes he resulted to recommence the war

SECT. VI]

To effect this measure, he ordered all the Company's servants to embark, with their moveable property, on board the fleet, at Chuttanutty, and, on the 8th of November, set sail for Ballasore. On his arrival in the roads, the governor of the town offerred to enter into terms with him, on the part of the Nuwab, but his proposition having been rejected, he seized two of the Company's factors, who resided there, and retained them as hostages against any acts of violence, notwithstanding which, and that the two English deputies were still at Dacca, as well as two other factors in different parts of the country, Captain Heath landed with a party of soldiers and seamen on the 29th of November, attacked and took a

A D. 1688 redoubt of thirty guns, and plundered the town of Ballasore The English factory, on this occasion, was burned by the governor, and the Company's servants, who had been previously taken prisoners, were carried up the country, where all subsequent efforts for their release were unavailing. This outrage was unfortunately committed on the very day that governor of Ballasore received a copy of the treaty which the Nuwab had made with the two deputtes at Dacca, by which it was stipulated, that the English ships should co-operate with the Moghul army, in an attack upon the dominions of the king of Arracan.

After the troops and seamen had glutted themselves with the plunder of Ballasore, Captain Heath set sail with his fleet, on the 13th of December, for Chittagong, where they arrived on the 17th of the month of January, but finding the works and garrison much stronger than they expected, a council of war was assembled, in which it was agreed to delay proceeding to further hostilities, and again to write to the Nuwab at Dacca stating their grievances and demands and to await his answer whether he would redress them or compel them to make use of the power then in thier hands.

Cantain Heath however instead of waiting for the Namab a answer or endeavouring to seize on Chittagong proceeded with the fleet to the entrance of the river which leads to the city of Arracan where he arrived on the 31st of lanuary and according to the instructions received from the Company sent proposals to the king offering to cooperate with him against the Moghuls provided he would grant the English a settlement in his dominions. But nearly a fortnight having clapsed without his receiving an answer and not being of a temper to brook the programmation of an Indian administration he as suddenly to disgust against this new ally and on the 13th of Pebru ry without waiting for the result of his proposals, sailed away with the whole fleet const ting of fifteen ships (having the Beogal governor and council with the Company's effect on hoard.) and arrived at Madras on the 4th of March where he apolo_ized to the governor of Fort St. George for his con duct by saying that nothing but falsehoods had been told on either side

As the Γ lish had completely set at lettince the authority f the emperor lurangache hy furtifying both Bombay and Mulras and by extending their territories in the vicinity of these places and had also captured a number of his stips and had even entered into an alliance with his most inviterate enemy the Mahratta Chief Samba, ce it cannot be Je mel surprising that the haughty mind of that monarch was not hincensed against them he in consequence is at different hills commanders to except the them.

English from his dominions, and to seize or destroy all their property, wherever it might be found. It was in obedience to these orders, that the factory at Masulipatam was seized by the governor of that district, and that the warehouses of Vizagapatam were plundered, and all the English gentlemen put to death.

The Nuwab Shaista Khan, was also under the necessity of complying with the emperor's orders, so far as to sequester the whole of the English property in Bengal, and to place the Company's agents at Dacca in irons. Other authorities, however, lead us to suppose, that it was not Shaista Khan, but the person who officiated as governor after his departure, named Behadur Khan, that committed this act of severity

We are not informed of the precise time, but it was about this period that the Nuwab Shaista Khan, being far advanced in years, and anxious to return to his native country, obtained permission to resign the government of Bengal Notwithstanding his harsh conduct to Europeans, his memory is to this day spoken of with the highest respect in that province It is related, that, during his government, grain was so cheap that rice was sold at the rate of, 740lbs weight for the rupee to commemorate which event, as he was leaving Dacca, he ordered the western gate, through which he departed, to be built up, and an inscription to be placed thereon, interdicting any future governor from opening it, till he had reduced the price of grain to the same rate . in consequence of which injunction, the gate remained closed till the government of the Nuwab Serferaz Khan, as will hereafter be related.

Several of the public buildings erected by Shaista Khan are yet to be seen at Dacca, which city is still called by the Mohammedans, Jehangirnagur Shaista Khan died at Agra in the year of the Hejira 1105 much regretted by the emperor and a numerous circle of friends.

NUWAR IBRAHIM KHAN

Ibrahim khan appointed to the government-His character-Invites the English to return to Bengal-Mr. Charnock and council arrive at Chuttanutty and are graciously received-The Nuwab forwards the the emperor's passport for the English to trade duty free-The English still dissatisfied-Soobha Sing zemindar rebels -Joined by the Afghae Chief Rehim Khan-The rebel army advance to Burdwan-Defeat and kill the Raja-The circumstance reported to the governor who orders Nur Allah housedar of lessore to punish the rebels-The housedar shuts himself up in Hoogly-The rebels lay seerge to and take that town-The Dutch French and English obtain permission to fertily their factories-The Dutch governor of Chinsura assists the revalities to retake Hoczly-The cebels retreat to Spatgong-Part of the rebel forces advance to Nuddeah-Anecdote of the daughter of the Rata of Burdwar -- Kills the rebel Chief - Rehim Khan chosen Generalissimo of the rebels-Pusillanimous conduct of the governor - Siamut Khan, a Jagierdar opposes the rebels-Engages Rehim hhan n single contest-Is killed-The rebels take and plunder Mukhsoonabad-The emperor appoints his grand-on Aazeem Ooshan governor of the three provinces but direct Ibrahim Khan to send a fice under his son Zubberdust Khan against the rebels -The salarmy moves from Dacca-The rebels take post at Bogwarasla-Zubberdust Khan detaches his cavalry who surprise the rate s at Its emakel and give them a complete defeat-Attacks and defeats the rebels at Bogwangola—Retakes the town of Mukhsoosabad—Advances to Burdwan, and compels the rebels to seek their safety in flight—Superseded by the prince Aazeem Ooshan.

Upon the final resignation of Shaista Khan, the emperor selected, for the government of Bengal, Ibrahim Khan, son of the celebrated Persian nobleman, Aly Murdan Khan, who delivered up the fortress of Candehar to the emperor Shah Jehan This Chief was, in character, the very reverse of his father; he administered justice with strict impartiality, and encouraged agriculture and commerce, but was totally deficient of all military abilities

The first act of authority, after assuming the government, was one most congenial to his feelings,
A D 1690 viz the liberation of the Company's agents who were confined at Dacca; for as we have seen, in the preceding chapter, that the English, in consequence of the oppression they had sustained from the Nuwab Shaista Khan, had entirely abandoned Bengal, it now also became a pleasing part of his duty to conciliate and recall the merchants of that nation

It has been before stated, that the emperor, being highly incensed against the English, had commanded them to be expelled from every part of his dominions but as Aurungzebe ever made his passions subservient to policy, and was sensible that he derived a considerable aid to his revenue by the commerce carried on by the English; also, that their ships of war could much annoy his subjects, and prevent all

A D 1690. Mecca —impressed with these ideas, he

Mecca—impressed with these ideas, he in the month of January whilst encamped at Viziapore in the Dekkan anthorized his ministers to form a treaty with Messrs. Weldon and Navarro, two Eoglish commissioners who had been sent from Bombay by Sir John Child the Director general of the Company's settlements, to solicit peace, and upon the appointment of Ibrahlm khan to the government of Bengal, the emperor instructed him* to invite the English to return to that province

In consequence of this permission the Nuwab wrote letters, addressed to Mr Charnock at Madras, inviting him to return and re-establish all the Company & factories : with an assurance of a perfect obliviou of every thing which had, passed and that the English should be placed on a footing with the most favoured foreign nation but Mr Charnock and his council were aware, from the deceptions which had been before practised that admitting the Nuwab to be sincere to his offers, they should still be exposed to the versious demands of the inferior officers and to the avarlee and oppressions of his successors and being also displeased at the humiliating firmae which had lately been issued for Surat | they therefore replied that they could not accede to the proposition unless the eroperor would grant to the Company a steere primer for Bengal stating the precise terms upon which they were in future to carry on their trade

A second I tter was written by the Nuwab to Mr Chain et informin, him that he had made an application to the emperor for the desired firman; but that as several months must elapse before it could be procured, he might, in the meantime, return, and be assured of his friendship and protection. In consequence of this invitation, Mr. Charnock, with his council and factors, attended by an escort of thirty soldiers, returned, on the 24th of the month of August, to Chuttanutty, where, in obedience to the Nuwab's orders, addressed to Meer Aly Akbar, the governor of Hoogly, they were received with much civility.

See Appen is

The next year, the Nuwab forwarded to Mr. Charnock, according to his promise, a husb al hookum A. D 1691 or order, from the emperor Aurungzebe, authorizing the English to trade to Bengal without paying any other duty than an annual present of 3000 rupees * However advantageous this licence may be considered in a pecuniary light, it fell far short of the expectation of the Company's agents, who were still left exposed to the oppressions of the Nuwab or his inferior officers, and had no security for their personal safety It was therefore their opinion, that, unless a fortification could be procured, with a district round it, perfectly exempted from the jurisdiction of the Nuwab, the] commerce of the Company could never prosper they, for these reasons, only established a factory at Chuttanutty, and sent agents to make purchases in different parts of the country.

The year of the Hejira 1104 was marked by an extraordinary circumstance. The Grand Signior, having been informed that the Europeans procured great quantities of one of the ingredients for making gunpowder from India, wrote to Aurungzebe, to desire he would no longer permit his subjects to dispose of that article

^{*} See Appendix.

to Christians, as it was frequently used by them in the destruction of the followers of Mohammed—that therefore, whoever supplied them was accessory to the death of the true believers. In consequence of this request, the principal source of the East India Company a commercial advantages was for some time cut off by a strict injunction to the governor of Bengal not to allow them to purchase or manufacture any more saltpetre

Three years after this event the commander of a large ship belonging to the interlopers or per A. D 1695 sons not licensed to trade to India arriving in the Indian seas, commenced that system of piracy which was afterwards carried to such a height, under the celebrated Captain had and his associates. This person seized two of the Moghul ships, which were going to Judda and Mocha with pilgrims. So gross an insult drew down upon the agents of the Dutch French and English nations the vengeance of the Moghul government their factories were all laid under sequestration and a stop put to their trade in Bengal alone owing to the clemeocy of the governor Ibrahlm Khan the English agents were allowed their personal freedom and permitted to carry on their commercial proceedings in a secret manner *

Such was the state of intercourse between the English and the Noghul government, when an incident occurred which enabled the former to obtain without any remuneration

In January 1692 Mr Charnock died and was succeed ed by Ir Ellis but Bengal was again, by the Company of ders, made subserveint to Madras. Mr Charnock s tomb is allift to be seen in good order in the Calcutta churchy aid that object which neither bribes nor entrecties could before procure.

In the year 1107 of the Hejira, a Hindoo zemindar of Bengal, named Soobha Sing, who possessed the villages of Jetwa and Burdeh, in the district of Burdwan, being dissatisfied with the Raja of that place, invited Rehim Khan, an Afghan Chief, who was then considered as the head of that clan remaining in Orissa, to join nim in overturning the government. Having united their forces, they advanced to Burdwan, and, in a pitched battle, slew the Raja Kishen Ram, and, with the exception of his son, seized his family and all his property.

This success inspired the rebels with great hopes, and induced a number of soldiers of fortune, and other vagabonds, to flock to their standard

Juggut Rai, the son of Raja, having effected his escape to Dacca, laid his complaints before the governor, who not considering the matter of much importance, contented himself with ordering Nur Allah, the Foujedar or military commander of Jessore, to punish the insurgents. But that officer, who instead of attending to his own business, had long employed himself in commerce and in amassing wealth, and possessed nothing of the military character but the name, having, after much loss of time, collected a few of the 3000 horse of which he was the commandant, marched from Jessore, and crossed the river; but on the approach of the rebels, he shut himself up in the fort of Hoogly, and implored assistance from the governor of the Dutch settlement of Chinsura The rebels convinced by this pusillanimous conduct that they had little to tear from the merchant soldier, advanced boldly, and laid siege to Hoogly they carried on their attacks with such vigour, that the Foujedar became, offer of sacrificing her to his lust. The time was now arrived when he thought he might gralify his vile, passion with impurity he secretly entered her apartment, and endeavoured to obtain hy force what he could not effect by fintery and entreaty hut when he folded her in his arms the girl drew from her clothes a sharp knife, which she had concealed for the purpose, and stabbed him in the helly; she hen turned the weapon against berself and, with mistaken heroism, but high sense of honour plerced her own heart. The wretch lived but a few hours and was succeeded in his state and power by his brother Himmut Sing who exerted himself to the utmost in ravaging and plundering all those persons of opulence who would not join in the rebellion.

When intelligence of the death of Soobha Sing reached the rebel army they unanimously chose the Afghan Chief to he their leader and be in order to give dignity to the station assumed the royal title of Rehim Shah By this time all the country on the west side of the river, from Rajemahel to Midnapore was in possession of the rebels, no measures had yet been adopted to check their progress.

Day after day news was brought to the governor of the alarming progress and increase of the rebels but he as if infatuated replied to the semonstrances of his son and counteilors, "that a civil war was a dreadful evil, in which the it es of God's creatures were wantonly expended that the rebels, if let alone would shortly disperse of themselves and the only consequence would be the loss of a small portion of his majesty's revenue

What the sovernor would not attempt had nearly been effected by the de perate hand of an individual

Rehim Shah continued his progress through the country everywhere plunderning or enmpelling the people to join him

Upon his arrival in the district of Mukhsoosabad, he summond Niamut Khan, an officer who held a jagier or royal grants of lands, on which he, with his dependants, resided, to join his standard. Niamut replied, "that being an officer in the imperial service, and a loyal subject, it was contrary both to his duty and inclination to espouse cause" The rebel Chief incensed at this reply, ordered a party to seize Niamut, but the friends and dependants of the latter, having by this time assembled in his defence it was not so easily effected Rehim Shah was therefore under the necessity of heading a body of his Afghan cavalry to effect his purpose. When he arrived at the estate of Niamut he found a small, but united, band drawn up to receive him as the combats in India were, even at that late period more frequently decided by duels between the Chiefs or champions, of the contending armies, than by a general engagement Tehuver Khan, a nephew of Niamut's, well mounted and armed, advanced into the plain, and challenged any of the Afghans to meet him No single warrior daring to advance, a party of Afghans at once rushed forward, and before his friends could go to his assistance, cut the youth to pieces On hearing of this event, Niamut Khan, although only dressed in a single vest of fine muslin, without waiting to put on his helmet or armour, seized his sword, and vaulting on his horse which stood ready saddled, rushed into the field. His attention was soon attracted by the standard of Rehim Shah, he advanced towards him and the Afghans receded to the right and left Niamut saw his enemy and boldly spurring on his horse, struck the rebel Chief on the head Dreadful must have been his sensations, when he saw the blade of his sword shivered by the impenetrable helmet of the Chief and his opponent still unmoved from his seat. Rage now strengthened hi is a assumed the dignity and style of a prioce. When informed in the approach of the imperial troops from Dacca, he encamped his army on the banks of the river in the vicinity of Bogwangala, resolving to risk his fate in a pliched battle

But during the time that Zubberdust Khan was advancing by short marches with his cavalry artillery and infantry he detached the greater part of his cavalry to heat up the quarters of the rebels who were in possession of Rajemahel and Malda.

Zubberdust Khan defeat the rebels A. D 1697

This service was ably performed the rebels were defeated at Rajemahel an Afghan Chief named Ghyret khan was killed and the greater part of their plunder retaken. That which helooging to the Dutch and English was re-claimed by the agents of these oations but the Moghul commander refused to restore it without the orders of the governor /ubberdust khan having arrived within a few miles of the robel camp landed his infantry and guns from the fleet and, after recannoitring the position of the ecemy ordered his war boats to harass them from the river while he attacked them hy land. The first day was spent in a cannonade during which the guns of the imperial army belog served by the Portuguess in the royal service dismount ed mast af those of the enemy and silenced the redoubts which he had thrown up along his frost. The cext morning both armies being drawn out in the battle array the attack was commenced by the imperial infantry, but in a short time the engagement became general, and continued for several hours. At length the rebels were overcome and compelled to retreat, leasing their camp to he plundered by the royalists.

Lubberdust Khan encamped that night on the field of battle, and employed his infantry in burying the dead, and assisting the wounded of both parties.

The following day was employed in writing to all the zemindars and jagierdars, announcing to them the victory gained by his majesty's troops, commanding them to cut off all communication with the rebels, and to prevent their receiving any supplies of provisions. The good effect of these orders, and of the victory, were immediately apparent; many of the zemindars in the vicinity of the field of battle hastened to the royal camp, and offered to join the army with their quotas of troops

Zubberdust Khan, having made all the requisite arrangements, marched to the neighbourhood of Mukhsoosabad, and encamped on an extensive plain, to the eastward of the town, intending to attack the rebels next morning, but during the night Rehim Shah crossed the river, and took the route of Burdwan. The imperialists followed him to Burdwan, and having driven him thence, pursued him from place to place

We must now take leave, for a short time, of Zubberdust Khan, to detail the operations of the prince Azeem Ooshan.

SULTAY AZEEM OOSHAN

The prince Azeem Ooshan appointed to the government of the three provinces—Marches from the Dekkan to Allah bad—Orders the governor of Oude and zemindars of Benaras and Behar to join him-Arrives at Paina-Commands Zubberdust Khan not to risk another engagement with the rebels till he should join him-Zuhberdust Khan cantons his army at Burdwan-The prince stops at Mongler-Advances to Burd wan-Affronts Zuhberdust Khan by the coolness of his reception—general quits the army in disgust—The rebels re assemble and encamp in the vicinity of Burdwan—The Dutch and English send agents to the prince to solici further extension of their privileges. The prince makes amicable overtures to the rehels, who agree to submit, provided hhunje Anvur the prince a minister is sent to assure them of safety—The rebels murder the Khuaje and attack the royal camp but are defeated and their Chief Rehim Shah milied after which the others submit-The prince establishes his residence in Burdwan-Devotes his attention to sstaurs of the province-Builds a mosque in Burdwan and a new bazar in Hoogly-Regulates the customs of the port
-Anecdote of a celebrated Develob-The prince interferes between the Foujeder of Hoogly and the English respecting the appointment of a Cary or Mohammedan judge, to Calcutta—The prince proceeds to Dacca—Wishes to make a monopoly of the foreign trade-Severely reprimanded by the emperor-The king of England sends an ambassador to the court of Aurun sche-The ambassador lands at Masuli palam but afterwards proceeds to Surat, and lands therebets out for the Monhul camp-Obtains an audience of the emperor-Graciousty received and orders issued for pre paring the firmans-Intelligence received that an English pitale had taken three of the Moghul ships—The amhassidor required to at e accurity against almi at aggre sions—Refuses -The it was ion here en o I-The ambassador juits the loanul camp-tails trum burat-Dies-Ine emperor incensed it the English orders all the Europeans in his om n.c. to be contaed-Origin and rise of Moorahud Cooly Jan r Khan-Appointed De an of Bengal-Description of the offices of Nazim and of Dewan-Moorshud Cooly enters with assiduity upon his employment—Dissentions between him and the prince—The latter accused of attempting to assassinate the Dewan—The Dewan removes his residence to Mukhsoodabad-The emperor, displeased with the prince, orders him to quit Bengal, and to reside in Behar—The prince proceeds to Rajemahel, and afterwards to Patna, where he establishes his residence, and gives his own name to that city—In consequence of the emperor's orders, the English at Patna and Rajemahel are confined— The inhabitants of Calcutta threatened—The Dewan demands the original firmans-The English, having lost theirs, are obliged to bribe the secretary—Benevolent conduct of the prince—The Dewan proceeds to court—Graciously received by the emperor-Re-appointed Dewan of the three provinces, and deputy of the prince in Bengal and Orissa-State of the English affairs in Bengal—Azeem Ooshan re-called to court—Death of the emperor Aurungzebe—Azim Shah, the second son, mounts the throne, and marches towards Dehly -The prince Azeem Ooshan arrives at Agra-Receives intelligence of the emperor's death—Endeavours to seize Agra for his father—Disappointed in getting the fort, but secures the district—Seizes the Bengal revenue—Levies an army— Meeting between him and his father, Shah Aalum-The Governors delivers up the fort of Agra to the latter, who soon after marches to meet Aazım Shah-Battle between the brothers—Aazım Shah, and both his sons, killed—Shah Aalum takes the title of Behadur Shah-Appoints his son, Azeem Ooshan, governor of the four provinces, of Allahabad, Behar, Bengal and, Orissa, but orders him to retain Moorshud Cooly Khan as his deputy in the two latter provinces—The prince continues to reside at court, but appoints Syed Abdullah Khan to be his deputy in Allahabad, and Syed Hussem Aly Khan to be his deputy in Behar—Behadur Shah dies—contest between his four sons for the empire—Azeem Ooshan is killed and Jehandar Shah succeeds to the throne.

It has been before stated that when the emperor Aurung zebe, in the year 1108 heards of the insurrection in Bengal,

Aztem Ooshan mada governor A. D. 1606. he immediately appointed his grandson Azeem Ocahan second son of Behadur Shah to the government of that province. The prince was, at thes period of his appointment in the toyal [camp then in the Dekkan, and assoon as he received the investiture of his office marched with a select corps of 12 000 cavalry towards Allahabad hut as that prince will make a conspicuous figure in the sequel of this history it is presumed that the following short account, given of him and of the spolicy of Aurungzebe by an eve witness of the events, will not be deemed impertinent.

Azeem Ooshan the second son of Behadur Shah was a statesman of wioning manners., Aulumgeet (the emperor Aurungzebe) had always pursued the policy of ecocuraging his grandsons, and employing them in public affairs, for as his sons were ambitious of great power and at the head of armies, he thus prudently? controlled them hy opposing to them rivals in their own families as Bedar Bukht to Azeem Shah, and Azeem Ooshan to Shah Aaium Behadur Shah To Azeem Ooshan he had given the advantageous government of the three provinces of Bengal Behar and Orisas.

Upon the prince a; arrival [as Allahabad, he sent orders to the governor of Oude immediately to join him with all his forces he also fasued his commands to all the zemindars in that neighbourhood and to those of Benares and Behar to join his camp as soon tas he should enter their respective territories, on his route to Bengal.

Vide Memoirs of the Moghul Empire by Eradut Khan.
 S. if: Had re of the Dallas Vol. ii

When the prince arrived at Patna, he heard of the success of Zubberdust Khan; and fearing that so active an officer would gather all the laurels before his arrival at the scene of action, and leave him nothing by which he might gain credit

May, A. D. 1697 with the emperor, he sent positive commands to the general not to risk another engagement until he should join nim with his victorious army Zubberdust Khan saw clearly the object of this order, and was much hurt at having his hands thus tied up, but as the rainy season was just setting in, he cantoned his army in the vicinity of Burdwan, and waited patiently the arrival of the prince, who also cantoned his army at Mongier and did not advance to Burdwan-till the end of the year. Upon the approach of the prince, Zubberdust Khan advanced several miles, to meet, and to pay his respects to, the grandson and representative of the emperor: but so cool and distant was the reception he met with from his highness, that he resolved immediately to quit the army, and to proceed with his father, the deposed governor, to court

Having delivered over the command of the troops, he made known his request to his royal highness, who, jealous of the fame that Zubberdust Khan had so justly

A D 1698, acquired, was graciously pleased to comply with his wishes, although, by so doing, he greatly reduced the strength of his own army; as nearly 8000 of the best troops were the dependants or followers, of the general and his father, and went away with him.

The departure of Zubberdust Khan was a subject of great joy and exultation to the rebels, they dreaded the activity and courage of that officer, and hoped to gain some advantage from the want of experience and local knowledge of the prince Rehim Shan immediately sent directions to all his followers;

who, in order to conceal themselves, had dispersed in various parts of the country to join him on a certain day

Thus while the prince was amnuing himself at Burdwan and receiving the congratulations of the reminders and principal men of the province the rehels again collected in great force and had the audacity not only to plunder the districts of Nuddeah and Hoogly, but to encamp within a few miles of Burdwan.

During the time the prince was at Burdwan the Dutch Chief of Chinsura sent an agent to the camp who represented that while his nation paid a duty of 3½ per cent on all their commerce the English only paid the petry sum of 3000 rupees per annum and therefore solicited that the Dutch might be out on the same footing

As it was notorious that the prince was of a very indolent disposition, and would not give bimself much trouble to secretain the original cause of such a distinction and that he had come into the province for the express purpose of amassing a fortune in consequence of which no business could be transacted without a bribe and that the judicious application of money might procure any favour, the English also deputed as their envoy one of the most intelligent of the Company e servants, a hir Walsh, not only to oppose the intrigues of the Dutch, but to procure from his highness a grant of the villages of Chuttanutty Gobindpore and Calicotta also to demand restitution of the Company a property which was taken from the rebels at Rajemahel, and detained by the Monhul general: he was further aurthorized to solicit a consernation of the English privileges, by the prince a special Nishan or order for freedom of trade without the payment of any duties.

Mr. Walsh arrived in the prince's camp, at Burdwan, in an January, but owing to the interruption of business by the war against the rebels, and various other procrastinations, he did not effect the object of his mission till the month of July, when, at length, by the payment of a considerable sum of money, the prince's order for the purchase of the lands was forwarded to Chuttanutty, but on being shewn to the zemindars of the three villages, they refused to make over the lands, as the order was not countersigned by the king's Dewan. This circumstance caused a further delay, and it was the end of the year before the business was settled to the satisfaction of the English nor did they receive the prince's order for freedom of trade till the month of January 1700.*

The English obtain further privileges, A D, 1698

From this digression we return to the account of the war, as given by the native historians.

When Azeem Ooshan was informed of the proceedings of the rebels, instead of attacking them with vigour, he had the weakness to send a letter to Rehim Shah, admonishing him to return to his duty, with a promise of forgiveness, and of being taken into the royal favour if he complied. The rebel received the letter with hypocritical marks of respect, and returned a verbal message, "that if the prince would send to him Khuaje Anvur, his chief counsellor, with assurances

^{*} It was during this period that the great contest between the two English Companies took place in Bengal. The prince could not understand the subject, but took bribes from both parties. from the old Company he got 16,000 rupees, and from the new, 14,000 of safety, he would come and pay his devnirs to his royal highness. '†

The prince, whose disposition was open and sincere gave his enemy credit for an equal degree of candaur and ordered Khuaje Anvur in proceed early the next morning to the Afghan camp and bring the rebel Chief to his presence. The Khuaje repussing the same confidence as the prince did in the assurance of Rehim Shab advanced with a small party of attendants, to the boundaries of his camp and sent a message that he was there ready in give him the required assurances of safety and to conduct him to the presence of the prince

Whether Rehim Shah had changed his mind during the night, or wished to he more highly honoured in the sight of followers, he insisted that the Khuaje should come to his tent, and there, in the presence of witnesses, repeat his princes invitation and assurances of safety But the khuaje suspecting some treachery declined going into the camp and attempted to return home. He was pursued by a party of [†] Governor Eyre in his letter dated January 6 1698 states, "it was reported that the prince sent the rebel Chief a pair of shackles and a sword, desiring him to take his choice that the rebel took the sword hut sent a polite message to the prince pointing out to him the great age of the emperor the contentions that must ensue upon his death and the favourable opportunity that was now presented to his highness, of securing for himself the rich province of Benaal, by taking into his favour and service the Alghans whose friendship he would find not less serviceable than their earnity would prove formidable. Essi fadis Records, Vol. xix page 251.

Afghans: and after defending himself to the last extremity, he and all his attendants were cut to pieces.

After this atrocious act of villainy, Rehim Shah, convinced that he had nothing to expect from the clemency of the prince, ordered to mount, and to make sudden and vigorous attack on the royal camp.

The movement was executed with such rapidity, that Azeem Ooshan had barely time to mount his elephant before he was surrounded by a party of the Afghans, headed by their Chief, Rehim Shah, and would certainly have been taken prisoner, had not a brave Arab officer, named Hamid Khan, called out, that he was the prince, and challenged the Afghan to single combat, at the same moment discharging an arrow, which penetrated the rebel's side: a second arrow from his hand, wounded his antagonist's horse

in battle A D 1638

in the head, who thereon reared up, and Rehim Shah slain threw his rider on the ground the Arab instantly dismounted, and having cut off Rehim Shah's head, held it upon the point of his lance

The Afghans, seeing the catastrophe of their Chief, were struck with panic, and fled on all sides. After which they offerred to submit to the prince, provided he would take them into his service, which being agreed to, a general amnesty was passed and peace restored to the harassed province.

After this unexpected victory, the prince proceeded to the tomb of Shah Ibrahim Sukka,* in the vicinity of Burdwan; and having returned thanks to the Almighty for his success.

This person was originally a water-carrier, but having associated with the Soofies, he became a celebrated author of poem's and religious works. After his death he was canonized, and his tomb is still resorted to set pilgrims.

he ordered a large sum of money to be distributed, in alms, to the poor and religious persons who attended on the shrine of the saint. He then centered the city and took up his residence in the fort, which at that period was considered a place of some strength

The prince continued to reside for a considerable time in-Burdwan during which period he directed his attention to renairing the injuries that had been committed by the rebels, and in bringing back the inhabitants of those districts who had been compelled to abandon their homes. He restored JugguijRoy the son of the murdered Raja, to his zemindary of Burdwan and recompensed all those persons who, having remained firm in their allegiance, had been dispossessed of their lands by the rebels. For the brave Hamid Khan he procured from the emperor the title of Shumshere Khan Behadur and the office of Fouledar or military commander of the districts of Bundasil and Silbet he also liberally rewarded all the other officers who had distinguished them selves on this occasion. During the period that Axeem Ooshan resided at Burdwan, he built, In that city a public mosque he also caused to be constructed in Hoogly a new Assar to which he gave the name of Shah Gunge, but the people in compliment to him, called it Azeem Gungo He regulated the customs of the port of Hoogly at two and a half per cent, on all goods belonging to Mohammedans, but compelled the Hindoos to pay five and the Christians three and a balf per cent. on their merchandise. He also established the inland duties called sair upon various com modities passing from one place to another, in the interior of the country. In short, the prince devoted much of his time to the performance of the duties of his office, and to the improvement of the revenues. He also every day allotted several hours to the conversation of the learned and religious, and had frequently passages from the best authors read to him He often visited the hermits and derveishes, and solicited their prayers for his succession to the throne.

The English were exempted from this duty, as they paid a specific sum annually

One day the prince sent his two sons, Kereem Addeen and Ferrokhsere, to visit a celebrated Soofy,* named Bayezid, and to request that the holy man would take the trouble of coming to the palace Upon their arrival near the saint's dwelling, Ferrokhsere alighted from his horse, and approaching, in the most respectful manner, paid his compliments, and delivered his father's message, whilst the other brother scarcely deigned to return the Soofy's salutation.

The saint was much irritated at the conduct of Kereem Addeen, and highly pleased by the numility of Ferrokhsere: he therefore took the latter by the hand, and, causing him to sit down beside him, blessed him, and said to him, "to you is this day given the empire of Hindoostan" He soon after arose, and accompanied the youths to the palace

When Azeem Ooshan was informed of the approach of the Soofy, he arose from his seat, and advanced to meet him, and after having made many apologies for the trouble he had given him, seated him on his own mushud. He shortly after communicated to the saint the object of his wishes, and supplicated his prayers, that he might one day succeed to the ^{*} Hermit or Monk. There are several orders of them.

378

throne. The saint with great dignity replied, 'alas! what you desire has already been given to your son Ferrokhsere the arrow of my prayer has been shot from the bow, and cannot be re-called He then arose, hade the prince adieu, and retired to his cell, leaving Azeem Ooshan quite discomfited by his prediction, to which he gave much credit, and which in the second, was realized

The villages of Chuttanutty, Govindpore and Calicona, which in virtue of the prince a Nishan, had been purchased from the zemindars, with their districts, extended about three miles on the eastern sidn of the Bhaggirutty river and about one mile laland. The latter of these villages takes its name from a temple dedicated to Caly, the Hindoo goddess of time and from it the English called their town Calcutta.

In the year 1699-1700 the factory of Calcutta, which in consequence of the fortifications that had Fort William been added to it during the rebeillon, was Calcutta. dignified by the oppollation of a fortress, was named, in compliment to the king of England Fort William and as a number of opulent natives in consequence of the security given to their property and facility to their trade had been induced to build houses in the town and make it their residence his prosperity excited the jealousy of the Foureday of Hoogly, who pretending that he should be punished for suffering so many of the Moghul subjects to withdraw themselves from his jurisdiction threatened to send a Cary or Ishomedan judge, and officers of the police to administer justice amongst the natives living under the protection of the Loglish flag but as this measure would have ubmitted the English to the same inconveniences which they formerly suffered at Hoogly It was counteracted by a bribe sent to the prince, who forbade the governor of Hooghly from proceeding in his intentions. By this constant attention to the accumulation of wealth, Azeem Ooshan is said to have carried with him, out of the province, three millions of pounds sterling in specie, and jewels to a very great amount.

The prince, after a residence of nearely three years in Burdwan, having regulated the affairs of the western part of

Bengal to his satisfaction, ordered the state-boats which had been built during the government of Sultan Shujaa, to be collected in the vicinity of Hooghly, and embarking at that place, proceeded with great pomp to Dacca, and took possession of the royal palace

By the advice of some narrow-sighted politician, the prince was induced, about this time, to adopt a measure which not only gave great disgust to the commercial part of the community, but drew, on him the displeasure of the emperor Aurungzebe

The prince wished to become the sole merchant of all European and foreign goods brought to Bengal, he therefore established agents at all the ports, with authority to purchase the cargo of every ship that arrived, at a low price, and afterwards retail the goods to the merchant at a considerable profit. To this species of commerce was assigned the epithets of Soudar Khas and Soudar Aam, special and general purchases.

He also, in order to gain popularity with the Hindoos, celebrated their holidays, putting on yellow and rose-coloured garments, and entered into the sports which are practiced on the anniversary of the return of spring

When through the medium of the newspapers, the emperor received information of the prince's conduct ewrote him, with his own hand, a letter replete with irony and sarcasm observing that a yellow turban, and rosecoloured garments, suited but ill with a heard of forty six year's growth. He also explained that the monopoly, which he had displifed with the name of Soudai A. D 1700. Akar, was nothing less than individual insanity and public oppression; and to evince to his subjects that he would not sanction any act of injustice even by his sons or grand children he struck off soo horse from the prince s military rank.

The great confusion occasioned in India by the contest between the rival English Companies and the depredations of the pirates induced his majesty King William in the year 1695-9 to depute Sir Willam Norris as his Ambassador to the court of the emperor of Hindoostan. The object of this mission was to solicit firmant or privileges, for the English nation and to render the new or English Company its representative in India."

The ambassador landed at Masulipatam on the 25th of September 1600 where he was detained by various obstacles arising chiefly from the jarring leterests of The king of E gland sends as a tiba sador to Auranga be two Companies b longing to the same nation till the end of the following year : A. D 1622. and not being permitted to pursue his journey to the emperor a camp by Golcondah he proceeded by sea to Surat and landed at that port on A. D. 1 00, the 10th of December, but owing to the latrigues of Sir John Gayer the agent of the old or London 2 In Persian Souda means traffe but in Arabic malnete

[.] See Bruces Annals of the East India Company LD 16.39 9

Company, the governor of Surat refused to receive Sir William Norris as the Ambassador of the English nation, unless he could produce his credentials, signed by his Majesty. These having been produced, the ambassador landed, and was received by Sir Nicholas Waite, the Consul of the new Company, with great respect

On the 26th of January, the ambassador set out on his journey towards the emperor's camp, with a retinue of sixty

A, D, 1700 Europeans and 300 natives.† On the 3rd of March he reached Brampore; at which place it became expedient to visit the Vizier Gazy Addeen Khan, one of the Viziers who happened to be there. Sometime was spent in adjusting the ceremonies, but the ambassador, requiring to be admitted to a conference, preceded by drums, trumpets &c which the Vizier refused as being inconsistent with eastern usages on such occasions, the ambassador held this refusal to be derogatory from his diginity, and left Brampore without having any conference with the Vizier, and on the 7th of April reached Pernalla, near which the camp of Aurungzebe was situated and as soon as he had notified his arrival, he was permitted to pitch his tents in the vicinity of the royal residence.

On the 28th of April the ambassador obtained his first audience, and was most graciously received. He, in consequence, made an application to the emperor to issue firmans for freedom of trade to the new Company. His majesty condescendingly promised that he would give orders to his Viziers on the subject. Sometime after the ambassador had a second audience and preschied the emperor with 200 gold mohurs and the business seemed to be in o fair train of success, when intelligence arrived from Surat, that three Moghul ships, coming from Mocha, had been captured by an English pirate in consequence of this loformation the Virier demanded that the ambassador should not only give security for the return of these ships, but that he should guarantee the future safety of the mogbul commerce against pirates of every description. The am bassador declined entering foto this supulation and was thereon informed that "he know his way back to England Considering this answer as a dismission from the court. Sir William Norris desired passes to be issued for his safe returo to Surat and on the morning of the 5th of November quitted the Moghul camp

[†] An account of the procession, and list of the presents may be found in Bruce's Annals of the East-India Company, A. D. 1700-1, page 462.

Some efforts were made by the Viziers to induce the am bassador to alter his resolution and he was forcibly detained at Brampore till a letter and a sword for the king of England from hurungsche arrived.

Oo the 7th January Sir William Norris was permitted

A. D 1 02. Surat on the 12th of April On the 29th of the same month be embarked oo board the Scipio, and a few days afterwards sailed for England, but died before the ship reached St. Helena.

In consequence of the abrupt termination of the negotiation, and the continued deptedations of the pirates the emperor was much incensed, and gave command that every

A continuation of the same line of condoct which had recommended him to the emperor induced that monarch to nominate her Tulb khan in the year

A. D. 1701

1113 to the important office of Devac of

Bengal, with the title of Moorahud Cooly Khan under which name he will be coetinued throughout this history *

Duting the despotic reign of Aurungzebe the offices of Nazim (military governor) and Devan were kept perfectly distinct the business of the former was to defend and protect the country from foreign inselt or domestic insurrectloos, and to enforce a strict obedience to the laws to the latter was assigned the collection of the revenues and the disbursements of alf the regulate expenses + He was, in a certain degree subject to the orders of the Nazim heing obliged to comply with all written orders for money from that officer for the service of government, but the Nazim was responsible to the exchequer for any improper use of that power! be received his regular salary from the Dewan and was not entitled to any forther emolument from his office. These two officers were, bowever commanded to consult with each other upon all important affairs and to act le concert upon every public emergency according to the regulations which from time to time were issued.

[•] By Mr Orme be is called Jaffier khan aed by Mr Gladwin, and the translator of the Ster at Muhiakhereen sometimes Jaffier khae aed other times Moorsbud Cooly But as a second Jaffier khan will appear in pages of this lilitory I have thought it better to let him retain the title of Moorsbud Cooly khan throughout.

[†] A copy of the Dewan's commission may be found in the Appendix to the 3rd volume of Dews Huttery of Historical.

Moorshud Cooly Khan, soon after his appointment, proceeded to Dacca, and entered with alacrity upon the business of his office. He found that the country was rich

A. D 1701 2. and productive, but that the public revenue had been absorbed in improper channels. He therefore appointed his own collectors to the different districts; and in a short period ascertained that the revenue of Bengal amounted to one crore (ten millions) of rupees

During the superintendence of former Dewans, the greater part of Bengal had, from the idea of its being an unhealthy and unproductive country, been made over to military jagierders, and only a small proportion of it remained under the immediate control of the exchequer its revenue therefore had not even sufficed to pay the Nazim, and military and civil establishments, in consequence of which, money was frequently drawn from other Soubahs, to liquidate the debts of Bengal. The first act of Moorshud Cooly's authority was, to request the emperor to cancel all the jagiers of Bengal, and to assign to the officers lands in Orissa, and, other districts, where the hand of authority, aided by private influence and superintendence, was required to enforce the collections.

His suggestions were readily attended to, and all the assignments on lands, except the stipends of the Nizamut and Dewany, were transferred to Orissa. By this means ^{*} Possessors of lands, held by assignment from the crown for particular services.

the whole of the zemindars, or Hindoo landholders, were placed under the immediate control of the Dewan who by his authority enforced a very considerable rise on their rents, and thereby much augmented the revenue of the State

This cooduct acquired for Moorshud Cooly Khan great celebrity at cnurt but the haughty spirit of the prince

Azeam Oosban could iii brook the contant interference, in all becuriary transactions, of the Dewan, and bis frequent opposition to his royal highness commands. Besides these causes, the prince was exceedingly jealous of the bigh favour in which Moorshud Cooly stood with the emperor, and the courtiers and favour lites of the prince whose extravagance, or assumed powers, were constantly controlled by the Dewan fanned the flame and added fuel to his already exasperated temper Azeem Ooshan was therefore exceedingly anxinus to get rid of his rival if it could be effected without risking the displeasure of the emperor

As io the east there have been at all times found people ready to commit the most daring acts or to perpetrate the most atrocious muders when supported by the hand of power or bribed by the temptation of wealth an officer named Abdal Vabid, commanding a long-established corps at horse called Nukedy who were entitled to their pay monthly from the treasury and therefore looked with contempt of the other troops paid by assign

A D 1702-3. ments on the zemlnders, —and who were, besides, noted for their fosolence and contempt of all ambonty—proposed to the prince to assassinate the Dewan if he would course to him or to his heits a large sum of money. The offer having been accepted. Abdal Vahid ordered his men to waylay the Dewan, the next time he came to pay his respects to the prince.

An opportunity soon after offered the Dewan, who was never deficient in etiquette and respect to the viceroy, left his house one morning, to pay his obeisance at the palace; but before he had gotten half way, his retinue was stopped in the street by a large body of the Nukedy regiment, who, in a clamorous manner, demanded their pay. The Dewan, who always went abroad well armed, and was attended by a considerable number of armed followers, immediately jumped out of his palanquine, and, drawing his sword, commanded his attendants to clear the road, and drive those fellows away. The Nukedies, seeing his resolution and firmness, shrunk and allowed him to proceed unmolested to the palace,* where, as soon as he entered, he loudly accused the prince of being the author of this conspiracy. He then seated himself, in a rude and indecorous manner, opposite to him; and putting his hand to his dagger, said, "if you want my life, here let us try the contest if otherwise, take care that nothing of this kind ever again occurs"

The prince alarmed by his threats, and dreading the severe justice of the emperor, was very much agitated, and after protesting his innocence in the most solemn manner, sent for Abdal Vanid, and severely reprimanded him for the flagitious conduct of his men, threatening him with the severest marks of his displeasure if they were ever again guilty of such disorderly behaviour these excuses did not, however, satisfy the Dewan, he proceeded immediately to the public hall of audience, and having sent for Ahd... Vahid examined into the arrears don to the corps and after giving him an assignment for the amount, on one of the zemindars discharged him and his regiment from the imperial service.

^{*} This building, called the Pooshteh, is still in existence, and is inhabited by the chief civil servant at Dacca.

Moorshud Cooly then returned home and having drawn out a statement of all the circumstances, had it authenticated by the signatures of the public officers and forwarded it, with

A. D 1 02 3- a representation from himself to the amperor

After acting lo so spirited and independent a manoner Moorshud Cooly deemed it unadvisable to remain in the same place with the prince; and having consulted with his friends on the most advantageous situation he resolved to fix his residence at Mukhsoosahad as being nearly in the centre of the province and equally convenient for collecting the resources from all parts. Having decided on this measure he left Daeca without taking leave of the viceroy and carrying with him all the public officers attached to the Dowany proceeded to Mukhscopahad, the name of which, in order to commemorate this event, he some years afterwards changed to Moorshudabad thus to hand down his own name to posterity.

Wheo the well autheoticated statement of the disturbance at Dacea, and the attempt of the life of the Dowan reached the emperor who was then to the Dekkao he sent as order to Arcen Ooshan severely reprimadeling him, and threatening him that if the smallest injury was offered either to the person or to the property of Moorshud Cooly Khan, he although his grandchild should be answerable for it. He further commanded the prince immediately to quit Beogal and to ax his residence in the proploce of Behar

Azeem Ooshan knew too well the arbitrary disposition of his grandfather to attempt any justification of his conduct, or to procrastinate his departure he therefore appointed his second son, Ferrokhsere, under the superintendence of Ser Balund Khan, to be his deputy in Dacca, and embarking with the remainder of his family, and all the public officers, on board the government boats, proceeded to Rajemahel, and took possession of Sultan Shujaa's palace. The air of that palace, however, not agreeing with his family, he sometime after removed at Patna, the castle and fortification of which he repaired, and, by permission of the emperor, changed the name of the city to Azeemabad, by which appellation it is still distinguished by all the followers of Mohammed.

It has been before stated, that, on the abrupt termination of Sir William Norris' embassy, the emperor had issued orders to seize, and confine every European in his dominions: in consequence of which in the month of February 1702, the whole of the English settled at Patna and Rajemahel, with all their effects, were seized, to make good the damages done by the pirates . the amount of the property, however, proving inconsiderable, the Company's servants were confined for fifty-one days in the public jail, but were afterwards liberated on their parole 1 On the 30th of March the order was extended to all the European factories, and the loss of the English Company, on this occasion amounted to sixty-two thousand rupees In this month also, the Fouredar of Hoogly issued an order to seize all the Company's effects at Calcutta, but the President, Mr Beard, having previous notice of his intentions, had so well prepared for his defence. that the Foujedar hesitated to attack the factory, and, by the private intervention of the prince, who durst not openly oppose the emperor's commands, at length desisted from his intentions. He, however solved upon all the goods helong log to the Company which were coming down the river to Calcutta, hut the spirited conduct of the English, on this occasion by preventing any of the Moghul ships from passing down the river obliged bim to release the property

During the whole of this husiness the prioce Azeem Ooshan evinced the greatest moderation and would not have carried into effect the orders of the emperor had he not been goaded thereto by the imperial Dewao Io the month of October he sent orders to liberate the company's agents confined at Rejemenel, and directed that they should be permitted to proceed to Calcutta shortly after which an order arrived from court to take off the embargo on trade. On this occasion the Dewan relaxed in his severity and offered freedom of trade to all the Europeans provided they would make him and the prince handsome presents, which the English refused. The Dewan bowever insisted upon the agents of the three European nations producing the original firmans upon which they claimed their privileges. The Duteb and Freoch produced theirs but the firman of Sultan Shujaa, having been lost, by one of the English agents lo going to Madras, forty years before the English were obliged to hribe the Dewan a secretary to let the matter drop

Moorshud Cooly khan, having fixed his residence at Mukhnoodahad assembled there all the public officers of his department and at the end of the year having made up his accounts in which was clearly exhibited the great increase he had made to the reseous of the provinces, prepared to set, out for court, in order personally to lay them before the emperor on presenting the papers however to the two

Canoungoes,* whose counter-signatures were requisite for their being audited in the imperial exchequer, one of them, named Dherp Narain, refused his signature, unless bribed by a present of three lacs of rupees, but the A. D. 1703-4. Dewan, conscious of the accuracy of his statement, refused his demand; and having obtained the signature of the other Canoungoe, notwithstanding his being on bad terms with the prince, proceeded to the imperial camp in the Dekkan, and, having first presented the emperor and his ministers with a very large sum of money, and a number of curiosities brought from Bengal, he then submitted his accounts to the imperial exchequer they were immediately audited by the Vizier, and much credit given to him for his exertions He was, in consequence dignified by the emperor with a dress of honour, standards, and kettle drums, and re-appointed to Bengal, as Dewan of the three provinces, and deputy Nazim to the prince in the provinces of Bengal and Orissa This circumstance gave great offence to Azeem Ooshan, but knowing the despotic temper of his grandfather, he could only repine in silence

In the year 1705-6, the union of the two East-India Companies having been nearly completed, the whole of the united property was deposited in Fort William, the garrison of which was augmented to the number of one hundred and thirty European soldiers, and a number of guns were mounted on the works. This display of strength does not appear to have given any offence to the Moghul government but it inspired the native merehants with confidence and induced many of them to go and settle in Calculta which, in consequence had become a regular and populous town, and produced a considerable revenue and

^{*} Officers in the revenue department, subordinate to the Dewan. The word means, litterally, Explainer of the Regulations.

A. D 1697 produced a considerable revenue and being rendered independent of Madras by the Company rose highly in the commercial world

Such was the state of affairs in Bengal when the great age and bodly infirmitles of the emperor Aurungzehe® baving given rise to mary latriques for the succession to the empire Sultan Mohammed Azim who for a short time governed Bengal, and who although only the second surviving son of Aurungzehe, openly laid claim to the throne and was in fact, the favourke and intended heir of his father beling jealous of the great wealth possessed by his nephew the prince Azeem Ooshan, and the power which the govern ment of the eastern provinces threw into his bands procured

Azeem Oosban

his recall and that prince a few months before the death of the emperor having appointed his own son Ferrokhsere to be n Bengst and Orissa and Ser Balund Khan his representative in Bengal and Orissa and Ser Balund Khan to be deputy-governor of Bebar proceeded towards court. Although the connection between Azeem Ooshan and the

Almough the connection between Azerm Costain and the history of Bengal terminates with his departure from Pana, yet as the late of that prince is not recorded in any regular history of India, it is presumed that an account of it will not be considered as uninteresting in this place

This monarch s title was properly falanger (Conqueror of the World) but as he is better known in Europe by the appellation he bore as prince it is retained in this flutors

of the South, or Dekkan

The emperor Aurungzebe Aalumgeer departed this life on the 28th of Zykaad (11th month), of the year of the Hejira 1118, in his camp, in the vicinity of Ahmednagur,*

Death of Aurungzebe, Feb 21, 1707

Death of Aurungzebe, Feb 21, 1707

aged ninety-one years and thirteen days; having verbally made a division of his empire amongst his three sons. To the eldest, Mohammed Muazim, he assigned the Provinces of Cabul, Lahore, and Moultan, to the second, Mohammed Aazim (then called Aazim Shah,) he gave the central parts of

The day after the death of the emperor, his second son, Azzim Shah, entered the imperial camp, and took possession

Hindoostan, and to the younger, Khan Bukhsh, the provinces

Azzim hah
mounts the throne of Hindoostan of the royal tents and treasures; and, as mounts the throne
soon as the funeral rites were performed, he mounted the throne and gave audience to all the nobility, and officers of the army. He confirmed all the ministers of the late reign in their appointments, and, shortly afterwards, commenced his march towards Dehly, in order to secure the capital against his elder brother.

The prince Azeem Ooshan, who had, by the emperor's orders, left his government of Bengal to proceed to the presence, had taken the precaution to bring with him a considerable detachment of his best troops, and had reached the vicinity of Agra when he heard of his grandfather's decease; upon which event, he marched, with all expedition, to secure that city for his father Mohammed Muazim, then known by the title of Shah Aalum, but the governor of the province of Agra, having united his daughter in marriage to the son of the prince Azzim Shah resolved in appose him and in order to impede his progress sunk all the boats in the river Jumna, and erected batteries at the neighbouring fords. His efforts were however unavailing, for Azcem Ooshan, having marched some distance up the banks of the river crossed it and, in a general engagement deleated and took the governor prisoner, hy which event, slibough he could not ubtain possessing of the fort, he became master of the province through which all the contending armies must pass. A short time after this event, having obtained intelligence that a coover with the years reveoue of Bengal, amounting to one crore of rupees (1 250 000L) was advancing towards Agra, he sent off a detachment of cavalry, and succeeded in selziog it, which circumstance proved in the sequel of the greatest importance to the success of his father

^{*} Taken by General Wellesley during the late Mahratta war. The emperor was buried there, close to the tomb of a Saint named Zienal Abedeen.

Azeem Ooshan, having besides brought with him the immeose sum of nearly eight crores of rupees. from Bengal immediately commenced ferying troops and upon the arrival of his father at Agra, mustered before him 300 00 well mnunted cavalry. Although Bakir Ahan the governor of the citadel of Agra, had refused to deliver it up to Azeem Onshan he did not besitate a moment to send the kers to. Shah Aalum, who

^{*} A crure is 100 lacs, or 10 000 000.

[†] It may not be unnecessary here to remark, that the solders, under the native princes of India, furnished their nwn horses and arms; and that a number of them were always ready to join the standard of any person who could pay them.

as the eldest son, he considered the legitimate heir to the empire.

The possession of that fortress was of the utmost consequence to Shah Aalum, as it not only afforded him a place of refuge for his family, but contained the whole of Shah Jehan's treasures, with warlike store of every kind by the means of which he speedily refitted his army, and advanced to meet his rival and brother, the prince Aazim Shah.

The contending armies met on the plains of Jajoo, not many miles distant from Agra, and as the command of the first line, which bore the brunt of the battle, was entrusted to Azeem Ooshan, much of the success of the day may be attributed to his exertions

The result was, the total defeat of Aazım Shah's army, Ωf and the death himself and his Shah Aalum des Bedar Vala. Bukht and two sons. fears his brother, Jnne 1707, and takes the title of Jah * This the event occurred on 11th of the month of Rubby-al-Avul Behadur Shah rirq

After this victory, Shah Aalum returned to Agra, and assumed the title of Behadur Shah, and as a proof of his sense of the assistance he had received from his son Azeem

Azeem Ooshan re-appointed gov ernor of the three provinces Ooshan, re-appointed him governor of the provinces of Bengal, Behar, and Orissa, to which was added the province of Allahabad, but as the emperor was desirous of retaining him near his person, during the war against his own-

^{*} These events are recorded in the Muntakhub al Lebab of Khafy Khan, the Sier Mutakhereen of Syed Ghoolam Hussein, and Memoirs of the Moghul empire, by Eradut Khan For the latter work, which is the best, see Scott's History of the Dekkan, in which the description of this battle will amuse every military reader younger brother, hhan Bukhsh, be directed bim to confirm Moorshud Cooly Jasser Khan as bis deputy in Bengal and Orlssa and to appoint such persons as he most estermed to be his deputies in the other provinces. This circumstance enabled the prince bandsomely to reward two noblemen who had been useful to him on various occasions and had particularly distinguished themselves in the late engagement. These two persons were brothers, and boasted the honour of being descended from the Arabian prophet. To the eldest, named Sjed Abdullah khan he gave the government of Allahabad and to the younger Syed Hussein Aly Khan that of Beliar Alier these arrangements, the prince constantly attended at court and, by his abilities and suavity of manners, gained a great influence over the mind of his father

In the year 1114 the emperor who was then at Lahote

A D. 1712.

of business and as his eldest aon Moiraddeen, had for some time declined coming to court, on account of the preference which his father gave to Assem Ooshan all the affairs of the Carlot Behader Shah the prince which circumstance enabled him upon the death of Behadur Shah to take possession of the royal treasure jewels, and artiflery, and to mount the throne But having by his pride and petulance giveo offence to Loolfecar hhan, the Ameer all Omrah, and other officers they took part with his three brothers.

^{*} Their names were Moleaddeeo Jehan Shah, and Ruffis Ooshan.

At this time the whole of the imperial army was encamped in the vicinity of Lahore the emperor's tents were upon one side of the river (Ravy), and those of Azeem Ooshan upon the opposite bank, but a constant communication was kept up between both, by means of boats and as soon as the emperor died, Azeem Ooshan took possession of the imperial tents. The ground of encampment of the three other princes was between the emperor's tents and the town.

Had Azeem Ooshan acted with promptitude, and immediately attacked his brothers, he would have probably been successful; but hoping that the army, finding he was in possession of the treasure and artillery, would flock to his standard, he resolved to remain on the defensive; and gave orders to have his camp entrenched

While Azeem Ooshan thus flattered himself with an easy conquest, the three brothers, by the advice of the Ameer-ul Omrah, drew several large pieces of artillery from the fort, and encamped their united forces in one line, making the city their defence to the rear

In this situation affairs remained for four days, during which heavy cannonade was kept up on both sides, but the advantage being manifestly on the part of the three brothers, and the troops of Azeem Ooshan beginning to desert, he found it requisite to alter his plan, and on the fifth morning marched from his camp, resolved to conquer, or to die.

As previous to this time most of the experienced generals had left him, the troops were drawn out without any proper arrrangement, the artillery were placed in such a situation as to be perfectly useless, and were not supported by any body of regular troops. Kereem Addeen the eldest son of the prince, who was the nominal commander of the first line, remained in the reserve with his father, and none of the officers knew to whom they should apply for unders.

In the mean time the enemy advanced alouly, but in regular order towards Ascem Ooshan, whose terrified troops began to disperse. The misguided, but truly brave prince. when he saw his fortune thus adveres, (though he might have eased himself by quitting his elephant and mounting a fleet herse which would have carried him back to Bengal) disdained the proposition, which had been anggested to him by Ameen Addowleh one of his attached friends and continuing to advance, although nearly abandaned by all his troops his elephant driver was killed by a musquet shot and the animal having been severely wounded by a cannon-ball, became furious, and, rushing to the steep bank of the Rasy precipita ted himself and master into the stream. The dead body of the elephant was again found, but no trace of the prince was ever discovered and for a time it was hoped by his friends that he had escaped. Such is the account given, both in the Sier al Mushkhereen and the Muntakhub al Lebab but be Fradut Axeem Cosham khan's statement, the body of Azeem Doshan was found on the field of battle hilled A D 1712. covered with wounds, and delivered to his brothers, Muhammed Lercem the eldest son of the prince was made prisoner and put to death by order of his uncle Molradeen, who had then assumed the title of Jehandar Shah. These event occurred in the end of Suffer (second month) of the year 1122

Such was the catastrophe of the unfortunate prince Azeem Oushan, who for eleven years governd the provinc s of Behar and Bengal with much tolerance and moderation and which conduct, convessed with that of his successor places his character in a very favourable point of view. It may however, be remarked that the princes of the house of Timour have evinced in India a mildness of disposition not corresponding with the idea we have of Tartars, and, that the epithet of "cruel despot" has not been applicable to any of that family for although Aurungzebe was a bigot, and persecuted the Hindoos, it may be doubted whether he was naturally of a cruel disposition. at all events, his countrymen entirely acquit him on the score of the murder of his brothers, as an act of self-preservation and it has been justly observed, by a native of India, "that princes should not be judged of by the rules of common life"*

^{*}See Mirza Abu Taleb's Travels.

NUWAB MOORSHUD COOLY, VUTIMUN AL MOOLK, ALA ADDOWLEH, JAFFIER KHAN NESEERY NASIB JUNG

Continuation of the history of Moorshud Cooly Jaffiar hhan-On his return to Bengal changes the name of Mukh soosabad to Moorsbudabad—The English obtain permission to establish a factory at Cossimbazar—The Nuwab appoints deputy dewans of Bengal and Orrisa-Establishes a new system of polity with respect to the zemindars-Takes the land entirely out of their hands, and appoints his own collectors of the revenue-The Rajas of Bheerbhoom and Bishenpore ex empted from these regulations-The Raja of Tipperah and Cooch Behar agree to pay tribute-The \uwab revenges him self on Dherp Narain one of the Imperial Canoungoes-Promotes the son of the deceased-Represents to the emperor the impolicy of the Foujedar of Hoogly being independent of his anthority-Ordered to appoint an officer of his own to that office-Nominates Wullee Beg-The deposed Foujedar re fuses to leave behind his Pershkar- \ dispute takes place-Zrn Addeen is assisted by the French and Dutch-The Nuwah sends a force under Dilput Sing to establish his officer-An accidental shot kills Dilput Sing-The Insurgents drive the Numab a troops into the town and march off towards Debly-The Numab some time after takes revence on the Peishkar-Redu es the military establishment-Preserves great dignity in his court-Impartial in his conduct but prefers the flindoos as men of business-One of his principal collectors commits suicide-Various instances of the Nuwab's cruelty in enforcing the collections-Observes great regularity in remitting the revenues-Jealous of any interference with the subordinate appointments in Bengal-Shews great partiality to Sief Khan Foujedar of Purneah-Neglects Aboo Turab the Fouledar of Bhoosnah who is an consequence murdered-The \uwab inflicts severe punishment on the rebels-Account of the prince Ferrokhsere-Applies to the Nuwab for assistance-is refused-quits Moorshudabad and proceeds to I atna-flis cause espoused by Syed Isussein Aly, the governor of Behar who wiltes to Abdullah khan, governor of Allahabad, and prevails upon him to join in the rebellion—Abdullah, in consequence, seizes upon the year's collections of Bengal, and levies troops—The emperor supersedes Abdullah, and sends an army to disposses him-The troops of Abdullah attack and defeat the royal army -Ferrokhsere marches from Patna, and arrives at Allahabad, where he musters his army—Advances to Cudgwa—defeats the royal army—proceeds towards Agra—engages the imperial forces commanded by the emperor in person-Hussein Aly Khan severely wounded in the engagment —Jehandar Shah escapes to Dehly—is seized and confined by Assud ad Dowlah, the Vizier—Ferrokhsere proclaimed emperoi—proceeds to Dehly—causes Jehandar Shah to be put to death—takes possession of the kingdom—Affairs of Bengal resumed-Rasheed Khan, a favourite of the prince, attempts to seize on the province of Bengal-Moorshud Cooly opposes, defeats and kills Rasheed Khan-Confirmed in his government-Appoints his grandson deputy Dewan or Bengal-Sets aside the Privileges of the English-They send an embassy to Dehly, to complain of this conduct-Proceedings of the embassy-Obtains various firmans from the emperor-Returns to Calcutta-The Nuwab refuses to comply with some of the articles of the emperor's firman, and disputes with the English on the meaning of some of the other clauses—The English affairs prosperous—The Nuwab obtains the government of Behar, in addition to that of Bengal and Orissa—Death of Ferrokhsere—Moorshud Cooly confirmed in his government by the emperor Mohammed Shah—Two of the zemindars of Bengal raise an insurrection -are seized, and confined for life-Anecdotes of the severity of Moorshud Cooly Khan-His justice, religion, charity, policy, loyalty, abstemiousness, learning, impartiality—Specimen of Mohammedan bigotry—The Nuwab orders his tomb to be built-Endeavours to secure the succession for his grandson Ser Afraz Khan—Opposed by his son-in-law, and the Ameer-al-Omrah Khan Dowran—The Nuwab appoints his grandson his heir and successor—Dies—His son-in-law, Shujaa Addeen Khan, takes possession of the government.

It was thought proper, in the foregoing chapter, not to interrupt the narrative of events, but to accompany the prince Argem Coshan to the end of his career -- We now return to the affairs of Bengal.

It has been mentioned, in page 391 that Moorshud Cooly khan, the Dewan, having waited upon the emperor Aurunggobe, at his camp in the Dekkan,

A. D 1703-4 had been most graciously received by fhat monarch, and, in reward for his services, had been re appointed Dewan of Bengal and Oriesa in his own right and Deputy Naxim or governor of the two provinces on the part of the prince Azeem Ooshan. He was also honoured with the iolity titles of Nuwab Moorshud Cooly, Mutimun al Moolk, Ala Addowaleb, Isffier han Nessery, Nasir Jung

The first act of the Nuwab, on his return to Bengal was to change the name of the city of Mukhsoosabad to-Moorshudabad, and by establishing in it the mint and by erecting a palace and other public offices of government to render it the capital of the province.

We accordingly find that, in the year 1118 the English East India Company was induced to pay him 25,000 rupess, for permission to establish a factory at

A D 17c6. Cossimbazar, in the vicinity of the new city for the convenience of having the buillion which they sent from Europe, coined into rupees at the mint.

In this year also the departure of the prince Azeem Ooshan from Behar threw the whole of the authority into the hands of the 'nwab, and gave blim the unlimited control over the three provinces for although the prince appointed his son Ferrokherro (afterwards emperor) to be his representative in Bengal, it does not appear that he was authorized to do so by the emperor and the Dewan paid little attention to his nomination.

When, after the succession of Behadur Shah, he was confirmed in the appointment of deputy Nazim, by which the offices of Dewan and Nazim, (which from the reign of Akbar had been separated) were now, by the absence of the prince, united in his person, he appointed Syed Ikram Khan to be his deputy Dewan over the province of Bengal; and his son-in-law, Shujaa Addeen Mohammed Khan, to be his deputy Dewan in Orissa he at the same time appointed Bhooput Roy, and Keisor Roy, two Brahmans, probably relations of his own, to confidential situations, the first, secretary to the treasury, and the latter his private secretary. He also annexed the district of Midnapore to Bengal, although it had always before constituted a part of Orissa

He now commenced to put in practice a system of the greatest oppression upon the zemindars, or Hindoo land-holders, which, although it much augmented the revenue of-the state, rendered his name dreaded and detested throughout the provinces

In order to make a full investigation of the value of the lands, he placed the principal zemindars in close confinement, and gave the collection into the hands of expert Aumils, or collectors, who received the assessments from the farmers, and paid the amount into the public treasury. He also ordered the whole of the lands to be remeasured, and having accertained the quantity of fallow and waste ground belonging to every village, he caused a considerable proportion of it to be brought into cultivation, for which purpose the collectors were authorized to make advances of money to the lower order of husbandmen, to purchase stock, and to reimburse themselves by a certain portion of the produce.

When he had thus entirely dispossessed the semindars of all interference in the collection, he assigned to them an allowance either in land or money for the subsistence of their families, called manker to which was added the privilege of hunting of cutting wood in the forests and of fishing in the lakes and rivers these immunities are called bunker and interest.

The only persons who were exempted from these despotic regulations were the Zemindars of Bbeerbhoom and Blahen pore. The first was a popular and virtuous character named Assud Allah an Afghan Chief who with his followers, under took to defend this territory against the wild mountaineers of Jarcund This person dedicated half his income to charitable purposes either in supporting the religious and learned or in relieving the distresses of the poor and needy, he was besides attentive to all the chitics of his religion and deviated not from the ordinances of the law To have attacked such a character would have exposed the Nawah to great opprobrium and would have incited against him the popular clamour and possibly would have injured him in the esteem of every devout Massulman.

The other xemindar owed his security to the nature of his country which was full of woods and adjoining to the mountains of Jarcund, whither upon any invasion of the district he retired to places inaccessible to his pursuers and annoyed them severely in their retreat the country was besides un productive, and the expenses of collection and of maintaining it, would have exceeded the amount of the revenue

These two Zemindars, therefore, having refused the summons

The literal meaning of these three words is, the husiness of hread, wood, and water to attend at the court of Moorshudabad, were permitted to remain on their own estates, on condition of regularly remitting their assessment, through an agent stationed at Moorshudabad

The Rajas of Tipperah, Cooch Behar, and Assam, whose countries, although they had been overrun by the Mohammedan arms, had never been perfectly subdued, and who therefore continued to spread the umbrella of independence, and to stamp the coin in their own names, were so impressed with the idea of the power and abilities of Moorshud Cooly Khan, that they forwarded to him valuable presents, consising of elephants, wrought and unwrought ivory, musk, amber, and various other articles, in token of their submission in return for which, the Nuwab sent them khelaats, or honorary dresses, by the receipt and putting on of which they acknowledged his superiority. This interchange of presents and compliments became an annual custom during the whole time of his government, without either party attempting to recede from, or advance beyond, the implied line of conduct

Moorshud Cooly devoted two days in the week to the administration of justice, presiding in person in court—and so impartial was he in his decisions, and so rigid in the execution of the sentence of the law, that he put—his own son to death for an infraction of its regulations, and his decisions thereby became—celebrated throughout Hindoostan—This, however, must be considered as respecting Mohammedans, for in the collection of the revenues he allowed his officers to be guilty of great cruelty and oppression, and wherever any person opposed his will, he marked him as the victim of his revenge

It has been before mentioned, that when he wished to lay his accounts in person before the emperor, Dherp Narain, one of the chief Canoungoes, had refused to audit them •

by his signature. The circumstance rankled in the mind of Moorshud Cooly but as the Canoungoe held his appointment independently of the governor and was only accountable to the imperial exchequer for his conduct the latter durst not make any upon attack sgainst him without incurring the displeasure of the emperor. He therefore treated him for several years, with great respect and attention, and consulted him upon all husiness regarding the revenue.

This behaviour gained the frendship of Dherp Narsin and falled him into fatal security for upon the death of Bhoopnt Roy the Peishkari Khalsan first clerk of the reasury, and who, in fact, managed all the husicess of that office, he was prevailed upon by the Nuwab to undertake that employment.

Whilst in this dangerous situation, Moorshud Cooly narrowly watched all his actions hoping that hy having thus extended his authority, he might he guilty of some misconduct, which should place him totally in his power. But Dherp Narain, having a thorough knowledge of the husiness, and being well acquainted with every particular regarding the revenues of Bengal and only anxious to recommend himself by the faithful discharge of his duty by the most minute investigation and by the reduction of expenses, increased the revenue from one crore and thirty lacks. (1300,cool) to nne crore and filty lacks of rupees. (1 500,000/) which he caused to be actually paid into the public treasury but in so dning he curtailed the allowances granted to the zemindars and infringed upon the emoluments ni people in office which rendered him very unpopular and gave the Numb an opportunity of accusing him of malversa tion in his office and under pretence of scrutinizing his accounts, he kept him in close confinement, and deprived him of all the enjoyments of life; which severity so affected the health and spirit of Dherp Narain, that he fell into a decline, and in a short time died. But as the Nuwab was suspected of having accelerated the fate of his prisoner, he attempted to efface that impression by his kindness to the son of the deceased, for whom he obtained, from the emperor, his father's office of Canoungoe, with an addition of one-fourth of the emoluments of the other Canoungoe, who in consequence of his having signed Moorshud Cooly's accounts when Dherp Narain refused his signature, expected to have had his salary increased, instead of being diminished.

For some years previous to the accession of Moorshud Cooly to the Dewanship of Bengal, the office of Foujedar, or governor of the port of Hoogly, had been rendered independent both of the Dewan and of the Nazim of the province; but as soon as he had united both offices in his own person, he represented to the emperor, Behadur Shah, the absurd policy of an imperium in imperio, or mixed authority in government, and requested that the governor of Hoogly migh be subjected to his orders, and rendered accountable to him for his conduct. The emperor immediately saw the force of his argument, and Moorshud Cooly was permitted to appoint an officer in his own confidence to the superintendence of that town.

The person whom he selected for this purpose was a Moghul, named Wullee Beg, upon whose arrival at Hoogly Zyn Addeen, the deposed Foujedar encamped with his retinal and dependants outside of the town, intending quietly as soon as he had delivered over the charge of his office, to proceed to court: but Wullee Beg, having demanded that Kinker Sein the Peishkar or head clerk

I should remain behind till the accounts were examined the late Foujedar resisted the demand and both parties appeal ed to arms. Zyn Addeen having ingratiated himself with the Dutch at Chinsura, and the French at Chandernagore, was supported by them, and Wullee Beg having applied for succour to the Nuwab, was in a short time reinforced by a considerable detachment, both of infantry and cavalry under the command of a Hiodoo officer named Dilput Sing

Both parties encamped in the vicinity of Chandernagore and threw up entrenchments in fort of their camps, which were distant a mile from each other, and although the Nuwab had on the commencement of the disturbance sent positive orders to all the European settlements not to interfere in the quarrel, nevertheless both the French and Dutch continued to easist Zya Addeen, and suplied him with an excellent train of artillery

After a considerable time had elapsed in this state of lancivity and each party was endeavouring to circumvent the other by stratagem the deposed governor sent an agent to Dilput Sing, the Nawab's general to negotiate terms of peace and pravious to his departure, as a mark of his special favour he threw over the shoulders of the agent a large scrifet shawl, which rendered him very conspicuous at a distance

It happened that when the agent entered the opposite camp Dilput Sing was employed in viewing the ramparts of his entrenchment and directed that the agent might be brow ht thither. He accordingly came and while they two were standing conversion on the top of the rampart a French aumer discharged a cannon from one of the advanced batteries, the ball of which struck Dilput Sing, and tore him to pieces, without injuring the agent in the smallest degree.

Although the circumstance was probably accidental, it was considered as premeditated. much merit was assigned to the author of the contrivance, and a handsome reward given to the European for his dexterity. Whether intentional or accidental, it had the effect, however, of throwing the Nuwab's army into great confusion, of which Zyn Addeen taking advantege, attacked and drove them into the town of Hoogly after which he, quietly and ulmolested, proceeded with his deputy and retinue to Dehly, where he died a short time after his arrival, without any notice having been taken, by the ministers, of the transaction.

After the death of his patron, Kinker Sein returned from Dehly to Moorshudabad, and, without betraying any signs of tear, waited upon the Nuwab, who with his usual policy, apparently forgave him, and appointed him collector of the revenue of the district of Hoogly, but at the end of the year, when he came to settle his accounts at Moorshudabad, confined him on pretence of malversation and ordered him to be fed on buffaloe's milk mixed with salt, which occasioning a disorder in his bowels, he in a short time died.

Moorshud Cooly Khan continued to make the collections through his Aumils by displacing the zemindars, with a few exceptions, where he found the latter worthy of trust and confidence. He admitted no charges for troops, but those paid and mustered by himself. Two thousand cavalry and four thousand infantry, under the command of Nazir Ahmed who had been originally a private soldier, were found sufficient to enforce the payment of all the revenues of Bengal for so severe were his regulations, and such the dread of his powrer and resolution, that his commands were implicitly obeyed, and it was sufficient for him to send a single messenger to sequester a zemindary or to selze on a culprit at the greatest distance.

Such were the respect and diguity kept up by the governor at his court that, in his presence, no person was allowed to salute or speak to another nor were any of his officers or Rajas allowed to sit before him

He prohibited the zemindars, and other Hindoos of opulence from riding in palanquins obliging them to make use of an inferior kind of conveyance, called a Dooly or Chowpalch. Whoever deviated in the smallest degree, from his general regulations, was certain to experience the effects of his resentment.

In the affairs of the government he shewed favour to no one and always rewarded merit wherever he found it. He employed come but Bengally Hindoos lo the collection of the revenues, because they were most easily compelled by threats or punishment to disclose their malpractices and their coofeder ates and their pusillanimity secured him from any insurrection or combination against the state. In the few iostances in which he found that they had defrauded him or had made away with the revenue and were unable to make good the deficiency he compelled the offender with his wife and children to become Mohammedans.

Raja Oudynarain, whose family had long enjoyed the cemindary of the district of Rajeshaby was so distloguished by his abilities and application that the Nuwab cotrusted him with the superintendence of the greater portion of the collections, and placed under his orders Gholaum Yohammed Jemmadar with two hunderd horse who in a short time became a great favourite of his principal but in consequence of his pay having been kept back for many months, the Jemmadar's people mutinied, and the Nuwab, without inquiring minutely into the matter, ordered a chosen detachment to quell the disturbance. A conflict ensued in the vicinity of the Raja's house, in which the Jemmadar was killed, and many of his people put to death. This circumstance so hurt and terrified Oudynarain that he put an end to his own existence.

The zemindary of Rajeshahy was in consequence, taken away from the family, and conferred on Ramjewun and Kanoo Kenoor, two zemindars who resided on the eastern side of the river, in consideration of their having been more punctual in the payment of their rents than the other zemindars of Bengal.

The Nuwab, however, never placed confidence in any man, he himself examined the accounts of the exchequer every day; and if he discovered any of the zemindars, or others, remiss in their payment, he placed either the principal or his agent in arrest, with a guard over him, to prevent his either eating or drinking till the business was settled and, in order to prevent the guards from being bribed, or negligent in their duty, he placed spies over them, who informed him of the smallest deviation from his orders.

A principal instrument of the Nuwab's severity was Nazir Ahmed, to whom, when a district was in arrear, he used to deliver over the captive zemindar, to be tormented by every species of cruelty; as hanging up by feet, bastinadoing; setting them in the sun in summer, and by stripping them maked, sprinkling them frequently with cold water in winter.

But all these acts of severity were but trifles, compared with the wanton and cruel conduct of Syed Reza Khan, who was married to Nuffisah Begum, the grand-daughter of the Nuwab, and who, upon the death of Syed Ikram Khan, had been appointed deputy Dewan of the province. In order to enforce the payment of the revenues he ordered a pond to be dng which was filled with every thing disgussing, and the stench of which was so offensive as nearly to suffoctive whoever approached it to this shocking place, in contempt of the Hindoos, he gave the name of Bickcoost which in their language, means Preadur and after the zemindars had undergone the usual punishments, if their rent was not forth coming he caused them to he drawn by a rope tied under the arms through this infernal pond. He is also stated to have compelled them to put on loose trowers into which were introduced live cats. By such cruel and horrid methods he extroted from the unhappy zemindars every thing they possessed and made them weary of their lives.

The collections of the preceding year were always completed by the end of Cheyet (the first month of the new year) and in the beginning of Bysack (the second month) the Nunah generally despatched to Dehly the royal revenue amounting from one croro and thirty lacs to one crore and fifty lacs of rupees. (t 500,0007) the greater part in specie

The boxes of treasure were laden upon two hundred or more carts drawn by bullocks and escorted by a guard of 300 cavairy and 500 infantry accompanied by one of the sub-treasurers. Along with revenue, he sent, as presents to the emperor and ministers a number of elephants, hill horses, antelopes, hawks, shields made of rhinoceros hides, anord-blades Sylhet mats filigree work of gold and silver wrought loopy Dicca mutilins and Consimbarar silks also a number of European articles procured at the royal port of Hoogly

The Nursh attended by bis principal officers accompanied the convoy same miles from Moorshudabad and in order to take off any further responsibility from himself, independent of his own despatches to the Vizier, he had the event recorded in the royal Gazettes which all the governors on the route were apprized of the circumstance, and were obliged by the regulations, to have carts and an escort ready to forward the treasure to the capital,—those of Bengal being relieved at Patna and those of the latter place at Allahabad, the convoy and its value, frequently increasing as it went on by the collections of each province

By such conduct Moorshud Cooly Khan conciliated the favour of the ministers and of the emperor, and the appointments in Bengal were made chiefly at his recommendation but if through any other interest, a person procured the nomination to an office in that province, every means was taken to thwart him and to render his situation so unpleasant, as to induce him quickly to resign it. In proof of the former fact, it is stated that Sief Khan the grandson of the celebrated Amyr Khan having been appointed to Bengal at the recommendation of the governor, was upon his arrival, received in the most gracious manner, and appointed Foujedar of Purneah, with absolute power over that district and with permission to conquer from the Raja of Morung as much territory as he pleased, without any increase of revenue to the State it is also said, that the Nuwab offered him his grand-daughter, Nuffisah Begum in marriage; but that Sief Khan, being of an illustrious family, declined the connection, and she was therefere united to Syed Reza

Shortly after Sief Khan had taken possession of his office he expelled Beer Sah the zemindar of Beernagur who ventured to oppose his will, after which, he imprisoned all the other zemindars of Purneah and collected annually from that district eighteen lacs of rupees the surplus of which, above the former revenue of ten or eleven lacs he appropriated to his nwn use. He also considerably extended his boundary by bringing into cultivation certain waste lands lying between Purneah and Morung as neutral ground, but to which the Raja of Morung intimidated by Slef Khan's power gave uphis claim

All these circumstances were well known to the Nuwab yet having a great friendship for Sief khan he did not interfere but annually invited him to spend some time with him at Moorsbudabad, where he used to rally his guest on the peculiarities in his character particularly on his mode of paying his troops, which was by giving half the amount in goods either plundered sequestered or purchased at a cheap rate and the remainder in maney also for his mannea of rewarding his companions and favourities, by giving them his cast-off conculines, on which account he conferred on him the title of Zen Bukhsh, the buttower of women.

In evidence of the other assertion, it is related that a person of an illustrious family named Syed Aboo Turab having through the laterests of one of the Viziers, obtained the office of Foujedar of Bhoosnah in Bengal adjacent to which resided a refractory temindar named Sittaram, who kept in his pay a band of robbers, with whom he used to lafest the roads and plunder the boats on the rivers, and even carry off the cattle from the villages, sening at defiance the power of the Foujedar,—to extipate this public depredator Aboo Turab spplied for assistance to the Nuwab, but, instead of affording him the required ald he was-supposed, in an underland manner to countenance and encourage Sittaram.

Zer Bukhah, hestnwer of gold "is a common appellation for liberal man.

At length the Foujedar, finding he had nothing to expect from the governor, took into his own pay an Afghan officer. named Peer Khan, with 200 of his followers, well mounted and armed, and sent him to beat up the quarters of the depredator, but Sittaram, having intelligence of the circumstance moved to another part of the country, where by chance he fell in with the Foujedar, who was amusing himself in hunting, and attended by a very small escort. The robbers immediately attacked the Foujedar and his party, and, before their Chief came up, killed Aboo Turab When Sittaram found that it was the Foundar he had slain, he much regretted the circumstance, and told his followers that the Nuwab would certainly revenge the insult offered to his government, by flaying them alive, and by desolating the pergunnah of Mahmoodabad he then respectfully delivered the body to the Foujedar's attendants, who carried it to Bhoosnah, and interred it in the vicinity of that town.

When the Nuwab received intelligence of the murder of Aboo Turab, he was greatly alarmed, being apprehensive of having incurred the displeasure of the emperor by his neglect of so respectable a person, and whom he knew had many friends about the court, who would not fail to represent the state of the case. He therefore appointed Bukhsh Aly Khan to succeed the deceased, and sent with him a considerable force with instructions, to seize Sittaram and all his party. Orders were also issued to all the neighbouring, zemindars, to assist in seizing the offender; and they were informed, that if he was allowed to make his escape through any of their districts they should be expelled from their lands, and suffer other grievous punishments. These orders had an instantaneous effect; the zemindars raised their posse comitatus, and hemmed the robbers in on every side until Bukhsh Aly Khan arrived, who selzed Sittaram his women children and accomplices, and sent them in irons to Moorshudabad, where Sittaram and the robhers were impaled alive and the women and children sold as alaves. These proceedings were entered

he public records, and the governor wrote a particular representation of all the circumstances to the emperor placing his own conduct in the most favourable point of view

From the disgusting detail of such transactions we now turn to a more dignified subject.

In the history of the prince Azeem Ooshan, it was stated, Account of the Prince Ferrokh.

In the year of the Hejira 1118 he left his serve second son Ferrokasere to be his agent in Bengal and Orissa. That prince continued to reside for some time at Dacca but after the demiss of Aurungzebe and the accession of his grandfather Behadur Shah to the throne A. H 1119 he removed to Moorshudahad, and took up his residence at the palace called the Lall Bag in that city where he lived upon terms of much cordiality with Moorshud Cooly Khan not interfering at all with the government the whole management of which had been placed by Behadur Shah a desire in the hands of the Nuwah

Upon the death of Behadur Shah, and the accession of the worthless Jehandar Shah. \ H 1134 AD 1712. the prince applied to Moorshud Cooly khan to assist him in averaging the death of his father and in his views upon the empire hut the Nuwab positively refused him declaring that no consideration should make him depart from his duty to Jehandar Shah whom he now considered as his lateful sovereign but in a friendly manner advited the prince immediately to quit Moorshudabad, less an order should artive for his being selsed and sent prinoner to Dehly

Ferrokhsere did not press, the Nuwab any turther, but, setting out with his family and a few attendants, took the route of Patna, hoping to obtain some assistance from Syed Hussein Aly Khan, who had been appointed governor of Behar by his father, and on his way was joined by a few of the adherents of his family, from Dacca

Upon his arrival at Patna, instead of entering the city, he took up his residence in a cara vanserai, near Jaffier Khan's gardens, whence he sent a respectful and doleful message to Hussein Aly, stating his deplorable situation. reminding him of the favours conferred on him by Azeem Ooshan, and entreating him to protect and support him

The governor was much alarmed and distressed by this message he was bound, by every tie of gratitude, to the family of Azeem Ooshan, but dreaded the power of Jehandar Shah, who seemed to be supported by the principal nobility, and securely fixed on the throne. He therefore returned a polite, but cold answer, to Ferrokhsere, expressive of his respect for the memory of the prince's father, but lamenting his inability to be of any service to him, and conjuring him to depart from Behar immediately, otherwise he should be under the necessity of seizing him, conformably to the orders which he received from court. The prince, however, not discouraged by this refusal, again solicited, that if he could not assist him, he would at least favour him with a visit, and advise him how he should act in the critical situation in which he was placed.

Hussein Aly Khan could not refuse such a request from the son of his patron: he therefore went privately to pay his respects to the prince; and was introduced into the same tent where the females of the family were, and who were only concealed from view by a screen. He was received by the prince in the most gracious and conclidating manner possible and clothed in one of his highness superb dresses after which they entered into a long conversation on the state of public affairs, in which Perrokhisere r presented, that the fate of his older brother and the other princes, who had been put to death in cold blood, subsequent to the battle at Lahore convinced him that he had nothing to expect from his uncle Jehandar Shah but death or lingering and wretched imprison ment he therefore conjured Hussein Aly to support his cause and if they succeeded he should share the empire with him The governor still remaining unmoved by these entreaties. Mileki Zeman the daughter of the prince who had been tutored for the occasion came from behind the screen. and falling at his feet besought him in have compassion on her father and his wretched family she reminded him of the obligations he was under to her grandfather and called on him in the name of his ancestor the prophet Mohammed who had commanded his followers never to forget benefits conferred, not to forsake them in their distress, and desired him to reflect on what posterity would say of his ingratitude and unmanly conduct, should be now abandon them and, without an exertion let them fall into the hands of their enemies. Before she had finished her speech she was joined by the widow of A cem Onshan, whilst the other ladies

^{*} See page 396.

The daighter of the prime being a child and his mether advanced in years their appearing before a stranger, and especially a byed was a too indeed as any great occation from it pleate. But the object laddes come forward twood have been cent offered as do to the from the princes honeur which even the exigence circum stances would not have warranted.

from behind the curtain, combined their entreaties to prevail upon him, and from sobs and tears proceeded to screams and lamentations. The governor could no longer resist such a scene, and, yielding to their supplications, said, "all I have to offer is my life, and I now devote it to your service." The prince then presented him his own sword, and swore never to prove ungrateful for his kindness. The governor, immediately after, returned home, and wrote all the circumstances to his elder brother, Syed. Abdullah Khan, the governor of Allahabad, who also owed his elevation to Azeem Ooshan.*

The following day, the prince Ferrokhsere was introduced into Patna with great pomp, and, upon his alighting at the palace, was placed by the governor on the musnud, and saluted as emperor of Hindoostan a proclamation was also issued, and the letters written to various parts of the country, insiting all officers and soldiers to join his majesty's standard

When Syed Abdullah Khan received his brother's letter, he was overwhelmed with astonishment, for besides the perils in which they were thus plunged, their wives and children were at Dehly, and consequently in the power of their enemies but such was his affection for his brother, that he resolved to run all risks, and to rise or fall with him. He therefore commenced making military preparations and as the convoy, with the year's collection of Bengal, had just arrived at Allahabad, under the charge of Shujaa Addeen Khan, the son-in-law of the Nuwab of Bengal, he seized the treasure for Ferrokhsere's use. This was a most fortunate event both for the prince and the brothers, as it enabled them not only to pay the arrears due to their own troops but to recruit thier army

^{*} This narrative is taken from the Seir al Mutakhereen. The circumstances is differently related by the author of the Muntekhub al Lebab, but I prefer this account.

In the mean time, Hussein Aly by his influence in Patna, borrowed a large sum of money from the bankers and procured from the merchants all the materials requisite for the outfit of bis army without any other security than the prince s bonds, payable with a beavy interest, as soon as he should be fixed on the throne. Whilst the two brothers were thus actively employed in preparing to take the field the emperor was informed by his spies, of all their transactions and im mediately superseded Abdullah khan in his government sending at the same time an active officer named Syed Abdalghoffar with 12 cco borse to dispossess him

Abdullah khan, unable to oppose such a force in the field took refuge in the fort of Allahabad but encamped his troops, consisting of less than seven thousand cavalry and infantry under the command of his three younger brothers, for the convenience of water and forage at some miles distance from the fort of which circumstance the imperial general having obtained intelligence, by a forced march got between them and the fort and sent a taunting message to the governor that not wishing to play with children he had left them behind him, being desirous of trying bis, the governor's, skill in the game of war. This message having been reported to the young men inflamed them with rage they immediately attacked the rear of the Imperial army; and, after a hard fought battle completely routed them not, however without the loss of a number of their own men and that of one of their generals, Noor Addeen Khan, the favourite brother of the governor

This event caused much alarm at Dehly and the emperor, in hopes of detacning Abdullah Khan from the confederacy, meanly condescended to say, that he never had any intention of superseding him, and sent him a new commission for the government of Allahabad, which was accompanied by an honorary dress of the most splendid kind

In the mean time, the prince Ferrokhsere having arrived at Benaras, was enabled to borrow a large sum of money from the bankers of that city, on the same terms on which the loan had been negotiated at Patna, and, proceeding by easy marches, daily augmented his army by fresh levies, and was joined by several officers of distinction, who had taken disgust at the conduct of Jehandar Shah and his ministers, so that, on his crossing the Ganges at Allahabad, and after his junction with Abdullan Khan, he mustered an army of 25,000 cavalry, and an excellent train of artillery

The prince soon after advanced to Cudgwa,* attended by the two brothers, Syed Hussein Aly and Abdullah Khan, with all their friends and partisans, and on the 29th of the month

Showal, A H 1124, deafeated Alzaddeen, the eldest son of Jehandar Shah, and got possession of all his artillery and camp equipage In consequence of this victory, many of the imperial troops joined the standard of Ferrokhsere; and Abdullah Khan, who directed all the military movements, halted some days on the field of battle, to carry on his negotiations with several of the Omrahs, who were disgusted with Jehandar Shah and his infamous government

The pusillanimous emperor, having at length taken the

^{*} The place where the battle was fought between Shujaa and Aurungzebe fused battle which lasted nearly the whole field, the contending armles, on the 14th of Zilbiro 1124 met in the vicinity of Agra, and after a con-

The royal army de-leated by prince Ferrokhsere lan. 1711.

day the imperial army was completely routed and the emperor accompanied by his mistress, Lall Coar fled upon his elephant to Agrawhere, having changed his dress and shaved his head and heard in the manner of the Hindoos, he in the middle of the oight, continued his flight towards Dehly Upon his arrival In that city instead of going to the fort, he stopped at the house of the Visier Assud ad Dowlah, who had been left in charge of the capital. This circumstance was shortly known throughout the town upon which the friends of Ferrokhsere surrounded the house and demanded that the royal fugitive should be delivered into their bands. In order to suppress their clamours, the Vizier sgreed to confine the emperor and making a virtue of oecessity he wrote a petition to Ferrokh his conduct, and assuring him of the royal favour During the late engagement, although fortune in its termination, had favoured the cause of Ferrokhsere, yet that division of the army which had been placed under the command of his Irlend and principal support, Husseln Aly Ahan, having been opposed to Zoolfecar Ahan, the Ameer al-Omrah and his tartar troops, was worsted and their Chief left for dead on the field and as Zoolfecar khan continued to keep sere, informing him that he had imprisoned Jehandar Shah in his own house and waited the imperial orders concerning his disposal. In return, orders were despatched applauding

[.] This officer was the son of Assud ad Dowlah, the Visier at the desire of his father he yieded himself up a prisoner and trussed to the elemency of the prince hut, as he had possession of the ground till it was dark, the body of Hussein Aly was not discovered till near midnight, and when found, was in a state of insensibility, and scarcely a spark of life remaining. On receiving some assistance, he so far recovered his senses, as to learn with pleasure the success of his party, nevertheless, it was with much difficulty that he could be placed in a palanquin, and conveyed to his brother, who, on seeing him still alive, prostrated himself on the ground, and returned thanks to God for so signal a favour, he afterwards took off the valuable jewels which he wore, and presented them to the man who had first discovered the body.

he mounted the throne of Hindoostan, and gave public audience to all the people.

January, 1713. On this occasion were introduced to him a number of the Omrahs, who, in consequence of the negotiations of Abdullah Khan, had either remained neuter during the engagement, or had come over to the victorious side. After the inauguration of the emperor, he proceeded to Sekundra, to offer up his devotions at the tomb of his illustri-

Ferrokhsere encamped that night on the field of battle,

The next day the emperor proceeded towards Dehly; and on his arrival in its vicinity, encamped outside the walls, and commanded the Vizier, Assud-ad-Dowlah, and his son, Zoolfecar Khan, to be brought to his presence. They were both received with the honours due to their high ranks:

ous ancestor Akbar, and at noon returned to Agra, where he received the compliments of all the inhabitants of that city.

been the principal cause of the defeat and death of the father of Ferrokhsere, he had no reason to hope for pardon, and suffered accordingly after which, the former was allowed to return to his home : but the latter was led to a private tent, and after a few questions had been asked him he was strangled as a punishment for his crimes. His body was afterwards tied, with the head downwards, on an elephant, together with Causes Jeh udar Shais to be put to death.

the hody of Jehandar Shah who had been put to death in prison and they were thus exposed in the new emperors train when he made his triumphal entry to the palace of the capital."

Having thus conducted Ferrokhsere to the perilous pinnacle of his amhition whence in a few years he was to be precipitated into the abyss of destruction, we now return to the affairs of Bengal.

When Ferrokhsere assumed the imperial titles at Patna he was persuaded by one of his dependants. A. D 1712 named Rasheed Lhan, to appoint him governor of Bengal and knowing that Bloorshud Cooly Khan did not keep up more troops than those employed in the collection of the revenues, he was in hopes that Rasheed Khan might, by an expeditious march completely surprise the Nuwab and without difficulty get possession of the province which would serve as a place of refuge should he be disappointed in his views on the empire. The matter was there fore kept a profound secret till the prince commenced his march from Paina when Rasheed Khan Instead of accompanying him took the mute of Moorshudshad, and before the Nuwab was aware of his inautions had entered the passes of Terragurry and Sicklygully The Nuwab, not at all intimidated by the circumstance ordered his corps of 2000 cavalry to but the remaining blacer of Ferrotherre See Scott : valuable History of the Deakin and Volume encamp outside the city, and having joined to them as many of his infantry as he could collect, with a few guns, waited the approach of the enemy. When they had arrived within a? few miles of Moorshudabad, he gave the command of his troops to two officers, named Meer Bengally and Syed Anwar, and ordered them to oppose Rasheed Khan an engagement ensued, in which Syed Anwar was killed, and Meer Bengally compelled to retreat the Nuwab, however, who was a staunch predestinarian, was not at all dismayed by the event, but collecting the palace-guards, and a few other troops, proceeded, on his elephant, to the assistance of his retreating army his presence gave vigour to the troops, they returned to the attack, and an arrow, from the hand of Meer Bengally, having pierced Rasheed Khan, he fell from his horse: his army was, in consequence, totally routed, and many of them taken prisoners The Nuwab returned in triumph to the city, and gave orders that a pyramid should be immediately erected on the road to Dehly, with niches to contain the heads of Rasheed Khan and all his followers that were slain in the battle, that it might remain a monument of his victory

But as soon as Ferrokhsere was firmly established on the throne, Moorshud Cooly prepared the usual presents, and sent them to court, with the amount of the year's collections, with the same punctuality as he had hitherto done and the new emperor, being either engaged with more interesting concerns, or considering Moorshud Cooly as an unambitious and useful servant, conferred on him the united offices of Nazim and Dewan, the former of which he had hitherto only held as deputy, and at his recommendation, appointed the nephew of Manickchund to be the imperial treasurer, or banker, with the title of Juggeet Seat

Moorshud Cooly confirmed in his government, A. D. 1713.

On the death of Syed Rezz Khan, the deputy Dewan of the province the Nuwah procured that Appoints his grand son Deputy appointment for his grandson Mirza Assud Deway ad Dowlah, son of the deputy Nazim of Orissa, whom he intended for his heir with the splendid title of Serferax khan. But, as it was the custom of Hindoostan, that on the death of any public officer or immediate servant of the crown all his wealth and personal property were sequestered and taken possession of hy govern ment, leaving the family frequently quite destitute,-in order to prevent such an occurrence in his family the Nuwab took the precaution of purchasing from the Talookdar of Chunacolly the zemindary of the city of Moorshudabad and had the transaction registered in the hooks of tho Canoungoes and of the exchequer changing the oame of the new purchaser in compliment to his grandson to Assudnague that, in the event of his death, the profits of tho estate, after paying the royal revenue, might yield to his family the necessaries of life

He also conferred the office of deputy Nazim of Dacca on Mirra Lutí ullah, who married his granddaughter, and procured for him his own title of Moorshud Cooly khan thus bestowing upon his own family all the lucrative offices of government, and endeasouring to tender his name per manent in the province.

As a further proof of the Influence which Moorshad Cooly had acquired at the court of Dehly It is stated that \ejum Addeen Aly khan a hrother of the two celebrated Speds, who had raised Ferrokhsere to the throne wished for the title of \ais in Jung which had been formerly conferred on the governor of Bengal and who was, In consequence now requested to exchange it for another equally honourable: but the Nawab wrote, with his own hand, to the emperor, that he would never part with the title conferred on him by the great Aurungzebe, but with his life

Moorshud Cooly Khan was sensible that Bengal owed much of its wealth to its external commerce he therefore gave every encouragement to foreign merchants, especially to the Moghuls and Arabians, from whom he only exacted the prescribed duties of 2½ per cent, and did not permit the custom-house officer) to take more than their regulated fees, but he was too keen a politician not to observe with jealousy the fortified factories of the Europeans, and the great advantages which the English had over the merchants, in consequence of the firmans, which they had obtained (he said) by means of bribery and corruption and which permitted them to trade either duty free, or for the paltry consideration of

The governor sets aside the privileges of the English.
A, D 1713

3000 rupees per annum When therefore he felt himself perfectly secure in his government, he set at nought the orders of the prince Shujaa, and of the emperor Aurungzebe, and demanded from the English, either the same duties that were paid by Hindoo subjects or a constant renewel of presents, both to himself and to all the inferior departments. Such conduct, of course, irritated the English agents, who wrote a detail of their grievances to the Directors of the Company in England, and solicited permission to send an embassy to Dehly to Complain to the emperor of the Nuwab's conduct. Their suggestion was approved of by the Company, and orders were sent to the governors of Madras and Bombay, to unite their grievances, in the same petition with those of Bengal

The nomination of the ambassadors was left to Mr.

Hedges, the governor of Calcutta, who selected, for this The Ecglish empurpose Mr John Surman and Edward Stephenson two of the ablest factors in the Bengal service joining to them an Armenian named Khojo Serhaud who understood both the English and Persian languages, and who had been for many years the principal merchant in Calcutta. Mr William Hamilton also accompanied the embassy as surgeon.

At that period the government of Calcutta were very ignorant of the politics and intrigues of the court of Dehly and the ambassadors bad no other lights to direct their proceedings, than such as they obtained from the Armonian who although he had never been at Dehly had procured a certain degree of information from some of his countrymen whose extensive commercial concerns led them over every part of India and who was very soficitious to be admitted int this honourable commission in hopes of acquiring a larne profit by the goods he should earry free of charges and duties in the train of the embassy. The presents designed for the emperor and bis officers consisted of curious glass ware clock work, brocades and the finest manufactures of woollen-cloths and silks valued, altogether at 30 000/ which khoja Serbaud in his letters to Dehly magnified to 100 000/a and gave such a description of the varieties which were coming that berrokhsere ordered the embass; to be escented by the governors of the provinces through whose territories it might pass. The train proceeded on the Ganges from Calcutta to Patna and thence by land to Debly where they arti ed on the 5th of July, after a march of three months

The ambassadors upon their arrival at court, very jud clously did not make their application through the Visier

Syed Abdullah Khan, or his brother Hussein Aly Khan, the Ameer al Omrah, having discovered, that, notwithstanding the emperor's obligations to these two Chiefs, he was not attached to them, nor guided by their advice. The ambassadors therefore chose for their patron a person named Khoja Hassen, who had accompanied Ferrokhsere from Bengal, and upon his accession to the throne had obtained the title of Khan Dowran. This person, who held the office of paymaster-general, was a great favourite of the emperor's, and was admitted to all his councils

In the mean time, the Nuwab of Bengal, who had from the first instant beheld the embassy with great jealously, and who considered it as an imputation against the integrity of his conduct, took much pains, by his interest with the Vizier and his brother the Ameer al Omrah, to thwart its success, and probably would have accomplished his A D. 1715. object, if an accident had not placed the English gentlemen, at once, in a high degree of favour with the emperor himself

Ferrokhsere had been for some time engaged to marry the daughter of Raja Sing, one of the Rajepoot princes, and the bride had arrived, for that purpose, at that capital the emperor, being afflicted with a complaint which all the skill of his own physicians could not cure, was under the necessity of postponing the marriage At length, in consequence of the recommendation of Khan Mr Hamilton, a surgeon, employed by the emperor. Dowran, he permitted Mr. Hamilton, the surgeon of the embassy, to attend him; and that gentleman having, by a judicious operation, restored the emperor to health, became, very deservedly, a great favourite with his majesty, who, in addition to many proofs of the royal munificence * promised to grant any other favour he should ask. Mr Hamilton instead of requesting any further reward for bimself become, he has majesty to concede to the English ambassadors the object of their mission. The emeror surprised at Mr Hamilton's disinterestedness promined that as soon as the marriage ceremonies were over he would take the petition into his strius consideration and grant the English every induly, are he could consistent with the dignity of his own embire.

Shortly after this convertion the marriage festivals commenced and were celebrat t with greater pomp and magnificence than had ever teen sitnessed in Hindoostan This event inturrupted all other I u meas and obliged the ambas-adors to wait for six mon sixt effore thy could procure a favourable opportuoity of pre-ming their petition.

Amona the presents given to Mr Hamilton on this occasion were models of all his surgical instruments, made of are gold. In clearing away the ground for the foundation of the new (hurch in Calcutta about thirty years ago, the tomb stone of Mr. Hamilton was discovered which in addition to an Eoglish epitiph bore a Persian inscription thus translated by Mr Caledwin William Hamilton "Physician in the service of the English Company who had accompanied the English ambassador to the enlightened presence and having made his own name famous in the four justiers of the earth by the cure of the emperor the asylum of the world I oham ned b trushiscer the victorious and with a thousand his culties have, be used permission from the court which is the refu e of the unit rice to recurn to his a try, by the Di inside the on the fourth of December 1 17 del in Calcutt, and is butt d here?

It was at length presented, in the month of January; and besides various subjects of complaint from Bombay and Madras, stated the numerous impositions practised by the Nuwab of Bengal, and his inferior officers. It therefore prayed—

"That a dustuck, or passport, signed by the president of Calcutta, should exempt the goods it specified from being stopped or examined by the officers of the Bengal government, under any pretence

"That the officers of the mint, at Moorshudabad, should at all times, when required, allow three days in the week for the coinage of the English Company's money

"That all persons, whether Europeans, or natives, who might be indebted or accountable to the Company, should be delivered up to the Presidency at Calcutta, on the first demand.

"That the English might purchase the lordship of thirty-eight towns, with the same immunities as the prince Azeem Ooshan had permitted them to buy Calcutta, Chuttanutty, and Govindpoie."

Khan Dowran, whom the ambassadors had chosen as their patron, not daring openly to espouse their cause, advised them to act as if they had no other reliance than on Syed Abdullah Khan, the Vizier and the emperor, although he professed a general approbation of the petition, directed the several articles to be discussed by the different officers of the state, to whose cognizance they were deemed to belong

This subjected the whole petition to the judgment of the Vizier, who, not without candour, disputed all the material articles, and readily allowed those of less importance. A second and a third petition were therefore presented to the

Temperor in consequence of which the Vizier was at length induced to give up all his objections but to the great disappointment of the ambassadors, the mandates were issued not under the emperor's but under the seal of the Vizier, which although carrying great authority in provinces near the capital was likely to be little respected by the distant viceroys to whom these orders were addressed

To increase the difficulties of the embassy, khola Serhaud baying been checked by his colleagues in some irregular proceedings perplexed all their operations, and, as they thought, betrayed their councils. Nevertheless, Messrs, Stephenson and Surman with great steadiness and becoming spirit returned the mandates and determined to walt until they should obtain patents under the impenal scal

In the mean time the agents of the Nuwah of Bengal exerted themselves to thwart the measure A D 1 17 as much as possible and by their influence and bibery postponed the husiness for fourteen months. At length the ambassadors were adrised to bribe a favourite eunuch in the seraglio and although not very sanguine in their expectations from this measure were littliced to comply and to their great surprise as soon as the money was paid the Vizier and all his dependants, appeared as much inclined to forward their views as they had hitherto been averse and soon after thirty four patents, embracing all the different subjects of the petition, were issued in the emperor's name and the principal ones authenticated by the imperial real.*

The Legish oblain yarlous firms a from th emperor A. D 1717

[·] See Appendix

These papers were delivered to the ambassadors before they had discovered the real cause of their success, which, however, was explained to them before they left Dehly, by one of Khan Dowran's officers

In the year 1687,* a little while before the fleet from England began to take the Moghul ships, the English agents at Surat retired to Bombay, and continued there till peace was restored During the period the ambassadors were at Dehly, president of Bombay, finding that the expenses of the factory at Surat, in consequences of the impositions practised by the Moghul officers, far exceeded the profits, had ordered it to be withdrawn, and the governor of Surat, reasoning from former experience, took the alarm, and firmly believed that a fleet was on its way from England, to commit hostilities, as in 1687, which would have been attended with the same consequences, as many valuable ships, belonging to the Moghul merchants, were then at sea He therefore wrote privately to the eunuch, who, he knew, had great influence over the emperor, and was highly respected by the Vizier, to represent to them the dangerous consequences of a further refusal of the English petition. This suggestion was readily listened to both by the emperor and Abdullah Khan, and the eunuch, foreseeing the change that would shortly ensue, determined to reap some advantage from his intelligence, and imposed himself on the ambassadors as the sole author and instigator of the measure.

The ambassadors, having thus accomplished the object of their mission, took leave of the emperor in the month of July, two years after their arrival at Dehly. The patents addressed to the Soubah of the Dekkan and the Nuwab of Guzerat took effect as soon as they were published, because they afforded no political pretext for opposition, but in Bengal their meaning was much disputed or evaded

^{*} See pase 3489

The article which permitted the English to purchase thirty-eight towns would have given them a district extending ten miles south of Calcutta, along the hanks on each side of Hoogly river of which the passage in this extent, might have been easily commanded, by the erection of batteries or redoubts at the same time that the revenue of the tract would have defrayed the expense and the possession of such a tract would have hrought under their subjection and authority a considerable number of the Moghul subjects.

The prudent foresight of Moorshud Cooly Khan, added to his resentment at the success of the embassy made him behold with indignation the concession of this article but not daring openly to oppose the imperial mandate, he privately threatened the proprietors of the land with denunciations of his vengeance if they parted with their grounds to the English upon any terms that should be offered and the Company's servants confiding too much in the sanction of the emperor's firman, neglected the more efficacious means of bribling the Nuwab to compliance with their wishes. Thus the most important concession which had been obtained by the embassy was entirely frustrated

The Numb however compiled with the orders contained in the first article and the privilege of granting duriucits or patiporis, by the president of Calcutta, was recognized all over the province. This circumstance greatly augmented and facilitated the circulation of the English trade which now no longer paid customs nor was liable to be stopped by the officers of government. But a question arose, whether the

English were entitled, under the privile e, to participate in the internal commmerce of Bengal, by carrying the manufactures or products of one part of the province to another emperor's firman implied no restrictions, but the Nuwab insisted that the immunity extended only to such articles as were either imported, or intended to be exported, by sea: alleging, that as salt, betelnut, tobacco, and several other articles of general consumption, were either farmed out in monopolies, or taxed with heavy duties, if the English were allowed to trade in these articles, it would not only be a great injury to all the other merchants, but a very considerable diminution of the public revenue

Convinced as much by the reasoning of the Nuwab, as deterred by his power, the servants of the Company receded from their pretensions and applied themselves to make the most advantage of those privileges which were not contested Success produced new adventurers, and besides a number of of Calcutta.

English private merchants licensed by the Florrishing state Company, Calcutta was, in a short time, peopled by Portuguese, Armenian, Moghul and Hindoo merchants, who carried on their commerce under the protection of the English flag thus the shipping belonging to the port, in the course of ten years after the embassy, amounted to ten thousand pounds and many individuals amassed fortunes, without injuring the Company's trade, or incurring the displeasure of the Moghul government The president, nevertheless, found it requisite to conciliate the Nuwab frequently, by presents, in order to secure the Company's investments, and to facilitate the course of their business at the subordinate factories; but the inhabitants of Calcutta enjoyed, after the return of the embassy. a degree of freedom and security unknown to the other subjects of the Mokhul empire and that city in conse quence, increased yearly in extent, beauty and riches.

In the year 1130 Moorrhud Cooly khan obtained from court the patents he had long solicited A. D 1718. conferring on him the government of Behar*

in addition to the united offices of Nazim and Devan of Bengal and Orrissa, which threw into his hands greater powers than had been entrusted to any governor since the introduction of the emperor Akbar's regulations

In the year of the Hijira 1131 the unfortunate Ferrokhere

Death of Fer rekbiare. A. D 1710.

was put to a cruel death t hy the very persons who had raised him to the and the two young princes Ruffeh ad Dirjaut, and Ruffeh ad Dowlab in the course of seven months occupied the throne and their coffine, scarcely affording time to the governor of Bengal to manifest the localty of his intentions. But as soon as Moham med Shah was firmly seated on the throne the Nuwab prepared the usual presents and forwarded them with the collections of the year to Debly and, in return was confirmed in his government.

The N wab confirmed in his go erame thy Mohammed bab.

Feb. 1720.

In the year 1135 after the murder of the two Syeds Moor shud Cooly Khan again lorwarded more valuable presents to the emperor with a congratulatory letter on his success. He at the same time remitted to the Viziers the collection for [.] See Scott & History of the Dekkan, A. D 1719.

⁺ bor the two or three first years of Ferrokhsere's reign, the government of Behar was he'd by Ameer Junilah, but was afterwards conferred on Ser Balund Khan, who at this time was removed to Cabul.

the last year; and by such conduct, at a time that the other governors were very remiss in their duty, maintained his reputation and influence at court

About this period, the government of Bengal was in some measure disturbed by an attempt at insurrection, by two of the Afghan zemindars of Mahmoodabad, who, having collected a number of followers, plundered the adjoining districts, and had even the audacity to seize upon 60,000 rupees of the public treasure which was on the way to Moorshudabad As soon as intelligence of this circumstance reached the Nuwab, he ordered Ahsen Aly Khan, the Foujeder of Hooghly, to march against the insurgents : and that officer having, by a rapid movement, surprised them, took them all prisoners, and sent them loaded with chains to the Nuw1b, who confiscated all the property, transferred their zemindaries to Ramjiwun, his favourite Hindu collector and condemned them (being Mohammedans) to perpetual imprisonment but in order that the government should not be losers by this disturbance, and to prevent a repetition of similar outrages, he caused all the zemindars in the vicinity of Mahmoodabad to pay their proportion of the 60,000 rupees, public money, which had been plundered.

Moorshud Cooly was indefatigable in the extirpation of robbers. Wherever a robbery was committed, he compelled the Foujedar, or the zemindar, either to find out the thief, or to recover the property. The goods, or their equivalent in money, were always restored to the persons who had been robbed, and the thief, whenever caught, was impaled alive

At Cutwah and Moorshudgunge he erected guard-houses, for the protection of travellers, and gave the command of the police guards to one of his slaves, named Mohammed Jan, who was of a savage disposition and who was always attended by a band of executioners and whenever be caught a thief used to have the body split in two and hing upon trees on the high road from which circumstances he was olck named the kolbareh or axe.

By these severe means during Morshud Cooly kbans government, travellers were protected on the roads, and every man slept securely in his own house.

Having lo the preceding pages gives what may be termed the dark side of Moorsbud Cooly Khan's picture we have now much pleasure in reversing the object, although we fear the portrait will still not be approved of by Englishmen. Both idea are however drawn 13 th san au h 1 san although anonymous, is allowed, by the Mohammedans to have written with truth and impartialing.

"Excepting Shalttah Aban there has not appeared in Bengal nor indeed in any part of Hindonsian an Ameer

Character of the N wab.

Cooly for real in the propagation of the faith, for wisdom in the establishment of laws and regulations for munificence and liberally in the encouragement and support given to men of family and emlinence for rigid and impartial justice to redressing wrongs and punishlog offenders in about whose whole administration so much tended to the benefit of mankind and the glory of the Creator

"His judicial decisions were so rational and proper that

This work was translated and published by F. Gladwin Esq. in Calcutta, A. D. 1783 under the title of a Varrative of the Translations in Bengal but the greater part of it has been inserted in the Ryas Assolutes and some extracts from it are given in the Aranki Mudafi a late Hindonstapy work.

they were as much respected and obeyed as the decrees of those monarchs whose names are most renowned for equity and justice. He was such an observer of his word, that he never failed in the performance of any engagement, he slept but little, and carefully observed the stated times of prayer: from breakfast to noon he employed himself in copying the Koran and in administering justice and every year he sent Korans of his own writing, with valuable offerings, to Mecca, Medina, and other holy places.

"He maintained above two thousand readers, beadsmen, and chanters, who were constantly employed in reading the Koran, and in other acts of devotion. During the first twelve days of the month Rubby al Avul, which include the birth and death of the holy prophet, he feasted people of all conditions and on those nights, the road from Maheenagur to Lall Baugh, which is above three miles, was illuminated with lamps, representing verses of the Koran, mosques, trees, and other figures. Nearly a hundred thousand persons were employed on these occasions, and, on the firing of a gun, the whole was illuminated at once, exhibiting, in an instant, such a sheet of light as astonished the beholders. He also kept the festival of the prophet Khizer, when paper boats, decorated with lighted lamps, were set afloat upon the river *

"Besides feeding a multitude of people, he also provided food for the beasts of the field and the fowls of the air

"He always provided against famine, and severely prohibited all monopolies of grain: he constantly made private inquiries concerning the market-price of grain, and whenever he discovered any imposition, the offenders suffered the most exemplary punishments. If the importation of grain to the cities and towns fell short of what chad been usual he sent officers loto the country who hroke open the hoards of individuals and compelled them to carry their grain to the public markets. Rice was then commonly sold, at Moorshudabad at four maunds for a rupee, and the prices of other provisions wern in proportion. He also strictly prohibited the exportation of grain and the Foujedar of Hooghly had express orders to see that no ship belanging to Europeans or others was suffered to carry away more than was sufficient for the victual ing of the crew during their intended voyage neither were any merchants suffered to have any stores of grain.

^{*} See Nete, page 264.

"He was so punctual in the performance of all tokens of respect towards his sovereign that he would not sit down in a roral boat and when in the rainy season the emperors a fleet of state boats came from Dacca, for an exhibition he went out to meet it and turning his face towards the seat of govern ment made his abelsance presented his nustir and klased the deck of the royal harge. Engagements between elephants being problemed from court, he did not allow them within his jurisdiction, but used to exhibit and be present at those bet reco elephants and tigers and other animals. He took on delight in hunting he never indulated himself with spirituous liquors our any intoxicating drugs, neither did he amuse himself with singers or dancers. He always kept constant in one lawful wife and nut of his excess of delicacy would not suffer any strange women, or eunuchs, to enter the apartments of his seraglio

"He despised all the refinements of luxury, and particularly in dress and refrained from every thing that is prohibited in the law No high seasoned dishes were served up to his table, neither frozeo sherbets, nor creams but only plain ice. During the winer khyar Khan, his house steward used to collest, in the mountains of Rajemahal, a sufficient stock of ice for the rest of the year and the whole was done at the expense of the Zemindars of that district. In the mangoe season, there was stationed at Rajemahel an overseer, who used to keep a regular account of the choicest mangoe-trees in Maldah, Kutwalee, and Hosseinpoor, and his guards were placed over them, to see that no one purloined the truit and that it was regularly sent to Murshudabad. The Zemindars furnished every thing that was required for this purposes, and they durst not cut down a mangoe-tree, touch any of the fruit, that the overseer had appreciated to the nazim's table

"He possessed very extensive learning, and paid great respect to men who were eminent for their piety or erudition he wrote with great elegance, and was a remarkable fine penman his skill in arithmetic enabled him to scrutinize all accounts himself he signed all orders and accounts with red ink he was a brave soldier, and a liberal benefactor, upright and just in all his dealings, the steady protector of the weak, so that during his government, the meanest peasant was secured from injustice and oppression

"He made no retrenchments in any royal grants or those of former Shubahdars, in charitable purposes, but, on the contrary, increased them no zemindar or Aumil could with impunity, oppress any one Vakeels were continually in search of complainants, and whenever they met'with any person who had reason to be dissatisfied, they used every endeavour to pacify him, but if it happened that a well-founded complaint reached the ears of Moorshud Cooly, the offender was sure to suffer severely. If the officers of justice, out of partiality, or respect to rank, neglected to redress the meanest person, upon a representation thereof from the party aggreived, the Nawab tried the cause himself, and his decisions shewed neither favour oor affection to any one the rich and the poor hearing equal value in his sight.*

In the beginning of the government of Murshud Cooly the Cutwal † of Hoogly forcibly took away a young girl from the house of her father a Moghul and Ahsenullah the Fouze dar of that place, suffering the offence to pass unnoticed the father carried his complaint before the Nuwab who command ed that the offender should be stoned to death conformably to the ordinance of the Koran and notwithstanding all the entreaties of Ahsenullah who was a great favourite, the sen tence was actually executed

A Mahomedan bengar having ask d chan, of Bladra hund, a Hindoo landholder of Chunakholly he was displeased at his manoer and turned him out of the

Alchammedan
bigotry

at his manoer and turned him out of the house The Fakier collected together a number of bricks, with which he erected a wall oo Bindrabuod's road, and gave it the name of a mosque and from it called the people to prajor. Whenever Bindrabund passed that way, he vociferated the summons to prayer and so vexed him that in rage he threw down some of the hricks abused the fakter and drove him away. The fakter complained to Moorshud Cooly and Cary Mohammed

Notwithstanding the high encomlums which are here bestowed upon the government of Murshud Cooly his memory is universally executed by the Hindoos, who contemplate with heartfelt joy the happy influence of the British sway over these regions wherehy they have been relieved from the directal effects of Mahomedan superstitions, and are permanently secured from the merculess hand of tyranny rapacity and oppression.

f Mayor of the town.

Sheref, in an assembly of men learned in the law, sentenced Bindrabund to be put to death. The Nuwab was not willing to take away his life, and asked the Cazy whether there was not any way of evading the strict letter of the law, to save the poor Hindoo The Cazy answered, 'there may be so much delay as to allow time for his intercessor to be put to death first, but after that, he must absolutely be executed.' All the endeavours of Moorshud Cooly, in his behalf, were ineffectual, and although Bindrabund was recomended to the emperor's mercy by the prince Azeem Ooshan, yet it was of no avail for the Cazy killed him with an arrow from his own hand. After the execution, Azeem Ooshan complained to Aurungzebe, that Cazy Monmmed Sheref had killed Bindrabund in a fit of insanity, but the emperor wrote with his own hand on the prince's letter, 'Cazy Sheref is on the side of God.' At the death of Aurungzebe, Cazy Sheref applied for leave to resign, and all the entreaties of the Nuwab could not prevail upon him to continue in office.

"The Nuwab, being now far advanced in years, and finding his health decline very fast, gave orders for building his tomb, with a mosque, and a kehtareh (a square, with shops, &c). Morad Ferash, a confidential but menial servant, was the person employed to superintend the work. He pitched upon a spot situated in the Khass Talook, on the east side of the city. He pulled down all the neighbouring Hindoo temples, and used the materials for rising the new work. The zemindars, and other Hindoos, would have preserved their temples at any price, but no entreaties or bribes could prevail. not one was left standing in Moorshudabad, or at the distance of four days' journey from it. In the remote villages, many of the Hindoos' houses were threatened with destruction, upon pretence of their being dedicated to religious uses; and they were necessitated to redeem them by the payment of a sum of money. The servants of Hindoos of all ranks were compelled to work unless their masters paid for their release. So great was the dread of Morad that no one dared to complain his written orders were circulated thronghout the country and implicity obeyed. By these means in the course of a year the buildings we o completed and a gungs (a public market where dunes are collected) annexed to the kehtareh to keep the whole in repair.

In the year 1138 Moorshud Cooly Khan, apprehen

A D 1724

tred all his interest and influence at the court of Dehly to preserve the succession to his government for his grandson, Serferax Khan and in all probability might have succeeded. h d not a powerful rival opposed his views in the person of Shujaa Addeen khan the father of the young man then deput go wroor of Orissa, who hy his equability of temper generosity and strict administration of justice had rendered himself respected and beloved in the province which he governed.

This person aware of the intentions of the Nuwah privately employed intelligent agents to carry on a correspondence and neaotiate for him with Khan Dowran, who had succeeded Sped Hussein Mr Khan as Ameer al Omrah and who was a great favourite with the emperor Between these personages it was arranged that Khan Dowran should procure

At this period Nizam al Moolk had rehelled, and had taken possession of the Dekkin. The province of Guzerat had also revolted and the ministers of Mohammed Shah were at variance and jealous of each other. See Soffs Hutery of the Dekkin.

SECT. VI

the appointment of Subahdar or governor for himself, but that he would nominate Shujaa Addeen his deputy in the provinces of Bengal and Orissa

Supported by so powerful a patron, Shujaa began to devise the means of success, and for this purpose, he, under various pretences, dismissed several of his bravest officers to Moorshudabad He also collected a number of boats for the speedy conveyance of his troops, should the event occur in the rainy season, and he established a private post, to bring him, twice a day, intelligence of the state of the Nawab's health At length, having received authentic information that Moorshud Cooly could not survive more than a few days, he appointed Mohammed Tuckée Khan, his son by a concubine, to be his representative in Orissa, and, attended by his confidential officers and a select corps of cavalry, he quitted Cuttack, and before his arrival at Moorshudabad, he received, on the same day, positive accounts of the Nuwab's death, and his credentials from Khan Dowran, constituting him deputy governor of the provinces of Bengal and Orissa. Furnished with this document, he proceeded with expedition to the seat of government, and alighting at the palace called the Chehel Setoon (forty pillars), summoned all the public officers to attend him; and upon their arrival produced his patents, which he caused to be read aloud, and without opposition took possession of the musnud, after which he received the congratulations of all the persons present, and caused the event to be notified by the shrill sounds of the imperial music. This circumstance occurred early in the year of the Hejira 1139

Previous to Moorshud Cooly Khan's decease, he appointed his grandson, Serferaz Khan, his public and private successor, and sole executor of his last testament; and, having delivered

were necessimted to redeem them by the payment of a sum of money. The servants of Hindoos of all ranks were compelled to work, unless their masters paid for their release. So great was the dread of Morad, that no one dared to complain his written orders were circulated throughout the country and implicity oheyed. By these means in the course of a year the buildings we e completed, and a gange (a public market where duties are collected) annexed to the keltareh to keep the whole in repair.

In the year 1138 Moorshud Cooly Khan apprehensive many apprehensive that he had not long to live exerted all his interest and influence in the court of Debly to preserve the succession to his government for his grandson, Serferaz Khan and in all probability might have succeeded had not a powerful rival opposed his views in the person of Shujas Addeen Khan, the father of the young man then deputs governor of Orism, who by his equability of temper generosity and strict administration of justice had rendered himself respected and beloved in the prosince which he governed

This person aware of the Intentions of the Nuwab privately employed intelligent agents to carry on a correspondence and negotiate for him with khan Dowran who had succeeded Sped Hussein Mr khan as Ameer al Omrah and who was a great favourite with the emperor Between these personances it was arranged that Khan Dowran should procure

[•] At this period Nizam al Moolk had rebelled and had taken possession of the Deagan. The province of Guzerat had also resolted, and the ministers of Mohammed Shah were at variance and jestious of each ofter Dee Scotts Hutery of the Delian

the appointment of Subahdar or governor for himself, but that he would nominate Shujaa Addeen his deputy in the provinces of Bengal and Orissa

Supported by so powerful a patron, Shujaa began to devise the means of success, and for this purpose, he, under various pretences, dismissed several of his bravest officers to Moorshudabad He also collected a number of boats for the speedy conveyance of his troops, should the event occur in the rainy season, and he established a private post, to bring him, twice a day, intelligence of the state of the Nuwab's health At length, having received authentic information that Moorshud Cooly could not survive more than a few days, he appointed Mohammed Tuckée Khan, his son by a concubine, to be his representative in Orissa, and, attended by his confidential officers and a select corps of cavalry, he quitted Cuttack; and before his arrival at Moorshudabad, he received, on the same day, positive accounts of the Nuwab's death, and his credentials from Khan Dowran, constituting him deputy governor of the provinces of Bengal and Orissa Furnished with this document, he proceeded with expedition to the seat of government, and alighting at the palace called the Chehel Setoon (forty pillars), summoned all the public officers to attend him; and upon their arrival produced his patents, which he caused to be read aloud, and without opposition took possession of the musnud, after which he received the congratulations of all the persons present, and caused the event to be notified by the shrill sounds of the A, D 1725

A, D 1725 imperial music This circumstance occurred early in the year of the Hejira 1139

Previous to Moorshud Cooly Khan's decease, he appointed his grandson, Serferaz Khan, his public and private successor, and sole executor of his last testament, and, having delivered

HISTORY OF BENGAL.

over to him the keys of all his treasures and valuable effects, he admonished him to behave with justice and homanity to all those who were placed under his authority soon after which he departed this transitory life Serferaz Khan immeditately sent totelligence of this event to Dehly he

416

Death of the Associated the Penny and Newsb.

Death of the Associated to his father (of whose intections he had no susplcion) to acquaint him of the circumstances and conformably to instructions contained in his grandfather's will deposited his remains in the tomb

io his grandfather's will deposited his remains to the tomb which had been previously prepared, under the steps of the newly erected mosque. He theo assored all the public officers of his intection to retain them in their stations, should he be confirmed in the government and afterwards removed all the treasure and effects of the deceased from the palace to hisown house.

Of the first loterview between the father and son, after this event, there have heen two accounts written. In the Stir Mulatheren it is stated, that the first intelligence. Seferax Khan had of his father's arrival was from the sound of the imperial music. Astonished by the colors he loquired the cause and, to his utter coofusion learned the unexpected event. He immediately called a council of his initimate friends who unanimously advised him that as his father had received and proclaimed his commission had taken possession of the palace and was acknowledged by the public officers he had only to submit with a good grace. The young man either agreeing in opiolon with his friends or averse to oppose his parent hastend without any retinue to the palace fell at his father's feet and congratulated him upon his accession to government.

In the work translated by Mr Gladwin it is related that Serferax khan received early intelligence of the approach of his father and that he made preparations to oppose him hu that his mother and grandmother, both women remarkable for their prudence and great sagacity, and for whom heentertained the utmost affection and respect, interposed, and represented to him, that his father being an old man, could not keep him long out of the government, or at least, from the inheritance to Moorshud Cooly Khan's private estate, and therefore advised him to be satisfied, for the present, with the office of Dewan of Bengal, and not to be guilty of the horridimpiety of appearing in arms against his father, which would fix a reproach upon his name to all eternity. These arguments prevailed to entirely over the ambition of Serferaz Khan, that he advanced to meet his father, and conducted him to Moorshudabad, and after resigning to him the palace, retired to his own house at Nuktakhaly, and from that time never failed to pay his respects to him every morning.

NUWAB MOTIMUN AL MOOLK, SHUJAA ADDEEN MOHAJMED KHAN, SHUJAA AD DOWLAH, ASSUD JUNG, BEHADUR,

Origin of Shujza Addeen Khan-Marries the daughter of Moorshud Cooly Khan-Appointed deputy governor of Orissa -Takes into his service two brothers, named Hajy Abmed and Aly Verdy Khan-Shujaa Addeeo ohtains the deputy government of Bengal and Orissa-Appoints his son Dewan of the province-Releases the reminders from their capitality-Sends a large sum of money and various presents, to the emperor Mohammed Shah-Distributes the subordinate appointments among his friends-Remits the revenues regularly to Debly-Instances of his magnificence and charity-Increases his army-Becomes Indolent and luxurious -Coostructs a beautiful garden in the vicinity of Moorshu dabad. The province of Behar again appeared to the govern ment of Beogal-The Nunab appoints Aly Verdy Lhan to he his deputy in Behar-Aly Verdy proceeds to Patna-Takes into his service a corps of Afghans-Subdues the refractory zemiodars-Promoted by the emperor-Assassinates the Afghan Chief-Reasons assigned for this conduct-Origin of the Ostend Last India Company-One of their ships arrives in Bengal, the commander of which applies for and obtains, ground to erect a factory at Banky bazar-The trade flourishes-The agents surround the factory with a wall and bastions-The emperor of Germany withdraws his charter from the Company-The commerce still carried on by individuals-The English seize one of the Austrian ships-Prevail upon the Nuwab to order the fortifications of Baoky bazar to be destroyed-The Germans oppose these measures -The Nuwab's troops lay siege to the factory-The native servants desert-The agent wounded-hmbarks with the few Europeans on board one of their own ships and quits Bengal -The factory destroyed-1 di pute between the English of Calcuma and the Foujedar of Hoogly-The kingdom of Tipperah made a province of the Moghui Empire-Dissensions between the Nuwab a sons-Death of Mobammed Tu kes hhan-The Nuwab appoints Moorshud Cooly hhan to be his deputy in Orissa, and Serferaz Khan governor of Dacca—Exemplary character of Jeswont Roy, Dewan of Dacca, who reduces the price of grain, and opens the western gate erected by Shaista Khan—Resigns his office—Sayid Ahmed, Foujedar of Rungpore, invades Dinagepore and Cooch Behar, and obtains much treasure—The Nuwab appoints Serferaz Khan his heir—His death.

This officer was, by descent, an Afshar, of the tribe of Turcomans, who formerly innabited Khorassan, the eastern province of Persia, and were esteemed the bravest soldiers in that kingdom. He was born in the city of Bhoorhampore, in the Dekkan, and during his youth, having contracted an intimacy with Moorshud Cooly Khan, who was then Dewan of Hyderabad, married his only daughter, named Zynet-al-Nissa, Begum, by whom he had a son called Mirza Assudallah, whose title was Serferaz Khan he had also another son by a concubine, named Mohammed Tuckee

When Moorshud Cooly was appointed Dewan of Bengal, his son-in-law accompanied him thither, and upon the former being promoted to the united governments of Bengal and Orissa, he sent the latter, as his deputy, to govern Orissa In this situation Shujaa Addeen Khan, conducted himself as a public officer, with much propriety. but being of a luxurious disposition, and addicted to gallantry, he gave much offence to his wife, who in consequence separated from him, and, with her son, went to reside at Moorshudabad.

Shortly after this event, a person, named Mirza Mohammed, who had married a near relation of Shujaa Addeen Khan, came, with his two sons, from Dehly to Cuttack, and were all three admitted into the service of the governor The senior of the brothers was named Hazy* Ahmed, the junior Mirza Mohammed Aly better known by the title of Ali Verdy Khan. These were both men of liberal education and distinguished abilities and by their counsels, not only

^{*} Hajy is a title conferred on all persons who have made the pilgrimage to Mecca he had just returned from Arabia.

A. D 1725. ingratiated themselves with the governor but rendered his government popular, respectable, and beneficial to the empire

In the preceeding chapter it has been stated, that when Moorshud Cooly Khan found his dissolution approaching he had endeavoured to procure the succession to his government for his grandson Serferax Khan, but that Shujaa Addeen had by the exertions of his agents at Dehly effected a different arrangement by which he was nominated the deputy of Khan Dowran the Ameer al Omrah who had procured from the emperor the government for himself and that Shujaa Addeen by his dexterous management had obtained possession of his office without any opposition.

The governor to order to reward his soo for his fothear ance and to reconcile himself to his wife nominated the former Dewan of Bengal but as that office required an intimate knowledge of accounts and much attention to husiness, he appointed Roy Alum Chund the comptroller of the household, to he the deputy of the young man hy which the latter was relieved from all the toils and responsibility of the office and his father was satisfied that the duty would be ddigently performed. The Nuwab immediately after selected a council consisting of the two brothers Haly Ahmed and My Verdy Khan Roy Mum Chund for whom he procured the time of Roy Royan and the Imperial hanker Juggut Seat and by their advice conducted himself in all the measures of his hovernment. The two latter were Hindoos and were well at , usinted with the minute details of business and all the igh cacles of the revenue departnment.

Shujaa Addeen commenced his government by an act of clemency and justice, which does him the highest honour, and rendered him extremely popular through all the three provinces.

He gave orders that the unhappy zemindars, who had been kept in a miserable state of confinement during the long government of his predecessor, should, upon giving security for their good conduct, be permitted to return to their families and homes, and to the management of their farms

He also immediately despatched the sum of forty lacs of rupees in specie, being part of the private fortune of his father-in-law, to the court of Mohammed Shah, and sent also a number of elephants, and other valuable presents, to the emperor and to his ministers; in return for which he received a confirmation of his appointment, as governor of Bengal and Orissa, a commission of commander of 7000 horse, and the additional titles of Motimun-al-Moolk, Shujaa-ad-Dowlah, Assud Jung, Behadur

The government of Behar was however again separated, and conferred on an officer named Nusserityar Khan, and afterwrds on Fakher-ad-Dowlah As soon as Shujaa Addeen was confirmed in his government, he disposed of the public appointments amongst his connections and friends in the following manner to his son Serferaz Khan, as formerly mentioned, the office of Dewan, to his other son, Mohammed Tuckee, the government of Orissa He confirmed Moorshud Cooly Khan, his son-in-law in the deputy government of Dacca. To the three sons of his chief counsellor, Hajy Abmed, viz. Nuazish Mohammed, Sayid Ahmed, and Zyn Addeen, he gave the offices of paymaster-general, Foujeder of Rungpore, and Foujedar of Rajemahel; and upon Shujaa Cooly, an old servant, he conferred the office of Foujedar of Hoogly His other counsellor, Aly Verdy khan had not any sons but his three daughters were married to the sons of his brother Hajy Ahmed.

The new governor imitated the conduct of his predecessor in despatching to court regularly at the end of the year the amount of the revenues and had the satisfaction to find that notwithstanding his liberal treatment to the zemindars the revenue lostead of being diminished had increased for whereas Moorshud Cooly had seldom remitted more than one crore and thirty lacs of rupees, the amount of his collections for the year 1141 amounted to ooe crore

AD 1723, and forty-eight lacs, all of which was remitted to Morshudabad by the ageous of the imperial hacker lugget Seat, without any difficulty or oppossion

His mind being thus freed from public cares, he followed the natural bent of his inclinations and lived in a style of splendour and munificence that far surpassed any of his perd-cessors. The palace of Moorshud Cooly Khan being too confined and ill cootrived, he ordered it to be pulled down and erected another more sustable to his ideas of graodeur and comfort. He was very liberal to his servants and paid great attention to men of learning and plety he was also very charitable, and administered justice with great impartiality He ordered the conduct of Nazir Ahmed and Morad, two of the oppressive instruments of his predecessor to be closely intestigated and having proved them guilty of various crimes and oppressions, condemoed them to death. Being coovinced that the very reduced military establishment kept up by Moorshud Cooly Ichan was inadequate to the security and peace of the country he augmented his army to 25,000 coo s sing of equal numbers of cavalry and infantry armed with marchicks. In thost, by his general conduct in the early part of his government, Shujaa Addeen evinced to the world that he was deserving of his good fortune, but after some years he became indolent, and abandoned himself too much to luxury and pleasure, leaving the business to be managed by his council

In the village of Dehpareh, on the banks of the Bhaggarutty river, Nazir Ahmed had begun to build a mosque in the middle of a very extensive garden. After the execution of that person, the governor finished the mosque in a superb style, and laid out the garden with great beauty and elegance. To this place he gave the name of Ferreh Bag (the garden of happiness), and in the summer retired thither with his seraglio, and passed his time in the enjoyment of every luxury

In the year 1143, Fekher-ad-Dowlah, the governor of

A D 1729-30.

Behar, having been guilty of some impropriety, was removed from that office;
and through the influence of Khan Dowran, the paymastergeneral, the government of that province was again annexed to Bengal, and Shujaa Addeen Khan was, in consequence, ordered to appoint his own deputy to that important situation

It was the wish of the governor to have appointed one of his own sons, but Zynet-ul-Nissa, his wife, who, as the heiress of Moorshud Cooly, interfered frequently in the government,* refused to part with her son Serferaz Khan;

^{*} So strong an opinion had this lady of her own consequence, that when it was determined Aly Verdy Khan should be appointed to Behar, she sent for him to the gate of her apartments, and conferred on him the Khilaat or robe of honour, as from herself; after which her husband presented him with his patent, and other insignia of office. This idea and was at the same time jealous of its being conferred on the son of the concubine, lest it should make him of too much consequence, the subject was therefore left to the consideration of the council, who recommended Aly Verdy khan as the person best qualified to preserve the dignity of the situation and to keep in subjection the zemindars of that province who were noted for their independence and strong spirit of insurrection. Aly Verdy khan was, in consequence invested with the robes of office and was sent to Patna, with an escort of 5,000 troops.

Upon the arrival of Aly Verdy khan at Patna, he found the whole province of Behar in the greatest confusion a band of robbers, called Busyarch who had entered it under the pretence of purchasing grain and other commodities, laid the country through which they passed under heavy contribution, and plundered the collectors of the revenue The xemindara of Bettiah Phoolwarch Chuckwar and Boujepore, were also in a state of insurrection, and had for some time set at defiance the authority of the governor

To reduce these people to submission, Aly Verdy Khan found it requisite to take into his service a corps of Afehans, under the command of their Chief Abdul Kereem Khan. With these, and the forces he had taken from Moorshudabad he first attacked and routed the Bunjarehs taking from them all their plunder after which, he in succession, reduced the was however extremely erropeous, as there is no heredistry rank in ilindoostan, much less a right of succession to a government nor was it. I believe, ever attempted with success, till the power of the Moghul emperor was annihilated by the invasion of Nadir Shah and the events which enamed.

zemindars to obedience, and compelled them not only to liquidate the arrears of revenue, but to pay him large sums of money under the denomination of Nuzzeraneh and Peishkush (offering and tribute). By these means Aly Verdy Khan acquired much wealth, and his troops were also enriched by plunder. In consequence of these services, and at the recommendation of the Nuwab, he received from the emperor an increase of his military rank, and the title of Mohabut Jung.

He however tarnished these honours shortly after, by the assassination of Abdul Kereem Khan, the commander of the Afghans, whose services had been so useful to him. This harsh measure he excused to his friends, by stating, that the overbearing conduct and insolence of that officer had risen to such a height, that he found he must either get rid of him, or have given up his own authority *

It now becomes requisite to notice the introduction of another European nation into Bengal About the year 1717, some marchants of the Austrian Netherlands, who had long wished to participate in the advantageous commerce of the east, fitted out two ships for India. which made a very successful voyage This circumstance stimulated others; and application was made to the court of Vienna for permission to establish an Fast-India Company at Ostend. Al-

Origin of the Ostend Company though this measure was strongly opposed by the English, French, and Dutch,

^{*} After the dissolution of the Afghan empire, corps of these people were taken into the service of the Hindoo princes and Moghul governors: they are esteemed brave troops, but very mutinous, and unsteady in their attachment unless to their own Chiefs.

the emperor of Germany granted in August 1723 to the merchants of the Austrian Netherlands his letters-patent, authorizing them to trade to the East Indies, under the denomination of the Oriend Company

In the mean time, one of the private ships arrived in the Ganges and, by the assistance of the French at Chander nagore succeeded in procuring a full cargo and the captatio of this ship previous to his departure made application to Moorshud Cooly kban, then governor of Bengal for ground to erect a factory should the company be established. As the Nuwab was not only anxious to increase the trade of the province but also desirous of introducing more rivals to the English, of whose privileges it has been already seen he was excessively jealous, he immediately compiled with the request, and assigned the village of Bankybazar situated on the eastern side of the river fifteen miles above Calcuts for the residence of the Germans.

In 1724 being the first year after the establishment of the new Company an Ostend ship named the Emperor Charles mounting thirty guns, arrived in Bengal but, was lost in going up the Ganges. The gazater part of her cargo was however saved, and the officers and crew took possession of Bankybazar and erected temporary houses.

In the two following years, three ships, of a larger size than the first, arrived in Bengal, and completely established the Ostend trade in that province and as they undersold the other Europeans in various articles, their factory quickly rose in estimation.

At first, the factors resided in houses constructed of mass and bamboos but they afterwards built brick dwellings, and

[.] See Modern Unbertal History Vol al. page at the

surrounded their factory with a wall, having bastions at the angles they also cut a ditch, communicating with the river, of such a depth as to admit sloops of considerable burthen

Thus the affair of the Ostend Company seemed to be in a flourishing state but in the year 1727, the strong remonstrances of the three great maritime nations compelled the emperor of Germany to withdraw his charter, and to agree that all traffic between his subjects of the Austrian Netherlands and the East Indies should cease for seven years Notwithstanding this prohibition, the private merchants occasionally sent out ships to India, and, as the agent of the head of the factory in Bengal was a person of great activity and determination, he continued to furnish them with cargoes

This traffic, although carried on clandestinely, could not escape the notice of the Dutch and A. D 1730 English, the latter of whom, in the year 1730 sent a squadron, under the command of Captain Gosfright, of the Ship Fordwich, to blockade the river Ganges The commodore sailed up the river, and having obtained intelligence that two Ostend ships were anchored between Calcutta and Bankybazar, despatched two, of his squadron to take them On the first shot being fired, the Saint Theresa, the smallest of the Ostend ships, struck her colours, was immediately taken possession of, and carried to Calcutta, but the other slipped her cable, and took shelter under the guns of Bankybazar factory whether it was not deemed expedient to follow her, and she afterwards had the good fortune to escape.

Some time after this event, the Dutch and English united all their influence to prevail upon the Nuwab to prohibit the Germans from trading to Bengal, and, it is said, bribed the Fouredar of Hooghly so make a false representation of great.

strength of the furtification of Bankybazar and the danger of allowing foreigners to retain a place of such strength within a few miles of the roral port.

This representation induced the governor to order the fortifications of Bankyhazar to be dismantled violent disputes in consequence ensued between the Gorman agent and the Foujedar and at length a considerable force was sent from Hoosly under the command of an officer named Meer Jaffier troops beliefe the sidn but acted with so much caution that German factory he three means his encampment to defend his troops from the fire of the hesteged who in the mean time completely commanded the river and only permitted such boats as they pleased to pass. The French at Chandernagora secretly aided the Germans with arms and ammunition, +hlist they ostensibly pretended to assi t in negotiating a treaty of peace. Aboleh Fazel Cashmeery, one of the principal Moghul merchants of Hoogly having also offered his services as a mediator sent his son with a message to Bankybarar, but the Germans seized the young man and detained him as a hostage for their own security and the Envieder had such an eesteem for kholeh Fazel, that In order to procure the liberation of the youth he for some days suspended hostifules but having procured his liberation, he again renewed the slege with more vigour, both by land and by water; till, at length, provisions becoming very scarce in Bankybazar all the natives of every description descried, and left the Europeans tn delend themselves. Notwithstanding the garrison was, by this means, reduced to inurteen persons, they continued to serve their guns with such elucacy that not one of the Moghul troops durst venture out of the entrenchments. At length the agent had the misfortune to lose his right arm by a cannon ball; after which he embarked with his men, during the night, and reached in safety one of the ships belonging to his nation, which was at anchor down the river, and shortly after proceeded to Europe.

A. D 1712

In the morning when the Moghul troops took possession of the fatory, they found nothing of value in it, but the cannon and a few shells. After levelling the fortifications with the ground, and delivering over Bankybazar to the zemindar, Meer Jaffier returned in triumph to Hoogly *

Shujaa Addeen Khan, being of a liberal disposition, and averse to trouble, allowed the English and other Europeans to enjoy the privileges that had been granted to them by the emperor Ferrokhsere, on by fromer governors, and the only dispute that is recorded to have happened during his time, was occasioned by the Foujeder of Hoogly stopping a boat, laden with bales of silk, belonging to the English Company, in consequence of which a party of soldiers was was despatched from Calcutta, who terrified the Foujedar, and carried away the silk and other goods which had been stopped. This transaction was represented to the Nuwab as a very heinous offence; and he in consequence prohibited the natives from supplying Calcutta, or any of the subordinate factories, with grain. The

^{*} The whole of these circumstances, respecting the Germans, is stated by the author, translated by Mr Gladwin, to have happened during the government of Moorshud Cooly Khan; but by Mr Orme their expulsion is postponed till A. D. 1748 It is however apparent, by the History of the Ostend Company, that their factory was in existence A. D. 1730, and that their last ships left Bengal in 1733. See Universal History, Vol. xi.

English were therefore compelled to purchase peace by the payment of a large sum of money and by apolgising for their misconduct.

It has been previously stated that on the succession of Shnjaa Addeen Khan to the government, he confirmed his son-in law, Moorsbud Cooly in the appointment of deputy Nazim of Daeca Morshud Cooly employed as his Dewan a person named Meer Hubbeeb a native of Shiraz in Persia, who had been a broker at Hoogly, and who although he could neither read nor write possessed great activity of mind and expertnes in business. This man was very industrous in office and made considerable rettenchments in the boat department and other expensive establishments. He also acquired larged sums for his master by the sale of monopolies: and is said to have treacherously put to death Noor Allah the Zemindar of lillalpore on account of his great wealth.

Some time after this event, a nephew of the Raja of Tipperah, having displeased his uncle was banlahed the country. The youth took refuze with a Mohammedan zemindar, named Aka Sadik, and entreated him to assist him in recovering the share of his inheritance. The zemindar being intimately acquainted with Meer Hubbeeb, recommended the cause of the young man to him, and pointed out the favourable opportunity it offerred of subjecting Tipperah to the Mohammedan arms.

Meer Hubbeed having represented the circumstances to bis master obtained permission to proceed with all the troops that were then in the vicinity of Dacca, to effect the object. The Mogbul troops if gale mayor.

Tipperah before the Raja was aware of their intentions and having the young man with them whose cause they espoused

he pointed out to them the road by which they should advance Aided by such a guide, they reached the capital before the Raja could make any preparation to oppose them . he was obliged to sflee to the mountains, and the nephew was raised to the Raje, upon condition of paying a large portion of the revenue to the governor of Bengal. The whole country, in consequence, quietly submitted and thus the province of Tipperah, which from time immemorial had been an independent kingdom, became annexed to the Moghul empire and in order to support the young Raja against his uncle, and at the same time to secure his fealtry a considerable number of Mohammedan troops were left in the country, under the command of Aka Sadik, who was nominated Foujedar. On receiving intelligence of this event, the Nuwab was much pleased, and changed the name of Tipperah to Roshenabad* (the country of light), and gave to, or procured for, Moorshud Cooly the additional title of Behadur, and to Meer Hubbeeb that of Khan

In the year 1146, Mohammed Tuckee, the illegitimate son of the Nuwab, went, from Orissa to pay his respects to his father, but during his residence at Moorshudabad, disputes ran so high between him and his brother, that each drew out their followers, and would actually have come to a pitched battle, had they not been prevented by the interposition of their father; whose authority, joined to the mediation of the females of the family, effected an apparent reconciliation, and Mohammed returned to Cuttack, where he died in the following year.

^{*} Probably from the eastern limit, of the empire. It is still so called in the Public Records.

Upon the death of Mohammed Tuckee Khan, the Nuwabpromoted his son in law, Moorshud Cooly promoted his son in law, Moorshud Cooly Khan Behadur for whom he procured the title of Rustem Jong (the Hercules in battle), to the deputy government of Orlsa who carried with him to that province, his Dewan Meer Hubbeeb. Through the management of the latter the revenues of Orlsa were considerably increased, and the expenses diminished During the government

ed, and the expenses diminished During the government of Mohammed Tuckee the Raja of Pursotem had carried away the idol of Jagernut across the over Jelkoh (Chilka lake), beyond the boundary of Onssa, and placed it in a lake), beyond the boundury of Orissa, and placed it in a mountain, which circumstance injured the revenue of Orissa to the amount of mine lace of rupees per annum, heing the usual amount of the collection from the pilgrims.

The first care of the new governor and his indefatlgable

Dewan although strict Vohammedans, was to compel the Raja of Pursotem to restore the idol to its ancient temple where it has ever since remained undusturbed and continues to attract a number of votaries to enrich the rulers of the province

When Moorshud Cooly khan was removed to Orissa, the Nuwab gave the government of Dacca to his son Serferaz khan but ordered him to send thither, as his deputy Syed Ghalib Aly khan, a person who asserted his descent from the kings of Persia he also nominated Jeswant Roy, who had been preceptor to Serferaz khan to be Dewan, and to have the actual management of all affairs. The superintendence of the boat department was entrusted to Moorad Aly khas, Projectly Jr., Nath (lord of the world). The temple is attacted in the town of Pursotem who was married to a daughter of Serferaz Khan, and who had in his employment an accountant named Rajbullub of whom more will be hereafter related

When these officers arrived at Dacca, Jeswant Roy was, in obedience to the Nuwab's orders invested with the entire management of the revenues. He had been educated under the late Nuwab, Moorshud Cooly Khan, whose example he emulated, in piety, integrity, and indefatigable attention to business, and in forming his arrangements for the benefits of the government, studied to render them conducive to the general ease and happiness of the people. He abolished the monopolies which had been introduced by Meer Hubbeeb, and also the impositions laid upon grain.

It was related, in the account of the government of Shaista Khan, that when he left Dacca to return to Dehly, he built up the western gate, and inscribed over it an exectation against any future governor who should presume to open it till he had reduced the price of grain to a dumree per seer, or 640 pounds weight for the rupee. The gate had continued closed to this time, when Juswant Roy, having succeeded in reducing the price of grain to Shaista Khan's standard, ordered it to be opened

By the prudent administration of a system of sound policy and humanity, the rich province of Dacca was cultivated in every part, and abounded in every thing requisite for the comfort and gratification of its inhabitants. Justice was administered with impartiality, and the conduct of Chalib Aly Khan and Jeswant Roy gained great credit to their principal, Serferaz Khan.

As the Nuwab was far advanced in years, he relaxed in his attention to business, and entrusted the management of affairs much to his son ordering him however, constantly to consult with Hajy Ahmed and the other members of his council The young man did not, however comply with this injunction and the circumstance caused jealousy to arise between him and the Hajy

After some time Nuffeesa Begum the sister of Serferax khan, persuaded her husband to recall Ghalib Aly khan from Dacca, and to promote his son in law Murad Aly, to the government. This young man ap poloted Rajabullub to be Peishkar or head clerk of the boat department, and commenced bigovernment with many acts of opperssion. Jesuant Roy the Dewan, who had gained so high a reputation for his conduct beheld these measures with aversion and re solving not to be a participator in them, resigned his appointment, and returned to Vicorishudabad. Upon his resignation, the new government gave a loose to their rapacity and violence till they reduced the country to a state of comparative poverty and desolation.

About this penod Sayid Ahmed the second son of Haly Ahmed who upon the succession of Shulaa Addeen Khan had been appointed Foujedar of Ruogpore and who is accused of having ruled that district with great oppression having procured from Moorshudabad a considerable army invaded Dinagepore and Cooch Behar and after compelling the Rajas to take refuge in the woods and mountains, bot possession of those countries together with the immense treasures which the Rajas and their ancestors had amassed. When intelligence of this event was received at Moorshudabad, the Nuwab was pleased to confer the title of Khan

Behadur on Sayıd Ahmed,* a cırcumstance which was exceedingly flattering to the young man's father

The enemies of this family have asserted, that notwithstanding the numerous benefits conferred on them by Shujaa Addeen Khan, they were constantly plotting to themselves independent of his son by sending their wealth to Patna, and by remitting large sums of money to Dehly, to procure for Aly Verdy Khan, upon the death of the Nuwab, the distinct government of Behar; but of this part of the accusation there does not appear to be any proof Even had he done so, although moralists might condemn his conduct as a breach of private friendship, he would have been perfectly acquitted by those acquainted with the politics of Hindoostan and the conduct of public men, as it is evident that Serferaz Khan had no more right to the government, than the son of the nobleman who now holds that important office has to the succession.

The only attempt at insurrection during the government of Shujaa Addeen Khan, was by the zemindar of Beerbhoom, named Budy-al-Zeman,† who was for a short time in a state of rebellion. He was however quickly reduced, and compelled to pay, in addition to his former revenue, the sum of three lacs of rupees

At the period that the Persian usurper, Nadir Shah, entered into Hindoostan, and that the court of Dehly was in a state-

This was an assumed power on the part of the Nuwab, and can only be accounted for by the weak state of the Moghul government, during the reign of Mohammed Shah

[†] He was the son of Assud Allah, mentioned in page 404 and imitated the conduct of his father.

t

of the greatest perturbation at his approach, Shujaa Addeen Khan finding his infarmittes daily increase, and that he had but a short time to live, sent to Orissa. Doordaneh Begum the wife and Yahia the son, of Moorshud Cooly Khan who at the instigation of Serferax Khan had heen detained as hostages for the good conduct of Moorshud Cooly. He then appointed Serferax Khan his heir on condition that he would regard the Hajy the Roy Royan and Juggut Seat, as the steadfast counsellints of his father and fullow their advice in all affairs of mnment. Although Serferax khan hore no cordiality towards these men jet, for fear of offending his dying parent, he promised to ohey his commands. A very few days after this event, viz on the 13th Zilhipe 1151 Shujaa Addeen resigued his soul to his Maker

A D 1739. universally regretted as a man of strict versicity general philanthropy, and unhounded liberality Previous to his decease he had crected a mosque and a mausoleum at Debparch opposite to Moorshudabad and was buried therin

ALLA-AD-DOWLAH SERFERAZ KHAN.

Serferaz Khan takes possession of the government— Imitates the conduct of his grandfather, Moorshud Cooly Khan, but much addicted to the pleasures of the Harem-The envoys of Nadir Shah demand the arrears of revenue from Bengal-The Nuvab pays the amount, and coins money bearing Nodir Shah's titles-Dispute between the Nuwab and the banker Juggut Sent-The Nuwab quarrels also with Halv Ahmed-Conspiracy against the Nuvab-He discovers the plot-Determines to displace Aly Verdy Khan and his connections—Postpones his resolution—Aly Verdy procures a patent for the government—Marches from Patna—Instance of his policy-Writes to the Nuwab, accusing him of having insulted his family—Serferaz Khan calls his council—Cunning of Hajv Ahmed—The Nuwab encamps his army—Sends agents to discover Aly Verdy Khan's intentions—Aly Verdy army-Sends sends an envoy to the Nuwab, but continues his march—The Nuwab, deceived by his letters, allows him to approach within a few miles—Aly Verdy attacks the Nuwab's camp by surprise The Nuwab mounts his elephant, and rushes into the heat of the engagement-killed by a musquet ball-His troops disperse-Aly Verdy Khan sends his brother, the Hajy, to take possession of Moorshudabad.

Immediately on the decease of his father, Serferaz Khan took possession of the government, but notwithstanding his uncontested succession, he was so apprehensive of the intrigues of his enemies, that he would not venture out of the fort to attend the funeral obsequies of his father. In obedience to the commands of the late Nuwab, he at first entrusted the management of affairs to Haly Ahmed, the Roy Royan, and Juggut Seat, but despatched an envoy to Dehly, with a large sum of money, to solicit the confirmation of his appointment

Serferaz followed the example of his grandfather, Moorshud Cooly Khan, so far as regarded the external forms of devotion, hy retaining a oumber of readers of the Aoran, and other religious persoos, in his pay but he assumed a much greater degree of pomp and was always attended by a select corps of 2000 cavalry. He was also much addicted to the pleasures of the haram and his setaglio is said to have consisted of 1500 women of various descriptions amongst whom he dissipated much of his time and entirely oeglected husiness. In short, all that could he said in his favour was, that he was neither a drunkard nor an oppressor

A very short time after Serferax Khan had taken possession of the government, and before he was con firmed in it, a mesenger sent by the Vizier Kummer Addeen Khan announced the arrival of 'adir Shah at Debly * and demanded the revenues

Nadir Shah entered Dehly on the 8th of Zilhije A H 1151 corresponding with the 8th of March 1739 For an account of this lovasion see either Fraces Hutlery of Vider Shah the 2nd Volume of the History of Hindsostan or Saift Hutlery of the Dekkan

Chuki Kirshvur Vakeel or agent of the Nuwsh of Bengal was one of the Committee appointed to raise the contribution to Dehly heing afterwards ill treated he murdered his whole family and then put an end to his own existence

Oo the 23rd of March an order was made out, that Murid hhan such fifty of Sirbullod khan's horsemen should carry a surarah and firman to Shujaa khan, Soubahdar of Beo, all and take from him the three years treasure and a petithush occidingly 1000 rupees were given out of the Shah's treasury to Murid khan for his expenses and 3 220 rupees to the Lity horsemen for their charges. Murid khan was accompanied by dir Tuckee hell fleg —Seo Freuer page 196.

of the three last years. Serferaz Khan, by the advice of Hajy Ahmed and the other two counsellors, not only paid the money, but actually ordered coin to be struck, and the Khootbeh to be read from the pulpits, in the name of Nadir Shah. These circumstances were afterwards laid hold of by the enemies of the young Nuwab, to asperse his character, and to render him suspected by the emperor Mohammed Shah.

In order to account for the animosity which Juggut Seat, the banker, bore against Serferaz Khan, it is related, that such was the young Nuwab's passion for beauty, that it could not be restrained within any bounds, and that he having learned that the eldest son of Juggut Seat was married to a woman of exquisite beauty, the curiosity of the Nuwab was so much inflamed, that he insisted on seeing her, although he knew the disgrace which would be fixed on the family by shewing a wife unveiled to a stranger. Neither the remonstrances of Juggut Seat, nor his power to revenge the indignity, availed to avert the Nuwab from his insolent and futile resolution. The young woman was sent to the palace in the evening; and after staying there a short space, returned, unviolated indeed, but dishonoured to her husband.

This event was soon after followed by an attempt, on the part of the Nuwab, to compel Hajy Ahmed to break off a marriage, the preliminaries of which had been all adjusted, between two of his grand-children, viz Mirza Mahmood, the son of Sayid Ahmed, who was also adopted by Aly Verdy Khan, and a daughter of Attah Allah, the son-in-law of the Hajy, and to unite the young lady to his own son These two circumstances were the cause of much discontent, and afforded the conspirators sufficient ground for complaint. Agents were sent off to Dehly to bribe the flagitious ministers of Mohammed Shah to set aside the appointment of Serferax Khan and to nominate Aly Verdy Khan to the government to the three provinces. To effect this scheme, they represent ed, in the blackest colours, the eigerness with which Serferax khan had coined the money in the name of and had proclaimed, Nadir Shah emperor of Hindoostan. They promised to pay a fine of one crore of rupees and agreed to remit to court the whole of the property of Serferax Khan, amounting as they supposed, to many crores of rupees and to forward the amount of the revenues of the three provinces with the same regularity as had been practised in the time of the Nuwah Moorshud Cooly Khan

Conspiracy against the Nuwab.

At the same time Hajy Ahmed and Juggut Seai, by their attention to the young Nuwab endeavoured to luli him into security and actually had the address to prevail on him by way of retrenching his expenses, to disband a considerable part of his army all of whom immediately repaired to Patna, and were callisted by Aly Verdy Khan

At length Serferaz Khan, having received intelligence from his agents at Dehly of the plot that was carrying on against him resolved to counteract their designs and determined not only to recall Aly Verdy hhan from Behar but to displace every person of that family from the official situations which they held.* But these intentions having been secretly discovered by the figure and his colleagues, they waited upon the Nuwah, and, with the most downright effrontery, denied the accuration and, by their solemn protestations of inviolable duty and attachment to his family, prevailed upon him to postpone his new arrangements till the end of the year, when they promised to relinquish their appointments, and to deliver him a faithful account of all their pecuniary transactions. It is stated in the Sier al Mutakhereen, that A. D. 1740. ten months after the departure of Nadir Shah,* through the interest of Issac Khan, one of the chief counsellors of the emperor Mohammed Shah, the patents for the government of the three provinces were made out in the name of, and forwarded to, Aly Verdy Khan, who being now resolved on marching against Serferaz Khan, desired an eminent astrologer, on whose predictions he reposed an unlimited confidence, to fix the day for the commencement of his journey but, in order to deceive the Nuwab, and the other persons to whom he did not yet wish to communicate the secret, he gave out that he was going to march against the refractory zemindars of Boujepore. In the meantime, intercepted all correspondence between Patna Moorshudabad, and stopped all travellers on the road.

It does not appear in any of the authorities I have had access to, that Serferaz was ever confirmed in the covernment.

Having appointed his son-in-law, Zyn Addeen, to be his deputy during his absence, and all things being prepared for his departure, Aly Verdy Khan commenced Aly Verdy Khan his march towards Boujepore, in the end Nuwab, March. of Zilkaad, A H 1152, and encamped the first day at Varis Khan's reservoir, on the north-west side of Patna. In the evening, he gave orders to assemble all the principal officers of his army. and when Nadir Shah quitted Dehly, by Frazer's account, on the 6th of May, 1739, but by Scott's, on the 14th of April, leaving the government of Hindoostan in a most crippled state reign of Mohammed Shah, in 'Vol. 11. of Dow's Hindoostan, and Vol, in of Scott's Dekkan.

1740.

of moving from your palace or of marching against him in "hostile array He is sensible that he has many enemies in "your court and should you follow the advice of those 'persons I fear he may in despair and for the preserva "tion of his life and honour venture upon some rash step, the consequence of which may be fatal

Hajy Ahmed joined his brother while on the march in the vicinity of Rajemahel and in order nominally to fulfil the promise he had made the Nuwab he prevailed upon Aly Verdy to turn his elephant, and to proceed a short distance on the way to Patna.

In the meantime, the Nuwab having summoned all the Fonjedars to his assistance assembled his troops, and ordered them to encamp on the plain between Gheria and Comra, about twenty-two miles north of Moorshudabad. His army is said to have consisted of 30,000 cavalry and infantry and a numerous train of artiflery. His troops were, however not equal in courage or discipline to those of Aly Verdy khan and the commander of the ordnance named Shariar khan, a connection of the Hajy s, is accused of having treacherously neglected to take to camp any shot for the guns but previous to the commencement of hostilities, the plot was discovered and a Portnguese named Panchoo, was appointed to command the artilliery. On the 32nd of Mohur

A. D. 1740. rem A. H 1153, the Nuwab Joined the camp at Comra, out halted there to receive the report of two agents whom he had sent to Aly Verdy khan to discover his real intentions these persons showly returned, and represented that My Verdy still professed him self a faulful and attached servant they were however accoms gazied by an agent of Aly Verdys named Mohammod Aly who presented a patition from his matter which, after detailing various subjects of complaint, requested that certain persons belonging to the court, who were his enemies, might be banished, after which he would advance unattended, and pay his respects to the Nuwab; and in proof of his sincerity, he sent by the agent a case, said to contain a Koran, upon which he had sworn to adhere to his engagement *

Aly Verdy Khan having arrived within twelve miles of the Nuwab's camp without receiving any answer to his petition, again sent another messenger, to request the Nuwab's forgiveness, and to state his intention of paying his respects the following day: the Nuwab was deceived by this stratagem, and gave orders that an elegant entertainment should be prepared for the occasion, the troops of the Nuwab also, understanding that matters were to be amicably settled, were totally off their guard

In the evening, Aly Verdy Khan issued orders to his troops for the attack he divided his army into three columns, one of which had directions to proceed during the night, and get into the rear of the Nuwab's camp, and upon hearing the attack of the other two columns in front, to unite their efforts. At the dawn of day, Aly Verdy Khan, having advanced to the skirts of the Nuwab's camp unperceived, opened a cannonade. One of the first balls, passing through Serferaz Khan's tent roused him from his lethargy, and awakened him to a sense of his danger and the perfidy of his enemy he however, in the most undaunted manner, mounted his elephant, and calling to his troops to follow him, advanced towards Aly Verdy Khan.

The elephant driver, seeing that very few of the troops

^{*} The enemies of Aly Verdy state, that the case did not contain a Koran, but a brick covered with cloth of gold.

were following him represented to the Nawab the danger of the attuation and requested permission to carry him off the field to Beerbhoom, the xemindar of which district being very powerful and the country by nature strong would afford him a safe refuse till he could be joined by his friends Serferaz Khan who was worthy of a better fate, spurned at this advice, and ordered the driver to carry him into the thickest of the enemy. His had nearly expended the wholeof his quiver of arrows, when a musquet ball struck him in. the forehead and sent his soul to the mansions of eternity As soon as this event was known, the troops, with the exception of a body of Afghans under

The Nuwab slain in battle.

Ghows khan, fled on all sides. Meer Hub hech the Dewan of Moorshud Cooly who had joined the army with the quota of troops from Orissa, immediately rode off, with his followers, towards home literally fulfilling the proverb -

> He that fights and runs away May live to fight another day

During the plundering of the camp, Serferax Khan's clephant driver unperceived by the enemy, conveyed the corpse to Moorshudabad and at midnight, his son Mirza Amany caused it to be huried in a private manner at Nuktakhaly Mirza Amany and Yeasseen Khan, the Foujedar, made preparations to defend the city but the troops refusing to support thom they were obliged to submit to the conqueror who im mediately despatched the brother Haly Ahmed, to secure the family and treasures of the deceased and to assure the in habitants of his protection and favour

NUWAB, SHUJAA AL MOOLK, HISSAM AD DOWLAH, MOHAMMED ALY VERDY KHAN BEHADUR, MOHABUT JUNG.

Aly Verdy Khan takes possession of the government—His hypocritical conduct-Sends large sums of money and valuable presents to the emperor, and to the viziers, at Dehly- Confirmed in the government-Obtains additional titles for himself, his three sons-in-law, and his grandsons-Distributes the public offices to them and his other dependants-Assigns an allowance for the support of the family of the late Nuwab-Alarmed ay the approach of a messenger from court to demand the treasure and effects of Serferaz Khan-Political conduct on this occasion-Resolves to place one of his own dependants in the deputy-government of Orissa-Gives notice to Moorshud Cooly Khan, brother-in-law of the late Nuwab, to quit that province-Moorshud Cooly refuses-Aly Verdy, in consequence, marches towards Orissa-Moorshud Cooly advances to Ballasore-An engagement takes place-Moorshud Cooly defeated -Retires on board a ship to Masulipatam-Aly Verdy proceeds to Cuttack-Settles the affairs of that province-Appoints his son-in-law, Sayid Ahmed, to the government-The new governor gives offence to the people, who rise and take him prisoner, and choose for their governor, Baukir Khan-Aly Verdy Khan again marches to Orissa-Defeats the rebels, and retakes his son-in-law-Appoints Monammed Mausoom deputy-governor of the province—Returns towards Bengal—The Mahrattas of Berar suddenly invade Bengal-Surround the Nuwab at Burdwan-The Nuwab effects his retreat to Cutwa-The Mahrattas, led on by Meer Hubbeeb, plunder Moorshudabad -The Nuwab returns to Moorshudabad-The Mahrattas get possession of all the countries on the west of the Bhagarutty river-The Erglish dig an entrenchment round Calcutta-The Nuwab's unexpected attacks, and defeats, the Mahrattas-Pursues them to Midnapore-Again defeats them, and drives them out of Orissa-Suffder Jung, governor of Oude ordered by the Emperor to assist Aly Verdy Khan-advances as far Patna-Aly Verdy, jealous of his power, declines his assistance, and requests him to return home-Bengal at once invaded by two Mahratta armies-Aly Verdy bribes those of Poona, to assist him in expelling the Berar troops-They return the following year.—The Nuwab enters into a treaty with them ,and invites Boskar Raow the general, to an inter view-Assassinates him and a number of the Berar officers -Hajy Ahmed quarrels with his hrother and retires to Patna -Mustapha Khan the Nuwab's general mutinies-Marches away without permission-Plunders Rajemahel and takes possession of Mongier—Advances towards Patna—Opposed by the deputy governor of Behar—Aly Verdy khan pursues the rebels—Engagement between the governor of Behar and the rebels-Mustapha khan wounded-Retires to Chunar-The Berar Mahrauas again invade Bengal-Aly Verdy Khan returns to Moorshudabad-Enters into a feigned negotiation with the Mahratta Chief-The Mahrattas retreat-The Nuwab dismisses the remainder of the Afghans from his service-Celebrates the marriages of his grandsons-Sends an army under Meer Jasser shan to expel the Afghans from Orissa—An army of Mahrattas again invade Orissa, and compel Jasser shan to retreat—The Nuvah sends a reinforce ment to him under the command of Atta Alla—These two Chiefs conspired to depose Aly Verdy khan-the plot discovered.—The two Chless compelled to quit the army.—The huwab defeats the Mahrana.—An insurrection by the Afghans in Behar-The insurgents murder the Nuwab s brother and son in law and plunder their property-Aly Verdy Khan marches against the rebels, although surrounded by the Mahrattas—The rehels unite with the Mahrattas—The Nunab engages their united forces-Gives them a total defeat-Advances to Patna, and appoints his grandson Serajo ad Dowlah governor Raja Janky Ram deputy governor of Bebar and Sayld Abmed Foujedar of Lurneah—Returns to Moorshudahad-The Mahrattas return in Berar hut leave a detachment in Cuttack-The Nuvab marches to Cuttack but not being able to overtake the Mabrattas returns to Midna pore-Seraje ad Dowlah rebels and attempts to seize Patna -Defeated and taken prisoner-Delivered up to the Numab who loraises him-Aly Verdy Khan returns to Moorshu dabad and for two years in valo pursues the Mahrattas-Addition and firsts years in vain purious uncommunity.

A₀-test to yield to them the province of Cuttack and to pay them twelve lacs of supers per annum as the Choute of Ben₀.1—The 'wash encourages the improvement of the country—llis two soon Nunsib Mohammed and Sayid Ahmed de—The 'wash taken Bl—Dies—Ilis character

Aly Verdy Khan was sensible that if he had marched his troops into the city of Moorshudabad, immediately after the victory, it would have been impossible to have restrained them from plundering the effects and treasure of Serferaz Khan. He therefore halted, that and the following day, on the field of battle, but on the morning of the third day, being about the 15th of Suffer 1153, proceeded in great state towards the city, and upon his enterning A, D. 1740 it, instead of going to the palace, he went to the residence of Zynet al Nissa, the daughter of Moorshud Cooly, and mother of Serferaz Khan, and having, at the gate. alighted from his elephant, he made a profound obeisance. and sent, by one of the eunuchs, a most respectful message to the Begum, to solicit her forgiveness The message is said to have been couched in the following terms

"That which was predetermined in the book of fate has"come to pass, and the ingratitude of your worthless servant
"is now recorded on the unfading page of history, but he "swears, that as long as life shall last, he will never more
"swerve from the path of respect, or the duties of submission
"He hopes that the vileness of his misdeeds shall, in time,
"be effaced from your forgiving mind, and that you will "condescend to accept, in extenuation of his crimes, this'
"demonstrations of perfect obedience to your commands,
"and tokens of his most dutiful attachment"

During the time he was delivering this message, he seemed greatly affected, but as no answer was returned, he again mounted his elephant, and proceeded to the Chehel Setoon, a palace built by Shujaa Addeen Khan for public ceremonies, which was surrounded by a colonade of forty pillars, and immediately upon entering the hall of audience, he took possession of the musnud of state, and received the offerings and congratulations of all the persons event was proclaimed to the city by a royal artillery and by the sounds of martial music

Having taken possession of the treasure nate Serferaz Khan, which had accumulated amount by the savings of his father and Verdy Khan sont a crore of rupees in so amount of seventy lacs in lewels plate silks offermen to the emperor Mohammed Shah and the former in return for this proof and loyalty shortly after confirmed him in of the three pro taces, and conferred on commander of 7 000 horse with the ac-Shulaa al Moolk, and Hissam ad Dowlah were also conferred on his three sons in eldest. Nuzzish Mohammed that of Shel Savid Ahmed the second, that of Sowjut Ju-Addeen, the youngest that of Shokut June son, Mirza Mahmoud son of Lyn Addeed adopted as his heir he procured the title of Shah Cooly khan Behadur and for the of the latter the title of Akrem ad Dowlah. titles should be supported with proper dig conferred on Nua-lah Mohammed the gove to which he annexed the districts of Silhe Chitasong with permission to perform the He construct Zyn Addeen in the government to Sayed Ahmed he promised the government

These titles are all synonymous, means read it is requisite these titles should be the Oriental scholar soon as it could be secured. To his other relations and dependants he gave verious employments, and bestowed on them large sums of money, from the treasures of his predecessor.

The wives and two sons of Serferaz Khan were sent to Dacca, and a handsome allowance assigned for their support; but the numerous concubines of the deceased were permitted to provide for themselves. Nuffeesa Begum, the sister of the deceased condescended to take on herself the office of superintendent of Nuazish Mohammed's seraglio, provided she was allowed to adopt for her hen a posthumous son of her brother, named Aka Baba. Her excuse for thus demeaning herself was, that she might thereby be of service to her brother's family, and so scrupulous was she in her conduct, that she was never seen by Nuazish, who used to converse with her on business through a curtain

After these arrangements, and when Aly Verdy Khan considered himself firmly fixed in his A, D 1741, government, he was alarmed by intelligence, that Mohammed Shah, dissatisfied with the sum that had been remitted to Dehly as the amount of Serferaz Khan's estate, had despatched an officer, named Mureed Khan, not only to demand the whole of the treasures, but the amount of two years' revenues which were due, but being ever fertile in expedients, he immediately wrote to that officer, not to take the trouble of coming so far as Bengal, as he would do himseif the honour of meeting him at Rajemahel, and deliver to him the residue of the late governor's property. The letter, besides, is supposed to have contained a draft for a large sum of money of his banker at Patna, for Mureed Khan's private use, and had the desired effect of inducing him to halt there for some weeks.

Aly Verdy Khan took with him some lacs of rupees, in specie, seventy lacs to jewels, much gold and silver furniture a quantity of precious stuffs and a number of elephants and horses, proceeded with considerable expedition to Rajemahel where he delivered the above articles to Murreed Khan and having made that officer some valuable prescots, prevailed upoo him to give a receipt for the effects, and return to Dehly without coming to any settlement with regard to the arrears of rescone

The oext object of the Nuwab 3 solicitude was to dispossess Moorshud Cooly Khan, the son io law of Shnjaa Addeen Khan of the government of Orissa. It has been before stated that when Serferax Khan collected his army, to oppose Aly Verdy Khan the troops Orissa had joined him under the command of Meer Hubbeeh who had given such a specimen of his abilities at Dacca but that these troops had not taken any part io the hattle of Gheria and on the death of Serferaz Khar had retired precipitately to Orissa.

Shortly after that event Moorshud Cooly sensible of his laability to oppose Aly Verdy hhan scot ao covey to him to discover what were his intentions and to endeavour to negotiate a treaty of amity with him but the Nuwah enter taining suspicions of his slocenty desired the covey to inform his master that he had no animosity against him and that it was far from his locilisation to injure him but that his re make in in the government of Orissa was impossible he therefore requested that he would retire from that provioce with all his property and family, but whatever route he chose and that he should meet with oo molectation

The governor of Orissa, heing an unamhitious character, would willingly have accepted has offer but his wife Door danch Begum and his counters rejected it with disdalo, and compelled Moorshud Cooly to send a letter of defiance to his adversary

The challenge was immediately accepted, and Aly Verdy Khan, having selected from his army 12,000 of the most efficient troops, left his brother, the Hajy, in charge of the government, and proceeded towards Orissa

On intelligence of his approach,* Moorshud Cooly Khan having summoned his friends to a consultation, laid his sabre before them, and after inveighing against the usurpation and treachery of Aly Verdy Khan, declared his intentions of opposing him, should they be firm in their support and attachment, but otherwise, to retire to some place of security with his family. The assembly unanimously assured him of their fidelity, and readiness to engage in war, and the chiefs of the army, at his request, regirt the sabre round his waist. After this, having sent his family and treasure to the fort of Barabutty,† he moved from Cuttak, and advancing beyond Balasore, encamped in a strong situation, surrounded by thick woods and a river, fortifying his camp with nearly three hundred pieces of cannon

^{*} Jonathan Scott, Esq., author of the History of the Dekkan, having compiled the Life of 'Aly Yerdy Khan from the same materials as are in my possession, I have taken the liberty of using his narrative for a great part of the remainder of this Chapter, retaining the original names, instead of the titles, the number and frequent change of which are very perplexing in Oriental history. The life of Aly Verdy Khan, as detailed in the Sier al Mutakhereen, would alone make a considerable-sized volume

[†] This fort was taken by the British troops, on the 14th of October, 1803. See Annual Asiatic Register, 1803.

Aly Verdy Khan speedlly arrived on the bank of the river within a few mile-nof the enemy, and haited long heing meanable of dislodging him from his secure position. In this situation his camp was but ill supplied with provisions. the zemindars being attached to Moorshud Cooly khan, and cutting off the Nuwah s convoys, troops so that his troops soon began to murmur Meerza Baukir Khan, learning the dissatisfaction of the Nuwabs army imprudently moved from his camp, contrary to the remonstrances of Moorshud Cooly hhan, and offered hattle, which was gladiy accepted by Aly Verdy hhan The engagement was long and bloody but finally decided in favour of the latter Moorshud Cooly Khan his son in law and chief dependants, made good their retreat to Balasore from whence they embarked on board ships and arrived safely at Masulipatam on the coast of Coroman del where they were generously received by the Foujedar Anger ad Dien hhan. The Raja of Rettenpore on the borders of Orissa, hearing of their flight, with a magnanimous humanity detached a force to Cuttack and brought off their families and treasure in safety to his residence where he delivered them to Bankir Ahan, who was sent to receive them

Aly Verdy Khan after his victory marched to Cuttack and having arranged the affairs of the province entrusted the government to his nephew Sayld Ahmed the second son of Hajy Ahmed. He then returned to MoorshuJabad and employed himself in regulating the concerns of Bengal in which he consulted the ease and satisfaction of the public.

A Sayli Ahmed in his government of Cuunch, did not act with that prudence becoming his situation. He vexed the alherents of Moorshud Cooly Khan, who had remained in the province under promise of not belog molested in their estates by fines and extortion, on pretence that they had secreted money belonging to their late Chief, and, being much addicted to pleasure, was guilty of excesses in procuring women for his haram from the inhabitants. To these oppressions he added an impolitic neglect of the troops stationed with him by his uncle, ip lessning their pay to garrison allowance, which gave great disgust, so that numbers left his service Their places he filled with natives of Cuttack, who, for the satisfaction of living at home, accepted a trifling salary. These men were secretly attached to the late governor, whose son-in-law now resided on the borders of the province, in hopes of opportunity offering to renew his attempts The conduct of Sayid Ahmed becoming daily more oppressive to the people, they at length invited Moorshud Cooly Khan to return, but he was too fond of his present retirement to hazard his person, and rejected their offers They then had recourse to Baukir Khan, who gladly accepted their promises of support, and measures were so secretly contrived, that the governor was suddenly taken prisoner in his palace in a general insurrection of the people. and delivered to Baukir Khan, who assumed the government of Cuttack.

Aly Verdy Khan, on intelligence of this event, lost no time in preparing to remedy the disaster. His brother Haiv. and the mother of Sayıd Ahmed apprehensive for the safety of their son would have prevailed upon him to give up Orissa. to Baukir Khan, on promise of allegiance, and attributed the success of the latter to aids he had received from Nizam al Moolk, whom it would be impolitic to displease, as it might bring upon him the force of the Dekkan, and the loss of Bengal, but he paid no attention to their advice. In a short time his forces were ready, and having left his son-in-law.

Nuazisb in the command of Moorsbudahad be hegan his march at the head of twenty thousand horse and foot. As an encouragement to bis chleis, be had ordered them to make considerable additions to their corps and promised a reward of a lac of rupees to the person who should recover Sayid Ahmed from captivity and if be should be the commander of a corps, to give two mooths pay additional to each man.

Baukir khan, on the approach of the Nuwab entreoched bimself on the banks of the Muhanuddee, but having little hope of success against so powerful an enemy sent off his baggage and family to the Dekkan. Resolved that Savid Ahmed should not survive his deleat, be placed him in a covered rull under the charge of two Moghuls, who had orders to kill him should the troops of the Nuwab pursue and come up with them To make his death the surer he privately ordered the escort of horse who guarded the carriage on the approach of an enemy to throst their spears into it, and destory both the victim and the executioners. The Nuwab attacked the entrenchments of Baukir Khan, who was deserted in an instant by his troops too much intimidated to make resistance; and the victors pursued so closely that they speedily overlook the escort of Sayld Abmed when numerous spears were thrust luto the carriage and one of the Mogbuls was killed, but Sayld Ahmed escaped unburt, by the wounded man falliog upon him. The other Mogbul was slightly wounded and made his escape while the pursuers were releasing their recovered prince. Aly Verdy khan, having returned thanks for bis easy victory, and the safety of his nephew from such immioent danger sent bim with a considerable force for his protection, to his parents at [.] A cartisge drawn by ozen.

Moorshudabad, not thinking it prudent to entrust him again with the government of Cuttack The women and family of Sayid Ahmed, who had been detained prisoners in a fortress, were released, on news of the victory, by the garrison, and escorted safely to him The Nuwab, having regulated the affairs of the recovered province, gave charge of it to an officer of experience, named Mohammed Masoom Khan; and apprehending great danger near, very impolitically and unjustly disbanded his new levies, and permitted most of the troops to retire to their homes, while he, with only his principal chiefs and about five thousand horse, marched slowly towards his capital, enjoying the amusement of hunting on the way but this calm was suddenly overcast by storms, which threatened his destruction, and the desolation of the provinces

Aly Verdy Khan was encamped near Midnapore, when intelligence arrived that Boskar Pundit The Mahrattas had been detached by Ragojee Bhoselah, A D. 1741-2. the Mahratta Chief of Berar, at the head of forty thousand horse, to demand the choute of Bengal, and was rapidly advancing towards him,* but the Nuwab, not expecting that they would enter by Orissa, was little alarmed at the report as he had received advice of their intention to pass through Behar and had intended on his return to the capital, to take measures to resist them, for which he fancied he should have ample time, before they could reach that province. In this, however he was mistaken as an express suddenly arrived that the enemy was within twenty coss of his camp. The Nuwab upon this hastened his march to Burdwan, a considerable town intending to place in it his heavy baggage, and cogage the Mahrattas. Shortly after his arrival, they appeared and laid waste the environs of the camp with fire and sword. Some skirmishes took place with little loss on either side, the enemy whose object was plunder only not choosing to risk a geoeral action Some days passed to this manner, when Boskar Raow proposed evacuating the country for a contribution of ten lacs of rupees hut this was refused and Aly Verdy Khan resolved to push his way to Moorshudabad where he could recruit his scattered force. He issued orders for the greatest part of the heavy baggage and camp followers to remain at Burdwan hut in vain, as they were too much alarmed to trust themselves in the town; but the consequence of their disobedience was nearly fatal. On the first day a march, the Mahrattas surrounded the line and Aly Verdy Aban unable to defend the numerous crowd of useless attendants, and market people of his army now reduced to less than five thousand fighting men, had the mortification of fosiog the chief part of his baggage artillery and tents. When a halted for the night, only a small tent could be procured for his reception. He now despatched a messenger with officers to pay the ten lics of rupees to the Mahrattan ; but Boskar Raow refused and demanded a crore . with all the elephants belonging to the · Upwards of a million sterling

^{*} It does not appear what was the object of the Berar Mahrattas, whether to conquer Bengal, to plunder it, or to establish the choute or claim for the fourth part of the revenues, as, owing to weakness of the Moghul government, they had done in several other provinces. Aly Verdy Khan suspected they had been instigated by the Nizam, who, a short time previous, had established his independent authority at Hyderabad, and was supposed to be jealous of the rising power of the governor of Bengal. For the origin of the Berar Mahrattas, see Lord Wellesley's Mahratta War.

Nuwab. Aly Verdy refused such a grading concessions; and the next day proceeded on his marzh, which was harrassed as usual, and what uttle baggage remained, fell a prey to the enemy, who however, could make no impression on the main body and were often repulsed from the charge. For three days a running fight was kept up, during which the greatest distress for provisions and shelter from heavy rain was experienced by the troops of Ali Verdy Khan. On the fourth he reached Cutwa which the Mahrattas had laid waste, and had destroyed large magazines of grain by fire, but enough remained, though in a parched state, to be an acceptable supply to an army almost perishing with hunger. Here the Nuwab encamped, on the bank of the river Bhagarutty, secured by his position from further insult of the enemy, and having written to his capital of the situation he was in, Nuazish Mohammed joined him expeditiously with a considerable reinforcement, and plentiful supplies of provisions from the opposite bank of the river, which was yet unmolested by the enemy

Boskar Pundit, the Mahratta general, from the fear of passing the rains in the country of an enemy, who had so gallantly opposed him, would have now retreated to Berar, but Meer Hubbeeb, who during the first invasion of Orissa have abandoned his former master, and taken employment with Aly Verdy Khan, and who, having been taken prisoner, had accepted the service of the Mahrattas, advised him to remain, offering to provide subsistence for his army, and to guide a detachment to Moorshudabad, which might easily be plundered it being unfortified, Boskar relished his proposal,

April, 1742 and entrusted him with the command of some thousand horse. The Nuwab, having intelligence of this design, left Cutwa, and hastened to the capital, where he arrived one day after Meer Hubbeeb, who had already plundered tint suburhs especially the bank of Juggnt Seat, to the amount of the three lacs of rupees. On the arrival of Aly Verdy Khan he retreated and prevalled on Boskar to encamp at Cutwa for the rainy season and the Annah satisfied with having preserved the city from plunder deferred further operations till he could recruit his army and strengthen the capital by new works. The enemy while the fords permitted advanced two or three times to Palassy and Dacodpore not many miles distant from Moorshudabad plandering the villages till the swelling of the Bhagarutty confined them to the opposite shore. During the rains Boskar Pundit, by means of Meer Hubbeeb possessed himself of Hoogiy Injeice and all the districts of Burdwan and Midna pore as far as Balasore also Beerhhum Rajeshahy and Rajemahel so that, eccept Moorshudabad and its envirous nothing remained to the Nuwah west of the Gaoges hut the district to the east of that river still afforded him ample re sources. The inhabitants of the capital during the rainy season for the most part moved with their families and effects for the greater security across the Ganges. The families, treasures, and valuables of the Nuwab and his relations were sent over that river to Godagauree under the care of Nuazish Mohammed who returned to the capital after he had provided a place of safety for them

During the invasion of the Mahratas crowds of the in habitants of the country on the western side of the river crossed over to Cafeutta, and implored the protection of the English who, in consequence of the general alarm obtained permits on from Aly Verdy Ichan to dig an entrenchment round their terrisory. This work, had it been completed would have extended seven miles. In six mooths, three miles of it were finished when the inhabitants, finding that the Mahrattas did not approach Calcutta, desisted from the work; but the remains of it are still to be seen, and are called the Mahratta Ditch. The English at the same time obtained permission to build a brick wall round their factory at Cossimbazar, with bastions at the angles *

Alv Verdy Khan passed the rainy season in raising new levies, and encouraging his troops; to whom he distributed lacs of rupees, which he had promised them when surrounded by the Mahrattas The dry weather had not yet commenced, when he marched October, 1742 Moorshudabad, and crossed the Bhagarutty over a bridge of boats, without opposition from the enemy, who still continued in their camp at Cutwa, which was divided from the Nuwab's army by a deep rivulet, much swollen by the rains. Aly Verdy Khan, during the night, ordered a bridge of boats to be thrown across it which was done without being perceived by the enemy About midnight, Meer Jaffier Khan, Mustapha Khan, and other chiefs, at the head of a chosen body, began to cross. Half of this detachment had scarcely reached the opposite bank, when a boat in the middle of the bridge was loosened, and sunk by the weight of passengers, and the troops in the rear pressing on, numbers were pushed in and drowned before the accident was discovered. Six hundred men are said to have perished in this manner; but such was the ardour of the troops and spirited conduct of the Nuwab, that the accident was soon repaired, and by daylight the whole army had crossed, and prepared to attack the enemy Boskar Raw was so intimidated at this bold and unexpected measure, that he fled with the utmost precipitation, leaving great part of his baggage and tents behind him, but was so rapidly pursued as to inso a considerable number of men within four miles of Cutwa, where be tried to make a stand, but in vain his troops flying on the Nuwab's approach. He continued his retreat to the woods of Pacheet, and was followed by Aly Verdy Khan so closely that finding it im possible to gain the passes by this route be changed it, hy advice of Neer Hubbeeb and returned into the forests of Bishenpore by which be deceived his pursuers, and gained the npen country by way of Chunderkoona into Midnapore. Here he encamped, and detached a force against Cuttack, which was hut ill defended by troops, and the governor Massoom Khan, rashly marching out with his small force, was defeated and slain.

į,

^{*} Orme's Indostan.

Aly Verdy Khan having at last procurred intelligence of the change of the enemy s route marched back, and hastened to Burdwan. From thence he advanced to Midnapore where Boskar Raow gave bim battle, but was defeated with great slaughter and fled by way of Cuttack, to the borders of his own country. The Nuwab not thinking it necessary to pursue beyond his own territories now completely evacuated by the enemy entrusted the government of Cuttack to Abd-al Russool Khan, and returned triumphantly to his capital

Aly Verdy Khan, no the first invasion of the Mahrattas had applied to the emperor for assistance, and Suffder Jung Nuwah of Oude was ordered with bis troops into Bengal but had advanced no farther than Patna, the capital nf Behar when Boskar Raow was defeated. Aly Verdy Khan encouraged by victory now thought himself tully equal to the defence of his provinces and informing Sudder Jung that he had no further occasino for succours, requested him to quit Patna and return home, which he did though with some reflectance having intended, it is said, and Aly Verdy Khan been worsted by his enemy to have added Behar to his own government. During his stay at Patna, he had selected some pieces of artillery and elephants belonging to the deputy-governor, for his own use, without the consent of Aly Verdy Khan; and he, not relishing such acts of authority in an auxiliary, was much offended, so that a coolness took place between them, and had not Suffder Jung thought proper to retreat, in all probability an open rupture would have soon succeeded his refusal

The attempts of the Mahrattas on Bengal did not end with the defeat of Boskar Raow Ragojee A. D. 1743 Bhosela, enraged at the repulse of his general, immediately prepared a new army, at the head of which he entered Bengal At the same time, Ballajee Raow,* the principal of the Mahratta Chiefs of Poona, advanced with a considerable force, to receive payment of a draft of eleven† lacs of rupees, given by the emperor on Aly Verdy Khan, but professed declarations of affording his assistance to him against the Berar troops Ragojeer having entered the country by way of Beerbhoom, fixed his head quarters in the district of Burdwan, while Ballajee marched through Behar to the bank of Bhagarutty, not very far from the capital Aly Verdy Khan advanced to meet him, and an interview took place, at which it was agreed that both armies should act in conjunction against Ragojee. It is supposed the Nuwab paid a great sum for his alliance with this Mahratta general, whose coming to Bengal is variously ^{*} Ballajee and Ragojee at this time were at enmity, as rivals for the Peshwaship, or ministry of the Mahratta states.

[†] One hundred and ten thousand pounds.

accounted for Some attribute it to the emperor a orders in consequence of the request of Aly Verdy khan others, to the royal anger at his usurpation of the government but it is more probable that Ballajee was allured by the prospect of obtaining a considerable plunder in Bengal and gratilying his enmity against the Berar Chief, than that he showed any regard to Mohammad Shah's approbation or dislike of the conduct of Alv Verdy hban. Both armies now marched to ernel Ragoree from Bordwan, and continued together for some days when Ballajee, not liking the slow movement of the Bengal troops, took upon himself the punishment of the Berar Chief and left the Nuwah Ragoree as his rival advanced fled to his own country and Aly Verdy Khan, having thus prudently cleared the provinces of his enemy returned to Moorshudabad, but though he did not in this campaign suffer loss in the field that of the revenue was great, as the unfortunate inhabitants of the defenceless villages were plundered without mercy by both the Mahratta armies ; nor were their calamities yet at an end from the invaders

Ragojee, the year following again sent Boskar Raow from Barar at the head of twenty thousand horse, to invade Bengal hut with orders to offer peace should the Nuvah submit to pay a heavy contribution as lie had done to Ballajee. Aly Verdy Khan on their approach moved with his army and encamped at Munkirra,

A, D 17(4 only ten miles from his capital, having it in contemplation to take advantage of the desire his enemy had for money to allure the principal Chlefs to an interview by promises of large sums, and to cut them oil hy ueachery, which if effected it would then he easy to vaniquish an army deprised of its caders. With such views

he despatched Mustapha Khan and Raja Janegee Ram to the Mahratta camp, with proposals of peace and an invitation to Boskar Raow to come to an interview, should 'theterms of friendship be accepted. Boskar Raow demanded heavy contributions, to which the agents readily consented, provided he would visit the Nuwab, who at the same time daily sent him friendly letters and valuable presents length, the Mahratta, blinded by avarice, consented, and a day was appointed. The Nuwab having communicated his intentions to his nephew Sayid Ahmed, Jaffier Khan, and Fakier Allah Beg, commanded them to select a confidential band of men, and drew them up within the screens round the tent of audence, with clers to rush upon Boskar and his attendants, upon a signal which he appointed, promising liberal rewards their obedience At length, the day fixed being arrived, Boskar Raow moved from Cutwa with the greatest part of his army; and on his arrival near the Nuwab's encampment, leaving his troops drawn up in order of battle, advanced with other principal chiefs and his attendants. The Bengal troops were drawn up to receive him. Near the tent of audience he dismounted, and entered the inclosure of screens with his companions, supported by Mustapha Khan and Raja Janegee Ram, who after, however, contrived to quit him. As the Mahratta Chief advanced, Aly Verdy Khan eagerly inquired, which was Boskar Raow, and on his being pointed out. cried out with a loud voice, "cut down the infidel!" In an instant, the appointed band rushed on their victims, and Boskar Raow, with nineteen officers of rank, were slaughtered. The Nuwab now mounted his elephant,* and putting * The following anecdote is related, of Aly Verdy himself at the head of his troops, furiously charged the Mahratta line which not expecting an attack, and deprived of their generals, was immediately routed. Aly Verdy khan pursued the en by to Cutwa, their standing camp which had been left under the command of Ragoo Gicowar who had uniformly refused to accompany Boskar to the fatal interview. Being informed of the fate of his general, he field with precipitation, and evacuated the provinces without attempting to revenue the massacre.

Khan's coolness. During the conflict in the tent, he was

Aly lerdy Ahan returned to Moorshudabad and having distributed ten lacs of rupees as a gratuity to the troops, conferred liberal rowards on those chefs who had assisted most it in the completion. This insidious and bloody victory Ifaly Ahmed about this time being offended at his hrother for refusing him the FUSTER by of Hoogly, (though he had a greater revenue than he could expend, and the office he desired was conferred on his own son Sayid Ahmed who had been without any consequential employment since his unfortunate administration at Cuttack.) retured in discuss to Patoa, where he devoted himself in his old age to sensual enjoyments.

The Nuwab now freed from foreign enemies was assiduously employed in the regulation of his provinces and forming plans for the repair of that desolation which the requested by his attendants to reure and mount his elephant but one of his slippers could not be found and he refused to go ull it was brought. A person said "is this a time to look for slippers? No replied he "but were I to go utilized them, it would hereafter he said—Aly Verdy hhim was in such a hurry to go away that he left his slippers behind him.

Mahrattas had spread through all the districts west of the river Ganges, but a storm soon arose within his own dominions, which was more threatening to his power than the armies of the Dekkan. He had, in order to attach his Chiefs to his interest during the war, been lavish of his favours, and more so of promises of future rewards to them, but which, now finding inconvenient to fulfil, he broke, thereby giving offence to many, but particularly to his principal general, Mustapha Khan

This Chief had been constantly the principal counsellor and agent of Aly Verdy Khan. To his fidelity and valour he in great measure owed his acquisition of the musnud of Bengal, and his success over the Mahratta invaders address he was indebted also for the decisive but treacherous blow given to his enemies, by the late assassination of Boskar Raow and his officers and it is said that for this last service he had promised him the government of Behar, which was held by his nephew and son-in-law, Zyn Addeen. The general was urgent for the performance of his promise, and made the demand in such a manner, as shewed he rather esteemed himself the partner in authority, than the servant of the Nuwab He interfered also by his recommendations of persons to office, with the plans of the Nuwab, who granted many favours to his importunity; but every compliance was instantly succeeded by new requests, so that the Nuwab was in danger of becoming a tool in the hands of his general, a situation which his high spirit could not brook To such a pitch had Mustapha Khan carried his influence, that the zemindars of Bengal, when pushed for payment of the revenue by the collectors, or when they had been guilty of any breach of the regulations, bribed him to screen them from the resentment of the Nuwab, who, to please the general often repealed his own orders, to the injury of his treasury and authority in an much that the civil officers of government became of little consequence in the eyes of the renters. Aly Verdy Khan bore with the evil till it was becoming dangernus but on the general's demanding the province of Beliar fearing, from his nwn conduct in a similar situation that Mustapha Khan would finally direct the force which that government would give him against his patron as he himself had done against the unfortunate Serferax Khan he positively refused. He however endeavoured but in valuby every other means to sausly him for his breach of promise Mustapha khan had resolved to establish himself in Behar and would not be satisfied with any thing less. It. is said that he had even views upon Bengal to accomplish which he would not have spared the life of his' maxler Jealousies now took place and each party became suspicious of the other s intentinns. knowing that assassination was an engine they each could make use of without remorse and which perhaps, both watched an opportunity to employ Appearances of regard were however kept up between the Numab and his general but the latter now always went well guarded in his visits to court. At length an accident brought affairs to a crisis which produced an open rupture

A D 1745. The Nuwah despatched before him two of his principal officers, to observe the state of the audience chamber and remark if there were any signs of treachery against him; a precaution he had used state the coolness had taken place. The officers, having made their obe sance to the prince sat down to wait the arrival of the beneral when just as it was announced a cuntch came from the interior apartments and informed the

Nuwab, that his Begum was sudden'y taken ill, and desired to see him the Nuwab rose up, and, retiring, desired that the officers would excuse him for a few minutes to their general At this instant, the tread of feet and uncommon rustling were heard in the passage to the haram, which the officers, ever suspicious of treachery, supposing to proceed from armed men concealed to assassinate their lord, and the Nuwab's deputure giving colour to their apprehensions, they rushed out and informed Mustapha Khan, who was now alighting in the court of their fears. The general, prepared for alarm by the consciousness of his own evil designs. remounted, and hastening precipitately to his cantonments. refused to return, though the Nuwab, who had almost instantaneously came back to the chamber of audience, despatched after him his nephew, Nuazish Mohammed, to inform him that he was waiting to receive him, and anxious to inquire the cause of his sudden departure, with solemn assurances that no treachery had been intended. On the return of his nephew, Aly Verdy Khan would have gone in person to persuade him of his sincerity, but the entreaties of his family, who were alarmed for his safety, prevailed upon him to give up that hazardous design Every trial was made to calm the apprehensions of the general, but in vain, and he now openly declared his intentions of quitting the Nuwab's service, and demanded the arrears of pay due to himself and followers. Aly Verdy Khan gladly complied with his wishes and paid without delay seventeen lacs* of rupees, without examining his accounts, at the same time commanding him. as he was resolved to leave his service, to quit his dominions. Mustapha Khan, emboldened by the readiness with which the

One hundred and seventy thousand pounds.

Nuwah satisfied his demands, and regarding it as a proof of weakoess and fear, made proposals to the Afghan comman ders of corps to depose Aly Verdy Khan, and to divide his territories equally among them Shumsheer Khan, a con siderable Chief agreed to join him but the rest, as Serdar Khan Rahim khan, and others, declined saving that if Aly Verdy Khan had lojured him hy withbolding bis just demands they would readily have assisted him to enforcing redress but to mutlay for oo cause or to hehave ungratefully to their benefactor they esteemed base and dishonour able. The Nuwab took care to emprove this good disposition by present gratuities, and promises of favour to the loyal Chiefs and their followers but, not willing to hazard the safety of his capital by proceeding to extremities against the rebel was content to guard the city from insult and to wait patiently for his departure. At length \fustapha Khan, having used every art, but without effect, to corrupt the army marched from Moorshudabad with upwards of eight thousand horse and a great number of foot, with the intention of possession himself of Behar. The inhabitants of the city who during the quarrel had been under the greatest alarm for their persons and property received new life from his departure The Nuwab having liberally rewarded his troops for their fidelity partinularly Serdar Khan Rabim Khan and Shum heer khan who had been gained over from joining the rebel only prepared to pursue him. After a few days leavin the city to charge of his nephew Nuzzish, be began his marc 1 at the same time writing to Zyn Addeed governor of I as the capital of Behar not to hazard an engagement to the cli and If he thought that city not defensible, to cross the river and move down the opposite bank, till be could form a junction with his grand army

Mustapha Khan having plundered Rajemahel, and taken possession of some elephants and cannon stationed there, proceeded to Mongier, of which he gained possession with little loss, the fortress being in a ruinous state. He next advanced towards Patna, hoping to make an easy conquest of that city; but intelligence of his defection having reached Zyn Addeen, the son-in-law of the Nuwab, who was then engaged in some operations on the opposite bank of the Ganges, he returned expeditiously, and encamped near the' town, resolved, notwithstanding the contrary advice of his' uncle the Nuwab, to oppose the enemy, however superior in number. He despatched a messenger to Mustapha Khan, desiring to knew his intentions, declaring, that if they were to seize the city, he must produce the imperial orders to that effect, but if his design was only to pass through the province into Beneras or Oude, he was welcome to pursue his route any way but through the capital. The rebel insolently replied, "territory is for him who can conquer it-"there is no occasion for an imperial grant." He concluded by asking, "by what authority was his uncle supported" "in seizing Bengal, and murdering his sovereign, Serferaz "Khan?"

Zyn Addeen, not intimidated at the rebel's approach,' prepared to receive him, though his army did not consist off more than five or six thousand horse, great part of them raised in a hurry, and inexperienced. The enemy soon appeared, and attacked his camp, when Zyn Addeen was on the first onset deserted by all his troops, except a few hundred veterans who guarded his person. Mustapha Khan, was furiously charging this small body, when his elephant driver being killed by a musquet shot, the animal became unrully, and at the same time two of his principal officers were mortally wounded Unable to manage his elephant he alighted in order to m nnt a horse hut his troops on missing him from his hewdah * supposing him siain, were seized with a panic, and retreated in confusion towards their own camp Mustapha khan endeavoured to rally and convince them of their error but was also obliged to retire Zrn Addeen not thinking it prudent to pursue was contented with the repulse of the enemy and remained within his lines A distant cannonade and skumlsbing was kept up for seven days between the two armies but on the eighth, the rehelafter sending off his baggage and tents some miles to the westward of Patna, again attacked the lines of Zin Addeen who defended his post with gallantry and resolution. Mustapha Knan still unfortunate in the beatinning of the assaultwas wounded in the eye with an arrow which obliged him to retreat and having now intefligence of the near approach of Aly Ver ly Khan, he judged it best to give over his designs on Patna, and to march towards the frontier of Behar. He was pursued by the Nuwab and his nephew from place to pface but expecting soon to be joined by a body of Mahrattas, lo conjunction with whom he hoped to be more successful and not choosing to hazard an engagement with his own troops dispirited by their late repulses and the loss of their two principal Chiefs he passed loto the territories of the Numab of Oude and took refuse under the waits of Chunar whither Alr Verly Khan lexiful of embroiling himself with Sullder Jun, did not choose to pursue him but returned to Patna

Scarcely had he reached that city when he received intelligence that Ragojee Bhosela, encouraged by assurances of assistance from Mustapha Khan and eager to revenge

[.] A seat used on efephants.

the assassination of Boskar Raow and his officers, had marched towards Bengal with a large army and was rapidly advancing Aly Verdy Khan, leaving his son-in-law to defend Behar and watch the motions of the rebel, hastened to Moorshudabad, for the defence of that city, and prevent, if possible, a junction of the Mahrattas with Mustapha Khan At the same time he sent an ambassador to endeavour to divert Ragojee from his invasion; but that Chief, supposing Bengal to be in a state of disaffection and the offers of the Nuwab to proceed from fear, demanded the unreasonable sum of three crores of rupees as the price of his forbearance. The Nuwab, though resolved not to consent to terms so exorbitant and dishonourable, yet willing to gain time, in hopes that the rainy season, now near, would stop the Mahratta from action, and allow him effectually to punish Mustapha Khan, instructed his ambassador to amuse Ragojee with professions of compliance In consequence of this, nearly two months were wasted in negociation at, Burdwan, where the enemy encamped, and, at the expiration of that time, Aly Verdy Khan received intelligence of the defeat and death of Mustapha Khan, who had, with great additions to his former force, invaded Behar, thinking to find it an easy conquest, whilst the attention of Aly Verdy Khan was engaged by the Mahratta invasion, but the abilities and good fortune of Zyn Addeen prevailed against him *

The Nuwab, who had continued at his capital in order to convince Ragojee that he was sincere in his desire of peace, now ordered his ambassador to return, and sent him this vaunting message "those who seek peace from an enemy "are guided either by a sense of their nwn loss or inferiority "or hopes of advantage but, praised be God ! the heroes of "the true faith feel no dread of encountering infidels. Peaco therefore depends upon this when the linns of Islaum shall "so engage the manaters of fdolatry that they shall swim in the blood of each other and struggle till one party shall "overpowered her for quarter Ragolee replied "that, to "obtain this crisis he had already advanced nearly a thousand "miles from his own country, but the Nuwab had not yet "moved ane hundred to do him the honours of a meeting' Aly Verdy Khan rejoined that the rainy season being arrived "and Ragojee having suffered fatigue and inconvenience from "his long march it would be prudent for him to spend the "inclement months in some convenient spot that his troops "might refresh and prepare for engagement in the dry season "when he would respectfully wait upon him even to his own dominions. Ragojee accordingly encamped in Beerphoom and reduced the province of Cuttack, and most of Burdwan by his detachments.

^{*} They fought near Jugdispore Mustapha was killed by a musquet-ball, and his body having been quartered, was dung at the four gates of Patna.

In the beginning of the cool season of 1158 Aly Verdy Khan marched from his capital to offer battle to the enemy But Ragojee alarmed at his approach moved into Behar, in order to form a junction with the remales of Mustapha Khan a adherents who still continued to fofest the hilly part of that province under Mortuzza Khan son to the deceased Chief although too weak to venture into the open country alone. The Numb not being able to overtake the Mahrattas encamped at Bankipore a short distance west of Patna, for some time but on hearing that the enemy had crossed the Soane to join the Alghans, he proceeded to Mohib Aleepore on the banks of that river

Ragojee having effected his purpose of joining the rebels, advanced towards the Nuwab's army in great force, and several engagements took place, in all which the latter was victorious, particularly in one, when the Mahratta general was so completely surrounded, that he must have been taken prisoner, had not Shumsheer Khan and Serdar Khan, two of Aly Verdy Khan's Afghan officers, who were privately negociating a treaty with the enemy, purposely let him escape. This discovery of treachery alarmed the Nuwab, and he again offered terms to the Mahratta but Ragojee would not accept them, and seeing no advantage in opposing Aly Verdy Khan in the field, by advice of Meer Hubbeeb he proceeded rapidly towards Moorshudabad, in hopes of being able to plunder that city before the Nuwab could reach it with his army. Aly Verdy Khan, however, moved with such expedition, that he arrived only one day after the enemy, who had only time to ravage part of the suburbs, and on his approach, retreated across the river Bhagarutty The Nuwab followed Ragojee to Cutwa, near which he obliged him to engage, and defeated him with great slaughter, when the Mahrattas retreated towards Midnapore Here, having received intelligence of insurrection in his own country, Ragojee returned hastily to Berar with the bulk of his army, leaving Meer Hubbeeb and the Afghan Chiefs for the defence of Cuttack, upon which the Nuwab, giving up for the present the recovery of that province, returned to his capital, in order to refresh his troops, and to correct some misdoings which he had discovered among his principal officers of the capital entrusted the protection of the roads hetween it and Bogwangolah from whence the city was furnished with supplies from the districts eastwar i of the Ganges to those officers who either through neglect or design, allowed the marauders more than once to plunder the convoys. The Nuwab upon this removed them from that duty which he entrusted to his nophew, Sayid Ahmed who fulfilled it to his satisfaction, and intercepted letters from Ragojee to the former commanders, which proved their connivance Aly Verdy Khan had concealed his suspicions till the retreat of the Mahrattas, but, upon his returned to Moorshadahad he dismissed them with their followers. about six thousand men, from his service but allowed them to retire to their homes in the district of Durhunga, on the eastern side of the Gaoges, in the province of lichar In this season of temporary repose were celebrated the marriages of his grandson Seraje-ad Dowlah and

It has been already mentioned, that Serdar Khan and Shumsheer Khan, during the campaign, had suffered Ragojee to escape, when they might have made him prisoner The Nuwab had also, while the Mahrattas were in the neighbourhood.

A. D 1746. Altern ad Dowlah sons of / yn Addeen Ahmed the latter of whom had been adopted by Nuazish Mohammed who had no chifdren. Upward of two thousand rich dresses were distributed on this occasion among the attendants at court and, during a whole month the populace were feasted at the expense of the Nuwab. The magnificence of these nupuals the brilliant iffumfinations splendld pageants, and grand processions of the hridegrooms, are saill apoken of with admiration by the inhabitants of Bengal.

Aly Verdy Khan basing now resolved to attempt the expulsion of the Mahrattas and Afghans, from Cuttack, appointed Meer Jaffier Khan* in the command of a considerable

The same person who, after the decease of Aly Verdy Ahan, by the ann tance of the English sequired the musual of licegal. He was married to a half sister of Aly Verdy Khan detachment for that service, giving him, by way of encouragement the Foujedaries of Injelee and Midnapore, in addition to the office of paymaster-general. Meer Jaffier, on his arrival at Midnapore, defeated a A D 1747 small body of the enemy, when, being much addicted to luxury and indolence, he did not pursue his advantag, but put his troops into cantonments, though the Nuwab had ordered him to proceed to Cuttack without delay, before the enemy could be reinforced from Berar, the Chief's son of which, Janojee, was preparing for a fresh anvasion. At length the expected Mahratta army entered Cuttack; and Meer Jiffier, not choosing to hazard the defence of Midnapore, retreated towards Burdwan, when the advanced party of the enemy, observing his pusillanimity, hung upon his rear, and plundered his baggage of several elephants. Aly Verdy Khan, upon this, despatched Attah Allah Khan with a reinforcement, to supersede him in the command, and moved also himself from the capital with his army, to support him, if necessary Attah Allah engaged the enemy Burdwan, and defeated them, but having secret designs on the government himself, the accession to which he had been foretold by a fanatic officer in his service who pretended to the gift of prophecy, he thought the present a proper occasion to assume independence. For this purpose, he endeavoured to corrupt Meer Jaffier by a promise of the government of Behar, if he would assist in deposing the Nuwab Meer Jaffier at first listened to the proposal, but, at the remonstrances of his friends on the danger of the attempt, withdrew his con-Intelligence of this treacherous combination, however, having reached Aly Verdy Khan, he determined to lessen their influence, and, on his arrival at Burdwan, reprimanded Meer Jaffier severely for his conduct in Midnapore upon which that Chief refrained from his usual attendance at the durlar Attah Allah hhan prond of his late victory, and not suspecting that his evil designs were known to the Nuwab, demanded the command of a thousand horse for Meer Alv Assis the Isoatic officer who had prophesied his exaltation and had greatly distinguished himself in the action but this the Nuwab refused and Attah Allah being disgusted threatened to leave the army. Aly Verdy Khan was not to be moved and he accordingly retired with his followers to Moorshudabad. The Nuwab would now have overlooked the faults of Meer Jaffler and on the death of a relation, condescendingly went to pay him a visit of condolence as a mark of returning favour but that Chief supposing this honour to proceed from a dread of his influence insolently aeglected the complimentary advance from his tent to meet him on which the Nuwab in great wrath laid aside his intentions after he had cone half was and returned to his camp. He now ordered him to give in the accounts of his office and to send Shuran Shine his deputy with them to the durbar Meer Jaffier refused . upon which the Nuwab temoved him from all his employments and offered service to his followers to other crops, which they readily embraced. The general finding himself deserted would have made concessions, but the Nuwah ordered him to leave the army and retire to the capital

Aly Verdy hhan notwithstanding this dissension and the

A. D. 1748. loss of two of his generals, kept the field, and defeated the Mahrattas in several configuration. Janojee attempted like his father, to plunder the capital hut the Nurab followed him with such rapidity, that he had not time to execute his designs and on the Approach of the rains retured to Midnapore were he extitoned and Aly Verdy Khan marched to Moorshudabad, not choosing to pursue him farther till the dry season. Meer Aly Asgir, the prophesying fanatic, was now obliged by the Nuwab to quit the provinces, though Nuazish Mohammed used every entreaty with his uncle to allow him to remain in the city with Attah Allah Khan, whom the Nuwab yet permitted to reside there

The rains had scarcely subsided, when the Nuwab prepared to march against the Mahrattas, and was encamped at Amaunee Gunge, not far from the capital, when he received sudden intelligence of an insurrection in Behar, the assassination of his nephew Zyn Addeen, and the captivity and disgraceful death of his brother Hajy Ahmed It has been already remarked, that the Nuwab had discharged from his service the Afghan Chiefs, Shumsheer Khan and Serdar Khan, with their followers. These generals had resided since that time in their jagies in Durbunga, but the existence of such a body of armed men, tree from any control of the governor of the province, could not long continue without endangering its safety Zyn Addeen, according to some reports, dreading their rebellion, or, to others, by attaching the Afghans to his interests, meaning to insure his succession to his uncle, or to assume independence on his authority, had, during the rains, represented to him by his agent, that the discharged Chiefs were sorry for their past conduct, and desirous of being readmitted to his service he therefore requested that he might be allowed to entertain them, as the only mode of preventing a commotion, to which they would have recourse, should their petition be rejected. The Nuwab, with some reluctance, consented, * and Zyn Addeen

^{*} Mr. Orme says, it was a plot of Aly Verdy Khan's to

made proposals to the two Chiefs which they received with seeming sails action. The terms of serice being adjusted in the end of the month Zilhlie 1161 thes marched from Durbunes to the lank of the Ganges onto it lates and the evern r to assure them of his confid a and sincerity condescented to visit them with a few att industs. He was rec is d with proper re pert, and a day was fixed for their crossing the river with their followers line governor returned to his palace satisfied of thir fidelity and issued orders for the provision of boats for their e insejance. On the day appointed the Alghans crossed the Ganges, and encamted near the city when Zyn Adlicen again visited Seedar Khan . The two next days were chosen for the generals to pay their respects to him separately at the palace and the governor in order to obviate any fears they might have of treachery commanded that only his domestic servants should attend him even to the exclusion of his usual bodyguards. Serdar Khan came the first day, and having received the customary tokens of esteem returned to his camp. The following morning the givernor repaired to his half of audience, to receive the

D c. 1748. promised visit of Shumsheer khan and as on the day before would not permit any guards to attend allowing only a few officers of his household to be present-hitt came nextly a thou and of the Albian infantry, with matchlocks and matches lighted who after saluting arranged themselves in the square of the palace. A Chief named destroy all the Afghan Chiefs by gunpowder See Vol II., page 40.

It is said this Chief was not a partner in the treason as far as respected the assassination.

Morad Sheer Khan, next entered, with a crowd of officers, who filled the hall, and eagerly pressed to present their offerings, this being done, Zyn Addeen inquired for Shumshee: Kian, and was told he was not far off Morad Sheer K can now ordered his companions to take leave, and make room 'or others They rose, and according to custom. received a betle* from the governor, who was earnest in distribution to, when one of the Afghnas, suddenly drawing a dagger, amed a stroke at him, but without effect. One of the Nuwab's attendants immediately cried out "treachery!" but Zyn \ideen had only time to draw his sabre, when-Morad Sheer Khan cut him down, and he fell dead on the pillow of his mushud Several of his attendants were slain: and the palace being filled with the traitors, also the streets. of the city by the soldiers of Shumsheer Khan, no resistance could be made by the dependants of the governor The Afghans committed great excesses in the town, the inhabitants of which had no remedy but to submit to their authority Shumsheer Khan ordered Hajy Ahmed to brought before him, and demanded an account of his treasure, but declining a discovery, he was tortured in various modes for seventeen days, till at length he expired; not unjustly punished for his treachery, and share in the murder of the unfortunate Serferaz Khan About seventy lacs of rupees were found buried in his house, besides jewels and other valuables to a great amount The effects of Zyn Addeen were seized, and his Begum Ameena, the daughter of Aly Verdy Khan, with his other women, forcibly carried.

^{*} It is a composition of various ingredients folded in an aromatic leaf, and is constantly chewed by the natives of Hindoostan It is properly called paun.

to the camp of Shumsheer Khan who leaving the city under charge of his deputy fixed his headquarters at a little distance and engaged in raising new levies with the plunder he had acquired intending to Invade Bengal. The wealthy inhabitants of Patna were obliged to pay large sums, to save their houses from heing plundered and a heavy contribution was exacted from the people at large by the rehels

Aly Verdy Khan though inwardly affected at the death of his brother and nephew the disgraceful captivity of his daughter and the loss of Behan threatened also with that of Bengal by the invasion of the Mahrattas at this alarming crisis did not lose his intrepldity of mind hut sustained the storms of calamity with manly resolution and prepared to combat the attacks of misfortune. He convened his principal officers, some of whom he had reason to suppose connected with the rehels, heing of the same tribes and desired their advice for his conduct in the present unhappy juncture of his affairs. They unanimously declared that they would loyally ohey his commands. He replied, that his heloyed brother and nephew being slain and their families plunged in disgraceful captivity he found life under such misfortunes unrovenged intolerable therefore knew no remedy but to punish the rebels or die in the attempt. If therefore any wished to follow him to this extremity he would spare nothing to reward them , but neither would be detain those who might choose to quit his service having already received more obligations from them than he could re pay and as he had resolved to seek death rather than lead a dishonourable I fe but fe / followers were necessary to enable him to obtain the former. The Chiefs one and all exclaimed that they "oaed him aviolable gratitude for his long experienced "bounty towards them and had no views but to sacrufice

"their lives, if necessary, in his service," to perform which, they bound themselves by oath on the Koran Aly Verdy Khan now convinced of their fidelity, paid up their, arrears and prepared to march against the rebels. The Mahrattas by this time had advanced from Burdwan, and began to lay waste the country within a short distance of the capital, but the Nuwab, knowing that to follow these marauders, who always avoided coming to action, would be in vain, and would give time to the rebels in Behar to gather strength, was not to be diverted from his purpose He stationed Sayid Ahmed at Bogwangolah, to preserve the communication for supplies open between the Ganges and the city, the defence of which he entrusted to Nuazish Mohammed and Attah Allah Khan, with a body of five thousand horse proclamation was also issued, that he found it necessary to march against the rebels, though the Mahrattas were in the environs of the city, and recommending, to such as chose it, to retire with their families to places of greater security, previous to his departure Most of the inhabitants who could procure conveyance accordingly moved, with their families and effects, across the Ganges, so that scarely any but the soldiery and poor remained Having finished his preparations, he moved from Amaunee Gunge, with an army of twenty thousand horse, and as many foot In order to secure provisions, he had collected a large fleet of boats, amply laden, to accompany his march up the banks of the Ganges Meer Jaffier on this occasion was again taken into favour, restored to command, and to the office of paymaster-general

Aly Verdy Khan reached Mongier without opposition, except in a trifling skirmish with some of March, 1749

Mahrattas at Bhaugulpore, who had marched to join the rebels Here a messenger was intercepted with leners from Attah Allah Khane to the insurgents, inwhich he encouraged them to stand and offered to embrace their cause at a convenient opportunity. The Nuwah wasjoined at Mongier by a few of the Behar zemindars, and dependants of the late Zyn Addeen, who informed him that the rebels had left Paina, and were encamped at Bar. In number about fifty thousand horse and foot, expecting to be joined by the Vahrattas.

Janojee and Meer Hubbeeb having reached the vicinity of the rebels camp invited them to a conference at which they embraced the service of the Mabratta Chief and Shumsbeer Khan was invested by him with the khelaut of the Soubahdary of Behar The next day Meer Hobbeeb visited Shumsheer khan who after his audience left him to repose but privately directed the goard over the tents, when he should prepare to return to bis own camp to detain him, as a security for the payment of the expenses he had incurred in levying an army for the service of Mahrattas, at whose instigation be pretended be had assassinated Zyn Addeen. This scheme by some means coming to the knowledge of an attendant of Meer Hubbeeb he directed some of the borsemen who had accompanied him, to leave the camp, but to return suddenly as if pursued by an enemy and spread an alarm that the Nuvabs army was in sight, in hopes that by this stratagem be might save his master from the intended treathery. The horsemen spread the alarm as directed and much confusion occurred in the rebels camp but notwibstanding the representations of Meer Hubbeeb,

His daughter had been betrothed to Seraje ad Dowlah, but died a few days before the marriage was to have takenyplace.

that the present was no time for settling accounts, he was not allowed to depart till he had paid a considerable sum, and given the security of merchants for a much greater This dispute proved highly favourable to Aly Verdy Khan, by preventing the Mahrattas from acting in conjunction with the rebels, as the former now resolved to watch only an opportunity for plundering either army. The following day the Nuwab offered battle to the enemy, and, by his usual good fortune, Serdar Khan was killed by a matchlock ball in the beginning of the action, which involved one-half of the rebles confusion, and spread alarm through the troops of Shumsheer Khan At this juncture, the Marhattas appeared in the rear, hoping to effect the plunder of the Nnwab's camp; while he was engaged. Upon Seraje-ad-Dowlah's representing that it was proper to detach a body to oppose them, he replied, "that he would first to defeat his enemy in front," and then with ease disperse the Mahrattas." Having said this, he charged the rebels with great fury, and they fled panicsrtuck before him Shumsheer Khan, being deserted by his troops, was attracked on his elephant by an officer named Hubbeeb Beg, who slew him, and cutting off his head, brought! it to the Nuwab The Mahrattas, seeing the defeat of the rebels, withdrew from the field without striking a blow, and the Nuwab quietly took possession of the Afghan camp, which they had left standing, with all their tents and baggage. Here the Nuwab tound his daughter, the Begum of Zyn Addeen, and the rest of his family, who had been made prisoners at Patna Having offered up thanks for this, on his side, almost bloodless victory, and the happy retrieval of his insulted honour, he proceeded to Patna, where he distributed large sums to the religious and poor, in gratitude to God for his success, and took measures for repairing the losses of government in the late rebellion Having sent for the womeo and children of the principal insurgents from Durbunga on their arrival he lodged them in his own haram treating them with humanity and kindness, and after a short time set them at liberty. At this time also he permitted the women and family of Meer Hubbeb who had been confined since his joining the Mahrattas to return to him, and furnished them with money conveyances and an escort for their protection to the enemy's camp liqving r settled the government of Behar he appointed his grandson Seraje ad Dowlab governor of that prosince but nominat d Rija Janky Rim to be bis deputy and to perform the duty he also appointed his second son in law Sayid Ahmed Foujedar of Purneab he then returned triumphanily to Moorshudabad but previously to entering the city obliged Attah Allah khane to quit it and as soon as possible his dominions permitting him however to remove with all his effects and nearly seventy lacs of supers which he had acquired in his service though he had repeated proofs of his having conspired against his life and government. Attab Allah Khan retired into the province of Oude and was soon afterwards slato in an action in the service of Suffder Jung against the latans of Ferekhabad Janojee the Mahratta Chief after the defeat of Shumsheer Khan, not thinking himself equal to Aly Verdy khan in the field retired with his nrmy to Midnapore and soon after on receiving intelligence of the death of his mother matched to daspore leaving Meer Hubbeeh with a detach ment lie the defence of Custack

The Nustab at the conclusion of the rains of 1162 moved again from his capital in order to drive the Mahrattas from assuming independence.

He was married to a daughter of Hajy thmed.

Cuttack, and, on his approach, they quitted the city. He followed them from place to place, during the dry season, without being able to bring them to action, and on his return to Moorshudabad, the enemy again obtained possession of that province Bengal was this year free from their depredations, a point which the Nuwab esteemed an ample reward for the fativues of his campaign A D 1750 The next year he renewed his efforts, and the marauders evaded his pursuit as usual, which made the Nuwab resolve to canton for the rains at Midnapore but buildings were scarcely erected, when he received intelligence that Seraje-ad-Dowlah, his favourite grandson, had left Moorshudabad, with intentions of taking possession of Patna, which was governed in his name by Janky Ram, and of

Aly Vardy Khan, who loved his grandson to distraction, was more alarmed for his personal safety in the opposition he might receive from the governor of Patna, than any ill consequences to himself from the rebellion stantly left his army at Midnapore, and with a small force hastened to Moorshudabad where he remained only one day to refresh his troops, and then followed the imprudent youth to whom he wrote in terms of the greatest affection, assuring him that he meant him for his successor, and entreating him to his protection Seraje-ad-Dowlah wrote an insolent reply, in which he accused the Nuwab of promoting his uncles to offices of trust, and treating him only with pretended fondness, that he was weary of being controlled like a child, and, since he would not give him a share in authority, he was resolved to reseize what he regarded as his just right: therefore he hoped his grandfather would not attempt to oppose him, as the consequence must be, that one of them must fall to the cootest. The Nuwab returned for answer that Seraje ad Dowlah, through imprudence and want of judgment, had causelessly accused him of want of regard, for be not only inteoded bim the succession of bis own dominions but to the government

A.D 1756.0 of the empire could be obtain it for him. He coocluded his letter with the following sectences the religious champion, eager for martyrdom is unmindful that the martyr to love exceeds him. In the "last day they will not be compared together for one is also "hy so occury but the other by a friend

Seraje-ad Dowlah on his arrival near Patna, io the mooth of Rejib 1163 summoned the governor July 1750.
Raja Janky Ram to deliver up the city

Raja Janky Ram to deliver up the city and repair to his presence assuring him of favour in case of his chedience. The Raja was to a loss how at act belog fearful of surreoderiog his charge without orders from the Numb and alarmed lest any accident should happen to Seraje ad Dowlah if he opposed him but at length he re solved on defending the city till be should hear from Aly Verdy Knan. The Imprudent young man assaulted the town without delay, but Mhadee Nissar Kbao the priocipal adviser and leader of his rebellion being killed early in the attack. his followers fled, and Seraje ad Dowlab with difficulty shell tered himself in a house to the suburbs. The Raja, rejoiced that he had escaped unburt, immediately sent some of his principal officers to att nd him to a residence belitting bis rank and by the persuations of his friends, he consected to return to his grandfather. Aly Verdy khao was overjoyed at the escape of the youth and hastened to meet him. Instead of reproaches, he received him with the greatest affection, and a factor to the exert the influence he now saw he had over him to his discredit and dishonour. The Nuwab, having spent a few days at Patna returned with his grandson to Moorshudabad; but was seized on the road by an intermitting fever, which continued long upon him. On his recovery in 1164, he marched against the Mah-A D 1751 rattas, who yet infested the province of Cuttack, and as usual, unable to bring them to a decisive engagement, spent the dry months in pursuing them from place to place. At length both parties, being tried of war, began equally to wish for an accommodation of their disputes. Aly Verdy Khan yielded to the Mahrattas the province of Cuttack, and agreed to pay annually twelve lacs of rupees, as the choute of Bengal *

The following is an abstract of the treaty, by which the dignity of the Nuwab was nominally preserved

"r 'That Meer Hubbeeb should be considered as the Deputy of the Nuwab; that he should receive orders to appropriate the revenues of Orissa to the payment of the arrears due to the troops of Raja Ragojee Bhonsla, and that over and above the said assignment, the sum of twelve lacks of rupees should be paid to the said Raja's agents, yearly, on condition that the Mahrattas should not again set foot in his highness' territories.

^{&#}x27;2. That the river Soonamooky,* which runs by Ballasore, should be considered as the boundary between the two dominions, and that the Mahrattas should never cross that river, nor even set a foot in its waters"

Meer Hubbeeb did not long enjoy the fruits of the labours, he was soon after assassinated by Janojee, the son of the Berar Raja.

^{*} This is probably a mistake, as the river Subanreeka, which runs by Jellasore, was considered the boundary of Orissa, till October 1803, when the whole province was re-conquered by the English. See Wellesley's Mahratta. War.

The Nuwah by this peace, being freed from all bis enemies, gradually discharged his superfluous troops, and employed himself in encouraging his people to rebuild the villages which had been destroyed and to cultivate the lands, which in many districts had long lain waste, from the desertion of the inhabitants during the repeated invasions. From this penod we find nothing remarkable in his life the remainder of his government being uninterrupted by vicisating the As he had chosen Seraje ad Doulah for his successor he latterly entrusted him with a power which was too often employed for the destruction of those against whom he had any pique or was jealous of their attachment to his unclease. Husseln Cooly Khan and his brother the favourities of his

A D 1754 in the year 1168 and put to death other persons of rank without heing punished by his grandfather which acts of cruelly estranged from him the milids of people and prepared the way for his own future destruction

In the year 1169 died Naurish Mohammed nephew to the Nawab and son to Hajy Ahmed. He

the Anuab and son to Hajy Ahmed. He possessed many good qualities, and was much esteemed by the people for bis elemency and charities to the friendless and poor. His death was speedily followed by that of his brother Sayld Ahmed who had for many years governed the district of Purneah with credit to himself and suisfaction to the inhabitants his milifortune at Cuttack having corrected the warmth of his disposition and taught him prudence and humanity. Both these princes are well spoken of by the natives of Bengal and their memory respected a usuah Mohammed died without issue, and Sayld Ahmed left only one son, who succeeded him in his govern ment, under the title of Shokut Jung.

Aly Verdy Khan did not long survive the death of his nephews In the eightieth year of his age, being seized with a dropsy, he submitted for some days to the advice of his physicians, but finding himself growing worse, and judging that at this time of life a recovery was not to be expected, refrained from medicine, and refused longer to follow any regime The expectations of his death caused great disputes among his relations His eldest daughter, Gheseety Begum, widow of Nuazish Mohammed, retired with her treasures to Mooteejeel,* and distributed large sums among the followers of late husband, in hopes that they would support her against her nephew Seraje-ad-Dowlah, on ner father's demise Such policy was only the influence of her declining fortune When Aly Verdy Khan was in his last agonies, some of his women desired he would recommend them to the care of his intended successor, but the Nuwab, knowing his bad qualities, observed smiling to them "that if he for three days should behave dutifully to his grandmother then they might entertain hopes of his tenderness" Shortly after this, he departed to the-Divine mercy, on the 9th of Rejib, 1169, after a government of sixteen years over the three provinces April 9, 1755.

of Bengal, Behar, and Orissa. He was buried the following night, near the tomb of his mother, in the garden of Khoosh Baug.

A country palace near Moorshudabad The pincipal building stands in a piece of water called Mootee Jeel or Pearl Lake It was erected by Nuazish Mohammed, and is a stately pile, being ornamented with many pillars of black marble brought from the ruins of Gour or Lucknowty, the ancient. capital of Bengal.

Aly Verdy Khan from his early youth was not addicted to idie pleasures, as wine nr opiates,* music, or the cumpany of courtezans. He was regular in his devotions, and assidnously abstained from all things forbidden by the divine law He generally rose two hours before day, and, after ablution and prayer drank coffee with his select companions. At dayhreak he gave public audience, when the commanders of his army the civil officers, and persons of all ranks who had any applications to make were admitted without reserve, to set forth their business, and received satisfaction from his bounty At the expiration of two hours he retired to a private apart ment, where such only as were invited came. These were generally his naphew Nuzzish Mohammed and Sayid Ahmed his grandson Seraje ad Dowlah, and particular friends. Pleces of poetry were now recited or history or anecdotes read to him and sometimes he even amused himself with giving directions to his cooks, who prepared victuals before him according to his palate. The officers of different departments. if --cessary also came for orders. He then sat down to eat with his friends, and many shared the bounties of his table When the meal was neer the company retired to repose. At this time a story teller always attended to relate some amusing parrative. He generally rose about an hour after midday performed his devotinus, and read in the horan till near four After saying the prescribed prayers, and drinking a draught of water cooled with ice or salipetre he received several learned men in whose company he daily spent an hour hearing them discuss points of divinity and law for his infor mation. When they retired the officers of the revenue with Jugout Scat his banker were admitted, and gave him the intelligence received from Dehly and every province of the empire, also of each district of his own government; after which he issued his orders to them, as the nature of the business required. An hour passed in this manner, and sometimes his near relations were allowed to be present. By this time night set in, lights were brought, and with them certain jesters and buffoons, who entertained him with their repartees on each other for a short time. He then retired to prayers; after which he sat in private with his own Begum, to receive the visits of near female relations, till nine o'clock. The women then departed, and men were admitted who had business with him, till he retired to sleep, generally early, and without eating. In this manner he passed his time having stated hours for every employment. He was unequalled in his benevolence to his relations, friends, and former acquaintance in his lower fortunes, particularly to those who had shown him the smallest kindness when he was distressed at Dehly in his youth, sending for them or their children to his court, and conferring favours upon them beyond their expectation The people at large, during his life, experienced such care and satisfaction from his gentle administration, as could not be exceeded by the indulgence of a parent; while at the same time the lowest of his officers grew rich in his service was intelligent in all affair, and encouraged the deserving of every profession Affable in manners, wise in state affairs, courageous as a general, he possessed also every noble quality, When the French general, Bussy, after the death of Nasır Jung,* wrote to him in pompous terms of his victory, and ^{*} Nasır Jung was Nızam of the Dekkan He was surprised and slain in a conspiracy of his nobles, assisted by the French, in the year 1765 in the second state of the dekkan He was surprised and slain in a conspiracy of his nobles, assisted by recommended the factors of Chaedernagore to his protection he reflected upon the similarity of dl position between his inteeded successor Seraje ad Dowlah whose cemity to the English he was apprised of and the nefortunate Soubabdar of the Dekkae at the same time, saying "he feared that after his death the Europeans would become masters of many parts of Hiedoostan.' Mustapha Khan his principal general had eedeavoured to presail upon him to expel the English from Calcutta, and seize their wealth but receiving no answer to his advice urged it again through the Numba nephews, Nuzzish Mohammed and Sayid Ahmed Aly Verdy khae returned no answer but shortly after said in private to the laster. My child. Mustapha Khan is n. soldier and wishes us to he constantly in need of his service but how came you to foin in his request? What have the English done antiest me that I should use them ill? It is eow difficult to extreguish fire on land but should the sea he in flames who cae put them out?" Vever "listen to such advice as his for the result would probably be fatal

[·] Commonly used in India to intoxicate

In coesequence of these sentiments the Europeans were hitle molested during his government and were permitted to carry oe their commerce according to the tenor of the Firmans they had received from the emperor betrokheres or from former governors, upon making the usual presents. The remiedars were so well pleased with his coeduct, that during the war with the Mahrattas they advanced him a crore and a half of rupees, a curcumstance upprecedented in Oriental history. It does not appear that he ever remitted any part of the revenues to Dehly,* but the frequent invasions of the Mahrattas may be admitted as an excuse for his conduct.

An allusion to the ilect.

In the year 1746, Hindoostan was invaded by the Afghans of Cabul, under the command of Ahmed Shah Abdullah, and in the following year, the emperor Mohammed Shah died, from which period the monarchs of India have been entirely destitute of power, and their governors of provinces have assumed independence. See Dow's and Scott's Histories, and vols

NUWAB NUNSOOR AL-NOOLK, SERAJE-AD DOWLAH, SHAH COOLY KHAN, MIRZA MAHMOOD, HYBET JU\G,

Origin of Seraje-ad-Dowlah—His character—Adopted by Aly Verdy khan and declared his herr—Seraje-ad Dowlah causes Hussein Addeen and Hussein Cooly Khan to be murdered—Nuazish Mohammed and Sayid Ahmed the uncle of Scraje ad Dowlah die both extremely rich—Alj Verdy Ahan gives the Foujedary of Pinneah to his grandson Shokut Jung—Death of Aly Verdy Khan—Seraje ad Dowlah takes possession of the government— Sends a party to sequester the wealth of his uncle Nussish and disposes his aunt of the palace of Mosteejeel—Threatens Rajbullub deputy governor of Dacca—Turns many of the old officers out of their employments, and appoints his own favourites—Shokut Jung plots against his cousin and solicits the Vizler to confer the government of Bengal on him-Seraje ad Dowlah marches towards Pumeah-Stopped at Rajemahel in consequence of intelli-gence received from Calcutta-Returned to Cossimbazar and takes possession of the English factory-Proceeds towards Calcutta-The English endeavoured to avert his anger but in vain-They collect 1500 pative matchlock men and enrol the militia to defend the fort-The Nawab arrives at Calcutta-Description of Fort William-The Nuwab a troops storm the outposts and get possession of the houses near the fort- ir Drake defends the fort for some time with great resolution but finding there was no hope of holding out, retires on board a ship-Mr Holwell takes the command of the fort—Endeavours to procure a ship to take off the garrison but is disappointed—Writes a letter to Manickchund Foujedar of Hoogly, to intercede with the Nuwab-1 flag of truce sent by the Nuwab but while the garrison were employed in listening to the measen er, the Nuwab a troops escalade and enter the fort The English lay down their arms—The Nuwab enters the fort—Severely reprimands Mr Holwell—Description of the interior of the fort—The English prisoners forced into the Black Hole, and out of 146 persons, 123 die during the night—Mr Holwell again summoned to the Nuwab, threatened with further punishment if he did not disclose where the Company's treasure was hidden-The name of Calcutta changed to Alynagur—Manickchund left with 3,000 men to guard it—The Nuwab levies a fine from the-French and Dutch—Returns to Moorshudabad—Writes an order to his cousin, Shokut Jung, who refuses obedience to it, and returns a letter of defiance—The Nuwab takes the field—Orders Raja Mohun Lall to cross the river and invade Purneah from the east, while Ramnarain, deputy-governor of Behar, should attack it on the west—Character of the two cousins—Shokut Jung forms an entrenched camp, but neglects to give, the requisite orders to his troops—
Joins the camp, but disgusts the officers by his conduct—Seraje-ad-Dowlah's army approaches, and commences a cannonade—Advice given by an old officer to Shokut Jung
—The commander of artillery advances his guns beyond the morass—Shokut Jung orders his cavalry to cross the morass, and attack the enemy—Retires to his tent—Alarmed by intelligence of the success of the enemy—Mounts his elephant—Killed by a musquet ball, and his army routed— Mohun Loll advances to Purneah, and seizes the property and family of the deceased-Gives charge of the district to his son—Seraje-ad-Dowlah returns to Moorshudabad—Affairs of the English resumed—Mr Drake, with those who had escaped from Calcutta, proceeds to Fulta—Sends an express to Madras—The Madras government thrown into great consternation—Resolve to make war on the Nuwab of Bengal—Fit out an expedition under the command of Admiral Watson and Colonel Clive—The fleet sails from Madras—Separated during a tedious voyage—Arrives at Fulta—Colonel Clive writes to the Nuwab—Resolves to attack the fort of Budgebudge-The detachment which was landed for that purpose attacked by surprise-A confused engagement ensues—The Nuwab's troops retire—A ship of war silences the guns of Budgebudge, but the assault having been delayed, a drunken sailor takes, the fort—The

English advance towards Calcutta-The governor retreats, leaving only a garrison of 500 men-The English retake Fort William and Calcutta-The Hoogly-Intelligence of the war with France-The number of the French troops at Chandernagore induces the English to make overtures of peace to the Nuwab which are rejected with disdain-The Numab marches from Moorshudabad-Re-cros es the mer above Hoogly-Encamps in the vicinity of Calcutta-Colonel Clive attacks his camp-The Nuwah much alarined -Offers to make peace-1 reaty concluded-Terms of the treaty-The Nuwab marches from Calcutta-Illiance offensive and defensive formed-The English resolve to attack Chandernagore-The French apply to the Nunab to protect them-He orders the English to desist and sends a reinforcement to Hoogly—The French sink several ships in the channel of the river—The English troops enter the French territory—The ships with much difficulty brought opposite the fort-The French capitulate-Part of the parrisen make their escape-Reasons why the Numab did not assist the French-The troops that had eshaped from Chandernagore arrive at Cossimbazar and are taken under the tratection of the Nunab-Colonel Clive demands their being delivered up to hir-The Nauab much instated thereby-Ord is the French to proceed to Behar-Meer laffier and other conspirators make overtures to Colonel Clive-These overtures accepted - serate ad Dowlah obtains intelligence of the proceedings of the English-Reinforces his army at Ila 12, -Orders piles to be driven across the river and sends instructions to Mr Law to halt at Bhabul pore-Treaty between Meer Jafu r and the Puglish-like troops march from Calcutta-Colonel Clive writes to the unab who endeavours to reconcile Meer Julier-Orders his arm, to assemble at Plassey-The Inchish army proceeds up the river and takes the fort of Cuma-Letters received from 'leer Jatzer-The Colonel calls a countil of war-Resches to cros the twer-Informs Meer Jather of his intentlins-The troops pass the river and take po e sion of I am y grove-The Number campa close to them-the armie dia e out in banle-array-The engagement com mences-aleer Muddeen the Yuwah's general killed-Scrafe ad Doubah sends for Meer Jallier and apologizes for his past conduct—Meer Jaffier advises the troops to be recalled to camp—Sends intelligence of the state of affairs to Colonel Clive—The retreat of the Nuwab's artillery causes much confusion in his camp—The English advance towards the entrenchments—Meer Jaffier's troops attempt to join the English—The Nuwab quits the field—Arrives at Moorshudabad—Escapes from thence, with a few of his women—Embarks on the Ganges—Arrives opposite Rajemahel—Betrayed by a Dervish—Taken prisoner—Sent to Moorshudabad—Put to death by Meeran, the son of Jaffier—The English enter the Nuwab's camp—Proceed to Daoodpore—Meeting between Colonel Clive and Meer Jaffier—The English march to Moidapore, in the vicinity of Moorshudabad—Colonel Clive enters the city—Visits Meer Jaffier, and places him on the musnud—Conclusion

Mirza Mahmood was the eldest son of Zyn Addeen, the youngest of Hajy Ahmed's sons, who married one of Aly Verdy Khan's daughters. He was born at the period that Aly Verdy was appointed to the government of Behar, and who, considering the birth of a grandson at that time as an auspicious event, declared his intention of adopting him as his own child

The boy was therefore indulged in every caprice of his mind, and, being naturally of a cruel and perverse temper. his vices ripened with his age as he grew tup, he associated with none but infamous and profligate companions, and at their head, used to patrol the streets of Moorshudabad, and insult every person of respectability whom they met. It is scarcely possible that these circumstances could have been concealed from his grandfather, but the old man was so infatuated with the beauty and lively disposition of the youth, that he took no measures ito correct his flagitious conduct.

This young man, in the year of the Hejira 1167 Aly

Verdy Khan declared to be his successor:

he seated him on the mushud, and having made him the accustomary offerings and gratulations obliged all the courtiers and officers to do the same, and from that time suffered him to interfere in the government of the provinces and to make a very bad use of hissuthority

In the following year Seraje ad-Dowlah being jealous of the power and influence which his uncle Nussish Moham med possessed as governor of Dacca and the eastern districts, but not daring to extend his arm against him caused both his deputies. Hi ssein Addeen and Hussein Cooly Khan to be murdered. The former be effected hy private assassination at Dacca but A D 1754 the latter was openly executed in the streets of Moorshudabad in his presence. After this event. Nuzziah Mohammed appointed Rajbulluh (who under the former government, had been employed as superintendent of the boat establishment at Dacca, and had thereby accumulated much wealth) to be his deputy governor of Dacca and the eastern districts . About this time died Akram ad-Dowlah the younger hinther of Seraje ad Dowlah to whom a

As the subject of this Chapter has been already related by the securate Mr. Orme I shall endeavour to render it as concise as the nature of the case will admit referring my readers, for more particular information to that celebrated historian. From his general correctness I must, however except his nrihography of Oriental names.—Thosopoints on which Mr. Orme was uninformed, are amply supplied by the Sur al Mutabhrein and the Ryas Anulaters.

posthumous son was born some months after his decease, and was named Murad-ad-Dowlah. Nuazish Mohammed died at Moorshudabad, on the 13th of Rubby Assany, 1169, much regretted by the poor, to whom he was exceedingly charitable, without leaving any sons. His brother Sayid Ahmed, departed this life on the month following, being the 25th of Jemmed-al-Abul, at Purneah; leaving two sons, on the elder of whom had been conferred the title of Shokut Jung. Both of the brothers died extremely rich the wealth of the former was never publicly ascertained, as it was taken possession of, first by his wife, Gheseety Begum, and was afterwards plundered by Seraje-ad-Dowlah but in the treasury of the latter was found sixty-one lacs of rupees, 762,050? sterling, in gold and silver; and the value of his jewels, plate, elephant, &c. amounted to as much more.

Previous to the demise of Sayid Ahmed, the Nuwab had been for some time labouring under a dropsy, and no hopes of his recovery were entertained. Sayid Ahmed had, therefore, made preparations to assert his claim to the succession, in opposition to the determination and will of Aly Verdy. Khan but his premature death left Seraje-ad-Dowlah without any other rival than this cousin, Shokut Jung, to quiet whom, Aly Verdy. Khan bestowed the Foujedary of Purneah as a jagier, at the same time, conjuring him to be content with his portion, to live upon amicable terms with all, his relations, and to support his father's attendants: but as the youth was of a very similar disposition to Seraje-ad-Dowlah, and still more ignorant of the world, the advice of his grandfather was little attended to.

Upon the death of Aly Verdy Khan, Seraje-ad-Dowlah

April 1756. took undisputed possession of the government, and such was the miserable state to which the unfortunate emperor of Hindoostan, Azinmgeer the Second, was then reduced,* that it is doubtful whether Serajo-ad Dowlah over went through the form of soliciting his confirmation of the appointment.

The first act of his government was to send a party of troops to dispossess his annt, Gheseety Begum, of the palace of Mooteejeel, and to seize the treasures of her deceased husband Nuzzish Mohammed These measures he easily effected although the lady had hired a number of people to defend her against his oppressions. He also demanded a large sum of money from Rajbullub the deputy-governor of Dacca, and so alarmed him that he sent off privately his property and family to Calcutta. He afterwards displaced many of the officers of government, and filled their appoint ments with young men the companions of his pleasures. Mohun Loll a Hindoo who had been Dewan or superinten dent of his household, he promoted to he Dewan of the province and his prime-minister in all alfairs. He con ferred also on him the titles of Maharaja (great prince), and commander of 5000 horse . Meer Mudden, another person of mean origin, he appointed commander in chief of his forces. One of the principal persons who had been removed from his office, was Meer Jaffier Khan, the Bukhshy or paymaster-general. This officer soon exhibited signs of discontent; and leaguing with several others who were disgusted with the infamous conduct of the young Nuwab, entered into a correspondence with Shokut Jung, the governor of Purneah, and exhorted him to assert his claim to the musnud the young man readily fell into their measures: but, by the prudent advice of some of his counsellors, he deemed it requisite first to procure from the court of Dehly a commission, appointing him to the government; he, in consequence, applied to Ghazy Addeen, the Vizier of Aalumgeer the Second, from whom he obtained a promise of the patent he required, on condition of sending annually a crore of rupees to the imperial treasury.*

[•] See Dows and Scotts Histories—relgus of Ahmed Shah, and Aalumgeer If

[•] All these honours are said to have originated from the Hindoo having presented his alster to Seraje-ad Dowlah. She was a lady of the most delicate form and weighed only 642s English, He, however proved himself a faithful servant.

These transactions having been discovered by Seraje-ad-Dowlah, he placed himself at the head of his troops, and marched towards Purneah; but, upon his arrival at Rajemahel, he was diverted from his purpose, by letters received from Calcutta, respecting the refusal of the English to deliver up Kishen Bullub, the son of Rajbullub, who some months before had left Dacca with his family and property, and had taken refuge at Calcutta: also by intelligence that the English were adding to the fortifications of Fort William, and increasing the strength of the garrison.

This information irritated the Nuwab to a degree of rage which astonished his officers. He instantly chanced his resolution of marching to Purneah, and ordered his army to return to Moorshudabad: where he arrived on the 1st of June, and laid siege to the factory of Cossimbazar, the garrison of which consisting only of forty two mee, it was delivered up to him by capitulation on the fourth day. The terms of the capitulation were, however immediately broken, and oo the 10th of the mooth of Ramzan, 1169 the Nuwah proceeded towards Calcutta. During this time letters were daily despatched by the governor of Calcutta to Mr Watts, the Chief of Cossim bazar who was detained as a prisoner by the Nowah to offer every apology possible to mitigate his wrath. The good offices of the bankers and principal Moghul merchants were also employed but all in valu. Seraje-ad Dowlah replied "that Mr Drake the governor had grievously offeoded him and that he would not suffer the English to remain to his "country oo any other terms than were allowed them under "the government of the Nuwah Moorshud Cooly Jaffier "Khan."

^{*} Mustapha's Translation of the Sier-al-Mutakhereen, p. 729

In this dilemma, as to hopes of assistance could be expected in time from Madras Mr Drake applied to the Dutch at Chinsura, and to the Freech at Chandernagore to help him but the former positively refused and the latter added insult to the refusal, by desiring the English to abandon Calcutta, and to repair to Chandernagore where they would protect them.

The English, finding that they had no other resource than in their own exertions armed all the Europeans, native Portuguese and Armenians, and took into their service 1500 Hindoo matchlock meo, they also laid in a store of grain and other provisions, and added such works for their defence as the shortness of the time would adult.

Upon the arrival of Seraje ad-Dowlah in the vicinity of Chinaura and Chandernagore he sent letters to the Dutch and French, commanding them to assist him with their forces an his designs against Calcutta but they pleaded the treaties subsisting between their nations and the English in Europe, as a reason why they could not obey his commands. This refusal he highly resented, but at that time repressed his indignation, lest they should unite with the English

On the 16th of Ramzan, the Nuwab's troops crossed the river at Hoogly, and on the following day came in sight of Calcutta, but not being aware that the Mahratta ditch had never been completed, they were stopped by that part of it which had been excavated to the north of the town, and a temporary advantage as that evening gained by the English

The factory, or fort, was situated on the bank of the river; its length from east to west was 210 yards—its breadth on the south side was 130 yards, and on the north only 100 yards—it had four bastions, mounting each ten guns, but the curtains were only four feet thick, and the terrace, which was the roof of the store rooms, formed the top of the ramparts: the gateway on the eastern side projected, and mounted five guns; and along the bank of the river was a line of heavy cannon, mounted in embrasures of solid masonry—so that the place might have made a long defence against such an enemy, had not the houses of the principal Europeans and the Church, overlooked and commanded the fort

On the 19th, all the outposts were stormed by the Nuwab's forces, upon which the 1500 matchlock-men, and other native troops in the English service, deserted, whilst the Portuguese and other inhabitants of the town, who had been injudiciously admitted into the fort, caused great confusion and uproar. On the 21st, the besiegers renewed their attacks; and having erected a battery of three guns, began to cannonade the fort; whilst their matchlock men, and others armed with small pleces, fired from the tops of the bouses (which were all flat roofed), apon the garrison.

Mr Drake, the governor although not a military man, had not betrayed any sigos of personal fear, but exposed his person on the ramparts, and where-ever bis presence was thought requisite, until be received intelligence—that the remaining gunpowder in the magazine was damp and unfit for service when finding that there was no chance of much longer defending the place and being very apprehensive of the resentment of the Nuwah who had threatened—to put him to death, he embarked on board a boat, and in a short time was conveyed on board one of the ships which were then anchored at Govindpore nearly three miles down the river. The example of the governor was immediately followed by sill those who could get on board the ships.

After this abandonment, the number of Europeansremaining in the fort were 190 persons at the head of whom was Mr Holwell, one of the members of councils who, in order to prevent further desertion, directed the gate towards the river to be locked and guarded. It was however his intention to have embarked with the remainder of the garrison, on board a ship which was till anchored above the fort. For this purpose be sent orders to the captain to bring her close to the fort, as soon as the ebb-tide would permit r unfortunately the ship on her way down, struck on a sand bank, where the crew being exposed to the fite of the enamy from the tops of the houses, were obliged to abandon her

The garrison continued to defend themselves with great signur during the whole of that day and night and made many signals to the ships anchored at Govindpore to return and take them on board, as all the boats had been either lost or carried away by the natives; but in this last expectation of relief they were disappointed, for not a single vessel moved to their assistance.

On the 21st of Ramzan, the Nuwab's troops recommenced their attack with fresh vigour, and June 20, whilst come of the garrison exposed themselves with undaunted resolution, others were entreating Mr. Holwell to capitulate; who, to calm the minds of those who desponded, threw a letter from the rampart-Written, by Omichund, a Hindoo merchant of consequence, whom the English had, together- with Kishenbullub, detained as prisoners on the approach of the Nuwab's army-addressed to Manickchund, the Foujedar of Hoogly, who commanded a body of troops before the fort, requesting him to intercede with the Nuwab to cease hostilities, as the English were ready to obey his commands, and only persisted in defending the. fort, to preserve their lives and honour. The letter wasimmediately taken up; but for many hours no answer was returned, whilst the enemy continued to push on the attack with vigour. At four o'clock in the evening a person wasobserved advancing to the fort with a flag of truce, which Mr. Holwell answered with another from the south-east bastion. A parley ensued, during which many of the Nuwab's troops approached to the walls of the fort, and endeavoured to escalade it; at the same time some of the soldiers of the garrison, having broken open the arrack. cellars, had intoxicated themselves, and forced open the gate. next the river-side, with an intention of seizing on whatever boats they could find, and of proceeding to the ships; just. as they opened the gate, a party of the enemy, who had also got on that side, met them, and at once rushed into the fort, another party at the same moment mounted the walls of the warehouses. In this scool of confusion no resistance was made and the English having sur rendered their arms, the Nuwah's troops refrained from bloodshed.

At five o clock on the 220d of Ramsan Seraje-ad Dowlah attended by Meer Jaffier whom he had June 21. again restored to his office, and several other officers, cotered the fort. He immediately ordered Omlchund and Kishenhullub to be brooght before him and received them with civility. He oext directed some of his officers to go and take possession of the Company's treasury he then proceeded to the priocipal room of the factory where he sat in state and received the coogratulations of his courtlers on the important conquest. He soon after sent for Mr Holwell and expressed much rescotment at the presomption of the English, in daring to defeod the fort, and great dissatisfaction at the smallness of the sum found in the treasury which did not exceed 50 000 rupees. Mr Holwell had two other conferences with him on this subject before seven o clock when the Nuwah dismissed him with assurance of safety

Mr Holwell returning to his unfortunate companions, found them surrounded by a strong guard he also per ceived that several places in the fort had by seedlect been set on fire and that the flames approached on both sides the spot on which they stood. On each side of the eastern gate of the fert extended a range of chambers, the roofs of which formed the rampart of the eastern cuttain, and before the chambers was an arched versodah or gallery which was intended to thelter the soldlers from sun and rain but being very low obstructed the light and air from the chambers.

The prisoners were at first ordered to draw up in the verandah; but the officer commanding the guard, not thinking they would be sufficiently secure there, inquired where was the prison of the fort; and one of the chambers before mentioned which was used as the black-hole, to confine disorderly soldiers, Sufferings of Mr. Howell and his examining the extent of the apartment companions forced them all into it. The door was immediately closed and locked, and 164 persons were thus confined, in the month of June, and in the torrid zone, in a room not twenty feet square, with only two small windows to admit air. For the detail of the horrid sufferings of these unfortunate persons, the reader is referred to the historian mentioned in the beginning of this Chapter: suffice it to say, that out of one hundred and forty-six persons, only twenty-three survived the fatal night; and these were so reduced they could barely stand.*

Mr. Holwell was carried to the Nuwab, who, so far from showing any compassion for his situation, or remorse for the death of the other prisoners, only talked to him of the treasures which the English had buried, and threatened him with further punishment if he did not disclose where they were.

To perpetuate the memory of this conquest, the Nuwab ordered the name of Calcutta to be changed to Alynagur; and leaving a garrison in it of 3000 men, under the command of Manickchund, the

^{*} For the credit of human-nature, we would fain, believe the assertions of the native historians, who say the Nuwab knew nothing of this transaction, and that the conduct of the officer who, confined them proceeded entirely from stupidity, and not from malevolence or cruelty.

3

Foundar of Hoogly, he proceeded on the 3rd of Shual,

As soon as his army had re-crossed the river at Hoogly be sent detachments to the French and Dutch actilements threatening to extirpate them, as he had done the English unless they would immediately pay him a large sum of money but after receiving many assurances of their submis sion to his will, he consented to accept from the Dutch four laces and a half of rupees, and from the French three and a half which difference, it is said he made because the latter had supplied him with two hundred barrels of gunpowder as he was marching towards Calcutta.

On his arrival at Moorshudabad he issued orders commanding the sequestration of all the effects and merchandise belonging to the English in all parts of his dominions. However, finding that no discoveries could he obtained concerning the tressures which he supposed to be buried in Calcutta, he in com-

The capture of Fort William and the sufferings of its inhabitants, strongly evince the fallacy of all human speculations. For nearly a century it had been the constant object of the East-India Company to procure a fortification on the Ganges for the protection of their servants and property: had they never obtained it, the catastrophe would not have happened. On the other hand the Nuwab supposed, that, from the capture of the first, and the destruction of the garrl son, he had rendered his government secure and expelled the English from the country whereas that very circumstance drew on him the rangeance of an inveterate for caused his death, and transferred the government to the hands of strangers.

pliance with the intercession of the widow of Aly Verdy Khan, released Mr. Holwell and the other English prisoners.

Soon after Seraje-ad-Dowlah's return to Moorshudabad. he, in order to try the allegiance of his cousin, appointed a person named Rasbehary to the Foujedary of Birnagur in Purneah, and ordered Shokut Jung to put him immediately in possession of the office. Nothing could exceed the rage of Shokut Jung on the receipt of the order he directed the bearer of it to be beaten he then called for the Vizier's letter containing the promise of the patent, and having caused it to be read aloud in open court, commanded one of his secretaries to write a letter to the following purport "Know, that I have received from the imperial court the "commission of governor of the three provinces On account "of our family connection, I have no wish to do you any "personal injury, and you may make choice of any of the "eastern districts for your residence, where you shall receive "an ample allowance, but I desire that you will immediately "quit Moorshudabad and do not presume to take with you "any of the treasure, or other valuables Send me an answer "quickly, as I am waiting with-one foot in the stirrup."

This letter would have irritated a less passionate man that Seraje-ad-Dowlah. He issued his command for his army immediately to take the field; and sent orders to Raja Ramnarain, whom Aly Verdy Khan had made deputy-governor of Behar, to assemble his forces, and, having crossed the river, to enter Purneah. His own army marched in two divisions; that under his immediate command proceeded on the south-west side of the Ganges to Rajemahel, while the other, under the orders of Raja Mohun Loll, crossed that river at Surdah, and marched towards the appointed place on the north-east side.

Whilst these two young men were actually engaged inhostilities against each other they could restrain the violence and perversequess of their dispositions they each of them gave offence to the old officers, who had long served onder their father or grandfather and though oeither of thom wascapable of directing even his own domestics they would not listen to the advice of the sensible persons in their courts, who were sincere well-wishers of their family, respecting the government of the countries under their charge, but consulted only the rash and profligate beings of their own creation. Such conduct induced the author of the Sur al Mutakhersen although a relation of the family to say 'it having been "decreed by Providence that the guilty race of Aly Verdy "Khan should be deprived of a dominion that nad cost somuch toil in acquiring it was for a time consigned to the "haods of two young men, Seraje ad Dowlah and Shokut "Juog , both equally vain cruel and locapable of govern "ment and who by their flagitious cooduct, shortly caused "the flames of destruction to hurst forth from the edifice "crected by their progenitor

When Shokut Jung was informed of the advance of Seraje ad Dowlah he ordered his officers to fix un a proper

October A. D. 1756. spot for the rendezvous of his army where he might be able to oppose his adversary with the greatest effect. Some of the officers who had served under his father, and possess ed good abilities selected a situation near Nuwahgunge on the confines of Purneah, which was sirong hy nature and might easily be defended against a seperior force it was covered in tront by deep morasses of many miles extent across which there was only one causeway whilst the rear of the position, being open to a productive country, insured an ample supply of provisions to the camp. In 'drawing up the troops, however, the greatest irregularity was practised; for as Shokut Jung knew nothing of the matter himself, and would not entrust the command to any other person, the commandant of each corps encamped in what he considered the most convenient situation, thus parts of the army which was not very numerous were separated by an interval of four miles and Shokut Jung, instead of daily reviewing the troops, did not join the army till the advanced parties of theeneiny appéared in sight

At length Shokut Jung came to the camp: he was attended by a body-guard of cavalry which he had raised himself. another corps of horse commanded by his brother, and a of 1000 matchlock-men. As soon as he arrived, the principal officers waited on him to pay their respects, but even at that time, instead of ingratiating himself with them by his complaisance, he added to their disgust by the moroseness of his behaviour, nor would he give them any orders for their conduct, but desired them to return to their respective encampments, and there await his commands. About nine o'clock, the division of Seraje-ad. Dowlah's army, under the command of Raja Mohun Loll and Meer Jaffier, came in sight, but drew up at a very considerable distance, whence they commenced a cannonade. The balls of the smaller pieces fell into the lake or morass, but those of the heavy guns lodged in the camp, and one of them passing near Shokut Jung he was much alarmed, and ordered the standards and other insignia of his rank to be lowered down. An old Afghan officer, who had seen much service, and was standing near said, "my lord and master, what kind of a battle "is this? I never saw any thing like it. When I served in the "Dekkan, under Nizam al Moolk: this is not the way: here"every man does as he pleases. The army should he drawn out in lines, and ranged in battle-array, and the artillery "should be placed in front the troops must be united in com for the drawn of the placed in front the troops must be united in com for the drawn of the placed in front the troops must be united in com for the placed holds, and act together then only can victory be expected. Should Jung took this remonstrance very ill He abused Nizam al Moolk as a blockhead and said. I have no occasion to he taught what I am to do, for I have myself fought three hundred battles."

In the mean time, Sham Sunder, the Hindoo commander of the artillery who was possessed of much hravery but no experience, finding that his guns would not reach those of the enemy quitted his entrenchment hehind the morass, and advanced over the causeway to the other side where he com menced a cannonade. On seeing this Shokut Jung sent orders to the cavalry also to cross the morass and attack the enemy The commanders of the cavalry remonstrated that he was giving up the advantages of his situation and that he should wait attack, as whoever crossed the morass must engage to great disadvantage. He sent them another message that they were a set of cowards that they ought to take example by Sham Sunder who although a Hindoo seribe was hravely pour ing his halls into the rank of the enemy while they talked of prudence and caution. These taunts provoked the commanders of the cavalry and they ordered their men to mount and to cross the lake.

It being then about three o clock in the day Shokut Jung having taken his inchristing draught, retired to his tent to amuse himself with the songs of his women. After some time, intelligence was brought to him that the cavalry having wated through the mud were engaged with the enemy who had killed a number of them, and were pressing on the artillery. At this time he was so much interfected that he could not so

-erect but as his presence was requisite to encourage the troops. some of the officers placed him on his elephant, with a servant to support him, and caused the driver to advance towards the causeway, where in a short time a musquet-ball struck Shokut Jung in the forehead, and sent his soul to the other world. On beholding this event, the route became general, and every man made the best of his way to Purneah. The troops of Seraje ad Dowlah, having had a long march that day, did not pursue: but two days after, Raja Mohun Loll entered Purneah, and took possession of all the wealth and property of Shokut Jung, which he despatched, with the women and children belonging to the deceased, or of his father Sayid Ahmed, to Moorshudabad He then regulated the country: and, having placed his own son in charge of Purneah, he went to join his master, who had not proceeded further than Rajemahel. Serale-ad-Dowlah, however, assumed great merit from this conquest, and returned with great pomp and rejoicing to Moorshudabad

It now becomes requisite, to revert to the affairs of the English

It has been before stated, that Mr Drake, the governor of Calcutta, having, with part of the garrison effected his escape to

Affairs of the English Company, June, 1756 the ships which were anchored at Govindpore, as soon as he found the fort was in possession of the enemy, proceeded down possession of the enemy, proceeded down the river to Fulta, where he was joined by several vessels coming from sea . the Company's agents, likewise, from the subordinate factories at Dacca, Jugdea, and other places, having, on the first alarm, escaped from those situations, resorted to the fleet. For some time, no provisions could be procured but as soon as the Nuwab's army left Calcutta, the country people ventured to supply them. The want of convenient shelter and the fear of being surprised, obliged them all to sleep on board the vessels which were so much crowded, that all lay promiscuously on the decks without shelter from the beavy rain of the season and the lower part of Bengal, between the arms of the Ganges, being perhaps one of the most unhealthy countries in the world a malignant fever shortly broke out amongst them, from which oooe of the ships were exempted

Mr Drake having resofted to remain in that situation till be should receive orders from Madras had early in July despatched Mr Manningham In a small vessel to the coast. Upon the arrival of that gentleman at Madras, the government of Fort St. George which had just received intelligence of the breaking out of a war with France were overwhelmed with regret and assonishment but, after some time spent in debate and consultation, they at length lo concert with Admiral Watsoo the commander in Chief of his Majesty s abios in Iodia, resolved to make war on the Nuwab of Bengal, and not only to compel him to restore Calcutta and the other factories, but to make bim pay for the losses the Company had sustained and all the expenses of the war

As soon as this point was determined a quicksailing sloop was despatched to Mr Drake to inform him of the intentious ol the Madras government, and to desire him to take such steps as be thought might cooduce to the success of the enterorise.

The English under Adm. Watson and Cul (L make war on the Augan.

Notwithstanding all the exertions of Governor Pigot and Admiral Watsoo it was the month of October before the expedition could be equipped it consisted of three line-of battle ships, one of fifty and one of twenty guns, with a tire ship, and three of the Company s vessels and two smaller transports. The land forces consisted of 900 European soldiers, and 1500 Sepoys, under the command of the celebrated Colonel Clive. The Colonel carried letters, written by Salabut Jung, the Soubahdar of the Dekkan, Mohamed Aly, the Nuwab of Arcot, and Governor Pigot, exhorting Seraje ad Dowlah to make reparation to the English for the injuries they had suffered from his unprovoked hostility. The instructions to Colonel Clive recommended the attack of Moorshudabad itself, if the Nuwab continued obstinate, and the capture of the French settlement of Chandernagore, if news of the war should arrive whilst the troops remained in Bengal.

The fleet sailed from Madras the 16th October; but as the north-west monsoon had by that time set in, they were obliged to cross the Bay of Bengal, and to beat up against it. along the western shore by this adverse circumstance, half the fleet was separated, and the remainder were six weeks in making the voyage, which at a favourable season is done in six or seven days, and it was the 20th of December before they could reach Fulta, and even then with the absence of two of the vessels of most consequence, viz the Cumberland of seventy guns, on which was embarked 250 of the best soldiers, and the Marlborough, the Company's ship, on which had been embarked all the field artillery.- Upon the arrival of the expedition at Fulta, Colonel Clive sent the letters he had brought from Madras to Manickchund, the governor of Calcutta, accompanied by one from himself and the Admiral; but the latter being couched in threatening and indecorous terms, the governor refused to forward it

On the 27th of December the whole fleet got under weigh, and on the following day reached Myapore, ten miles below Budgebudge Colonel Clive having resolved to attack that fort, laoded bis men during the night, and some bours before day on the 29th commenced his march—but the roads being excessively bad, and the guide—having led them astray, the sun had been risen above an hour before they reached the vicinity of the fort—it therefore became requisite to allow the troops some time to rest themselves, and as 00 suspiction was entertained of their being any armed force except the garrison, in that neighbourhood, the usual precautions of posting prequets and sentries were not observed. In a short time, the men, being much fatigued fell asleep—in this situation they were attacked by Manickehund governor of Calcuits, with 1500 cavalry and 2000 infantry and if the former had dono their duty might have cut off the English to a man

A scoop of great confusion ensoed but the English, having at length opeoed their field pieces, and directed them towards Maolekchund who was rendered very coospicuous by belog mounted on an elephant, and one of the balls passing close to his head he was alarmed and gave the signal for a general retreat. About this time the Kent, of sixty four guas, having anchored opposite the fort quickly silenced the cannon thereof, but the troops being much fatigued it was determined to delay the assault till next morning as soon, however as it was dark, the garrison abandoned the place and in the night, one of the sailors having got drunk, struggled to the ditch which be crossed and climbed up a beautiful till the sailors in the sampart, where finding on person, he called out, to the occuret English guard that he bad taken the fort.

On the 30th of December the fleet took possession of the forts of Aly Ghur and Tanna, without any opposition,

In the mean time, Manickehund and the governor of Calcutta and Hoochly having been much alarmed by the engagement at Budgebudge, hastened to meet the Nuwab, leaving only a garrison of 500 men in Calcutta

On the 1st of January, Colonel Clive, with the greatest, part of the troops, landed, and marched; along the high road from Aly Ghur to-Calcutta, A. D. 1757

Calcutta, but the ships, having reached the fort some time before him, in two hours compelled the garrison to retreat: it was then taken possession of by Captain Coote, with a detachment from the ships; and on the following day Mr Drake was restored to his government.

On the 4th of the month, a detachment, consisting of 150 Europeans and 200 Sepoys, was embarked on board the twenty-gun ship, a sloop of war, and three other vessels, and proceeded to the attack of Hoogly. Owing to the twenty-gun ship striking on a sand-bank, it was the 10th before they reached their destination. The troops were then landed; and the ships having in a few hours made a breach, it was stormed, and the garrison, consisting of 2000 men, made a precipitate retreat.

About this time intelligence reached Galcutta, that war had been declared between France and Great Britain, in the preceding month of May. As there were 300 soldiers and a good train of field artillery in Chandernagore, the Governor and Council of Calcutta were very apprehensive that the French would immediately join the Nuwab, with whom it was thought the English force would not then be able to contend. In this persuasion, they determined to open a negotiation for peace accordingly, Colonel Clive wrote a letter to the bankers of Moorshudabad, named Seat, and to Omichund, the Calcutta merchant, requesting them to act as mediators.

It is probable that if these overtures had been made previous to the capture of Hoogly they would have been attend ed to but after that event, the Nuwah was so exasperated that he vowed vengeance against the English and even his most favourite courtiers durst not mention to him the subject of peace whilst his secret enemies were anxious to see him embroiled with a foe, through whose assistance they might hope for a revolution.

The Nuwab therefore after the usual delay of eastern courts, commenced his march, with a numerous army for Calcutta and on the 30th of January recrossed the river about ten miles shore Hoogly

In the meantime, the English had not been negligent in making preparations to appose his progress. They with drew their troops from Hoogly and fortified a camp, with soveral nutposts around it, a mile to the north of Calcutta and half a mile from the bank of the river. There was, however, a space left unguarded of nearly two miles between the right flank of the camp and the salt water lake though this opening the Nuwab passed with his army and encamped with his own troops withinside of the Mahratta dutch but the greater part of his forces lay between the Mahratta ditch and the lake

The proximity of an large a force determined Colonel Clive to make an attack upon the Nuwab's camp at mid night. The troops desided for this enterprise were 600 sailors armed with musquest the European hattallon, consisting of 650 rank and file 100 satillery men with six field pieces, and 800 Sepoys hut as there were neither horses nor hull ocks with the army the guns were dragged, and the ammunition carried, by Isicars and sailors. A little before dawn of day the English line cutered the Nuwab's camp and commenced firing to the right and left, but a thick fog coming on, they lost the road, and wandered about the encampment several hours, without effecting any thing of consequence, and returned to their own camp about noon.

The Nuwab was, however, so much alarmed, that the day after he moved his camp several miles distant, and desired Runjeet Roy, the agent of the Seats, who attended him on the expedition, to write to Colonel Clive that he was willing to enter into a negotiation. In consequence of this communication, several messages were brought and carried by Omichund and Runjeet Ray, and on the 9th of February a treaty was concluded.*

On the 11th, the Nuwab removed a few miles further off, and sent khelaats, or dresses of honour, to the Admiral and Colonel Clive, and through his agents, Omichund and Runjeet Roy, proposed an alliance, offensive and defensive, against all enemies. This proposal was accepted without hesitation, and the treaty was ratified and sent back the same day.

At the request of the Nuwab, a party of twenty artillerymen was sent to him, as an escort, and Mr Watts was appointed to reside at his court. This business being settled, the Nuwab proceeded towards Moorshudabad.

It has been before stated, that when Colonel Clive took charge of the expedition, he was instructed by the Madras government, that should intelligence arrive, whilst he was in Bengal, of the actual commencement of hostilities between the French and English, he should endeavour to seize upon the French settlement of Chandernagore. The above intelligence did arrive while the English army were employed.

See Appendix.

in the capture of Hoogly but so formidable was the French force at Chandernagore that, instead of attacking it, the governor and Council of Calcutta were very apprehensive that the French would join the Nuwab

But as soon as peace was concluded between the Nuwab and the English and the treaty of alliance offensive and defensive, ratified the latter through their agent Omichund asked his permission to attack Chandernagore. This application appears to have been quite unexpected by the Nuwab and very cootrary to his inclinations but as he was afraid of another rupture with the English, he decileed giving any orders on the subject. Colonel Clive therefore determined to prosecute the enterprise; and on the 18th of Fehruary crossed the river a few miles above Calentia, and eocamped on the opposite shore

Previous to this overt act of houldity, the Freoch had obtain ed iotelligeoce of Colonel Clives designs, and immediately sent letters to the Nuwab as he valued his own safety to protect their settlement. Their messeegers overtook him at Agua deep, a town forty miles south of Moorshudabad, where he halted and immediately wrote a letter peremptorily commanding the English to desist from their intention. He also sent to the Freech a present of scopcoo rupees, and directed to the Freech a present of Hoogly to assist them He also directed a releforcement to be sent from his army to Hoogly All these circumstances he afterwards denied, and Colonel Clive, finding him so wavering in his disposition, after a con siderable delay occasioned by objections and scruples on the part of Admiral Watson, gave orders for the attack 'of Chandernagore.

The principal difficulty in this nedertaking was to get 'the ships of war up the river for the French had taken the precaution of sinking several vessels laden with bricks in the channel, but by the assistance of a Monsieur Terrano, a deserter, who pointed out the places where the vessels were sunk, and the extreme precaution and skill of Captain Speke, the difficulty was overcome

On the 14th of March, the English army entered the French territory, and commenced hostilities, but the attack on the fort did not commence till the 22nd, when the batteries having been completed, and two of the ships destined for the attack, viz. the Kent of 64 and the Tiger of 60, (for the Salisbury could not gain her station,) being anchored opposite the fort, the contest began at sunrise, by the fire from the two batteries on the land side, which was shortly followed by that from the ships. The connonade was

A D 1757
Chandernagore taken.

O'clock the French hung out a flag of truce, and at three, Chandernagore was taken. During the time that messages were passing concerning the terms of surrender, a part of the garrison marched away, to offer their services to the Nuwab.

In order to account for Seraje-ad-Dowlah's having thus abandoned the French to their fate, it is requisite to state, that about this period the Afghans of Cabul, under their king. Ahmed Shah Abdually, again invaded Hindoostan, and, by the invitation of Aalumgeer the Second, come to Dehly, to rescue him out of the power of his servants,* and it was reported that Abdually intended to pay the eastern provinces.

^{*} See Dow's Hindoostan, Vol. II. Reign of Aalumgeer-

a visit, and to call the governors to account for the many year 8 revenue they had neglected to send to the imperial treasury

This circumstance was taken hold of by the partisans of the English and the other enemies of the Nanab to work upon his lears, and to prevent him from doing that which was so obviously his interest for at this time Meer Jaffier Khan Roy Dullub the Dawan the Sents and Guescety Begum, were all so disgusted with Seraje ad Dowiah's conduct, that they were anxious for an opportunity of deposing him.

The part of the garrison which had escaped from Chander nagore reached the French factory at Cossimbagar in safety, and were immediately taken under the Nuwab's protection On this Colonel Clive wrote to him, to demand not only their being delivered up but also that the English should be allowed to take possession of the French factory at Cossimbazar So bold a demand provoked Seraje ad Dowlah to an excess of passion and he threatened Mr Watts with instant death, but soon recollecting the imprudence of this threat, which would doubtless bring on him the vengeance of the English, and being at the same time solicitous of preser ving the French for future contingencies, he furnished Mr. Law the chief of the Cossimbazar factory with money arms. and ammunition, and ordered him to march with all his men, as if proceeding to Paina, but with a promise of recalling him should his services be required.

Mr Law who appears to have been well acquainted with the polules of Moorshulabad, told the Nuwah, that most of his chiefs were disastisfied with him that they were leaguing with the English against him and that, on the departure of the French, the smothered firms would burst forth and destroy him Seraje ad Dowlah felt the truth of his observation. but had not resolution o detain him; he however promised to send for him, should any thing occur but Mr. Law prophetically aid, "I know we shall never meet again." Accordingly, it is body of adventurers, consisting of 100 Europeans, sixty Coromandel sepoys, with thirty small carriages and four elephants, passed through Moorshudabad on the 16th of April, and, having crossed the river, proceeded towards Behar.

But this time, the mutual suspicions between the Nuwab and the English were so much increased, that Colonel Clive] thought a rupture inevitable, and therefore determined to send a detachment in pursuit of the French; but before he had time to carry his resolution into effect, he received intelligence from Mr. Watts, that the conspirators had made overtures to him. The person first employed in this negociation was named Yar Luttief Khan, an officer who commanded 2000 horse in the service of Seraje-ad-Dowlah, but who received a monthly allowance from the Seats, to defend them against any act of oppression, even from the Nuwab. This -overture seems to have been made merely to sound the disposition of the English, but was soon after followed by a specific proposal from Meer Jaffier Khan It stated, that being in daily fear of his life, he was, from self-defence, compelled to take measures for deposing the Nuwab, that he was well supported by the Dewan Roy Dullub, Gheseety Begum, the Seats, and, many principal officers of the army; and had no doubt of success, if the English would join him and that for such assistance he would recompense them in the most ample manner, and grant them every privilege, with regard to trade, that they might desire

The Governor and Council of Calcutta considered proposal made by Meer Jaffier as the most for

As soon however, as the Nuwab was informed of the marchof the English troops, and the desertion of Mr Watts, be was overwhelmed with astonishment and dismay, but hoping still to be able to detach Moor Jaffier from bisconfederacy with the Eoglish, he revoked the orders he had given for attacking bim and employed sev rai officers to bring about a reconciliation between them. But Meer faffier continuing loog untractable, and refusing to visit the Nuwab the latter got into his palanquin and attended by a small retinue, proceeded to Meer Jaffier's house. This visit produced 20 arrangement, sanctified as usual by mutual oaths oo the Koran Jaffier promised neither to folo nor give assistance to the Eoglish in the impending contest and the Nowab agreed to permit him, as soon aspeace should be restored to depart with his family and wealth wherever he chose to go

The Nuwab, the day following this interview ordered his whole army in which was included the troops of Meer Jaffier to assemble, with the utmost diligeoce in the vicinity of Plassey and seot orders to Mr Law, who was walting with his party at Bhaugulpore to come to his-assistance with the utmost expedition.

The English army arrived and halted on the 16th at Putolee a village where the high road to Moorsbudahad on the south side of the river, terminates but as it was then the rainy season and the greater part of the army proceeded by water, it was still requisite to keep by the river ude, and to pass the fort of Cotwa, famous for the defeat of the Mahrattas by Aly Verdy Khan. The governor of this place was in the interest of Meer Jaffier and had promised to surrender it after a presended resistance. Major Cocie was therefore sent forward on the 17th, with two hundred Europeans, 500 sepoys, one field-piece, and a small mortar, to summon the fort, but on the Major's arrival at Cutwa, he found the governor had changed his mind it therefore became necessary to attack it, and orders were accordingly given: but as soon as the garrison saw the troops advancing, they set fire to the mat building in the fort, and absconded The main body of the English army arrived in the evening at Cutwa, and encamped on the plain, but on that night the rains set in with such violence, that the troops were obliged to take shelter in the town and adjacent villages

Colonel Clive had despatched a letter every day, from his leaving Chandernagore, to Meer Jaffier, but had only received an answer to one of them: it was dated the 16th, and in this Meer Jaffier acknowledged his seeming reconciliation with the Nuwab, but said he would still carry into execution his covenant with the English. The coldness of this letter, at so important a time, caused suspicions in the l mind of the Colonel that treachery was intended: he therefore determined not to cross the river until his doubts should be removed. The two next days were spent in a state of suspense; but on the 19th a messenger arrived with two letters from Meer Jaffier, one of them addressed to his agent, Ameer Beg, the other to the Colonel: the contents were similar, viz that the Nuwab's army would march from Moorshudabad on that day, and that his post would be on one flank of the army, whence he would send more explicit intelligence. This communication, although it abated Colonel Clive's suspicions of treachery, did not point out any mode by which their plans were to be effected, nor did it give him a high opinion of Meer Jaffier's resolution or energy He therefore determined to consult his officers.

she oumher of whom were twenty, and having assembled them he proposed to their consideration, whether the army should immediately cross the river, and at all risks attack the Nuwab or whether, availing themselves of the great quantity of rice they had taken in Cutwa, they should remain there during the rainy season and invite the Mahraitas to coter the provioce and join them

After much debate the majority of the officers decided for the latter place there being only seven who voted for the immediate stack.

The sanction of the council of war did not however alleviate the anxiety of the Colonel, for as soon as it broke up, he retured alone to an adjoining grove, where he remained nearly an hour in deep meditation which coordined him of the absurdity of stopping where he was and acting now cotifely from the dictates of his own mind he gave orders that the army should cross the river next morning

The sick were ledged in the fort of Cutwa and at sunrise on the 22nd, the army began to cross, and all were landed on the opposite side by four to the after noon, at which time another messenger arrived from Meer Jaffier to inform the Colonel that the Nuwab had halted at Muncara, a village only six miles south of Cossimbarar and totended to entrench his camp and want the event at that place, where Meer Jaffier proposed that the English, by taking a circuitous route and getting in his rear should attack him by surptise

Colonel Clivn immediately sent back the messenger with an answer, that he would march to Plasses without delay and the oext morning would advance to Dacodpore, where if Jeer Jamer did not meet him he should make peace with the Nuwab. At sunset the troops got under arms; and, after a fatiguing march, arrived, at one o'clock in the morning, at Plassey; and immediately took possession of a mangoe-grove, eight hundred yards in length, and three hundred in breadth, which was surrounded by a slight bank and ditch: but, to them great surprise, they found, by the frequent sound of drums and trumpets, that they were, at a very little distance from the enemy's camp.

It appears that the Nuwab had changed his determination of entrenching his camp at Muncara, and had arrived in the vicinity of Plassey the preceding evening. After giving his orders for the security of his camp, he dismissed the officers, and sat ruminating in his tent on the events that were likely to ensue. It chanced that his attendants quitted him, one after another, to say their evening prayers, when a thief entered the tent unperceived, till he had nearly approached the Nuwab; who, starting up from his reverse, called out to his attendant, and, on their coming, abused them for their negligence, and asked them if they considered him as already dead?

As soon as it was day, both armies drew out in line of battle. The English force consisted of 800 European infantry, 100 artillerymen, and fifty sailors attached to the guns, which consisted only of eight six-pounders, and two howitzers: there were also 100 Topasses, or Indian Portuguese, and 2.100 sepoys. The Nuwab's army consisted of 18,00 well-mounted and armed horse, 50,000 infantry armed with various weapons, as matchlocks, bows, rockets, spears, and swords, and fifty pieces of cannon, chiefly twenty-four and thirty-two pounder. He had also forty Frenchmen with four pieces of light artillery.

The engagement commenced by a distant cannonade without much advantage oo either side, but about ooon a very beavy shower of rain came on, which damaged the Nuwabs powder and caused the engmys fire slacken whilst that of the English contloued without interruption, and although few of the shot struck the cannon against which they were directed, they had made considerable impression oo the troops which were drawn up in the rest of the artillery

During all this time, no message or intelligence arrived from Meer Jaffier, and the Colnnel began in be suspicious of his intention be therefore sent for Ameer Beg and questioned him on the subject. The agent replied that the troops who engaged the English were those under Meer Modden and Raja Mohun Loil and as soon as they should be defeated, be was certain his master would join the Colonel.

The Numab had remaloed in his tent, out of the reach of danger cootionally flattered by his attendants with assurances of victory but soon after twolve o clock a canono ball struck Meer Mudden, who was truly a hrave man and faithful servant. He was immediately carried to the Nuwah and having uttered a few words expressive of bls own loyalty and the want of it in others, died in his presence This affecting sight quite nvercame the courage of Seraje ad Dowlah he was involved in dispair and knew not what to do. He at length sent for Meer Jaffier, and placing his turban at his ect, said, "I now truly repent of my behaviour towards you "and call upon you, in the name of your respected brother in law, and my grandfather, the late Nuwab Aly Verdy "hhan, to lorgive what has passed I dow regard you as his "representative and conjure you, out of respect to his "memory and as a descendant of the prophet, to protect my "hile and my honour Meer Jaffier promised he would do so, but advised, as much of the day was spent, and the troops had been long under arms, that they should be recalled to camp, and that in the morning he would repulse the enemy. The Nuwab expressed his fears that the English would attack him during the night, but Jaffier assuring him that he would guard against that event, he sent orders to his Dewan, Raja. Mohun Loll, to return to the camp. The Raja returned a polite but determined refusal, saying, that if he should retire, alarm would thereby be spread among the troops, who would probably take to flight, and throw the whole army into confusion. Meer Jaffier, however, insisted on the retreat, and Mohun Loll, reluctantly returned to the camp about two o'clock in the day.

As soon as Meer Jaffier returned to his own tent, he wrote a letter to Colonel Clive, informing him of what had passed; and advising him either to push forward immediately, or to attack the camp at night: but the messenger, fearing to proceed while the firing continued, did not deliver the letter.

The ponderous cannon of the Nuwab, which during the engagement had been advanced a considerable distance in front of the camp, were mounted on platforms of a very large size placed on wheels, and not only conveyed all the ammunition, but afforded space for the men to work the gun: each of these required forty or fifty yoke of oxen to move them: great therefore was the confusion when they commenced their return to camp, exposed to the unremitting.

of the field-pieces of the English; who, taking advantage of the circumstance, advanced towards the entrenchment of the camp, but were some time kept in check by the four light guns managed by Sinfray and the other Frenchmen, and by showers of matchlock-balls from the entrenchment. About the same time, the troops of Meer Jaffier approached towards the right flank of the English, with an intention of joining them hut their signals not being understood, they were fred at, and compelled to keep aloof. At length Colonel Clire, being convinced that they were friends, ordered his troops to push on to the camp, and at five o clock entered the entrenchments which he found abandoned and the enemy flying on all sides.

The Nuwah s troops, as Raja Mohun Loll had predicted, on seeing their artillery returning to the camp, concluded that a general retreat was ordered they therefore began to quit the field in large bodies and Serate ad Dowlah, observing this desertion, and much alarmed by the approach of the English mounted a camel and accompanied by 2000 horse, retreated towards Moorshudabad. He arrived at his palace early next morning where although he hesonght those who had accompanied him from the camp to remain till he could prepare for his escape, and fix upon some place of refuge, he could not prevail on them to stay with him. Fortune had turned her back, and mankind abandoned him. He remain ed at Munsoorgunge till midnight when, taking with him his jewels and a large sum of money upon elephents, accompanied by his wife Looft-al Nissa, and one or two other women in covered carriages he hastened to Bogwangola where he embarked upon some of his own boats which were stationed there and proceeded up the river in hopes of meeting Mr Law with the French detachment whom he had ordered to juin him or of effecting his escape to Purneah but on his arrival opposite to Rajemahel, he and his women being oppressed with hunger they stopped at the cell of a Mohammedan derveish, named Dana Shah, and requested nim to procure them some food. To this man Seraje-ad. Dowlah, in the days of his prosperity, had offered an affront, the remembrance of which still rankled in his mind. he, however, received them courteously, and set about preparing some kicheery for them; but privately despatched one of his servants across the river, to Meer Cossim, the brother of Meer Jassier Khan, who commanded the troops at Rajemahel: and who, upon the receipt of the intelligence, immediately

The Nuwab seized upon the unfortunate fugitive. They first conveyed him to Rajemahel, and then proceeded with him to Jassier Khan's house in Moorshudabad, where he arrived on the 15th of Showal 1170. Meer Jassier being then absent at Munsoorgunge, he was delivered to Meerun, the son of Jassier, a young man of a very worthless character, who immediately offered a sum of money to any of his attendants who would go and put an end to Seraje-ad-Dowlah. For some time they all refused, but at length a wretch, named Mohammed Beg, who from his infancy had been nourished by the favour of Aly Verdy Khan's family, offered to execute the horrid deed.

At the time they seized Seraje-ad-Dowlah, and while they were conveying him to Moorshudabad, he requested the officer commanding the guard to make it known, that if they would spare his life, he would willingly retire to any part of the province upon a small pension. When therefore the assassing entered his apartment, he said, "art thou "come to kill me? What! will they "not let me live in obscurity?" he added, "no, no, it cannot be! I must die, to atone for the murder of "Hussein Cooly Khan". Time was not given him to say more. After the assassin had inflicted several wounds, he

^{*} Sec page 530.

of the 24th 2nd on the following day, about noon, arrived 21 Moidapore, in the vicinity of Moorahudabad.

As soon as the army was encamped Colonel Clive sent Mr Watts and Mr Walsh, attended by a hundred sepoys to pay Meer Jaffier a visit of ceremony This visit confirmed the hopes of all the partisans of Meer Jaffier, and clearly pointed out to the inhabitants of the city whom they were to consider as their future master

Some difficulties having occurred respecting the payment of the compensation due to the English, which amounted to £2750000 sterling Colonel Cilve did not enter the city till the morning of the 19th, when, escorted by a guard of 200 Europeans, and 300 sepoys, he took possession of the palace and garden of Morand Baug which had been allotted for his residence.

Here he was immediately waited upon by Meerun the son of Jaffier whom he shortly after accompanied to the palace at Munsoorgunge, and upon entering the hall of audience, he there found Meer Jaffier, with a number of officers and the principal inhabitants of the city, expecting his arrival.

At one end of the hall was placed the museud of Serajo ad Dowlah which Meer Jaffier appearing Meer Jaffer to the to avoid. Colonel Clive took him by the museud Jose 20- hand and, leading him to it, seated him thereon. He then presented bim with a saiver of gold mohurs, and congratulated him on his accession to the museud of Bengal, Behar and Orissa. This example was summediately followed by all the persons present and the event was announced to the public by the discharge of cannon and the sounds of martial music.

From this period, the power and influence of the English became paramount in Bengal.* and were we further to continue this History, it would be requisite to commence a new section, under the title of The Native Governors under the English Dynasty.

In Justice to the memory of Colonel Clive, I think it requisite to state, that none of the native Historians impute any participation in the death of Seraje-ad-Dowlah, to him. It is generally believed, that the capture of the Nuwab was kept a secret from the Colonel, till after he had suffered.

^{*} A very few months after Meer Jassier's accession, he was nick-named, by one of the wits of the court, "Colonel Clive's ass," and retained the title till his death

LIST OF THE NUWABS OF BENGAL.

SINCE THE YEAR 1757.

- Oct. 1760.—Cossim Aly Khan succeeded as Deputy to Meer Jaffier, who retired upon an ample pension.
- July, 1763.—Meer Jaffier was again appointed, in the room of Cossim Aly Khan expelled.
- Jan. 1765.—Nesim-ad-Dowlah, eldest son of Meer Jaffier, succeeded on the death of his father.

This year the East India Company received, from the Emperor Shah Aalum (King of the world), the appointment of Dewan of the three provinces.

- May. 1766.—Sief-ad-Dowlah (to whom a pension was granted, and the business of Nazim managed by Deputy) succeeded his brother, Nezin-ad-Dowlah, who died of the small-pox.
- Mar. 1770.—Mubaric-ad-Dowlah, on the same terms, succeeded his brother, Sief-ad-Dowlah, who died of an epidemic disease.*

^{*} The Office of Deputy Nazim was annulled in 1790, and Courts of Justice, with English Judges, appointed to every district.

- Sept 1793.—Nasur-al Mostle, succeeded his father Mubaric ad Dowlah
- April. 1810.—Zyn Adden Aly Khan (the present Nuwab) succeeded Nazir-al Noolk. He receives a pension from the English but has nothing to do with the government.

APPENDIX.

It may be necessary to premise, that the following documents are copied verbatim from the ancient records; and that the translations were made by Armenians, or other Foreigners, as none of the Company's Servants at that time understood Persian.

It appears extraordinary, that as the East India Company were then supplied with writers from Christ's Church Hospital, they did not select a few of them to learn the Oriential Languages. It would have saved much money, and prevented many quarrels.

APPENDIX No. I. (referred to in p. 275.)

Extract of a Letter from William Methwold, &c. dated Surat, 21 February, 1633, to the Company.

THE 2nd present, we received from Agra the King's Firmand, which gives liberty of trade unto us in his whole Country of Bengala, but restrains our shipping only unto the port of Piply, which Firmand was sent unto us by a servant of our own, which was dispeeded unto Agra.

[No. 989]

[N. B.—The Firman not being procurable, Mr. Bruce obligingly favoured me with the above Letter, in which it is mentioned.—C. S.

The reference at the bottom of page 259, should have been February 1633 4]

APPRHIER No II. (referred to in p 271)

Translate of Sultan Skauk Shujaes Neshaun Letters Patent to the English in Bengala. A. n. 1636 A. n. 1066

The Neshaun, or Letters Patent of the most magnificent Prince Sultan Shujah given the sixth month in the year of Hegira one thousand sixty-six, in the year of the Emperor Shah Jehaun his glorious reign

Be it known to all Great Governors Chancellors Farmers of the Ling's Rents, Colonels, Captains Rent Gatherers, Farmers of Customs Watchmen Ferrymen, and other Petty officers, that now are in place and hereafter shall be in the kingdoms of Bengala and Orixa, that this days Thomas Billidge and haglishman humbly presented his suit before our splendid throne aquainting us that the English Com pany a goods, according to the Great Emperor a Letters Patent. which are unalterable are by His free grant therein specified custom free all over his great Empire, humbly desiring us that there may a privilege be granted them, by us, to trade custom free in these parts, as also complaining that at present their trade with Country Merchants, our sublects as much bindered by our Governors to ports, towns Ac. demanding the English goods at their own rates, and forbidding any merchants to buy or sell with them, unless they condesceed to their actions and that the officers in the port, town, &c. demand four in the bundred custom on all goods imported and exported, as also anchorage in the roads belonging to these kingdoms of Bengala and Orixa

Upon due consideration had of all which, we were pleased to grant, and hereby command you, that, according to the above-mentioned Letters Patent of the Great Emperor, whose words no man dare presume to reverse, the factory of the English Company be no more troubled with demands of custom for goods imported or exported either by land or by water, nor that their goods be opened and forced from them at under rates in any places of government by which they shall pass or repass up and down the country; but that they buy and sell freely, and without impediment, neither let any molestation be given them about anchorage, as formerly has been, also, wherever they have order to build factories or warehouses in any part of these Kingdoms, that they be not hindered, but forwarded; as also where there shall any just and due debts be coming to them from our subjects, that all persons in office be helpful to them in their recovery, giving protection to no weavers, merchants, or any other that shall' appear to be really indebted to them In all the aforesaid matters, especial regard is to be had that you carry yourselves strictly in obedience to the Great Emperor's Letters Patent, and this my Neshan now given the English Company having an especial care that you fail not a little in your full compliance with our commands therein contained

[Diary kept by Streynshan Master, pp. 346, 347, No. 120.]

APPENDIX No. III. (referred to in p 321)

Translate of Nabob Skautitth Caune, Lord of the Noble ... min his confirmation of the English privileges in the Kingdom of Bengala. A. 11.1983 June, A. D. 1672

The Phyrwana, or Order of Shasta Ckauns, the Lord of Noblemen, dated this third day of the 3rd month to the 15th year of the glorious reign of Aurungzeeh Emperor of the World—

To all Great Officers, Chancellors, Farmers of the King's Custom's, Farmers of the king's Reot, Culoools, Captains, Rent-Gatherers, Custom Gatherers, Watchmen and all Uoder-Officers, oow belog, and that shall be, 10 these kingdoms of Bengala and Orixa, Declareth, that Walter Clavell, the English Captain, this day presented his suit before me, averring according to the Letters Pateot of the mighty Emperor (Shah Jehan) and Prioce Sulian Shah Sujah, as also by the Phyrwana or Order, in Vierr Jumbla, the Cawoe of Cawnes, deceased, the customs of all goods exported and imported bought or sold belonging to the English Company to be released

Whereupon I also give my confirmation of the same and order that according to the said Letters Patent &c. you govern yourselves and whatsoever goods the said Company shall import from Ballasore or any other place near the sea side up to Hugly Cossimbazar Patna, or any other place in these two kingdoms as also what saltpetre or any other goods they shall export from Patna, or any other place to Ballasore or any other port to the sea that you let them pass custom free without any let, impediment, or demands whatsoever: And wherever they have factories or warehouses that you help their factors in getting in their due debts from any weavers, merchants &c. that really appear to be indebted to them, without giving protection to any such person so indebted whereby they may any ways be wronged. And whatsoever boats, &c. whether their own or freighted, let them not be stopped on any pretence whatsoever, but suffered to pass without molestation. And notwithstanding I have lately, by reason of a great outrage committed by the Dutch, absolutely forbidden them any trade in these kingdoms aforesaid, so that Governors and other Officers have took occasion to stop and hinder the English trade, which I have not interdicted, with that of the Dutch, which I have strictly forbidden, I do déclare that the English never committed any offence of so high a nature that their trade should be hindered; and therefore I resolve and order, as before, that, according to the above-mentioned Order, and as their trade has for so many years quietly and without impediment gone on in these kingdoms aforesaid, that it now also be not hindered, but that whatever their factors and other servants shall buy or sell as aforesaid be no ways letted or impeded. And that I may hear no more complaints from the English in this matter, see that this my Order be strictly observed.

[A Diary kept by Streynsham Master 1675, 1676. No. 120, pp. 348-49]

APPENDIX No. IV. (referred to in p. 3431)

Being the Nisham of Sultan Mohammed Azim, is nearly a copy of the above, therefore not inserted

APPENDIX No V (referred to in p. 334)

Copy of the Emperor Aurungsthe & Firmaun A D 1680.

A. H. 1091

In the name of God Amen.

To all present and future Rulers in Surat, that remain in hopes of the Emperor's favour

Be it known, that at this happy birth of time it is agreed, of the English Nation, besides their usual custom of 2 per cent. for their goods, more 12 jezla, or poll money shall be taken.

Wherefore it is commanded. That in the said place, from the first day of Shuvaal, in the 23rd year of our reign, of the said people, 3 and a half rupees per cent. of all their goods, oo account of custom and poll mooey, be taken for the future. And at all other places upon this account, let no one hinder or molest them for custom, rawdarree, peashus, phirmaish, and other matters by the Emperor's Court forbidden, nor to make any demands in these particulars; observe. Written on the 23rd day of the mooth Suffer, in the year tweety three

N B.—The obscure part of this paper, and which gave, rise to the disputes, commences with And at all other!—C S

APPENOIX No VI. (referred to in p 356)

Copy of the Phirmaund given by the Mogal Aurungsibe to Nabeb Ebrahim Coun for Bengal dated the 23rd of April, $ 1640 and in the 33rd sear of the King o reign A. W 1101

You must understand that it has been the good fortune of the English to repent them of their irregular past proceedings and their not being in their former greatness, have, by their vackeels, petitioned for their lives, and a pardon for their faults, which, out of my extraordinary favour towards them, have accordingly granted. Therefore, upon receipt hereof, my Phirmaund, you must not create them any further trouble, but let them trade freely in your Government as formerly: And this order I expect you see strictly observed.

[No. 274, page 123.]

APPENDIX No. VII. (referred to in p. 356.)

Copy of a Phirmaun of the Emperor Aurunguebe, dated the 23rd of the month Jummaudee Auvull, in the 33rd year of the most glorious reign, A. H. 1101. Sent from Surat 1690.

ALL the English having made a most humble, submissive Petition, that the ill crimes they have done may be pardoned, and requested a noble Phirmaun, to make their being forgiven manifest, and sent their vacqueel, to the heavenly palace, the most illustrious in the world, to get the royal favour; and Ettimatt Caun, the governor of Surat's Petition to the famous court equal to the sky, being arrived, that they would present the Great King with a fine of 150,000 rupees to his noble treasury, resembling the sun, and would restore the merchant's goods they took away to the owners of them, and would walk by the ancient customs of the port, and behave themselves for the future no more in such a shameful manner: Therefore His Majesty, according to his daily favours to all the people of the world, hath pardoned their faults, mercifully forgiving them; and out of his princely condescensions agrees, that the present be put into the treasury of the port the goods of the merchants returned, the town flourishing, and they follow their tradu as in former times, and Mr. Child who did the disgrace, be turned out and expelled. This order is irreversible.

[No. 274, pp 38, 39]

APPENDIX No VIII. (referred to in p 357)

Translate of the Nabob Ebrahim Camin and King's Divan's General Perwanna for the English their paying only Rupees 3000 yearly for their, Trade. A. H. 1002 3 A. D. 1691.2.

To all Mutsuddies, Carrowries, Jaggerdars, Gomashs, Phousdars, Jimmedars, Conongees, belonging to the Subahship of Bengal, now in service or that shall be hereafter

BE it known, that, before this, an ample Husbull hookum for the pardoning all the faults of the English has arrived to me from the King, under the seal of Lutfullah Cawne, since that, another Husbullhookum, under the seal of Assud Cawne, arrived from the king to Kafait Cawne, his Duan, the copy of which is arrived in my secretary soffice from said Kafait Cawne, which is, viz. That he should, according to ancient custom, take supers 3000, as a pishcash of the English in light of custom yearly and not demand or ask ton any account whatever, more than that the copy of which Husbullhookum is write on the back side of this Perwanna. For this reason I write you, That, from the beginning of the 34th jear of Jeloose (or the king's reagn) according to the kings order, je, instead of custom, take but supers 3000 of them yearly; and that in their buying and selling, you take not a pice more; they may contentedly continue their trade in the places of their former residence, as Hugly, Ballasore, &c. under the government of this subahship; and that ye assist their gomastehs in their lawful and just business upon all accounts. And that not one, upon the account of Rawdari, Jimmendare, or Firmashe, &c. be suffered to defraud or molest them, it being forbidden by the King. God forbid that in any one's government robberies be committed; but if so, that the Phousdars of said places use their endeavours to find and restore said goods to the owner? Dated the second day of the moon, in the 35th year of Jeloose.

[Received per Orange 1692. No. 265. A.]

Appendix No. IX. (referred to in p. 357)

Translate of an Husbullhookum, under Assid Cawne's Seal, upon Kefait Cawne, Duan of Dacca, for the English's paying Three Thousand Rupees annual Pishcash, in lieu of Custom (procured by the aforesaid Kefait Cawne's Letter), dated the Twenty-first of Jemadestanny, in the Thirty-fourth year of the King's reign, or February the Tenth, 1691.

A. H. 1002.

Petition being made, That you writ that an "Husbull-hookum, under the seal of Lutfoola Cawne, was come to the Viceroy, that the English should trade according to ancient usage; that of that nation two or three were arrived in the port of Hugley; and that Mahmoud Eckbar, Officer of said part had given them encouragement and taken an obligation from them that they would give custom on their merchandize, as hereafter should be determined, that in said Husbullhookum nothing was mentioned concerning the receipt of custom neither was it under the Virier's seal what had been determined that their ancient usage, to your knowledge, was rupees 3000 annual pisheash, for which they carried on their trade and business that after that, it was determined for them to pay cushum 3} per cent. as they did in Surat, and that now for the receipt of custom from this mation, you would act according to order, and that it was agreed on formerly for them to day 3000 rupees annual pishcash, that in the year 1000 it was resolved they should pay 3} per cent. included poll money and that in Surat they pay the same now What would His Majesty please to order? Upon which the King gave order that pisheash should be received of them according to ancient usage. Therefore I write you. That you act according to the Phirmaund, and advice of the contents hereof.

[Received per Orange 1692 No. 275 A.]

APPREDIX No. Y. (referred to in p. 373)

Translate of a Dustuck granted to Sir Edward Littleton by Order of the Prince Sultan Mohamood Assam Ooshan given under the Seal of his Duwan, Allee Reza, for trade in the Province of Bengala, dated the 12th day of Rajebe, in the 43rd year of the King's reign, Anno Hedgero iiii January 26th, Anno Christi 1700.

Dustuck to the Foundars, Jaggerdars, and all of the Govern ment under Dacca, Hughly, Cassimbazar Balasore and Rajahmaul, &c. in the Province of Bengal.

and Orixz, at the port of Hugly, &c. ports in the provinces aforesaid.

By these presents know ye, from the fayour of the Imperial Majesty, that, at this time of conquest, and in this flourishing reign, Mr John Surman and Coja Surhhud, gomashtahs (factors) of the English Company have humbly presented their petition, setting forth, That, according to Sultain Azelm Shah Bahauder his, and former, Sunods, they are free of customs throughout the whole conquered empire the port of Surat excepted, and that they do annually pay into the treasury at the port of Hugly a pishcash of 3000 rupees, in lieu of customs, they hope that, according to the tenor of former Sunods, they may be favoured with a gracious Phirmsund confirming them. Commanded and ordered That all their merchantile affairs together with their gomastahs, have free liberty in all subabships, to pass and repass to-and fro either by land or water in any port or district throughout the several provinces abovesaid And know they are custom, free , that they have full power and liberty to buy and sell at their will and pleasure and that there yearly be received into the treasury a pishcash of 3000 rupees, as has been customary heretefore that if in any place or at any time robberles are committed on their goods they be assisted in the getting of them again that the tobbers be brought to justice, and the goods be delivered to the proprietors of them. In whatspever place they have a mind to scule a factory, fairly to buy and sell goods in, they have liberty and be assisted. That on whomsoever merchants weavers de, they have any demands, on whatsoever account, let them be alded, and their debtors brought to a true and fair account, and be made to give their gomashtake their right and just demands. That no persons be suffered to injure and molest their gomashtahs wrongfully and unjustly. And for customs on hired boats (cutccarrah), &c., belonging to them, that they be not in any manner molested or obstructed.

They further petition, That if the petty Duans of Subahsips demand sight of the original Sunods and Perwaannas, under the seals of the Duans and subahs, the original Sunods cannot possibly be produced in any place without a great deal of difficulty, they desire that a copy from under the seal of the Chief Cauze be sufficient, sight of the original Sunods not being demanded, nor they forced to take Sunods and Perwannas under the Duan and Subah their seals. That the rentings of Calcutta, Chuttanutty, Govindapore, in the Purgna, of Ameirabaud, &c. in Bengal, were formerly granted them and bought by consent from the Zemeendars of them are now in the Company's possession, for which they yearly pay the sum of 1195R. 6A. That thirty-eight towns more, amounting to $121R. 8A. adjoining to the aforesaid towns, which they hope the renting of may be granted, and added' to those they are already in possession of; that they will pay annually the same amount of them. COMMANDED, that the copy under the seal of the Chief Cauzee be regarded; that the old towns formerly bought by them remain in their hands as heretofore; and that they have the renting of the adjacent towns petitioned for, which they are to buy from the respective owners of them; and that the Duan and Subah give permission.

They still petition, That from the reign of Aurungzebe, Madras coins were received into the Subahship's treasuries for under value, and are still, notwithstanding they are full as valuable as Surat rupees are, whereby, they are great losers; they hope the Imperial order may be given for them to be received into the treasuries as Surat rupees are, in case they are as good. That any person being servant to the Company eloping from them from whom debts and accounts are due, they desire that whosoever so deserts he delivered back to the Chief of their Factory That their gomashtas and servants are molested and troubled for phousdarry (absab crumsma) de, impositions which they request they may be exempted from Commander and ordered That from the fifth year of this blessed reign if Madras rupees are made the same goodness as Surat siccas, there he oo discount on them That whosoever of the Company's servants, being debtors, desert them, selze from, and deliver them to the chief of their factory That they he oot molested for phirmaushs and impositions.

They petitioo That io Bengal, Bahar, and Orissa, tho Company have factories and that in other places they likewise designs to settle Factories they accordingly desire, that in any place where they have a mind to settle Factories they may have forty begaes of ground given them for the same. That it often happens ships at sea meet with tem pestuous winds, and are forced into ports, and are sometimes driven ashore and wrecked the Governors of the ports in furiously seize on the cargoes of them, and in some places demand a quarter part salvage. That in the islands of of Hombay belonging to the English, European siccas are current they request that, according to the custom of Madras, they may at Bombay coto siccas. CONMENDED AND ORDERED That, according to the custom of their Factories in other subahabips execute; these people having their Factories in several ports of the kingdom, and commerce to the place of the toyal residence and have obtained very favourable Phirmans cuttom free. Let there be particular case taken that there be duly assistance, given them about goods and wrecks, on all occasions. On the islands of Bombay, let there be the glorious stamp upon the siccas coined there; passing them current, as all other siccas are, throughout the whole empire. To all these render, punctual obedience, observing and acting pursuant to the tenor of this gracious phirman, and not contrary in any, respect, whatsoever; nor demand yearly new sunods. Regard this particularly well.

Written the 27th of the moon Mohurum, in the fifth year of this glorious and ever happy reign.

[East-India Records, Book No. 593]

APPENDIX No. XII. (referred to in p. 551.)

Treaty and Agreements with Serajah Dowla, dated Feb. 7, 1757. A. H. 1170.

Monsoor-ul-Mulck Serajah Dowlah Shah Kuly Khan Behauder, Hybut Jung, Servant of King 'Aalumgeer the Invincible.

ARTICLE I.

That the Company be not molested upon account of such privileges as have been granted them by the King's Firmaund and Husbulhookums, and the Firmaund, Husbulhookums in full force.

That the thirty-eight Villages, which were given to the Company by the Firmaund, but detained from them by the Soubah, be likewise allowed them, nor let any impediment or restriction be put upon the Zemindars.

ARTICLE IL

That all goods belonging on the English Company and having their Dustuck, do pass freely by land or water, in Bengal, Bahar and Orlsza, without paying any duties or fees of any kind whatsoerer and that the Zemindars Chokeydars, Guzerbauns, &c. offer them no kind of molestation upon this account.

ARTICLE III.

That restitutions be made the Company of their factories and settlements at Calcutta, Cossimbuzar Dacca, &c, which have been taken from them.

That all money and effects, taken from the English Company their factors and dependents, at the several Sculements and Aurungs, be restored in the same conduiton that an equivalent, in money be given for such goods as are damaged, plundered, nr lost, which shall be left to the Nabob's justice to determine

ARTICLE IV

That the Company be allowed to furtily Calcutta, in such manner as they shall esteem proper for their defence without any bindrance or obstruction.

ARTICLE V

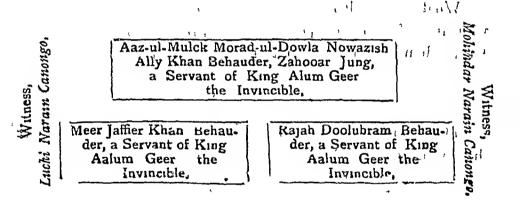

That siccus be coined at Allenagur (Calcutta) in the same manner as at Moorshudahad and that the money, strick in Calcuta, be of equal weight and fineness with that of Moorshudahad. There shall be no demand made for a deduction of Batta.

ARTICLE VI

That these proposals be ratified in the strongest manner, in the presence of God and his prophet, and signed and sealed to by the Nabob, and some of his principal people.

ARTICLE VIL

And Admiral Charles Watson and Col. Clive promise, in behalf of the English Nation, and of the English Company, that from henceforth all hostilities shall cease in Bengal; and the English will always remain in peace and friendship with the Nabob, as long as these articles are kept in force, and remain unviolated.

APPENDIX No. XIII. (referred to in p. 556)

Treaty with Jaffer Ally Khan.

I swar, by God and the Prophet of God to abide by the

Meer Mahomed Jaffer Khas Behauder Servant of King Aalum Geer

Treaty made with the admiral, and Colonel Clive (Sabut Jung Bekauder), Governor Drake, and Mr Watts

ARTICLE I.

Whatever articles were agreed upon in the time of peace with the Nabob, Serajah Dowlah Monsoor ul Mulck Shah kuly Khan Behauder, Hybut Jung, I agree to comply with.

ARTICLE IL

The enemies of the English are my enemies, whether they be Indians or Europeans.

ARTICLE IIL

All the Effects and Factories, belonging to the French, in the province of Bengal (the Paradise of nations) and Bahar and Orlssa, shall remain in the possession of the English, nor will I ever allow them any more to settle in the three provinces.

These words were written in his own hand.

ARTICLE IV

In consideration of the losses which the English Company have sustained, by the capture and plunder of Calcutta, by the Nabob, and the charges occasioned by the maintenance of the forces, I will give them one crore of rupees.

ARTICLE V.

For the effects plundered from the English inhabitants of Calcutta, I agree to give fifty lacks of rupees.

AR FICLE VI

For the effects plundered from the Gentoos, and Mussulmen, and other subjects of Calcutta, twenty lacks of rupees shall be given.

ARTICLE VIL

For the effects plundered from the Armenian inhabitants of Calcutta, I will give the sum of seven lacks of rupees. The distribution of the sums, allotted to the natives, English inhabitants, Gentoos, and Mussulmen, shall be left to the Admiral and Colonel Clive (Sabut-Jung-Behauder) and the rest of the Council, to be disposed of by them to whom they think proper.

ARTICLE VIII

Within the ditch, which surrounds the borders of Calcutta, are tracts of land belonging to several Zemindars; besides this, I will grant the English Company six hundred yards without the Ditch.

ARTICLE IX.

All the land lying to the South of Calcutta, as far as Culpee, shall be under the Zemindary of the English Company, and all the officers of those parts shall be under their jurisdiction. The revenues to be paid by them (the Company) in the same manner with other Zemindars.

ARTICLE X.

Whenever I demand the English assistance, I will be at the charge of the maintenance of them

ARTICLE XL

I will not erect any new fortifications below Hoghly near the River Ganges

ARTICLE XIL

As soon as I am established in the Government of the Three Provinces, the aforesaid sums shall be faithfully paid, Dated the 15th Ramaan in the 4th Year of the Reign.

:

ADDITIONAL ARTICLE NIL

On condition that Meer Jaffier Khan Behauder shall solemnly ratify, confirm by oath, and execute all the above Articles which the underwritten on behalf of the Honorable Last Indian Company do declaring on the Holy Gospels, and before God, that we will assist Meer Jaffier Khan Behauder with all our force to obtain the Soubahship of the province of Bengal, Behar, Orissa; and further, that we will assist him to the utmost, against all his enemies whatever, as soon as he calls upon us for that end; provided that he, on his coming to be Nabob, shall fulfil the aforesaid Articles

[N. B.—The last two Numbers are taken from a book, entitled "Treaties and Grants from the Country Powers to the East Indian Company," published A. D. 1774.

EXPLANATION

OF

THE TITLES OF THE GOVERNORS

UNDER THE

MOGHUL DYNASTY

SEOT. YI

No.	Page
The Slave of Hussein, the Lord of the World	191
2 The Victorious Lord	192
3 No particular meaning He was a Hindoo	196
4 The Most Illustrious Lord, and Poster Brother	101
5 Falcon Lord	204
6 No meaning He was a Hindoo Prince	206
7 The Pole Star of Religion, and Foster Brother	218
8 The Slave of the Emperor Jehanghire	131
9. The Glory of the Religion of Islam	132
10. No applicable meaning	243
11 The Victorious in War	248
12 King of the World	257
13 The adopted Son, literally "Born in the house	263
14 The Respected Lord	261

Houseln was the grandson of Mohammed, and la adored by the Persians.

No.					Page:
a5. The Devoted Lord		•••	•••	•••	265
16. No applicable meaning	•••		•••	•••	266
17. The Most Illustrious Lo			•••	•••	271
18. Lord of the True Faith	•••	•••	•••		273
19. The Praiseworthy and Br			•••	•••	277
20 *The Viceroy, The N					• •
Lords, The Generals			•••		312
21. The Viceroy, The Wo					J
the Nobility	_			•••	325
22. The Viceroy, The Devot				rious	5 5
Lord	-		•••	689	33 2
23. The Praiseworthy and M				e	333
24. The same person as No. 2					337
25. The Viceroy Lord Abrah			••	•••	354
26. The Prince of High Di			•••		368
27. The Viceroy, The Slave	•			rust=	J worthy of the Kingd		•
State, The supporte	•				40 0
28. The Viceroy, The Trust		· ·			•
The Hero of the Fa		•	_	•
Champion of the			•
The Valiant ‡	•••	•••	•••	•	448

^{*} Nuwab is the plural of Naib, a deputy, and may possibly mean the King's Deputy in all Departments. It is a modern title

[†] Jaffier has no meaning, but was the name of a celebrated Vizier under the Birmecide Princes Moorshud means, diterally, a Spiritual Guide, but is often applied to Kings.

[‡] Behadur is said to be a Tartar word and the precise meaning is not understood but it now accompanies every Military title. If it were a Persian word, the meaning of it would be (Valuable as a Pearl.)

No.

TITLES OF THE GOVERNORS.

Page.

20. The Illustrious of the State, The Head exalted
Lord	467
30. The Hero of the Kingdom The Sword of the State, The Formidable in War The Valiant	477
31 The Victorious of the Kingdom, The Lamp of the State The Slave of the Emperor, The Formidable in War The Vallant	526

THE END

INDEX

Ā

Aalumgeer, the title of Aurungzebe, 302, n.

Aalumgeer 11., Emperor of Hindoostan, 534, 553.

Aazim Khan, Governor of Bengal under Shah Jehan, 271—Recalled for suffering the Mughs and Assamese to Aazım Shah, Emperor of Hındoostan, 393—Defeated and slaın in a battle with his brother, Shah Aalum, 395.

tavage his dominions, 272.

Abdul Mujeed Asuf Khan, Governor of Bengal, Behar, and Orissa, under Akbar, Abdul Rezack, critical situation of, 215.

Abistagy, Governor of Khorassan, revolts against Abul Munsur, and becomes absolute Sovereign of Zabulistan, 19.

A

Abu Issaac, son of Abis tagy, 20.

Abul 'Munsur, the last of the Samanian dynasty, 19.

Abyssinians introduced into Bengal by Berbek Shah—Frequently rise in India to places of trust, 124, 127—Reduced by Futteh Shah to a level with his subjects, 125—An Abyssinian Sultan of Bengal, 130, another, 131—Abyssinian troops dismissed by Hussein Shah, 134—Procure employment in the Guzerat and Dekkan, and acquire the name of Siddees, 1b.

Adjodin, 37. Afghanistan, 57.

Afghans—Dynasty of the Lody family terminated with Ibrahim on his defeat by Baber 139—Empire of Hindoostan again transferred from Mog-

A

huls to the Afghans, by the victory of Shere Shah over the Emperor Homayon, 166-So vereignty of the Afghans over Bengal, nature of 194-95-Terminated with Daood Khan ib. subra-The scattered Af ghans collect in Orissa, 202 -03-Retaio aremnant power in Orissa, 201 210-11-Reduced to feudatories in Cuttack, 209 12-The Afghans obtain a transient authority in Bengal, 215-Haviog rallied in great force in Orissa. Invade the Voghul Governor 242 44-Submit of Bengal unconditionally, 243 Agmahel-See Rajomahel. Agra city of, 140-41 Government, of 165 Aguadeep towo of 575 Ahmed Shah, Sultan of Ren. gal 120-His character, Ib --His dominions invaded by Ibrahim Sultan of Joanpore ib.-Sends for aid to Shah Rookb 111 who Letter to Ibrahim Influences him to desist from invading

.

Bengal, 122—Death of Ahmed Shah 123 Ahmed Shah Abdally King of Cabul, invades Hindoostan, 553-Ahmednagur fort of 394. Ajmire, 41 215 334 Akbar Emperor of Hindoostan, conquers Bengal, Behar and Orista, 167 192

Akdala, fortress of 99 101

mahal.

Akbarnagur 215-See Raje-

Alla, Emperor of Dehly 94.
Allahabad fort of 169—
John government of, (formerly Joosy 199.
Altumsb Emperor of Dehly takes Behar 55—Conquers
Bengal 56

Alumgeernagur, Moghul name of the capital of Cooch Behar 320.

the mouth of the Megna) fort of 339 Aly king of Ghizne 37 Aly Ghur fort of, 548 Aly Mickb, 65 60

Alumgeemagur

A

Aly Mubarick, (Alla Addeen,) Governor of Bengal, unites the divisions of Lucknowty and Sunergong, 104-105

—Assassinated, 105

Aly Murdan Khulijy, Sultan of Bengal independent of the court of Dehly, 72-His previous history, 64-72-Character, 72, 69, supra-Assassinated, 74, Aly Verdy Mohabut Ben-Jung, Governor of Behar, and Orissa, gal. under Mohammed Shah. 477—His, previous history, 449-51, 453 n, 454-55, 469-80- Surrenders to the Emperor's messenger the treasures of the late Nuwab, but evades the demand for the revenue, 481-2—Expels deputy governor of Orissa, 483-4-In regulating Bengal, consults the good of the pub-1b-Recovers Orissa. which had revolted, 486-7-Meets an army of Mahrattas invading Bengal, 487-8-His line surrounded, ib—Retreats to Cutwa, 489—Surprises the Mahratta camp, 491—Defeats

A

Boskar Raow, 450-Sends to the Emperor for aid, ib.induces the Nuwab of Oude, who had entered Behar as an auxiliary, to return, 493-On the invation of Bengal by two Mahratta armies, prevails on the Poona Chief Berar against the Chief. 403-4 — Defeats another invasion of the Berar Mahrattas, by threacherously assassinating their principal officers, 495-96-Mustapha Khan's defection, 497-9, and unsuccessful attempt to seize the government of Behar, 499-503-The Nuwab, by an embassy amuses the Berar Mahratta. 503-4—Defeats hım several engagements, 504-6, and recovers all the dependencies, except Cuttack, 505 -His proceedings for the recovery of Cuttack, 506-8 -Defeats the Mahrattas, 1b-Insurrection in Behar, 509-11 -The Nuwah overthrows the rebels, and re-establishes his own deputy, 514-16-Drives the Mahrattas from

.

Cuitack who again occupy it, 516—Rehellion of his grandson Seraje ad Dowlah 516 18—Yields Cuttack to the Berar Mahrattas, and agrees to pay them a choste for Bengal 519 20—His death 520—Character 523

Amaunee Gunge 514 Aphorisms of Shere Shah 168-Of Aly Verdy Khan 524 25

Arcot 583

Arracan, river 244 245 Arracan territory of, 233 4. 241 300 #-Rala of joins the Portugese pirates, to invade Bengal 236-His coast plundered by the pirates. 244-Repels a Portuge se armament, ib -Dislodges the pirates ib -The Arracan ners plunder the lower parts oi Bengai, 245, 267-Selze the eastern coast to the month of the Ganges 326,

Arailla king of Ghizne, 38

—Confines his brothers ib.
—Defeated by Sinjir Sultan of Khorasan and files to Hindoonian 39— Attempts to Hindoonian 39— Attempts to recover bis dominions is taken and put to death ih

A

Assam kingdom of, 211, 316

—Assamese invade Bengal 274 5 320-21—Assam invaded by Meer Joomla, 320—Its Raja sends presents to the Nuwab of Bengal 418

of Bengal 418 Assam (South) 68 # Aurungzebe, (Aalungeer) Emperor of Hindoostan 280 292 94, 304 CH 357 58 365 378 106 384,300-2 392-His death, ib-Division of the empire amongst his sons 393 Azeem Ooshan Governor of Bengal, Behar, and Orissa under Aurungzehe 273 370 -His character, ib 307-His proceedings till the province of Bengal is tranquillized 371 176 including his transac tions with the English Trad ing Companies, 372 73 n -He repairs the injuries done by the rebels, 376-His public works, ib -- He attempts to mnnopolize the foreign com merce of Bengal 378-79-Adopts several customs of the Aurungzebe, ib n.,—Office of Dewan separated from that of Nazim, 385-The Nazim suborns an attempt on the life of the Dewan, 387-Ordered to reside in Behar, 389-Alleviates the situation of the English under the violent measures of Aurungzebe 390-391-Recalled, 392-His subsequent history, ib, until his re-appointment to the government of Bengal Behar and Orissa, 303-4-Directconfirm Moorshud ed Cooly Jaffier Khan his deputy in Bengal and Orissa, 394-5-On the death of his father, Behadur Shah, mounts the imperial throne, 395-6-Oppossed by his three brothers, ıb.-Kılled ın battle, 397.

Azeemabad, Mohammedan name of Patna, 389.

Azmurdum (Silhet?), province of, 82, et n

Azo—See Semyle.

 \mathbf{B}

Baber (Emperor of the Moghuls), 137-41

 \mathbf{B}

Bagmutty, river, 74.

Bagora Khan (Nassir Addeen) made Sultan of Bengal by his father the Emperor Balin, 89 -Previous notice of him. 86 -Governs Bengal with reputation, 90—Called to the presence of the aged Emperor, 1b - Returning clandestinely to his kingdom of Bengal, loses the succession to the throne of Delhy, ib.—The nobles make his son Kiekobad Emperor, to the exclusion of Ky Khusero, his nephew, whom Balin's will had nominated, 94-Bagora Khan admonishes his son, ib -Their interview and reconciliation. 95-96—The father to retain Bengal as a distinct kingdom, on condition of not interfering with the government of Dehly, 1b -His son assassinated, and the imperial throne usurped by Feroze, 93-Bagora, as Sultan of Bengal, unmolested during the whole reign of Feroze, 1b -Intimidated by the Emperor Alla's power, voluntarily resigns the king dom of Bengal rotaining Lucknowty and the south west district in fief, ib —Con firmed in bis reduced domi

B
nioo by the Emperor Tughlik and permitted to use the in signia of royalty 98

Bahram Shah King of Ghizne, 30-His previous bistory 38-Character 39-Rebellions and fall of Moham med Bahlim ib -The King puts to death prioce Mobam med Husselo 40-Is driven from Ghizne by the prince s brother Slef Addeen Soury lb-Recovers that city, and destroys Sief Addeen 40-41 -Is thrice defeated by Alla Addeen ib -Files towards Lahore, and overwhelmed by these reverses dies th

Balasore town and district of 172,270,348 354 483. Ballo Emperor of Dehly, 33 31 Balkh cuy of 33

33 31 Balkh cuy of 33 Bankipore 505 Bankiporar German factory at, 482 83 Bar, town of 514
Barabutty, fort of 483
Barbek Shah,! Sultan of Bengal, 124—Introduces Abyssiniae and Negro slaves into his army some of whom he promoted to places of trust
th—His death, ib

ib -His death, ib Barbek Shahzadeh Sultan of Bengal 127-Notice of his previous situation as enouch of the palace, Ib -He promotes the cunuchs to important commands, and fills. the offices with persons of the lowest description ih —Ix assassinated by Mulk Andlei Commandar in Chief the 129 30 Barsool Government of 67 Batecala, Raje of 235

Batheodeh, city of, 21, 23
Bayezid, Sultan of Bengal put to death 177
Beetnagur Zemindar of 413
Behadur Khan first Gover nor of the Eastern (or Sunergong) division of Bengal, under the Emperor Alla, 89—
In the reign nf Muharick Shab assumes Independence, 05—

Submitting to the Emperor Tughlik, is pardoned, but superseded as imperial governor, o6.

Behadur Bhah, Emperor of Hindoostan, 395.

Behadur Shah, Sultan of Bengal, 169—Totally defeats the Emperor Mohammed Adıl, 170—Rules Bengal and part of Behar, in absolute sovereignty, ib.—His death, ib

Behar, conquered by the Mohammedans, 53-54---Taken from the Khulijy sovereign of Bengal by the Emperor Altumsh, 56— Hostilities between the King of Behar and the King of Bengal, 140, terminate in the reduction of Bengal by the Behar forces, 162-Behar and Bengal an united kingdom under Shere Shah, 166-Merged into the Empire, 166 -Government of, united by Ferrokhsere to that of Bengal and Orissa, 433—Separated from that of Bengal and

В

Orissa, 450—(And see-Bengal.)

Behar, territory of 43 and n_{141} , 143, 500, 508-9—Fort. of, 144.

Behar, North, included in the boundaries of Bengal, 98. Beloli, Emperor of Dehly 134-35, 150.

Benaras, Raje and province of, 56-58, 105—City of, 334—And see Cuttack Benaras.

Bengal, History of the last Hindoo Raja of, 59-60-Conquered by the Mohammedans, 62-New division of the district, among the Khulijy-Chiefs, by Cuttub Addeen. 73-Imperial Dewan appointed over, 74-Taken by the Emperor Altumsh from the-Khulijy Chiefs, 79, and made a provincial government, ib -The Emperor Balin makeshis younger son Bagora independent Sultan of, 95-A' distinct kingdom by treaty with the Emperor of Dehly, 99-Bengal divided into two districts, one a vassal kingdom. and the other a provincial

R the under covernment 100-Emperors of Dehly The eastern and western districts ro-united under an Imperial governor 106-By treaty between the Sultan and the Emperor Beogal acknowledged an Independent kingdom 108-The indepen dent lice of Klogs terminates with Mahmood Shah, 146-Uoited, with Behar Into one kingdom uoder Shere Shah. 167-Merged into the im perial dominions on Shere Shah's becoming Emperor of Hindoostan, r69-Divided into provinces by the Emperor Shere Shah ib - Made an integral government, as a province of the empire, under Selim Shah 170-72-With part οŧ Behar an independent kingdom Behadur under Shab 170-Falls with Behar under the dominion of Soil man Shah an Afghan of the herany tribe 171-who affects to bold his kingdom of the Emperor Akbar 175-

Sultan Daood Khan, having

viii

R assumed lodepeodence is defeated and executed as a rebel, 189 and Bengal with Behar and Orissa, are sunex ed to the empire under Akbar separate governments 2.5 192-Division of the provin cial executive government onder Akbar 102-New regulation of the Moghul jaglerdars, 193-Rebellion in Bengal and Behar 108-200-Government of Bengal Behar and Orissa, united under Akbar 200-1-Having been alternately combined and separated according to the policy of different Emperors the three provinces are again united under one government by Ferrokhsere, 437 38-Again separated 452-The Nuwabs of Bengal govern indepen dently from the death of the Emperor Mohammed Shah till the ascendancy of the English , a period locluding only part of the reign of Alv Verdy Mohabut Jung 523 24 #... and the entire reign of Seraje ad Dowlah, 512-The Nuwab of Bengal derives his power from the ascendancy of the English, 568

B

Bengal, boundaries of, extended to the Gunduk, so as to include North Behar, 98—Territories annexed to, viz Kurrah Manikpore, 67—
Chittagong, 329-30, 403-5—
Midnapore, ib.

Bengal, the following cities have been successively the capital of, viz Nuddeah, 61—Gour, 63 Pundua, 99, 102 Gour again, 114—Tondah 174 Gour, a third time, 189 Rajemahel, 214 Dacca, 235—Rajemahel, a second time, 283 Dacca again, 233—Moorshudabad, 397-409

Berar, 483.

Berar Mahrattas, authority for the origin of, 483'n.

Berkis, Raja, master of the impregnable fort of Rhotash, circumvented by Shere Shah, 164 et seq.

Bettiah, (Gunduk,) river, 136.

Behar, capital of Cooch Behar, 318.

B

Bhagalpore, 209.

Bhaggarutty, river, 273, 377, 486

Bhatteah, 24.

Bheemnagur, 25.

Bheerbhoom, 187, 404, 354,

490

Bhendereek, 214.

Chetourieh, Zemindary of,

Bhime, 25.

Bhiram' Khan, Governor of the Lucknowty division of Bengal under Alla, 96—His death, ib.

Bhoosnah, Foujedary of,

Biana, fort of, 50 Government of, 119.

Bijore, 151

Bishenpore, 404.

Bissuntpore, district of 202, 304.

Black Hole (at Calcutta), 539-41.

Bogwangola, 359, 513, 563

Bokhara, city of, 17,19.

Bootan, territory of, 63, 67 n.

Bost, capital of Khorassan, 381

ı

Roujepore Fort and Raje of, 169, 170, 275 (Boorbanpare) Brampore, 18. Rudgehudge, fort of 552 Rukharast. Rakkara.

151-And see Bukhtore, 184 Bullosh 236 Rundelcund 30-32 Bungmutty, river 65 Burdehun pr Murdehun, city of 65 Burdwan, 184 112, 208 245-District of 358 Burhampooter, river, 67 #, 305 6 318-19 339.

Burhanpare, $43, 449 Byram Shah Emperor of Hindoostan, 87

O Cabul, 281 Calcutta origin of, 376-77 -Flourishing state of, 436 -Taken by Serale-ed Dowlah 540-Retaken Ъy Colonel Clive 555 Calicotta, 373 288 Calicut, 123 Callinger capital of Bun delcund, 27 18 Fort of 169-71

Country of 85

Candahar 245

Cannuge 50 Raja of suh mits to Mahmood Ghazy 12 Government of. Subah of assumes indepen dence 119 Carantic Pala Ghaut, tetri tory of 313 Chaja Alas, (otherwise Ghyas Reg) history of 220 of my

0

Chandernagore 332 360 365 536

Chietmul Telal Addcen Snitan of Bengal 118--Different causes assigned for his becoming a Mohammedan Again removes the seat of government from Pundua to Gour 1b

Chinderl 156

Chinsura, town of, 147 360 305 536

Chitor 159-61

Chittagong 233. 256-Territory or surrendered to Shah Jehan, 272 Authorities respecting its history and boundaries, ib. # A depen dency on Arracan, 1080

Annexed to Bengal, 338, 480
—Port of, 350.

Chond, district of, 154-55, 148. Choppergotta, near Calpie, 165.

Chowsar, 148, 167.

Chunar, fort of, 118-9, 160-4

Chuttanutty, part of the present Calcutta, 346, 348, 359, 386 Fortified by the English, 362, 366-67.

Colgong, 146.

Commorea, 328.

Comra, 471

Coosa, river, 65

Cossim Khan, Governor of Bengal under Jahangire, 243—Recalled for not repelling the invasions of the Mughs, 247 Cossim Khan (Brother of Meer Jaffier), seizes Serajead-Dowlah, in his flight after the battle of Plassey, 568.

Cossim Khan Jobuny, Governor of Bengal under Shah Jehan, 267 Expels the Portuguese from Hoogly, 267-71.

Cossimbazar, 329, 341, 419, 532,

O

Cooch Rehar, 191-Boundaries of, 214 First entrance of the Moghuls into, ib—Reduced by Islam Khan Mushoedy, 274 Incursions of its Chief into Kamroop, 324—Conquered by Meer Joomla, 325—Its Raja again expels the Moghuls, 369—Sends presents to the Nuwab of Bengal, 405 Invaded and subdued by a Bengalese force.

Cudgwa, (Kudgwa) 293,

Currah, see Kurrah.

Currumnassa, river, 147-78

Cutlickpore, see Tuglickpore.

Cuttack, district of, 184—Included in Orissa, 193,—Afterwards same as province of Orissa, 392-96, 528 n Fort of (Saringghur), 185, 213; capital of Orissa, 213, 487

Cuttack, Benaras, 183.

Cuttub, an imposter, personating Prince Khusero, raises a rebellion in Behar, 245-46 Slain, 245-46.

Addeen Abick. Cuttub under Lahore Sultan of Mahmood, 48 First Moham medan king of Hindoostan, 57 58 His previous history 52 58 and see in 50-53 his services as General under Mohammed Ghory His death 208-00

Cunub Addeen Kokultash, Governor of Bengal, Behar, and Onsia under Jehangire. 221 Having led a party to Burdwan to assassinate Shere Atgun, is slain by Shere 232

Cutwa, 200 560

Dacca, 98 s-Made the capital of Bengal 237, 270 313

Dalkisor, ziver, 209 Danes, date of their catablishment in Bengal 341 Daood Khan Sultan of Bengal 176 Assumes dependence ib Invades the territories. imperial 177-Besieved in Pains, 175---Abandons that city, 179-Evacuates Tondah and

D retreats to Orissa, 180-81 -Defeated by the Moghul army 184 Becomes a vassal of the Emperor and is suffer ed to retain Orissa, 185-86 Bengal 187--Recovers Vanquished and put to death as a rebel, 180 Debalpore Government of

116 Deccan Shabazpore, 314. Dehly Hindoo kingdom of 35 46 Raja of, Slain in a battle with Mohammed Ghory 48 Dehly, city of aq 50, 51

since its capture by Cuttub Ablek considered the capital Hindoostan 46 although deserted by individual Emperors for other seats of government 102, 103, 121 136

Dehly empire of 56 69 71 S1 83.

Dehpareh, 560.

Dekkan, territory of 102 216 547 Conquest of by Jehangire, 257 Revolt of repressed ib Soubahdar of 547 Deocote 66, 72

D

Derriapore, 180.

Derveish, anecdote of a, 387. Dherpore, 212.

Dinagepore, Raje of, invaded from Bengal, 488-9

Dirhem, a small silver coin, 21 n

Diu. island of, 30
Dooab, territory of, 28 Dowletabad, the capital of the Emperor Mohammed Shah, 102

Dummooda, river, 203-4 Durbunga, district of, 516.

Dutch, date of their establishment in Bengal said to be 162-5, 3314-5 n—Unite with the English against the Ostend Company, 481-357-9

E

East-India Company (English) establish a factory at Agra, 249-50—Abandon the trade by land from Patna to Surat, ib—Permitted to send ships to Pipley, and establish at that port their first factory in Bengal, 271-3—Acquire further privileges in Balasore and Hoogly, 279-280—Notice of Shah Jehan's firman, 280-2, 288, and the nishan of Sultan Shujaa, ib.—Dispute with Meer Joomla, 316 English vessels allowed to sail up the Ganges,331-2—Imposts on the English factories, 334-5--Their agents purchase, for 21,000 rupees, a nishan for a free trade exempt from duties, 333 -Impost in lieu of the jizia, 338—The Company procure a firman from Aurungzebe. 339—The Directors make Bengal independent of Madras, 340—The Nuwab of Behar restricts the factory at Patna, 3442-3—The Company annoyed by unchartered interlopers, ib.—Oppressed by the Nuwab of Bengal, 343-4-Authorized by James II. to make war on the Nuwab, and on Aurungzebe 1b - History of their affairs in Bengal till the death of Shaista Khan, 343-7—The Company invited to re-establish their factories in Bengal by Ibrahim Khan, 356-7—Involved in the vengeance of the Moghul'

\mathbf{E}

В

government by the piracles ot unlicensed traders, 357 -Bengal again made subservient to Madras by the Directors, 359 w The Eng lish fortify their factory at Chattanutty 360-Purchase Chuttanntty Govindpore and 373 378 — M Calicotta. effects of rival Companies, 380-Embassy from the King of England to Aurungzebe, 181-The capture of three Mogbul ships by an English pirate causes the negociation to break off 182 83-Ani mosity between the two Com panies conduced to its miscarriage, ib n-Date of the union of the Companies, ib n-Aurungzebe imprisons all the Lugiish in his dominions, to make them answer for the damages of the pirates 358 and seizes the Company's property 380-Calcutta made independent οf Madras. 360-01-Factory established at Cossimbarar 402 3-The privileges assured to the Eng lah by Shujaa and Aurung

Е zebe invaded by Moorshud Cools 427 - Embassy in consequence to Dehly 128-Thirty four firmans granted by the Emperor Ferrokhsere confirming and extending the immunities and powers of the Company 432-The liberty purchase thirty-eight towns on the banks of the Hooghly 434 frustrated by Moorshud Cooly ib - Dur ing the invasion of Bengal by the Mahratias the English are permitted by Aly Verdy khan to strengthen the de fences of Calcutta, and to fortify their factory at Cossim bazar 489 90-Causes of Serale ad Dowlab s hostility 533-Factory of Cosslmbazar capitulates to the Nawab 534-Calcutta taken 538-Suffer ings of the prisoners in the Black Hole 539-The survi vors released 541-The Com pany s agents, at subordinate factories escape to the fleet. 546-7-Expedition from the Madras to recover the settle ments in Bengal, 547-8E

Colonel Clive takes the forts of Budgebudge, Aly Ghur, and Tanna, 549—Retakes Calcutta, 1b.—Reduces Hooghly, 550-Attack on the Nuwab's camp, 551-Treaty of peace, 552 and of alliance with Seraje, ib -The English take the French settlement of 554-The Chandernagore, Company's agents conclude a secret treaty with Meer Jaffier Khan, general of the Nuwab, 558—Colonel Clive comménhostilities against the Nuwab, 1b.—Doubtful tone of Meer Taffier's correspondence with Col. Clive, 560-Decision of the Colonel, 561-Battle of Plassey 562 -Retreat of the enemy influenced by Meer Jaffier, 564-The English enter the enemy's camp, 565—Advance Moorshudabad, 568, meanwhile the Nuwab, a deserted fugitive, falls into the power of his enemies among the natives, and is put to death, 565 6—Colonel Clive raises Meer Jaffier to the musnud, 569.

F

Fakher Addeen Sekunder proclaims himself Sultan of Bengal, 104—His previous usurpation of the government of that of Sunergong, defeat; and recovery of that district, 1b—Fails in an attempt to reduce Lucknowty, 1b—.Taken prisoner and put to death, 105.

Fedai Khan, Governor of Bengal under Jehangire, 276-; 7—Remits a stipulated revenue, ib.—Superseded on the accession of Shah Jehan, 277-8.

Fedai Khan, Governor of Bengal under Aurungzebe, 332—Oppresses the English commerce, ib.—His death, 332-3.

Ferid Addeen Soor—See Shere Shah.

Ferekhabad, 520.

Ferose, Emperor of Dehly 100—His unsuccessful attempts to reduce Bengal, 107, 108.

Feroze Shah, Sultan of Bengal, 143—Murdered by his uncle, 144.

xv'

P Ferozeporeahad, 106 7 Feroze Emperor of Dehly.

100-1

Feroz Koh 40. Ferrokhsere Emperor of Hindoostan 423-His previous history 379 389 416, 42

-His death 437 Ferrokhzad King of Ghizne

36 French date of their esta

hlishment in Bengal, 334 5 -Their settlement at Chan dernagore taken by the Eng

liab 554 Feringy Basar town of 329 Fulta, 546 548

Sultan of Futteh Shah 119-Reduces the Bengal and alaves Abyesinian cunuchs of the palace ibmurdered in the Seraglio 120.

a

Ganges river 36 92 327-Changes its bed 276 Annual offering to 264 lb. #

Garypore 242 3

Ghergong capital of Assam,

1 2 8.

Gherie, 571 580 Ghizne capital of Zabulistan held hy the Anook of Afghans 20 n-After wards capital of the Gbiznean empire, embracing part of Hindoostan 21 33 39 40-Sometime in the possession of the Ghorian Dynasty 44 73

Ghiznean Dynasty 20 43 Ghor 36 39 36 159 Ghor Kings of their genealogy can be traced to the Khalifat of Aly 40. Ghorlan Dynasty 40 el 114

Ghoragot, 191 198 208 215

Ghowhatty 224 336

Ghyas Addeen Prince of Ghor 45-Appoints brother Mohammed Ghory generalissimo ib -Ghyas Addeen assassinates the young king of Bengal and usurps time, 175 6 Ghyas Addeen (son of Sekunder Shah,) Sultan of Bengal 113-Ilis previous the government for a short history, 111-6-Anecdote of his deference to the authority of the law, 112-13—Anecdote of his three favourite concubines, 114-15—His death, 117.

Gickers, tribe of, 51. Godagauree, 518. Gogra, river, 98.

Golconda, 253, 312-3.

Goompty, river, 178 n.

Gorackpore, Raje of, 230.

Gour, (called also Luck-nowly,) city of, 62, et n., 74, 109, 124, 177.

Govindpore, village of, 378, 543-4.

Gualior, fortress of, 137, 183, 305.

Gualpareh, 112.

Gunduck, river, 66 n., 108, 127.

Gungowtry or Kuthoury, district of, 70, 74.

Gunjy Kotta, fortress of,

Gurmseir, district of, 56.

Guzerat, province of, 31, 45,

H

Hafiz, the poet, anecdote of, 115.

Hajypore, city of, said to be founded by Ilyas Knaje Shums Addeen, 109, 146, 179—District of, 140, 143-4—Zemindary of, 207.

Hamilton, Mr., Surgeon to an embassy from the English Presidencies in India to the Emperor Ferrokhsere, 329, greatly promotes its success,

Hansi, fortress of, 34, 49,

Haroun al Rashid, year of his death, 18.

Herat (in Persia), city of,

Hideri (on the Ganges),

Hindoo Zemindars, oppressed by Moorshud Cooly Khan and his officers, 403-7, 410-15.

Hindoostan, frontier provinces of, overrun by Subactageen, King of Ghizne, 21—The countries of Lughman and Paishwur, taken by Subactageen, 22—[For the subsequent conquest of the Ghizneans in Hindoostan, see Mohammed Ghory, and Mussood the First.—The princes of the Punjab, allied with the Raja of Dehly, recover all the places, except Lahore which the Ghizneans had taken 35 36

Hindoostan, the Moultan Paishawur, and other provinces of, conquered Mohammed Ghory 45-Raja Bim Deo expels Mohammed Ghory from the Guzerat, ib -The passession of Lahore passes from the Ghimean to the Ghorian Dynasty, ib -Pittu Ral prince of Aimere, and Candu Ral King of Dehly, defeat Mohammed Ghory 47-In a second engagement, they are totally overthrown 48-Gola son of Pittu Rai holds Dehly, as a vattal to Mohammed Ghory, 49-Irchud, Raja of Benaras, totally defeated by Cuttub. general of Mohammed Ghory, St-[And see A/gdans]

н

Hindoogan Moghuls, under Zingıs Khan, make ıncursions into the northern provinces n-Tartars under 81 Timur defeat Mohammed III Afghan Emperor Dehly 110-Meanwhile, many of the Soubaha assumed independence, 180-19-Shah Rookh son of Timur, con sidered Emperor of Hindoostan, 120-Ibrahim Afghan Emperor of Joanpore defeated by Baher Emperor of the Moghuls. 139-Homayan Moghul Emperor of Agra. vanquished by Shere Shah, an Afghan, 167-The empire of Hindoosian reverts to the Moghula under Akbar 17 ---The governors of provinces assumed independence from the time of Mohammed Shah s death 526 #

Hissam Addeen Avuz., rais ed by the Khulijy Chiefs to the throne of Bengal, 75—His previous history ib. —Improves the city of Gour 76—His charac ter, 77—He compels the Raja of Kamroop, Tirhoot, and Jagernaut, to pay tribute, ib. -Driven from Behar by the Emperor Altumsh, 78-Allowed to retain the government of Bengal on conditions, imperial 7b.—Expels the from Behar. ıb. troops Defeated by Nasır Addeen the Emperor's son, and falls either in battle, or by the executioner, 78-79.

H

Homayon, (Moghul Emper-Agra) protects of or Mahmood Shah, 149—Expels Shere Khan from Bengal, 1b., 148-49 — Leaves Jehangire Cooly, Governor 147-8. On his return to Agra intercepted by Shere Khan, 1b -Resigns Behar and Bengal to Shere, by treaty, 147.—Treacherously attacked by Shere, escapes with difficulty, ib -Totally overthrown, 166.

Hoogly, town of 212, 254, 332.—Authorities respecting its origin, 277.

Hussin, 151.

Hyderabad, city of, 315,

I

Ibrahim, King of Ghizne, 48—Invades Hindoostan, ib.—Plunders Adjodin, and take Rupal, ib.—Appoints Sham Souty to the government of Ghor, ib.—His death, ib, Ibrahim, (Sultan of Joanpore, and last Afghan Emperor in Hindoostan of the Lody Dynasty,) invades Bengal, 120—Induced to desist by a menacing letter from Shah Rookh, 121—Defeated and slain by Baber, Emperor of the Moghuls, 141—Retrospective notice of, 155-6

Ibrahim, Emperor of Delhy, afterwards Sultan of Orissa, 116.—Dispossessed of this province by Soliman Shah Kerany, and treacherously slain, ib.

Ibrahim Khan, Governor of Bengal under Aurungzebe, 355.—Invites the English to return to Bengal, 356.—Order from Aurungzebe, allowing the Company free trade with that province for an annual present of Rs. 3,000 in lieu of duties, 357 58-Rebellion in Burdwan, 359-60-During its progress, the Dutch, French, and English fortify their fac tories 360-61 -The Nuwab to avoid a civil war weakly forbears to oppose the rebels. 362-Superseded by Aseem Oshan 365-6-Zubberdust khan, the Nuwah s son, twice defeats the rebels, 366-7 Ibrahim Khan Futteh Inng. Governor of Bengal and Orissa under Jehangire, 249-Character of his government, ib 150, Ilyas Khaje (Shums Ad deen) Sultan of Bengal 105-His successful expedition to Jagenagur 106-Attacked by the Emperor Feroze loses his new capital Pundua, ib -Is besieged in Akdala, 107 -Enters the enemy's camp in disquise, 16 -Ohtalna favourable peace from the Emperor acknowledging the independence of Bengal, 108—Ilis death, 108-9 Injelce port and Island of, 314, 348-9, 493-1 I Irsilan Khan, usurps the government of Bengal 89—Hisdeath, or death, oc. Islam Khan Ala Addeen, Governor of Bengal under 234.—Makes Tehangire. Dacca the capital, ib -En deavours to conciliate the Afghan of Orisss, 237-8-Sends an army against them, 238-9 .- Defeat, Aighans 241 -They submit to the Imperial authority ib -Death of Jahm Khan, 244, Islam khan Mushhedy Governor of Bengal under Shah Jehan 273-Receives the Mugh Chief of Chittagong as vassal to the Emperor 274 -Repels an invasion of the Assamose 275-In an ex nedition to Assam, reduces Cooch Behar, ib -Recalled to act as Vizier 276

Islamabad, the Mohammed ; an name of Chittagong 275,

J

Jaffier Khan-See Moor

J

Jagenagur, town of, 93—Its situation doubtful, ib. n.

Jagenagur, (Tippera) territory of, 91, 106

Jagepore, (Orissa) 68, 86.

Jagernaut, province of, 71-2, 77.

Jagernaut, temple of,—60-61, 210.

Jajoo, plains of, 395.

Janveh, 161.

Jarcund, mountains of, 148,

Jats, a tribe of Hindoos on the Sinde, 31, 54.

Jehandar Shah, Emperor of Hindoostan, 401, 417, 419— Defeated by Ferrokhsere, 422—Put to death, 422-3.

Jehangire Cooly Khan, Governor of Bengal under Jehangire the Emperor, 232—His character, ib.—Death, 233

Jehangire Selim, Emperor of Hindoostan, 217, 224, 229-30.

Jehangirenagur, the Mohammedan name of Dacca, 232, 354.

Jelkeh, (Chilka lake) river,

Jellal Addeen, Sultan of Bengal, 172—Assassinated, 173

Jelal Addeen Khany, Governor of Bengal under Nasir-Addeen Mohammed, 88— Supplanted and slain by the Imperial Governor of Kurrah, 89

Jellasır, district of, formerly Midnapore, 183-4.

Jellasore, city of, 211.

Jenghiez Khan—See Zingis Khan

Jennetabad, Gour, sonamed by the Emperor Homayon, 148.

Jessore, district of, 204, 360. Jeswont Roy, Dewan in Dacca—Reduces the price of grain, 463-5.

Jillalpore, zemindary of, 460.

Joanpore, 119 et n., 142, 171, 199, 261.

Joosy, village of, 165, 260—District of, 200.

Jorwe, fort of, 212.

Joudpore Raje of, 334, C of ib.

J

Jugdea, fort of 327—Factory at, 545 Jugdispore, 504 m. Jumna, river 92 Jypaal, twice defeated by Subuctageen, devotes himself on a funeral pile, 24

ĸ

Kakeshalan, tribe of 194

Kamroop, territory of 66 69 n. 77 87 136—Raja of, intercepts Mohammed Bukh tyar's retreat, 69

hanis, (Raja,) usurps the throne of Reogal, 117, haviog rebelled against Shums Ad deen II. ib Supra—Although a Hindoo, by policy gains the Afghan Chiefs, ib—His death ib hetasun, in Jsgepore 81 Khaleefabad 211 12 hhan Aazim Mirza Koke Governor of Bengal, Behar, and Orista, under Akbar 201—Re-establishes the imperial authority in Bengal, ib—Fails to tranquillize Orista.

K

202, 203-After settling Behar and Bengal, resigns his em ployments, 204 Khan Dowran, Governor of Bengal under Mohammed Shah, 444 449-His deputy Sbujaa Addeen Khan, the acting governor 450 Khan Jehan, Governor of Bengal under Akbar 180, 192 -By his services, all Bengal, Behar and Orlssa, are annex ed to the empire. 193 Khanezad Khan, Governor of Bengal under Jehangire 261-Resigns, ib Khareghur fort of, 212 2 Khizerpore, 324 Khoorum-See Shah Jehan Khoram, fort of 40 Khorassan, 18 khota in Tartary 8c. Khuarism kingdom of 53 Tondah-Sen Khuaspore Tondak Khuling tribe of 30, 70

khulijy Chiefs settled

Bengal, 71-Their power in electing the Sultans, 73, 74

Reduced, 80—A Khuling

K

Chief usurps the throne of Dehly, 100—And see Afghans Khusero, (eldest son of Jehangire,) conspires to supplant his father, 217.

Khusero I. King of Ghizne, 41, abandons the western provinces, and makes Lahore his capital, 42—His death and character, ib.

Khusero II last of the Ghiznean Dynasty, reigned thirteen years at Lahore, 42— Taken prisoner by Mohammed Ghory, ib.—Assassinated, vib.

Kıdderpore, 333.

Kıekobad, Emperor of Dehly, 97.

Kinnouge—See Cannouge. Kipchak, (north of the Caspian Sea) 83.

Koh Kote, fortress of, 12,30. Kole, (now Ally Ghur) fortress of, 49,54

Koonch, tribe of, 64—Territory of, 69.

Kudder Khan, Governor of the Lucknowty division of Bengal, 102—Defeats Fakher

K

Addeen the rebel governor of Sunergong, 103—His own troops, corrupted by the latter, murder him, 1b.

Kudgwa—See Cudgwa, Kurmputtun, city of, 66.

Kurrah, city of, 81.

Kurrah, Manikpore, province of, 81, 89, 119, 156-7.

Kuthoury, see Gungowtry.

L

Lahore, city of, 30, 37, 73, 86, 119-20

Loll Baugh, 461.

Luckipore, 237.

Luckmunyah, last Rajah of Bengal, History of, 45 et seq.

Lucknowty, 156.

Lucknow, (Gour) city of, 63, 70, 73—And see Gour

District of, 101, 104.

Lumghan, 21—District of, 1b. n.

M

Mabin, fort of, 28.

Madras, 343, 357, n., 556,

Mahanuddee, river, 487.

Maheenagur, 439

Mahmood Ghazy, King of Ghizne, 23—Invades Hindoo-

stan ib.-Takes the capital of Raja Jypaal ib -and of Raja Bajorao 24 -- Compels the Afghan Chief of Moultan to pay tribute 25-Defeats Annundosal 2 second time ib -Scizes the treasure in the sacred territory of Nagorkote, 26-Obtains the title αf Sultan ib - Conquers Moul tan ib -Pillages Thannasar in the Raje of Dehly and destroys the Hindoo Idols, 27 -Expels Pitteraou Typaal and plunders Cashmire 28-His unsuccessful slege of koh hote, lb -Reduces the Rais of Cannouge. Ib -Plunders the Hindoo temples at Muttra. 20-His expedition against the Princes of India, ib -Be sieges Koh Kote 30-Takes Labore and annexes the Punjab to his dominions, ib -Ruduces Guzerat 31-Plun ders the temple of Som Natt. ib - Defeats the Jata, 32

Mahmood Lody (Brother of Ibrahim) a fugitive at the court of Gour, 140—Recovers Joanpure, 141 infra.

М

Mamood Shah nominally Sultan of Bengal, 132—Assassinated, to

Mahmood Shah, Sultan αf Bengal 114-Rebellion αf Mukhdoom Aslum, Governor of Halypore, supported Shere Khan Regent of Behar Ib - Mahmood sends army to invade Behar, which is defeated, ib -Is joined by the king of Behar against the Regent, 120-Besieges Shere in Behar ib -Mahmood s army defeated, ib -Bengal invaded by Shere khan, 146-Mahmood retreats to his capi tal ib -Afterwards takes refoge in the camp of the Emperor Homayon, who promises to reinstate him Homayon. after taking Chunar advances Beogal and gains the lb. passes, ib - Death of Mahmood and termination of the independent line of Kings 81

Mahmoodabad 436 Maharatta Ditch 491 M

Mahrattas, (Berar) invade Bengal, 487-Plunder Moorshudabad, 489—Overrun the district named, 491-Surprised in their camp, 492—On their retreat take Cuttack, 493-Defeated by Aly Verdy Khan evacuate all the dependencies of Bengal, ib., supra -History of subsequent Mahratta invasions, ib infra, 497, 503-8, 511, 514, 515-18 -They obtain from the Nuwab Aly Verdy Khan the cession of Cuttack, and a stipulated annuity, as choute of Bengal, 520.-(Poona), join Aly Verdy, Nuwab of Bengal, against the Behar Raja, 494-5. Maldah, 106, 343. Malabar, coast of, 122. Malwa, 89, 119, 260-1 Man Sing, Raja of Kenore, Governor, of Bengal and Behar, under Akbar, 206-Reduces the Zemindar of Hajypore, 207-Disperses the predatory Moghuls in Ghoragot, ib.—His expedition to M

Orissa, 208—Compromises the dominion of that, pro 210-The Afghans vince, having seized the territory of Jagernaut, he again invades Orissa, 211; and re-annexes it to the empire, 212—Quells a fresh rebellion in Orissa, s 212-13-Receives the Raja of Cooch Behar as a vassal the Emperor, 213-4— Succours that prince against his revolted subjects, ib -- ' Attends Akbar in an expedition to the Dekkan, 214-15-The Afghans having conquered great part of Bengal, he and defeats them returns 215—Resigns, 216—Conspires against Jehangire, 217 -Re-appointed by the Emperor, 1b.—Re-called, 218-His death, ib. n.

Manikpore, 261-See Kurrah.

Meer Hubbeeb, DeputyDewan of Orissa, 476.—Taken; prisoner by the Mahrattas, enters their service, 490. On the cession of Cuttack to the Mahrattas, named as Dewan.

for the province, 520 n.—
Assassinated by a Mahratta
Chief ib n.

Masulipatam factory at, 353 Medarun, 183—See Bheer bhom.

Meer laffier Khan, Nuwab under the Bengal protection of the Eng previous 569—His history until his conspiracy deposing Seraje ad for Dowlah, 508 9 533 538 544 551.-His overtures to the Company's Resident, 555-6 Secret treaty with the English, 557-Remaioder αf history until Col. Clive seats him oo the musnud 558-569 Megua, river 238 327 Menhai Serate Addeeo Gioriany author the αf Tabkat Nassery 81 81 Merat, fort of 28 49 Mewat, Government of 166-7

Midnapore, town of, gives name to the district formerly Jellasir 184 5 202—Annexed to Bengal, 402-3 К

Mikeb tribe of 64 Mindu, fort of 142 3

Modood King of Ghizne, 36—Occupied by an invasion of the Siljokian Tartars, and by civil wars, ib—Dispossed by the Hindoo princes of all the Ghiznean conquests east of the Indus, except Lahore, 37—His death lb Mogbul Dynasty Governors of Beogal under the, 192 et sea Moghuls, attack the corthern frootler of the Afghao empire of Dehly on 110 a-Baber defeats Ibrahim Afghan. Emperor of Joanpore, 140-Hamayon, Moghul Emperor of Agra, overthrown by Shere Shah 167-The emplie of Hindoostan reverts to the uoder Akbar, 174-The Moghul jagiedars in Beogal and Behar rebel against Akhar subdued 1474. chiefly by the agency of Hlodoo commandars 196-7 Mohaba, territory of, 120.

Mohammed son of Mahmood, Ghazy 33

Mohammed, (son of Aurungzebe) detached in pursuit of his uncle Shujaa, 293—His love for the daughter of Shujaa, 295—He deserts to that prince, and marries her, 298-9—Unintentionally conduces to the defeat at Tondah, 201—Conclusion of history, 301-305 n.

Mohammed Aazım—See Aazım Shah.

Mohammed Aazim, Governor of Bengal under Aurungzebe, 333-Recovers Ghowhatty from the Assamese. 3341—Re-called to command under Aurungzebe Rajeputs, against the 335. ——re-appointed Bengal, 338-9-Enforces the poll-tax from the Hindoos, ib.—His dispute with English Governor at Hoogly, 341-2-War with the Company, 342-43—History of it in relation to Bengal till the death of Shaista Khan, 353-His character, 354.

M

Mohammed Adıl, Emperor of Dehly, 170-71.

Mohammed Bukhtyar Khulijy, first Mohammedan conqueror of Bengal, 56-His previous history, 57-Including the reduction of Behar. 58-Invades Bengal, 61-62-Surprises Nuddeah, 62-63— Makes Gour the capital, ib.— Destroys the Hindoo temples. ib -Stamps the coin in the name of the Sultan of Ghor, 6374—His unsuccessful expedition to the countries of (or rather South Bootan Assam, see 67 n.) and Thibet, 63-68—His army destroyed, 68—Dies on his return, 69.

Mohammed Ghory, (founder of the Ghorian Dynasty) takes prisoner, by a mean stratagem, and dethrones Khusero the Second, 42—His previous history, 43-44—Generalissimo to his brother Ghyas Addeen, 45—Takes the city of Tiberhind, 46—Defeated by Pittu Rai, and Candu Rai, 47—In a second engagement totally overthrows those princes, 48-Assigns Ajmire to Gola, son of Pittu Rai, on g promise of tribute 49-Seizes Dehly 16 -Defeats the prince of Cannouge, 50-Destroys the temples at Benaras, ib -Plunders lb Takes Blana, Guzerat. 1b -Becomes Sultan by the death of his brother 51-Assassinated by the tribe of Glekers ih

М

Mohammed Hady 383—Moorthud Cooly Khan
Mohamm & Khan Soor,
Governor of Bengal under Sellm Shah 170-1—On the usurpation of the Imperial throne by Mohammed Adll, assumes independence Ib—Slain in an engagement with Himu, vizier of Mohammed
Adll ib

Mohammed Meer Joomia, districts
Governor of Bengal under Aurungatebe 193 195 107/2— Mohammed
His previous blattery 313 315
1047/2—Makes Dacca again the capital of Bengal 316— Again mal Invades Cooch Behar, 318— capital,

M

Appoints there a civil administration, 319—Joined by the son of the Raja, to—Advances to Assam, 320—Distress of his army, 321—Tresty with the Assamese King, 322—He commences his return, 323—Detaches a force tn reconquer Cooch Behar 324—Dies lb—His character lb

Mohammed Muzzim—See

Shah Aalum.

Mohammed Shah Emperor of Hindoostan 436—Notice of his death 525 #

Mohammed Sheran, Deputy governor of Beogal under Mohammed Bukhtyar 64 Mohammed Sheran, elected Chief by the Mussulman commanders in Bengal assumes the ensigns of royalty 70—Resists a new division of the digricts 72—Defeated and falls in an affray 1b Mohammed Shujaa, (second son of Shah Jehan) Imperial Governor of Bengal, 278—Again makes Rajemahel the capital, 1b. Allows the English to establish factories in Balasore, and at Hooghly, 281-Removed to the government of Cabul, 282-Reinstated in that of Bengal, 1b character, 283-Asserts to the imperial his claim throne, 284—During a negociation is surprised by his nephew Soliman, the general of his elder brother Dara, 286—Retreats to Mongier, 287-On the defeat of Dara by another rival brother, Aurungzebe, endeavours to conciliate the latter, ib -Takes the field as his competitor, 288-Defeated by Aurungzebe, 201—Retreats successively to Mongier, 293 300,—and -Rajemahel, Tondah, 297—Joined by prince Mohammed, son of Aurungzebe, 298—Defeated by Meer Joomla, 301 -Escapes with Mohammed to Dacca, ib -By an artifice of Aurungzebe rendered suspicious of Mohammed 308-Dismisses that prince with his daughter, 303-Abandons

M

Bengal,—306 Hospitably received by the Raja of Arracan, 307—Besieged in the house assigned for his residence, 310—Taken prisoner and drowned, 310-11—Reflections for the melancholy fate of, 311-12

Mohammed Tatar Khan, Governor of Bengal under Balin, 80—His death, 81.

Mohib Aleepore, 503.

Maidapore, 665.

Monaim Khan, Governor of Bengal under the Emperor Akbar, 186—Removes the capital from Tondah back to Gour, 187—His death, 188.

Mongier, fort and district of 140, 159, 179, 288-9

Mooneer, town of, 140
Moorshud Cooly Jaffier
Khan, Dewan, Daputy-Nazim, and Nuwab of Bengal and Orissa under Aurungzebe, 400
—His previous history including his services as Dewan of Bengal, 398-401—On the succession of Behadur Shah confirmed as Deputy-Nazim and Dewan, 403—His des-

M

pour regulation of the zemindaries and assumption of the collections 403 4-He received embassics of submission from the Rajas of Tipperah Cooch Behar and Assam 405 -Defeats Rasheed appointed by governor Ferrokhsere 425-On the establishment of Ferrokhsere. remits to that Emperor the revenue and obtains the unit ed offices of Nazim and Dewan, lb -Encourages the Moghul and Arabian mer chants. 427-Refuses acknowledge the firmans granted to the English, ib --Intrigues to thwart an embassy from the English Presidencies to the Emperor 420-Frustrates the most im portant concession made to the Embassy, 434-Obtains the government of Behar 436 -Is confirmed in his viceroyalties by Mohammed Shah, ib -Represses a com motion in Bengal, 417-Character of his government illustrated by a detail of particular acts, 404 415 438

М

—Favourable view of his character 438—His death

Moorsbud Cooly Khan Deputy governor of Orissa under Serferaz Khan 462— Expelled by Aly Verdy Khan 484

Moorahudabad, (formerly Multirocrabad) 361—Made the capital of Bengal 402 3

Moorshudgunge 438 Mooteejeel 521

Morung, Raje of 414 Moultan, city of 25 26— Territory of 120

Mubarick Shah, Emperor Dehly, 101

Mughs, (of Pegu and Arracan) 242—And see Arracan

Mukhsoosabad 268 now called Moorshudobad, 361

Mukurrem Khan Governor of Bengal under Jehangire 264—Accidentally drowned, 265.

M

Mulk-Ala-Addeen, Governor of Bengal under Altumsh, 80—Superseded, 1b.

Mulk Andiel Ferose Shah, Sultan of Bengal, 130-31— His previous history, 126 130— Character of his reign, 129—His death, 122.

Mulk Yusbek, Governor of Bengal under Musaood, 85—His previous history, ib.—Unsuccessful expedition igainst Orissa, 86—Invades and plunders Azmurdun, ib.—Assumes independence, ib—Invades Oudh, ib—Retreats to Bengal, ib.—In an expedition to Kamroop, defeated and mortally wounded, 87, 88.

Muncara, village of, 561.

Murdehun, city of—See Burdehun.

Musaood I King of Ghizne, 33—Makes Balkh the seat of empire ib.—His character, ib., 34—Removes his court to Ghizne, ib.—Reduces the Persian provinces of Kutch and Makeran, ib.—Storms Sursutty in Cashmire, ib.—Enters Sewalic, and takes the forf of Hansi, 35—Destroyes the Hindoo idols at Sunput, ib.—Deposed and murdered, ib.

M

Musacod II., King of Ghizne, 36.

Musaood III., King of Ghizne, 37—Marries a princess of Siljoky, ib—His general, Toghan Sien, carries the Mohammedan conquests across the Ganges, 38—Musaood's death, ib.

Mustapha Khan attempts to seize the government of Behar, 501—Slain in battle, 504 et n.

Mutteapore, 321,

Muttra, a celebrated place of Hindoo worship, 29.

Muzuffir Khan Tirbutty, Governor of Bengal, Behar, and Orissa under Akbar, 193
—Remits a great revenue, 193-4—Eniorcing the new system of Akbar, causes a rebellion of Moghul jagierdars, 194—The Emperor's officers are expelled from Bengal and Behar 195—The Governor murdered by the insurgents, ib

M

Myapore, 584 547 8

Л

Naaf, river, 275 n., 306

Nadir Shah, the Persian usurper, 465—Date of his entrance into Dehly 494 n.
—Date of his departure, 471n

Nadonne, fort of 27 Naghore capital of Bher hhoom 76 82 116

Nagore, (in the mountains of Sewalic) fort of, 40

Nagorkote sacred territory

Nasir, a slave usurps the government of Bengal after the death of Ahmed Shah, i 3—Put to death by the nobles ib

Nasir Addeen Viceroy of Bengal and Behar under Mumib 77—Had proviously defeated Ghyas Addeen ib— His death, 79 N

Negrn Slaves, frequently promoted in India to important situations 125
Nebarn tribe of 64

Neharn tribe of 64 Nehorwala, 54 Nerbudda, river, 254 Niamut Khan, gallant con luct of, 363-64

duct of, 363-64
Nidarbira, firrest of 225
Nilab or Sinde, river, 22
Noor Jehan, (he beautiful) originally named Mher ul Nissa, 222—On' the assassination of her husband marries the Emperor Jehangire, 231 —Interferes in regard to the succession, 252—Her in fluence on the fashions and arts of India, 40 n Nuddeah, city of, 59-District of, 372

Nusserit Shah, (Naseob Shah) Sultan of Bengal, 139—
Subdues the countries of Tirhoot, Hajppore and Mon gier 140—Hospitably receives Mahmood Lody after the overthrow of the Afghan Dynasty by the Emperor Baber, and marries the daughter of the late Sultan

Ibrahim, ib.—Conciliates Baber who had sent an army to invade Bengal, 141, and promises to give no further assistance to Mahmood Lody, ib—On the death of Baber disregards that engagement, 141-2—His character, ib.—Assassinated by the eunuchs, 142-3.

0

Orissa, (Jagepore) The Raja of, defeats Toghan Khan, Governor of Bengal, 81; invades Bengal, and takes Naghore, $2 repels a Bengalese army under Mulk Yusbek, 86-Conquered by Soliman Shah Kerany, Sultan of Bengal, 175-Left in the power of the Afghan Chief Daood Khan, a vassal to Akbar, after he had been deprived of Behar and Bengal, 187---Relinquished to the Afghans by the Moghul Governor of Bengal under Akbar, 205-The dominion of the province compromised, 210--Re-annexA

ed to the Moghul Empire, 211-The Afghans in Orissa rebel but are reduced by an imperial army from Bengal, 237-242. War between the governor of Orissa and the Nuwab of Bengal, terminates in the expulsion of the former, 484-Instruction of the prosubdued. 485-487vince The Mahrattas invade the province, 505 and, after being repeatedly expelled, 505-509; at length obtain it by from cession Aly Verdy, Nuwab of the three provinces, 519 n. [And see Cuttack Bengal, and Behar.]

Ostend Company, account of the, 454,et seq.

Oude, government of, 71, 119, 493

Oude, plain of, 98.
Oulaberea village of, 300.

P

Paiks, infantry armed with swords and spears, 126
Paishawar, 22, 23, 45, 206
Patan Empire, another name for the Afghan, 189 n.

P

Patelbanga, Island of, 236-7 Pains, city of 178 108 111 Pegu, territory of 242 Phenny river, 2-0 Pipley, port of 266 Plasses, 555, 558 560 Poona, 326 400. Poonpoon, river, 180 Portuguese Pirates, account of 217 et seq-Continuation of their history 244 48 128 n -Settlers, at Fringy Barar, 328, Settlement at Hoogly the Gov crnor of. refuses to assist Shah Jehan, 255-Siege of Hoogly, and ex pulsion of the Portuguese 260-273 Prize now called Allahabad.

Pundua, made the capital of Bengal, 106 108, 118 Punjab 27, 36 46 I urneah district of 414

Pursotem seat of the idol Jagernaut 462 et a Puttole, village of, 558 B

Rabul, 145
Rajo Githe ancient Hindooname of Rajemahel 212 s
Rajomahel, (formerly Agmahel), made by Man Sing the capital of Bengal, Beharald Onsea, 212, 229—Court temoved from, 234—Again made the capital of Bengal, 278

278 Rajepoot, tribe of, 217—
Rajepoots 54—Rajepoot princes, 334
Rangamutty, town of 67 nr
320

Rashid Ling of Ghisne, 36 Ravy river, 397

Rentimpore fort of 353
Rhotas, fort of, 148 208—Described 164—Stratagem of Shere Shah to obtain it, ib

Rob mountainous country between Persia and India, 151

Roshenabad Moghul name of Tipperah 461

Rungpore foujedary of Rupal, fort of, 37. Ruttenpore, Raje of, 584 Ryn Kesary, 182.

S

Saad-ullapore, a place of Mohammedan worship 142,

Soctgong, fort of, 212 268 — Ancient grandeur, 272 n—Date when it was the sent of European factories, 361 n.

Sal Kote, fortress of, 46. Samana, 16, 119.

Samanian Dynasty, Ishmael Samany, the founder of, reigns in Bokhara, independent of the Khalifat. 18.

Saringghur, fort of, 211, Sarun, Sircar of, 97, 138.

Seerpore, (probably Serampore) 269 et n.

Seerpore Attaya, 214.

Sehsaram, district of 147, 148, 161.

Seistan, 38

Sekunder. (Emperor of Dehly,) 138.

Sekunder, Shah, Sultan of Bengal, 108—Refuses to acknowledge himself vassal to the Emperor Ferose, 109.

S

—Invaded, takes refuge in Akdala—Obtains peace by a present and the promise of a tribute, ib.—His favourite son, Gyas Addeen, having rebelled, the aged monarch in an engagement with the rebels is mortally wounded, 111-12.

Sekunder Shah Sultan of Bengal deposed for incapacity two months after being placed on the throne, 125.

Sekundra, 424.

Semyle, fort of, 320-21.

Seraj ad Dowlah, Nuwab Bengal and Behar, independent of Aalumgeer II. 532, ib. n.—His previous history, 517-520, 530-33. His character, 529-First acts of his government, 533-Irritated at some proceedings of the English, 534-Takes Cossimbazar, ib.—Besieges and carries William, Calcutta. Fort 535-538-The English prisoinhumanly crowded ners into the Black Hole 539 He releases the survivors. 540-Obtains contributions from the French and Dutch settlements, 534-His man date to Shokut Jung govern or of Purneah products a defiance 540-Defeat death of Shokut lung 544 -History of the Nuwab s war with the English under Colonel Clive, till the treaty of oth of February 545 51 -Vacillation of the Nuwab while the English are redocing the French settle-551 555-Influence of the Aighan tovasion on his councils, 552-Ilis chief officers make secret over tures to the English 553-He reinforces bis army near Plassey 555 Courts Meer Jatlier and other discontented Chiefs. 557-Sends a party to sleze Meer Jaffer ib -On the hostile aliance of the English res_s that officer ih --Their compact ib - \ssem

5

8

bles bls army 558-Sends for the French detachment ib -Battle of Plassey 561 pending which the Nuwab throws himself on protection of Meer Jaffler 562-Retreat ordered the advice of Meer Jaffier 563-The English the Nuwaha camp 564-His troops desert in bodies th -He retreats to Moorshu dabad ib -His flight to Rajemabel 565-Betrayed by a derseish, ib -His death 566

Serampore 332

Setferax Khan, Nuwab of Bengal and Orlssa under Mobammed Shah, 466—His character 467—Remits the revenues of three years to the Persian Invader Nadir Shah, 468—Two lostances of the Nuwab's despotism 468—Conspiracy against him ib—Menaced by Aly Verdy khan, Governor of Behar he assembles the Beogal army, 473—Perfidiously attacked, 474—Is slain in battle, 475.

Serhungs, a regiment of body guards raised by Hussein Shah, 135.

Sewad, 152.

Sewalic, 40, 49.

Shahbazpore, island of, 236-7.

Shah Aalum, 394—Competitor with Aazim Shah for the Empire of Hindoostan, ib—Defeats his brother, and takes the title of Behadur Shah 395.

Shah Hussein, King of Joanpore, overthrown by the Emperor Sekunder, a fugitive at the court of Gour, 137-38

Shah Jehan, (third son of Jehangire) usurps the sovereignty of Bengal in the course of rebellion against his father, 258—Previous history of this rebellion, 252, including the surprise of Orissa, 254—Reduces the province to Allahabad Joanpore, and Benaras, 261—Is defeated by the imperial army, 262—Retreats to the Dekkan from Bengal, 263, submits to his father's authority, and is forgiven, 264—Succeed to the imperial throne, 267-8—Deposed by his son Aurungzebe, 288, 311.

Shahbaz Khan Kumbo, Governor of Bengal and Behar under Akbar, 204—His previous history, 205—Relinquishes Orissa to the Afghans, 1b—Superseded and confined, 1b.—Death of, 206.

Shaikh Ala Addeen—See Islam Khan.

Shaista Khan, Governor of Bengal under Aurungzebe, 325—Drives the Arracanners from their positions on the Ganges, 327—Invades Chittagong, 328-29, and annexes it to Bengal, 330—Recalled, 1b—His character, 1b. 331

Sham Soury (first Prince)

Sham Soury, (first Prince of Ghor) his history, 45

Shere Afghan, prowess of, 223-23—Slain, 229

8 Shere Shah, Sovereign of Bengal and Bohar 167-His origin 151-Domestic history 152 et sea-Education, 153-Employments and ac tions until he hecomes Regent of Behar 154 59 including anecdotes of him when attending the Emperor Baber 157 8-By the deser tion of the young King of Behar he becomes Sovereign of that country, 159-Ohtalas the fort of Chunar by 161-His com marriage promise with Mahmood Lody. respecting the dominion of 1b - Deserts Mabmood Lody, respecting the dominion of Behar th-Deserts Mahmood in a battle with the Emperor Homason 103-Eludes the Emperor's demand of the fort of Chunar 163-Expels Mahmood Shah. Sultan of Bengal 164-By a stratagem obtains the fort of Rhotas, th .- Annihilates the Emperor Homayons tran sient authority in Bengal,

166—Unites the kingdoms of Bengal and Behar assuming the title of Shere Shah ih —Totally defeats Homayon, and becomes Emperor of Hindoostan, ih —Divides Bengal Into provinces 117—Killed at the slege of Callin ger 168—His character and public works ib, 169

Sheregotty 294

Shokut Jung (Governor of Purneah) his defiance to

Seraje ad Dowlah 540-Slain

in battle, 544 Shujaa Addeen khan. Deputy-Governor of Bengal and Orissa under Mohammed Shah 446 infra 448-Hla previous history 446 448, san supra-Ho liberates the zemindars, 450-Confirmed Governor of Bengal ib -Revenue of the province. 451-His character 452 466 -Increases the military establishment, 452-Allowed to appoint the Governor of Behar 453-His deputy in Orlssa, restores the idol Jagernaut, 461—The Nuwab appoints Serferaz Khan his heir, 465—His death, 466.

Shums Addeen II. Sultan of Bengal, 116—Defeated by the rebel zemindar Kanis, loses his life, 117

Shumsheer Khan, one of the Generals of Aly Verdy Khan, suffers the Berar Mahratta Chief, whose line had been surrounded, to escape, 502—Dismissed by Aly Verdy, 1b—Usurps the government of Behar, 508-11—Defeated by Aly Verdy, and slain, 514

Sicklygully, pass of, 145, 146

Siddee Buddee Dewaneh, (Muzuffir Shah Sultan of Bengal, 132—His previous history, ib. supra—His reign cruel and tyrannical, ib—Rebellion against him headed by the vizier, ib.—Different accounts of his death, 133.

Sief Addeen Assulateen, Sultan of Bengal, 166—His character, and death, ib.

Sief Addeen Toork, Governor of Bengal under Altumsh, 80—Dies by poison, 1b.

Silhet, district of 87 n., 481.

Siljokian Tartars, 36, 38 Sinde, river, 22, 32 Singee, English factory at,... 341.

Sirve, river, 97.

Soane, river, 141-2, 505

Soliman Shah Kerany, Sultan of Bengal, 172—His previous history, ib —He makes Tondah his capital, 174—Conciliates the Emperor Akbar, 1b -Subdues Orissa 175—Treacherously assassinates Ibrahim, form; erly Emperor of Dehly, ib. --Invades and plunders Cooch Behar, ib —Quells an insurrection in Orissa, 176-Affects to hold hisdominions of Akbar, 1b. -His death, ib

Som Nagt, an Hindoo idal 31 Soonamooky, river 519 # Sooty 257 300 555 Subanteeka. 239 river 510 # Subdhal, fort of, 212 Subuctageeo, mounts the tbrone of Ghizne, 20 supra -Invades Hindoostan, 21 -Takes the countries of Lumghan and Parshawur -1-His death 1b Sumunder Hindoo name of the Iodian Sea, 65

Sonarcote 111 Sundeep Island of 235-6 327 Suneigong city of oad #.

o III-Government of 102 102 Surput, a place of Hindoo yorthip 35

urat, 250 333 348 Surgutty fort of 34 49 --- river 46 48

syed Hussein Ala Addeeo Sultan of Bengal 133-His notice of their defeating trevious history lb supra,

134-On his elevation, permits Gour to be plundered ib ---Reduces the raises another regiment of body guards, and dismisses the Abyssinian troops, 135-Character of his reign, 136-Invades and plunders the kingdom of Assam ib - His unsuccessful expedition to hamroop lb -Builds a for: oo the Gunduk, 137-His public works | ib -- He affords an asylum to Shah Hussein 138-Averts the lotended hostlines of the Emperor Sekunder obtains a peace acknowledging the indepen dence of Bengal lb -His death 130

т

Tanna, fort of 3478 36 et n 549.

Taoyao, or Tangan species of horse 67 cl n

Tartars, ooder Timour Mohammed IIL 118 o.

T

Telingana, territory of, 313

Terriaguriy, pass of, 145, 146

Thannasar, town of, seat of the idol Jug Soom, 26

Thibet, 63, 213.

Tiberhind, city of, 46—Government of, 85

Timour, invades India, 118-19.

Timour Khan Keran, Governor of Bengal, 84—His previous history, ib.—His death, ib.

Tippera, Rajah of, sends presents to the Nuwab of Bengal, 404-5—Territory of, 91 (see Jagenagur)—Becomes a province of the Moghul Empire, 459-460, 480

Tirhoot, 77—Government of, 102, 140-1, 213.

Todermul Raja, Commissioned by Akbar to reduce the rebellion in Bengal and Behar, 196—Recovers Behar, 198—Is superseded, 200.

Toghan Khan, Viceroy of Bengal, 79—His previous history, ib -Invades Tirhoot. 80-Annexes Kurrah Manikto Bengal, 1b -His pore unsuccessful expedition Tagepore. 81—Besieged Gour by the Orissians, 81-Relieved by the army of Oude. 1b.—Battle between the two Mohammedan armies. ib.—Toghan resigns Bengal Khan, Timour to Appointed Governor of Oude, ib -His death, ib

T

Toghril, (Mogies Addeen) Governor of Bengal under Balin, 90—Reduces the Rajas on the north-east, 91—Invades and plunders Jagenagur, ib—Proclaims himself King of Bengal, ib.—Defeats two armies sent against him, 92—On the approach of the Emperor with a third army, retires to Jagenagur, 93—Surprised in his camp, and slain, 94-95.

Tondah, district of, 150-2, 156, 174 n—City of, made the capital of Bengal, 174—Deserted, ib. n.

guese 561

Travelling

T Tonse, river 262

Toorkestan, 52 75 Topasses,

in Indian Portu.

India Aazim s ez.

Mohammed peditious mode of 335 Tughlik, Emperor of Dehly,

101

Tughlikabad (Tughlikpore) 253

Tughlikpore or Cutlikpore, 138 256-7

Turryana mountains 136.

Vizagapatam, 353

Viziapore 356

Y

Yugan Tunt, Governor of Bengal, 84-His death, ib Yuauf Shah, Sultan of Ben gal, 124-A just administrator of the laws, 125-His death ïЪ

 \mathbf{z} Zabulistan Kingdom of, 20 Zemanich, fort of, 178 Zingis Khan, or n. Zufferabad 100 Zyn Addeen Deputy gover nor of Bebar 491 Defeats Mustapha Khan, who falls in an attempt to usurp the government of the province, 504-Is assassinated 511 12

Т

Tonse, river 262 Toorkestan, 52 75 Topasses, Indian Portu, guese, 561 Travelling India jn Mohammed Anzim s ex peditious mode of 335 Tughlik, Emperor of Debly, 101

Tughlikahad (Tugklikpore) 253

Tughlikpore or Cutlikpore 138 256-7 Turryana, mountains

Vizzgapatam 353 Viriapore 356

Yugan Tunt. Governor of Bengal 84-His death, lb Yusuf Shah, Sultan of Ben-

γ

zaterteurimbe tear A-4ct leg of the laws, 125-His death th

7 Zabullstan Kingdom of, 20. Zemanich, fort of 178 Zingia Khan, or # Zufferabad 100 Zyn Addeen Deputy gover nor of Behar 491 Defeats Mustapha Khan who falls in an attempt to usurp the government of the province, 504-Is assassinated 511 12

THE END